REPORT.

THE SELECT COMMITTEE appointed to inquire how far the intentions of the Reform Bill are defeated by creating and registering Fictitious and Improper Votes in Ireland, and who were empowered to report the MINUTES OF EVIDENCE taken before them, from time to time, to The House;—HAVE considered the matters to them referred and have agreed to the following Report:—

YOUR Committee, in reporting this Third Portion of the Evidence which they have taken to The House, feel themselves called upon to state, that the abrupt termination of the Session has forced them to leave the case of the Registry of Fictitious Votes in the City of Dublin incomplete.

The Committee have been able to enter on the Investigation of one class of Voters only, viz. the Freemen; and, with regard to them, the Evidence given has been confined to impugning their legality, and it has been impossible to go so far into the case as to receive any Evidence or Statements in support of their Qualifications.

The Committee regret to be obliged to offer so incomplete and so partial a portion of Evidence in this case; and they also lament that they have not been able to extend their Inquiries into the cases of Fictitious Voters in other Boroughs, or in any degree to enter on the Question of County Constituencies: Your Committee not having prosecuted the Inquiry entrusted to them to its legitimate extent, forbear to offer any opinion on the Tendency or Results of the Evidence which they have taken. They, nevertheless, have no hesitation in recommending a renewal of this investigation in the next Session of Parliament; for that which has already appeared in Evidence fully justifies the recommendation of the continuance of an Inquiry into this very important subject.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE.

Jovis, 25° die Maii, 1837.

MEMBERS PRESENT.

Mr. O'Connell.	Mr. Hamilton.
Sir R. Ferguson.	Mr. Serjeant Jackson.
Mr. French.	Mr. Lefroy.
Mr. Milnes Gaskell.	Mr. Emerson Tennent.

LORD GRANVILLE SOMERSET, IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. O'Connell laid before the Committee a Parliamentary Paper, headed "Freemen of Corporate Towns, Ireland," containing "A Return of the Number of Freemen created in each Corporate Town in Ireland returning Members to Parliament, from 1st April to 20th July in the present Year, distinguishing those who have been declared entitled to their Freedom as of Right. Ordered by the House of Commons to be printed, 25th of August 1831." No. 200. 25 May 1837.

Mr. O'Connell read the following extract from page 4 of the above-mentioned Paper: "Dublin city.—Number of freemen created in the city of Dublin, from 1st April to 20th July 1831, 20 freemen. The corporation of Dublin do not declare any persons entitled to their freedom as of right. The freemen created by the corporation of Dublin during the above period are alone qualified to vote for the return of a Member of Parliament." Signed, "Greene and Archer, town-clerks, corporation of Dublin."

Mr. O'Connell read the following passages from the Report of the Committee on Municipal Corporations, ordered by the House of Commons to be printed, 4th June 1833, No. 344, page 205:

"Lunæ, 25° die Martii, 1833. The Right Hon. James Abercromby in the Chair.

"The Right Honourable C. P. Archer, Lord Mayor of the city of Dublin; Sir John Kingston James, Bart., treasurer of the city; and Mr. George Jackson, one of the law agents, called in; and examined.

"4756. (To Alderman Archer.) You are Lord Mayor of Dublin?—I am.

"4757. Have you ever filled the office of Mayor before?—Never before the 1st of October last.

"4758. (To Sir J. K. James.) Are you an alderman of the city of Dublin?—Yes.

"4759. How long have you been alderman?—About 16 years.

"4760. (To Mr. Jackson.) Are you town-clerk, or engaged in the office of town-clerk?—I am engaged in the office of town-clerk.

"4761. How long have you been so engaged?—For about 24 years.

"4762. In what situation are you in the corporation?—As one of the law agents.

"4765. (To Sir J. K. James.) What is the style and title of the corporation of Dublin?—The Lord Mayor, Sheriffs, Commons, and Citizens of the City of Dublin; the aldermen are not included in the style.

"4766. Are there freemen of the city of Dublin?—There are.

"4767. By what title does a person become a freeman of the city of Dublin?—There are three different modes of admission; one by birth, one by service, and another what is generally called by 'grace especial,' or 'special grace.'

"4768. Must a person who claims by birth be the son of a person born in Dublin?—Born not necessarily in Dublin, but born, his father having been free at the time of the birth of the child.

"4769. Then he must be the son of a freeman?—Yes.

"4770. Are all sons free?—All sons may seek their freedom by a certain process; they all have the privilege of claiming their freedom from the corporation.

 "4771. When

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

25 May 1837.

"4771. When a freeman by birth claims his title, it is acknowledged as of right?—There is a veto, which has been exercised time immemorial, I believe, on the part of both houses, for the corporation of Dublin sit differently from what probably other corporations do.

"4772. Is that veto frequently exercised?—It is sometimes exercised, no doubt, but not what I call frequently.

"4773. Exercised, do you think, in the course of each year?—No; I do not know that there has been a refusal each year.

"4774. Upon what grounds generally is this veto enforced?—With respect to that I probably cannot give a direct reason, because each person composing the distinct houses may have his own reason for voting pro or con.

"4775. Is the veto simply given without any reason assigned?—Exactly. It is necessary probably to tell the commitee, the upper house, as it is called, the lord mayor and board of aldermen, sit separately from the commons; the board of aldermen, when questions arise, divide, and the commons decide by ballot.

"4776. How are persons made freemen by servitude?—A person who has served seven years to a freeman may claim his freedom.

"4777. How do persons seek their freedom by special grace?—Persons wishing to become free, petition for such freedom such of the guilds or minor corporations, as they may wish to be admitted into; upon such admission, the proper officer of the guild certifies the same to the corporation at large; a 'beseech' is then laid before the lord mayor and board of aldermen, at their quarter assembly, who have the power of admitting or rejecting; if admitted by them, the beseech is sent to the commons' house for their decision, and if they concur in the admission, he is then entitled to be sworn in as a freeman.

"4797. Are there two kinds of corporations, in fact, in Dublin; the general corporation, consisting of the general corporation of the city at large, and the particular corporations, called guilds, besides?—Yes.

"4798. Are those guilds numerous?—They consist of 25 different guilds.

"4799. They have their representatives in the corporation?—Yes.

"4800. Do you know the number of each guild?—Not the number of freemen; I know the number of representatives which each guild returns.

"4801. About how many freemen are there altogether?—About 4,000 or 5,000; a person may be free of the city at large, which gives the right or freedom of voting for the representation of the city of Dublin, but does not give a right in the minor guilds.

"4802. When a person claims his freedom by birth, does he seek it in the same guild to which his father belongs?—Yes, he does, generally speaking.

"4803. Are there not many who are free of particular guilds, but who, being merely free of such guilds, did not formerly exercise any right of voting for Members of Parliament?—They did not exercise, nor have they the right of voting for representatives.

"4804. In order to be entitled to vote for the representatives, it was necessary to be free of the corporation at large?—Yes.

"4805. Are there not many persons in the predicament of being free of a particular guild only?—Yes, there are some.

"4806. Particularly Roman-catholics; is there a single Roman-catholic free of the corporation at large?—No, I believe not.

"4807. Are there any freemen of the corporation at large, who are not free of a particular guild?—Yes, there are.

"4808. Then it is necessary for a freeman, though he belongs to the body at large, to take up his freedom in the particular guild to which his father belongs?—It is not necessary for a freeman of the city at large to become a member of a minor guild, unless he particularly wishes it.

"4809. Are there none who are free of the city at large, who have not taken up the freedom of a particular guild?—There are some.

"4810. Will you state all the guilds?—The first is Trinity guild, or guild of merchants; 2d, tailors'; 3d, smiths'; 4th, barber surgeons'; 5th, bakers';

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

5th, bakers'; 6th, butchers'; 7th, carpenters'; 8th, shoemakers'; 9th, saddlers'; 10th, cooks'; 11th, tanners'; 12th, tallow-chandlers'; 13th, glovers and skinners'; 14th, weavers'; 15th, shearmen and dyers'; 16th, goldsmiths'; 17th, coopers'; 18th, feltmakers'; 19th, cutlers and stationers, and paper-stainers'; 20th, bricklayers'; 21st, hosiers'; 22d, curriers'; 23d, brewers and maltsters'; 24th, joiners'; and 25th, apothecaries'.

"4811. In most of these guilds they recognise the right of birth and servitude?—Yes.

"4812. But these rights are not recognised as conferring an absolute title by the corporation at large?—No.

"4813. How are the freemen by special grace admitted?—By a petition to the particular guild to which they wish to gain admission; we will suppose, for instance, a gentleman is a merchant in Dublin, and he wishes to be free of the guild of merchants; his friend, or he himself, petitions the master, wardens, and brethren of that guild for admission, and, if he is approved, he is then sent by the particular officer of that guild to the corporation at large, who either admit or reject him as a freeman of the city; if he is admitted he has a certificate from the town-clerks, goes back to the minor corporation, and he is sworn in, both as a freeman of the particular guild before the master and wardens, and a freeman of the city at large before the lord mayor.

"4814. When you say that this petition is sent to the corporation at large, what do you mean by that term; do you mean that it is sent first to the common council?—It is sent to the town-clerks, who prepare a beseech, and submit the same on the quarter assembly day to the lord mayor and corporation at large.

"4815. What body is it in the corporation at large to whom this reference is made, which has the power of determining whether such an individual shall or shall not be a freeman of the corporation at large?—The lord mayor and board of aldermen sitting together, the sheriffs and commons sitting in another place; and accordingly, on the proper day, every three months, by the usages of the corporation and charter, they have what is called their quarter assembly days; upon that day the particular name or names of such persons as wish to become free are, in the ordinary despatch of the business of the day, put by the town-clerks before the lord mayor, who puts a regular question upon each name; so when a person passes the board of aldermen, he goes, in the ordinary way, to the sheriffs and commons; the sheriff there puts a similar question, and if they admit it, they come back again to the board of aldermen, and are so made freemen of the city of Dublin.

"4816. Those persons' names, as the Committee understand, having passed the guild of one corporation, must first be submitted to the upper house, the lord mayor and board of aldermen, and if it passes that house, then it goes down to the commons, composed of the sheriffs and the commons?—Yes.

"4817. Supposing it does not pass the upper house, is it at any time submitted to the commons?—No; the upper house exercise the privilege of rejecting at once such a person.

4818. Have the upper house an absolute veto upon the admission of any person to the freedom?—Yes.

"4819. Do you not call those beseeches?—Yes.

"4839. (To Sir J. K. James.) Are you aware that since the year 1792 Catholics have been, in point of law, admissible to the city of Dublin corporation?—I have heard that such has been the case.

4840. Are you aware, that not a single Catholic has ever been free of the corporation at large?—No, I believe not.

"4868. To what guild do you belong?—To the guild of merchants.

"4875. Supposing a man to have what we call an inchoate right of becoming a freeman by birth, have the guild power of saying to such an individual, You shall not be a freeman of the guild?—They have exercised the power frequently; I fancy they have the right. I should have mentioned before, in the detail of the business, which is very extensive in that guild, as in every other guild, they have what is called a council of the house, to whom names are submitted prior to the quarter day, on which they they are generally brought forward, and the detail of business goes through that council of the house, and is brought before the master, wardens, and brethren of the guild of merchants on quarter day."

Mr. O'Connell read the following passages from page 17 of the Appendix to the Report on Municipal Corporations, Ireland:—"Report on the City of Dublin, Part 1, presented to both Houses of Parliament, by Command of His Majesty.

"60. There are three classes of freemen: first, those made free of the city at large without having previously obtained the freedom of any of the guilds; secondly, those admitted in the first instance to the freedom of a guild, and then to that of the city at large; and lastly, those admitted to the freedom of a guild, but not to the freedom of the city. The first and last of these classes, particularly the last, are inconsiderable in number, the great body of the freemen being of the second.

"61. Admissions in the first instance to the freedom of the city at large are granted as by grace especial by the aldermen and commons in the general assembly. Freemen, so admitted, are merely honorary. It is not usual for a person seeking this admission to apply for it directly; the course is, for some alderman, or member of the commons, to mention the name to the town-clerk previously to the meeting of the assembly. The town-clerk inserts it in the abstract, prepared by him, of the business to be done at the assembly, and also prepares a petition for the admission of the individual, mentioning in it either some particular public services deserving of such a mark of approbation, or if no such service can be especially referred to, the petition prays, that the individual may be admitted 'for his loyalty to the King and constitution.' This form of expression is considered as connected with the exclusive political principles so long acted on by the corporation. If the individual proposed is married to the daughter of a freeman, the fact is alluded to in the petition as a reason for his admission; but we do not find that any right to such admission is recognized by the corporation. The proposition may originate either with the board of aldermen or the commons; the resolution to admit must pass both. Each body claims and exercises the power of rejecting at pleasure, and without assigning any reasons. Such admissions to the freedom of the city at large have been few since the passing of the Reform Bill. Previously to that Act they were numerous, and occasionally persons were so admitted in considerable numbers, and very many were non-residents.

"Shortly previous to the Emancipation Act, being passed propositions were made in the commons to admit at one assembly 1,000 freemen, the parties proposing them reading the list of the names from the newspapers of the day; but such a proceeding being objected to as irregular, a committee was appointed to select such as it would be eligible to admit, and they selected above 200, who were admitted accordingly.

"The lord mayor sometimes exercises the privilege of creating a freeman of the city at large, during his year of office, or rather of requesting the assembly to admit an individual named by him. There is in form a petition, or beseech, for the admission, stating it to be at the request of the lord mayor, which is, in general, acquiesced in.

"62. Persons who have obtained the freedom of any of the guilds are entitled to apply for admission to the freedom of the city at large. For this purpose the applicant lodges in the town-clerk's office a certificate, signed by the master, wardens and clerk of the guild, stating the admission to the guild, and the grounds of it, and his place of abode, occupation and trade. The certificate from the guild of merchants describes the party as a merchant; the town-clerk then prepares a petition, or beseech, as from the person seeking to be admitted, which states those facts, and the beseech is laid before the next assembly.

'The town-clerk, in cases of admission by birth, first ascertains from the freemen's books that the name of the father of the applicant is entered in them, and that such a person has been 21 years a freeman. The commons and board of aldermen claim respectively to exercise, and have, in fact, long exercised the important power of admitting or rejecting, at their pleasure, those applying from the guilds, whatever be the grounds of their claim, and without assigning any reason for the rejection.

"In

"In the year 1826, on a return to a mandamus directed to the corporation, to admit a person who had obtained, by birth, the freedom of a guild, but had been rejected by the board of aldermen, they returned, that from time immemorial they had exercised this right; and the Court of King's Bench, on argument, decided that the return was good in law.

"3. In numbers, the freemen bear a very small proportion to the population of the city, a fact sufficiently accounted for by the discretionary power of rejection assumed by the board of aldermen and common council, as already noticed, and the exclusive religious and political principles on which those bodies and the guilds have hitherto acted.

"Since the year 1793 the freedom of the corporation and guilds has been by law open to Roman-catholics, yet there is not known to have been to the present time a single individual of that persuasion admitted by the common council. The clerk of the commons, who has held that situation for many years, could only inform us that he had heard of one who had passed, inadvertently, upwards of 30 years ago. In the guilds a similar system generally prevails; and even where a more liberal practice has existed the experiment was defeated by the exercise of the discretionary power of rejection in the board of aldermen and commons.

"The exclusion is not confined to Roman-catholics. The being known, or suspected to be friendly to their claims, previously to the Emancipation Act, was equally effective to disqualify the applicant, though a Protestant; and the advocacy of what are called liberal or popular principles has formed, and still forms a strong ground of objection. In short, the proceedings of the corporation as to the admission of freemen have been, and are avowedly conducted on the most extreme principles of exclusion, religious and political."

Mr. James Martin, called in; and Examined.

Mr. James Martin.

14284. Chairman.] WHAT are you?—A commercial agent, residing at Dublin.

14285. In what part of Dublin?—York-row, Dublin.

14286. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you been engaged in looking at the register of the city of Dublin?—I have,

14287. How long?—Since the 2d of May 1835.

14288. Did you volunteer that occupation?—I did.

14289. How long were you acting as a volunteer?—Eighteen months.

14290. Have you since been employed at a salary?—Since that I have.

14291. How much?—Two pounds a week.

14292. By whom is that salary paid to you?—By the General Association of Dublin.

14293. Has your occupation been precisely the same through the entire time, with the exception of receiving a salary for part of it?—Exactly the same; till about six months that I have taken notes of the evidence of the freemen, which I did not do till the first year and a half; for the last six months I have taken notes of the evidence of the freemen, as I found it was not taken so correctly as we wished it to be done.

14294. Chairman.] Are you a short-hand writer?—No; I take it as quick as I can as it goes on.

14295. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you your book of notes?—I have.

14296. Have the number of freemen increased very much latterly in Dublin?—They have.

14297. Do you know of any exertions made to procure persons to be registered as freemen?—I see constantly a vast deal of names in the clerk of the peace's list of freemen, who are not freemen according to the names upon the list; on my sending to inquire or making inquiry, I find there are persons going about seeking for persons to make freemen.

14298. Do you mean to say, that a number of notices are served for persons to be registered as freemen, who are not free at the time those notices are served?—I do; a considerable number.

14299. Mr. Hamilton.] How do you know that?—By inquiry through the city; seeing them come up after their names are in the list, and their admitting, on their oath, that they were freemen only a few days before, perhaps the day before, before, or the week before, and seeing their names upon the list 22 or 23 days before.

14300. Mr. O'Connell.] The notice of registry must be 21 days?—Twenty-one days.

14301. And when those notices for registry are served the persons are not free?—They are not free.

14302. Is that a numerous class?—They are.

14303. And it appears when they come to register, that they have been admitted subsequent to the notice?—Some that very day; some 10 days before they come to be registered.

14304. Then it occurs frequently, that there are persons who have given notice to be registered, and whose names have been in the notices at least 21 days before they are free at all?—Yes.

14305. And some of those appear, by the investigation, to be admitted to the freedom the very day they came to be registered?—Yes; they are sworn in that day.

14306. Had you any series of questions put by those opposing the registry of freemen?—Yes.

14307. Is there any law agent?—There are two counsel sometimes, and sometimes one. If we have occasion to argue any question, we sometimes bring one or two more; but there is always one brought by the party to which I belong, Mr. Addy Curran, and constantly counsellor Alexander Seaton. Mr. Curran is there; we retain him by the year.

14308. Did he attend for another body called the Central Club?—He did; but we have acted for the citizens generally, that is, for the liberal party.

14309. Have you with you the questions which you put to the freemen?—I have.

14310. Will you read them?—We ask every freeman that comes up, no matter in what right he claims, "Did you ever pay any, and what money, other than the sum of one shilling to the town-clerks upon the certificate now produced, for or in respect of your freedom or admission to the corporation of Dublin, or any guild of the corporation, or to any officer of either, as for stamp duty or otherwise?" That is the first question. The second question we ask is, "Were you ever elected, admitted, or sworn a member of any and what guild of the corporation of Dublin; and if so, state where, and before whom you were so admitted and sworn?" Then if they claim in right of birth, we ask them, No. 3: "Who was or is your father, or reputed father; was he a member of the corporation of Dublin, or of any and what guild thereof; when was he admitted and sworn; where and when were you born?" If he claims in right of service, we ask him, "Who was, or is the person to whom you alleged you served your apprenticeship; was he a member of the corporation of Dublin, or of any and what guild thereof; when was he admitted and sworn; were you bound to him by any indentures, and of what date; were they ever and when enrolled with the clerk of any and what guild or corporation; where and in what trade, and how long from time to time did you serve under the said indentures; where are now the said indentures?" If he claims in right of marriage, we ask him question No. 5: "What was the name of the person whom you allege to be your wife, and in whose right you claim; when were you married; who was, or is her father, or reputed father; was he a member of the corporation of Dublin, or of any and what guild thereof; when was he admitted and sworn; when was your said wife born?" We put all those questions respectively to every person claiming as to the different rights.

14311. Were those questions answered?—No, the counsel on the opposite side told them not to answer them; we then referred to the barrister to know whether he insisted on their being answered, and he overruled them.

14312. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Who was it that prepared those questions?—Counsellor Hudson.

14313. Is that the gentleman who was one of the Corporation Commissioners?—I do not know whether he was or no, to my own knowledge.

14314. Did you ever hear that he was?—I cannot say that I have.

14315. Were they prepared at the Association?—No, they were prepared in the court, at my shoulder; they were prepared on the occasion. We brought down Mr. Hudson to argue against those freemen one day in the court. Mr. Dobbs overruled his arguments, and after that Mr. Hudson sat down beside me, wrote wrote those queries, and desired me to put them to every one that came up in the court upon the table.

14316. Are there any other forms given to you for your use at the registries?—There is a manual or direction for the registry.

14317. A manual of instructions for the agents of the registries?—Yes.

14318. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you that?—I have.

14319. Was that issued to you from the Association?—Yes, I got this in the Association rooms; it was given to me by Mr. Ray, the under secretary.

14320. Is he the under secretary of the General Association?—Yes; but these were not done by the General Association; these were done by the Reform Registry Association, another body that took up the registry in 1836, but which, I believe, are not now acting.

14321. Has that association ceased to exist?—It has ceased to act.

14322. When was that association formed?—I believe some time in 1836.

14323. Did it come to a termination in the same year?—No, it ended lately, about half a year ago.

14324. How long ago was it that they ceased to act; was it in 1836?—No, I think it was in 1837.

14325. What part of 1837?—I think about January.

14326. Are you sure that they at all existed in this year?—I cannot exactly say.

14327. Mr. O'Connell.] You never were a member of it?—I never was a member of either association.

14328. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Has the General Association taken up the subject of registry?—I believe it has.

14329. Has that Reform Registry Association acted since the General Association has taken up the business of registry?—Yes, it has.

14330. When did the General Association take up the subject?—I cannot tell what period.

14331. Then, how can you tell that the Reform Registry Association has acted since the General Association took up the business of registry?—Because I have been in the Reform Association rooms when the other was acting.

14332. When the other was acting upon the subject of registry?—Yes.

14333. When was that?—I think it was in November 1836 that I had occasion to apply to them for affidavits, and for papers of various descriptions.

14334. Was it in the chambers of the General Association that you got that printed book?—I cannot say where it was I got it, but I think it was the Registry Association.

14335. Where were the chambers of the Registry Association?—No. 6, in Westmoreland-street.

14336. Have they any chambers there now?—I do not know whether they keep chambers yet or not.

14337. Are you sure whether it was in Westmoreland-street or at the Corn Exchange that you got that book?—No; whenever I wanted anything I walked there, and took any book that I wanted.

14338. Were there similar books in both?—There were; they were all issued by the Reform Association.

14339. Are they kept there for use at the registries throughout Ireland for the liberal party?—Yes.

14340. Have they prepared certain forms applicable to all purposes of county registries and town and borough registries.—Yes, so far as affidavits; I have seen this book in the hands of registering agents for the conservative party.

14341. They have taken a leaf out of their neighbours' book?—No, they took the book altogether.

14342. It was so good a manual that the conservatives thought it their interest to learn from the other party?—Yes, it is of use now to both parties.

14343. How long has that book been in use in Ireland?—Some time in 1836; I had it upon the 30th of April 1836.

14344. Are there any other gentlemen employed besides you by the Association in Dublin?—Not in the registry, nobody paid.

14345. Are you a Protestant gentleman?—A Catholic.

14346. Is Mr. Curran a Protestant or a Roman-catholic?—A Roman-catholic.

Mr. James Martin.

25 May 1837.

14347. Is Mr. Seaton paid?—I believe he has been paid, but I never asked anything about his affairs.

14348. You know that Mr. Addy Curran is paid?—Yes, because I generally pay him myself.

14349. Do you pay Mr. Seaton?—No.

14351. Is Mr. Addy Curran?—I think he is.

14352. Is Mr. Hudson?—I do not think he is; I have never seen him in the Association rooms.

14353. Mr. Hamilton.] Have you seen him at the Reform Registry Association?—I have.

14354. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Did you see Mr. Curran there?—Yes.

14355. Mr. Seaton?—Yes.

14356. Are the gentlemen who are members of the Reform Registry Association members of the General Association?—Yes; pretty much the same gentlemen are members of every liberal association that exists in Dublin.

14357. Are they pretty much the same gentlemen that go from one to the other, and make speeches at them all?—Yes.

14358. Mr. O'Connell.] Did you ever hear those gentlemen make speeches at the Reform Registry Association?—No, I never heard a speech made at the Reform Registry Association; it is all working at books.

14359. Did you ever see a report of speeches made there?—Never.

14360. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Were you a member of that Association?—No.

14361. Were you a member of the General Association?—No.

14362. Have you ever seen Mr. Piggott at the Association?—I have seen him in the committee-rooms.

14363. When?—It is a long time ago, upwards of a year.

14364. At which Association?—I have seen him at the Registry Association room.

14365. Have you seen him at the Corn Exchange?—I cannot say whether I have or not; but I am sure I have never seen him at any meeting at the Corn Exchange.

14366. Do you know that he is a member of the General Association?—I do not know.

14367. Has he been useful in the preparation of forms and instructions for the registering?—I do not know of my own knowledge, but I think that he would give any advice that was wanted.

14368. Do you happen to know that he did?—No, I do not.

14369. You never heard that he was useful in preparing instructions?—I have heard that he was a very useful active man in everything.

14370. Do you know that he was one of the Commissioners of Corporate Inquiry in Ireland?—No.

14371. Is Mr. Hudson the gentleman that prepared a valuable book upon the law of elections?—Yes.

14372. Mr. Hamilton.] Do you know by whom these instructions were prepared?—No; I suppose by the gentlemen collectively.

14373. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Those persons that you say were admitted in Dublin, some of them upon the very day that they were sworn in as freemen, do you know when they were admitted as freemen?—No further than what they stated themselves the day they were sworn.

14374. Are you aware that the admission is one thing and the swearing another?—I am not aware of the method in the corporation, for they keep it so much to themselves.

14375. Are you aware that the admission and swearing-in are two different things?—No.

14376. You do not mean to say that they were admitted on the same day that they were sworn?—I mean to state, that in the parchment certificate they produced, their admission appeared as of that day, and that they admitted upon their oath that they were sworn upon that day.

14377. Mr. Hamilton.] Are you aware that the certificate is given upon the member of the corporation being sworn in?—I am not aware of the management of the corporation in any way.

Mr. James Martin.

25 May 1837.

14378. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] You do not know to what the certificate refers in point of date?—No; that we were always barred from making any inquiry about. I have asked it at different times, but I could never get any answer.

14379. Did you ever make any inquiries of the town-clerk as to the time when those persons were admitted?—I did, but I could get no information.

14380. Then none of your information as to the time of admission of the freemen is derived from the officers of the corporation?—None; our party could never get any information from them.

14381. None of the information you have given here, with respect to the time of admission of freemen has been derived from the proper officers of the corporation, or from inspection of the books?—No; we would not be allowed to search the books.

14382. Your information is derived from what you gathered from conversation of people not connected with the corporation?—From the man himself, upon his oath upon the table.

14383. Mr. Lefroy.] Do you mean to say, that the men admitted upon their oath, that the time of their admission was only the day, or the day before, or about the time of their being registered?—With the permission of the Committee, I will read the note of their evidence.

14384. Mr. Hamilton.] Have you a copy, or can you state the purport of the certificate which you call the certificate of admission?—No; I do not know that I ever had more than one certificate in my hand, and that was got by a sort of snatch, for I would not be allowed to look at it.

14385. Mr. O'Connell.] You were asked, whether Mr. Curran is a Catholic. What religion is Mr. Seaton?—A Protestant.

14386. What religion is Mr. Hudson?—I believe he is a Protestant.

14387. Having been at the Association, you can have no doubt that Mr. Piggott gave his assistance in framing the documents for the registry?—I am sure he did; he is very warm about the registries. I did not see him do it, but I am as sure that he did as I can be of anything I do not know.

14388. And you have no doubt that he is a member of the Association?—He was a member of the Registry Association; and I think I have heard that he was a member of the other, but that, upon his being appointed to some situation in the Castle, he retired, or did not act; and I think I have heard that he took his name off the books.

14389. Have you in employing counsel, ever thought whether the counsel was a Protestant or a Catholic?—Not the least; we have had four counsel, and two of them are Protestants; the only reason that there is the least distinction of religion was, that Mr. Curran is better known to the description of people that we had to register.

14390. Mr. Hamilton.] Then you mean to say, that efficiency is the only consideration?—Yes; I can have no idea of religious distinction, because I am married to a person who was a Protestant, and all my connexions are Protestants.

14391. Are the persons you have mentioned strong partizans?—Like all the rest in Ireland.

14392. Efficiency being the only consideration with you, have you ever employed a gentleman of conservative principles?—No; that would be a very foolish thing to do; he would not be efficient for us.

14393. Mr. O'Connell.] You also bring forward persons to be registered upon the liberal interest?—Yes.

14394. You serve notices for them?—I seek for them, and I inquire whether they are registered or not, and put in notices, and get them served, and bring them up to be registered.

14395. Those are persons whom you conceive to be entitled to register?—Whom I know to be householders, or leaseholders, or persons entitled to register.

14396. Are they closely examined?—Very closely.

14397. Are they cross-examined by counsel?—They are cross-examined sometimes by three or four counsel; sometimes by more.

14398. Who are the counsel employed on the other side?—The constant counsel is Mr. James Hyndman; but we have had on the opposite side Mr. Dolling, Mr. Daly, Mr. Stokes and others, whom I do not immediately recollect; lect; and we have had Mr. Jackson himself once. We have had Mr. Brewster, and we have had Mr. West himself assisting; we have had a great number, in fact.

14399. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] It was upon the main question of the admissibility of freemen that I was there?—I believe it was.

14400. Mr. O'Connell.] Did you ever know a Roman-catholic employed by that party?—Not one.

14401. You employ two Protestants out of four, but they employ no Catholic at all?—No.

14402. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] You are very glad to hook in a Protestant?—I never made a word of distinction about religion, nor the party that I belong to.

14403. What party do you belong to?—The Trades' Union; I am one of the vice-presidents.

14404. Mr. O'Connell.] The Trades' Union you speak of is a political trades' union?—Yes; it is not an union of any particular trades, it is composed of lawyers and doctors, as well as all the various kinds of trades. One of our rules is, that there should be no secrecy, and that that the room is open to any one, and that no distinction of religion shall be mentioned. Our chairman often is, and a great portion of the body are Protestants; I never heard the question of religion asked.

14405. Has Mr. Dobbs assigned any reason for preventing those questions from being put to the freemen?—The decision of the chief baron upon the appeals; he said, that in compliance with that decision he should over-rule all those questions being put, and that the certificate of the town-clerk being presented was quite enough; that he could go no further than that.

14406. Mr. French.] Had not he decided so before the chief baron gave his opinion?—He had, and then afterwards again.

14407. Mr. O'Connell.] At first he decided that he would not allow the examination?—In one case, or I believe two, he allowed it; the roll was produced, and the book, and the beseech and some papers were produced, and then there were counsel brought down to argue against it, and afterwards counsel brought down to argue in favour of the production, and he then set two cases aside to be heard upon appeal.

14408. Do you recollect the case alluded to in which I came down?—No, I was not there at that time; that was previous to my attending.

14409. Were you present at the cases which he rejected for the purpose of appeal?—I was.

14411. Chairman.] By whom was the appeal made?—By the conservative party; he rejected them for the purpose of appealing; he had admitted about 20 upon that sessions before. Mr. Pigott and Mr. Hudson came down to argue it; and then it was agreed that two should be rejected, on the understanding that the opposite party would appeal, and try the question; and that any freemen passing in the meantime their certificate, should be stayed till these appeals were decided.

14412. Are you quite sure that it was declared by the party appealing that they were certain of a decision in their favour from the chief baron?—Certainly.

14413. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Who said that?—Mr. Hyndman and Mr. Collison, and all the parties in the room, and the clerks and all; it was a general shout, in fact.

14414. Chairman.] It was a sort of chorus of them all?—Yes, it was.

14415. What did they actually say?—That they were sure of a decision; that they would go before the chief baron; that they would not go before Mr. Crampton.

14416. That is, they put the chief baron on one side and Mr. Crampton on the other?—Yes.

14417. Did they mention any other judge?—No; we had appealed before to Mr. Crampton, in some other case, and they said, "We shall be sure to succeed before the chief baron.

14418. Why did you mention Mr. Justice Crampton?—We had appealed before before to the Court of King's Bench, and they said that they would not do that.

14419. Why did you appeal to Mr. Justice Crampton?—Because it was before him that it was heard; we wished to appeal to the King's Bench, some of us that did not understand the law, and afterwards, on inquiry, we found that we were wrong, and wished to have it before all the twelve judges if we could.

14420. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Are you quite sure that Mr. Hyndman made that declaration, that they were certain of a decision in their favour from the chief baron?—Quite positive, it was made by them all.

14421. You have no doubt that Mr. Hyndman, the barrister, made that declaration in open court, that they were sure of a decision in their favour from the chief baron?—Yes, I think I have no doubt of it.

14422. Do you state that positively?—As positive as I can be of anything at this length of time.

14423. Then you state it positively, without any doubt?—The impression upon my mind is, that he did; I can say no more than that.

14424. Have you no doubt on your mind?—I have no doubt that it was said often in the court upon that day, and after.

14425. The question is with regard to that particular individual; do you state positively that Mr. Hyndman, the barrister, made that declaration in open court?—I think he did, but I would not like to state it positively.

14426. Mr. O'Connell.] Can you state positively that it was said in his presence?—Yes.

14427. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Who is Mr. Collison, the other gentleman?—He is an active agent for the conservative party.

14428. He is not a barrister?—No.

14429. Is he an attorney?—No.

14430. What is he?—He was a gauger, but I do not know what he is now.

14431. Where does he reside?—At Sandy Mount.

14432. What is his christian name?—Marcus, or Daniel Marcus.

14433. Are you prepared to state positively that that gentleman did state in open court, that they were sure of a decision from the chief baron?—Yes, I think I can.

14434. Do you mean to state it positively and beyond all doubt?—No; I cannot exactly say without doubt of any particular person.

14435. Will you now state any individual, respecting whom you are prepared to state positively that he did in court declare that they were sure of a decision from the chief baron?—No, I cannot, but it was said generally, by the party in court, in the hearing of them all.

14436. Can you name any human being who did, upon that day, or any other day, in court, make that declaration, that they were sure of a decision in their favour from the chief baron?—No; it never struck my mind to keep it so particularly, but I know it was the general assertion.

14437. Mr. Hamilton.] Can you state who of the conservative party were present?—Mr. Hyndman was always present; he must have been present. Mr. Collison was generally present; he must have been there. Mr. Ryan, another clerk of the conservative party, was also there.

14438. Chairman.] Did he state it?—I cannot fix upon any one positively; Mr. Dobbs can state that the court was a perfect bear-garden.

14440. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] The court was a bear-garden, was it?—Sometimes.

14441. Mr. Hamilton.] Who else of the conservative party were there?—Counsellor Dolling, Counsellor Stokes, and Counsellor Daley were there sometimes; and it was a general boast on our side, "We will now hinder you from passing so many freemen, as we will get a decision of the court," and the other side said, "No, we are sure of a decision in our favour from the chief baron."

14442. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Are you sure that the observation in court was, that they were sure of a decision in their favour, because the judge was in their favour; or was it that they were sure of a decision in their favour, because the point of law was with them?—I cannot state the words positively; but the impression upon my mind was, that they were sure of it from the judge.

14443. Do you mean to say that anybody said, that they were sure of it because because the chief baron was the judge, and that what they said was not that they were sure of it because the point of law was with them?—It is now a year ago, and it is impossible to charge my memory with the words, but the impression upon my mind is, that that was their expression.

14444. Do you mean to convey to the Committee that their expression was, that the lord chief baron would give a partial decision?—Not a partial one; but that they were sure of a decision upon their side.

14445. When your party stated that they were sure of a decision that would prevent the admission of so many freemen, was it because they thought the point of law was with them, or because they thought the judge would be favourable to them?—Because we thought, from the argument of the lawyers, that the point of law was decidedly in our favour.

14446. Why was not the observation made upon the other side, made in the same spirit?—I cannot tell.

14447. Will you state any one thing that was said, that would fix the meaning of the observation to imply anything but a conviction that the point of law was with them?—Even in private conversation, the gentlemen admitted that the point was clearly upon our side.

14448. What gentleman?—Mr. Hyndman; he admitted that Mr. Pigott's argument nearly convinced him of it.

14449. Did he admit that the point of law was with you?—He would not go so far as that, of course.

14450. Will you state what he did say?—I cannot.

14451. Did he ever say to you that the point of law was with you, and against them?—No; but he admitted that Mr. Pigott had made a most able argument, and had nearly convinced him.

14452. Then it had not quite convinced him?—It could not completely.

14453. Then, notwithstanding the great ability of Mr. Pigott's argument, Mr. Hyndman still remained unconvinced?—Of course.

14454. He gave you to understand so?—No.

14455. Did he give you to understand that he was convinced?—No opponent would do that.

14456. What do you understand by a gentleman saying that he is almost convinced; does that convey to your mind that he is entirely convinced?—If he was not so entirely opposed to me, it might convey the idea that he was entirely convinced.

14457. Did it convey to you more than that he was almost convinced?—It did; it conveyed to my mind that Mr. Pigott's argument had convinced him.

14458. Did any other counsel tell you that the point of law was with you?—No; the other counsel I very seldom spoke with.

14459. Did you hear any one of the conservative counsel admit to anybody that the point of law was with you?—No.

14460. Did you hear any one of the conservative party make the admission that the point of law was with you, nevertheless that they expected a decision in their favour?—No.

14461. Mr. Hamilton.] When did this private conversation with Mr. Hyndman take place; was it during the argument or after it?—It may have been that day or the next day, in remarking about the thing.

14462. Then it was a casual conversation?—Yes.

14463. Mr. O'Connell.] All you can say about it is, that it left an impression upon your mind, that Mr. Hyndman himself had a doubt upon the question unfavourable to his own clients?—It did; we were all of us conjecturing what Mr. Dobbs's decision would be after Mr. Pigott's first argument, and there seemed to me to be great doubt even upon Mr. Dobbs's mind.

14464. Since that decision of the chief baron, Mr. Dobbs considers the certificate of the town-clerk as conclusive?—He does.

14465. You have not the form of the certificate?—No; I never was able to have any one in my hands but one, and that I got rather by stealth.

14466. Have you got before you a note of the case of any freemen of whose case you made a note?—I have; on the 14th of November 1836 there came up to be registered John Wilson Barlow, solicitor, of No. 2, Upper Merrion-street.

14467. What right did he claim?—He came up as a cook, a freeman by birth.

14468. Did it appear at what time he got his certificate?—He was sworn the 14th of November 1836, the very day he came up.

14469. Do you know when he was admitted?—No; we were not allowed to ask any of those questions. I will read the questions he was asked.

14470. When did you make that entry?—The moment he spoke the words in court. He was examined by counsellor Curran: "Where do you reside?—No. 2, Upper Merrion-street.—Were you out of town the last six months in Kingstown; were others sworn along with you? There was: got the certificate this day in the presence of the lord mayor." The freeman's queries, No. 1, 2, and 3, were put to him. He refused to answer any of those questions, and each question was overruled by Mr. Dobbs. "When and where were you born? In Dublin, upwards of 30 years ago." Mr. Seton objected to 1 and 2. Mr. Curran: "Have you been sworn in the court of Chancery? I was." Mr. Curran objected from book Nos. 1, 2, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 9½, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 16, 17.

14471. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Will you state the objections made to that man?—Objection 1. "That the claimant's admission was honorary, and made since the 30th March 1831. 2. That the claimant's admission was occasional and void. 4. That the claimant is not, and has not, for the last six months been a resident of, or within seven statute miles of the place of election in the city, town, or borough. 5. That the claimant has not been for six months a resident freemen entitled to register." We say he was not a freeman till he had taken all the oaths; that was the argument of Mr. Pigott. "6. That the claimant has not proved that any right to freedom, as claimed by him, exists in the corporation. 7. That no such right to freedom as claimed exists in the corporation. 8. That the claimant has not duly proved a legal admission into the corporation. 9. That the claimant was admitted illegally, and in a batch. 9½. That the claimant has not duly proved his being sworn. 10. That the claimant was not duly sworn. 11. That claimant has not given due evidence as to the stamp duty on the entry of his admission. 12. That the claimant has not duly paid the stamp duty on his admission. 13. That the claimant had not any complete title when he gave notice of his intention to register. 14. That the claimant had not any complete title when the registry sessions commenced. 15. That the claimant has not given due notice of his intention to register."

14472. What evidence do you and your employers require of the man being sworn besides the certificate?—Before the decision we require to see his roll, to see his beseech, to see the clerk of the peace's books.

14473. You do not consider the certificate of the proper officer as evidence of it?—Not the certificate of the town-clerk.

14474. Do you know that the town-clerk is the officer of the corporation for those purposes?—Yes, but as far as I understand, he is not the officer of the guild; we wanted to see that he is properly admitted into the guild first.

14475. Do you know that there exists a considerable interval of time frequently between the admission of a member into a corporation and his being sworn?—I heard from some of them that as much as ten years have elapsed; I know it from nothing but their own evidence, for any information upon any subject I could not get.

14476. Mr. O'Connell.] At whose office did you apply for information? I applied to the town-clerk's office for information.

14477. Did you offer to pay any fees that they might require for searches?—I never did; they would not tell us anything at all. We thought it useless to make any offer of that kind.

14478. Mr. Hamilton.] Were those entries made at the time?—Just as the gentleman swore them; they were just done as the person was upon the table.

14479. Mr. O'Connell.] Mr. Collison, whom you mentioned, is employed by the conservative party to look for freemen and attend at the registry?—To attend at the registry, and do everything; he is a very active man.

14480. Have you known any other case?—Here is Thomas Lapham. "14th November, 1836: Thomas Lapham, a shearman, admitted a freeman by birth; lives at Newmarket. Was sworn 31st October 1836. His name is Thomas Burton Lapham, but signs Thomas Lapham. Where do you reside? Newmarket Coombe; is a silk-weaver.—Is there any other Newmarket in the liberty? No; was born in Dublin in 1813.—Who gave you that certificate? Do not know his name; the lord mayor was present, and also Mr. Collison." Then Mr. Curran asked him the freemen's questions Nos. 1, 2, and 3, which he refused to answer, and the questions were overruled.—Do you know Henry Lapham? He is my father. Was for the last six months within seven miles of this place. He and his father were admitted freemen on the same day; his father was registered and admitted here on Saturday last. Mr. Seton objected to his passing, as he was sworn the same day as his father. Mr. Curran called on the barrister to reject this man. Others were sworn along with you. Objected by Mr. J. A. Curran from book Nos. 1, 2, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 9½, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 16, 17, and No. 18, that the claimant's admission to his freedom was fraudulent, inasmuch as he has sworn that Henry Lapham (who registered his vote on Saturday), his certificate bears date the 31st of October 1836; he also swore that his father was sworn on the same day before him, and that Henry Lapham was his father."

14481. Mr. Lefroy.] In those two instances, are the Committee right in understanding that the statement there made was, that having been admitted in right of birth upon statements upon oath, they claimed to be registered as freemen by right of birth?—Yes; people come forward; they are put upon a table; their name and their certificate are produced; their name is read out, and we then ask them those questions, and that is overruled; we then try to find out whether they actually resided at the place that appears in the printed list.

14482. Mr. O'Connell.] Are you allowed to examine them upon their oath as to the time of their birth?—The time of their birth we are, if we can prove whether they are of age; we are not allowed to ask any question that touches their admission as freemen, but only as to their actual residence and age.

14483. Mr. Lefroy.] In those instances you have read, were not they examined by the registering barrister, and sworn to their claim as freemen in right of birth?—So far as the parchment is produced, and that is all that we can ask; and he allows us to ask, when were you sworn, and he answers, on such a day.

14484. Does not the claimant state that he is a freeman in right of birth?—No, he answers nothing as to his freedom at all; if we can knock him aside, by proving anything wrong in his notice, we do so.

14485. Mr. O'Connell.] The certificate is considered conclusive?—It is; as to his right of freedom it is conclusive.

14486. Mr. Lefroy.] Does the certificate state the right in virtue of which he is admitted a freeman?—Yes.

14487. Mr. O'Connell.] And then the fact of the right is taken conclusively from the certificate?—Yes.

14488. And all examination upon the subject is precluded?—Yes; we can only examine him as to his age and his residence, to make out whether he is the identical person or not.

14489. All that you are allowed to examine is to find out a variance between the notice of registry and the claimant?—Yes.

14490. Mr. Hamilton.] With respect to that case of the admission of a father and son upon the same day, was that stated in consequence of a question put by you?—We sometimes put a question suddenly to them, and before they can be cautioned on the opposite side they answer it; it is a rule to make a kind of a run on the opposite side to hinder the question, and whoever is the most active succeeds.

14491. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] You try to put the question as quickly as you can?—Yes; and then when we got the answer we kept them to it.

14492. Chairman.] Did he ever make a mistake in answering these speedy questions?—Of course they are corrected afterwards if they do; he did not say it was a mistake in that instance.

14493. Mr. O'Connell.] Is there any other case?—Here is one rejected the day after the certificate was brought in: Simon Forrest, a freeman by birth, 15th November 1836; he handed up a certificate in a hurry, and immediately on looking at the certificate it was seen that there was nothing in it. Mr. Collison went out of the court, and returned with a perfect certificate, but acknowledged it was done in the absence of the clerks of the peace or their deputy: rejected him. It was brought into court, and when it came to be read it was a perfect blank.

14494. Can you state whether it was admitted that these certificates were signed by the clerk of the peace, and left at the office for the person to call for them?—

them?—I know that it is admitted in some of the cases, but without looking through the cases I cannot state which they are.

14495. Mr. Hamilton.] Do you mean that there was no signature to it?—There was no writing in it.

14497. Mr. Hamilton.] Was the claimant's name in the certificate?—I cannot say that, but it was admitted that it was a blank certificate. "A certificate was brought in, which was a blank, for the day on which he was sworn; Mr. Collison brought it out of court, and returned with it perfect, but acknowledged it was done in the absence of the clerks of the peace, or their deputy; the barrister rejected him."

14498. You do not know in what respect it was blank, whether it was the date or the right?—No; here is another case: "John Meathe, victualler-butcher, freeman from service, sworn 31 October 1836; there were others sworn along with him. He is asked, 'Who gave you the certificate? Never saw him before or since.' Mr. George Magrath, the deputy clerk of the peace, swears that it was signed by Mr. Archer. Meathe got the certificate in William-street, at the Assembly House. 'It is in the same state now as when you got it? Every word now in it was in it then.—Was that out of your possession since you got it? He refused to answer.—Did you put any private mark on it? It is the same; put no mark.' Again asked, 'Have you any private mark on it?' Court ruled he should answer.—Answer: 'Put no private mark on it.—Has it left your possession since you received it at the Assembly House? No answer.'—Mr. Magrath swore the body of the certificate is written by Mr. Grabham, one of the town-clerks. Meathe got that certificate Monday fortnight. 'Has it been out of your possession since? Declined to answer.' Then, in the latter end he says, 'It was out of my possession; I gave it in court to Mr. Collison; I got it this day.'" So that it appeared from this that when the persons were sworn in Mr. Collison attended before the lord mayor, and that he took all the certificates, and never gave them back again till they appeared in court to register. That was the general evidence.

14499. Is there any other case?—Here is the case of "Matthew H. Black, gentleman, freeman, merchant, by birth, the 17th of November 1836. He was sworn 31st of October 1836; examined by Mr. Curran: lives at No. 20, Ruthervine's Road since his birth; was born in the year 1814; there were others sworn along with him. 'Who gave you that certificate? Do not know.' Mr. Collison took it from him and did not return it until this day. 'Did you examine that the day you got it? I did.—Was it exactly as it now is? It appears to be so; am not sure it is the same; it might or might not; never saw it since until this day.—Mr. Magrath examined: 'Will not swear that the certificate was perfect at the time it was signed, and that the word, "Michaelmas term" was or was not in it at the time it was signed.' Black swears he did not bring it here this day, nor did he produce it here, nor does he know who produced it, or who brought it here. Mr. Collison refused to be sworn as to whether it was altered or filled since he got it. Mr. Curran asked the freeman's questions, Nos. 1, 2 and 3; refused to answer; over-ruled. Mr. Seton made the usual objections from book of freemen's objections. Mr. Curran made objections from book Nos. 1, 2, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 9½, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17." That is just the usual course.

14500. Mr. Lefroy.] Is the certificate verified?—No; the production of the certificate is considered quite sufficient.

14501. Mr. Hamilton.] Did not Magrath swear that there was no alteration in Meathe's case?—"Mr. Magrath swore that the body of the certificate was written by Mr. Grabham, one of the town-clerks." The next is the 17th of November 1836: "James Connor, Upper Temple-street, gentleman, carpenter, freeman by birth, examined by Mr. Curran; sworn 4th of November 1836; has resided at Delgany in lodgings." Now they argued that Delgany is more than seven miles from the city of Dublin.

14502. Mr. O'Connell.] In point of fact it is?—It is more than 10 miles. "Slept more frequently in Dublin than Delgany; has slept for three weeks in Delgany; his mother had a cottage at Delgany; did not come to reside permanently in Dublin until the 1st of November. Were others sworn along with with you? Yes.—Does not know who gave it to him at the Assembly House; gave it to Mr. Collison; would not swear it is the same; it was perfect in all its parts; got it in William-street Assembly House.—Mr. Curran asked the usual questions, which were, as usual, overruled.—When and where were you born? In Dublin, 14th of November, 1815."—We argued that he could not be of age at the time he put his notice upon the list; it was self-evident that he was not. "Would not swear he was born before the 19th of November 1815; refused to answer. Is there any record kept in the family of his age? Never saw any; his mother always told him that was his age.—Mr. Seton made objections from book, and that he was a minor. Mr. Curran made objections from book, freemen's objections, Nos. 1, 2, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 9½, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, and also that at the time of his admission and swearing in, and of his giving notice, of his being a minor, and also a minor at the commencement of the registering sessions." He was admitted. According to his own showing, he said he was born the 14th of November 1815. Now he was sworn upon the 4th of November; that was certainly, according to his own showing, 10 days before he was of age.

14503. Chairman.] Do you mean to state that he was admitted upon the 14th of November?—He was registered upon the 19th of November, and he swore that he was born upon the 14th of November 1815, so that he could not be 21 years of age on the 4th, which was the day he was sworn; it wanted 10 days.

14504. Mr. Hamilton.] Are you sure that that is correct, because all the others were sworn upon the 14th?—I am positive of it.

14505. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Did you write this at the time?—I wrote it upon the spot; I frequently read it out for the witness before he leaves the table.

14506. Do you write as fast as a man speaks?—No; there were a great many questions I did not take.

14507. Of course you do not write everything as it is said?—No.

14508. You were therefore obliged to trust to your recollection?—Never to my recollection, because I put down the exact fact that he swore to.

14509. Have you never made a mistake in writing down anything?—I suppose I have.

14510. Then, is it impossible that you may have made a mistake in writing this?—Not as to date.

14511. Have you never made a mistake in writing a date?—I suppose I have.

14512. Then what peculiarity is there in this which makes you certain that you could not have made a mistake here in writing the date?—Because a witness generally takes nearly 25 minutes; I insisted upon their putting the questions slow enough for me to write them.

14513. It is impossible then you can have made a mistake in writing it down?—Yes, when it is put so slow as that. When I ask a man, "When were you sworn?" and he says, "the 4th of November," it is impossible I can make a mistake.

14514. Do you mean to say that it is impossible you can make a mistake in any of those entries?—No, it is not; anything is possible.

14515. Is it impossible that you could ever misapprehend what a man said?—I suppose I may; but I often asked a question of a witness over and over again.

14516. Did you ever make a mistake as to inferring the answer that was given?—I may or I may not.

14517. Has your ear ever deceived you as to the sound between "fourteen" and "four"?—I do not think it has.

14518. Is it possible that it might have been a mis-hearing?—It is impossible.

14519. Is it impossible that the note you have made may not be strictly accurate?—It is hardly possible; it is possible, but it is not probable.

14520. People have often an affection for what they produce themselves. Now, making all allowance for your affection for your own notes on that account, must you not admit that there may be inaccuracies in them?—We were taking it down on both sides, and we often compared the dates and such things, and checked it in that way.

14521. You said that you generally read it out?—I often read it out in court, "You say you were sworn upon the 4th of November; is that so?"

14522. Are

25 May 1837.

14522. Are you prepared to state that you read any one of those entries to the barrister in court?—No.

14523. Are you prepared to point out any one entry in that book that you read to a witness?—No.

14524. You did not always read it, either to the barrister or to the witness?—Certainly not, if there was no dispute.

14525. Chairman.] You stated that there were only two questions which you were allowed to investigate with regard to the freemen; one is with regard to their age, and the other is with regard to their residence, and that the question with respect to their freedom was concluded by the production of the certificate?—Yes.

14526. Do you mean to state that the discussion upon those two questions only generally took 25 minutes in each case?—Yes, and sometimes a great deal longer. When we want to ask a question, sometimes there is an hour's argument whether it will be admitted.

14527. Do you mean to say that upon every individual case an argument arises whether you shall ask more questions with regard to freedom than the simple verification of the certificate?—No, not on every case.

14528. Is there not a regular course of examination objected to by one party, and laid down by the barrister as objectionable?—Yes.

14529. Did you try to enter upon that course of examination in each individual case?—If such a case as this arises, where this gentleman gave his notice as living in Upper Temple-street, Dublin, and it turned out that he resided in Dalgany, then I suppose that would take half an hour, or perhaps an hour.

14530. Do you in each case try to overrule the decision of the barrister, as to your not entering into any discussion upon the right of freedom?—No; since the judge's decision, we took that as a matter settled.

14531. Then the whole 25 minutes is spent in the discussion as to residence, as to age, and as to identity?—As to anything that appears, either name or age, or whether he is the identical same person, or anything by which we think we can set him aside.

14532. Then, in point of fact, there is considerable examination in those cases?—Sometimes, and sometimes not.

14533. If they take an average of 25 minutes, is not that an extended examination?—No; the writing it down takes a great deal of time.

14534. Mr. O'Connell.] You put the questions in every case?—We do; in every case we read out those questions in full, and we read out all the objections in full twice. Mr. Seaton reads them, and I take them down from him; and Mr. Curran makes the same objections, and I take them down from him also.

14535. Why should two parties representing the same interest make the same objections?—It has been done; I cannot tell the reason.

14536. Mr. O'Connell.] Mr. Seaton was employed by one body, and Mr. Curran by another?—Yes.

14537. Chairman.] Have the two bodies the same political principles who thus severally act at the registry?—They have different counsel, and different persons acting for them; but they all support the liberal, and oppose the other side.

14538. Mr. O'Connell.] You acted for the Trades' Union and the General Association; Mr. Seaton, and those acting with him, acted on behalf of the Central Club?—Yes.

14539. They had a different staff from yours?—Yes.

14540. And that multiplied the questions?—It did.

14541. Chairman.] Is that multiplication of questions still going on?—No; the Central Club has ceased to attend.

14542. Mr. O'Connell.] Besides those questions, there arose arguments?—There did; as to identity, perhaps, two men being in the list of the same name.

14543. Chairman.] Then the admission of the freemen is a longer process altogether than the admission of the 10 l. householders?—No, I do not think so.

14544. Then are there no votes registered in Dublin that do not take 25 minutes in discussion?—The Committee will be able to judge, when I say that the average of registry is about 20 a day, and they sit from 10 o'clock till 4, and it it was as much labour as it is possible for a human being to undergo. Mr. Dobbs has a vast deal of patience.

14545. Mr. Hamilton.] You state that occasionally you read out the notes you had made?—Yes; if the witness says, "I did not say so," or the opposite party says such a thing was not sworn.

14546. Can you state whether the accuracy of your note has been ever disputed?—Certainly, it has been by the opposite party; if a man said, that was not what I meant to swear, I corrected it.

14547. Mr. O'Connell.] In what month was Mr. Connor sworn in?—The 4th of November 1836.

14548. Have you any other case?—Here is "William E. Custis, saddler, 17th November, freeman by birth; sworn 7th November 1836. Examined by Mr. Curran; signs his name William E. Custis. 'Were others sworn along with you? Perhaps so.' The question was several times repeated: 'Perhaps there were; I don't know.' Mr. Curran says, "Were you drunk? Perhaps I was;' has lived at Mary-street better than a year; has not resided out of town in the last six months; the lord mayor was present when he was sworn.—'Where were you born? I won't answer.—Where were you born? [second time] I won't answer.' The barrister decided he should answer. 'Was born in the county of Meath.—When were you born? Better than 22 or 23 years ago.—To the best of your knowledge, what year were you born? Won't answer.' The barrister decided that he should answer. 'To the best of your knowledge, what year were you born? [the second time] Won't answer.—Do you swear you don't know the year you were born? I suppose 1809.' Mr. Curran asked the freemen's queries, Nos. 1, 2 and 3, which he refused to answer, and the questions were overruled. Mr. Seton made the usual objections from book. Mr. Seton asked, 'Were others sworn along with you?' Refused to answer otherwise than 'Perhaps.'—'Do you swear you cannot fix a more distinct answer? I cannot.' Mr. Seaton made the usual objections from book of objections." He was admitted.

14549. Is there any other case?—Here is another case: "Mervyn Paget Crofton, Barrack-street, gentleman, freeman by birth; sworn Christmas, 1835." That is the form in which it is in the certificate, when it is in fact in May; it says Christmas 1836; and then it says, "Sworn 9th March." He is asked, "'Were you rejected before? I will not answer you.' Has lived in Barrack-street these six months; is assistant-inspector of pipe water; believes others were sworn along with him; was, he believes, born in Barrack-street; believes 1815. Does not recollect seeing any record in any book or Bible; his father told him the 12th of November was his birth-day; cannot say who gave him the certificate. Mr. Curran asked the freemen's queries, Nos. 1, 2 and 3, which he refused to answer, and the questions were overruled. Mr. Seton made objections from the book of freemen's objections in answer; Mr. Curran made objections from the freemen's book, Nos. 1, 2. 6, 7, 8, 9, 9½, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15. 17. Objected also that the claimant refused to answer the question put, and that at the time of being admitted, and of his serving notice, and at the commencement of the present registering sessions, he was a minor."

14550. Chairman.] When was he admitted upon the registry?—On the 18th of November 1836.

14551. Mr. O'Connell.] Is there any other case you think it material to mention?—There is "Samuel Parker, shoemaker, George's-street, south, a freeman by service, registered the 21st November 1836, sworn the 14th November 1836. Mr. M'Grath proved the certificate to be signed by Mr. Laing; he is a shoemaker; others were sworn along with him; resided in Dublin these last six months. 'Who gave you the certificate? Do not know his name; at the Assembly House, William-street.' Mr. Collison then took it from him and kept it since. 'Is the certificate precisely in the same state as when you received it? I think it is; I got the certificate in court, this morning.—Where were you born? I believe in Knutsford or Macclesfield, about 1806.'" We made the usual objections against him, and that he must have been a minor, as he could not tell us when he was born, only that it was in the year 1806. He passed.

14552. By what right did he claim?—Service.

14553. He was a shoemaker by trade?—Yes; and also of the shoemaker's guild.

14554. Is there any other case you have made a note of, as containing any peculiarity?—

peculiarity?—Here is "John Brown, of Redmond's Hill, in the trimming business, carpenter, freeman by birth, registered the 21st of November 1836, was sworn 31st October 1836. Examined by Mr. Curran. Others were sworn along with him. 'Who gave you that certificate? I do not know.' Thinks there is no alteration in it since; was born in the town of Wicklow; does not know when, but it was much more than 21 years ago." Mr. Curran asked the freemen's queries, and he would not answer, and his evidence was just concluded, when some man in the court told us that he was not the same man at all. He was questioned, "Don't you sleep in Ranelagh? I do.—Had you any agreement with your son about giving him up possession of the house? I had not; I never gave him it up.—Did not your son register out of the house? He did.—Did you pay the rent? I did.—Did your son pay the rent? He did not.—Was the house ever your son's? Never; we had merely an agreement about the business; does not know whether he was doing business for his son or not on the 17th of November last.—Suppose your son swore, six months back, that the house was his, would it be true or false? I can't say; he might be mistaken.—Is it more or less than a month since you went to live at Ranelagh? I cannot tell.—Is it more or less than six months? It may; I cannot say.—Is it more or less than 12 months? It may; I cannot tell; it is more, I believe, than 12 months since I went to Ranelagh.—Was it not by your son's permission you slept in it? No." He was passed. I see a note I put to it in the May Register, 1836: "John Brown, No. 3, Redman's-hill, who registered in May 1836, as a householder: his father has sworn the house is, and was his, not his son's."

14555. Mr. Hamilton.] Ranelagh is nearer than seven miles to Dublin?—Yes, it is; but he had described himself as John Brown of Redman's Hill, and of course it would be impossible to examine whether it was fictitious, if he was living at Ranelagh.

14556. Chairman.] Then that examination went rather to invalidate the son's vote?—Both; it went to invalidate his vote and his son's also.

14557. Might not he reside without being a householder?—He must reside and be a householder.

14558. Might not he be in lodgings?—He may reside as a freeman anywhere, if he gives his true residence; but the evidence goes to show that he did not reside at that place.

14559. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Were you fishing then to get evidence to invalidate the son's vote?—No; to knock off his own. He gave his residence as Redman's Hill, and in answer to the first question, he swore that he was living at Ranelagh. The whole thing came out in the course of the cross-examination.

14560. Mr. O'Connell.] You took the general objections to him as a freeman?—Yes.

14561. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Do you write all that down in court?—Yes.

14562. In this bear-garden you have spoken of?—Yes.

14563. Do you think that the circumstance of writing in the midst of a bear-garden is calculated to produce accuracy in the notes?—No; there must be a considerable deal more evidence than what I have put down, a great deal more in the wording of it.

14564. Then you did not take down the words of the witness?—I put down exactly the substance of what he swore, not the identical words of all they say.

14565. What you enter in that book are your own conclusions and constructions?—No: if a man is asked, Do you sleep in the house? I put down I do or I do not, whichever he says. I put first the question and then I put the answer.

14566. Do you in all cases write down the answer the witness gives in his own language?—I do, as near as I can.

14567. Then you have written the whole of what was said by the witness upon that occasion?—I think I have, pretty much.

14568. How long did that examination take?—I cannot tell.

14569. Then in those cases where the examination takes 25 minutes, do you write down all the answers that the witness gives?—Yes, I think pretty much so.

14570. In the language that he utters?—Yes, pretty much.

14571. Then what did you mean just now by saying that what you had written down was not what the witness had said, but the substance of it?—Perhaps I might not exactly put down all that he said; sometimes the witness fenced a long time with the question before he gave a direct answer; and when at last he gave an answer, then I put it down.

14572. Then you did not take down all that he said?—When he gave an answer I put it down.

14573. Mr. O'Connell.] He said many things that you did not put down?—Yes; many times they said I was not authorized to ask the questions, and I would not put down all that.

14574. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] All that you write down is what you consider the answer?—What any one would consider the answer.

14575. Do you consult any one what you are to write down?—No; but what is obvious to any man of sense to be the answer.

14576. Does the witness say much that you do not take down?—Nothing that I conceive to be the answer.

14577. You put down what you conceive to be the answer?—Yes.

14578. You do not put down anything he says that you do not conceive to be the answer?—No; if he is joking or saying something impudent to myself, I do not put that down; everything that I conceive to be the answer I put down.

14579. Mr. O'Connell.] You do not make it your object to put down all that he says, but his reply to the particular point that is asked?—Yes; if I was to put down all that he said, we would not get through much.

14580. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] And therefore you do not put down all that he says?—I put down the exact answer.

14581. Word for word, as he delivers it?—Pretty much so; to the best of my judgment and to the best of my belief, it is the answer he gives.

14582. In the words in which he delivers it?—As near as I can.

14583. Considering that you go through this process of writing down the evidence in this bear-garden, do you think it is likely that what you have written down in all cases is precisely what the witness has said?—I think it is his answer, precisely his answer.

14584. Who is the principal bear in this garden?—They are all bears alike in it, I think.

14585. I heard that somebody there, of the name of Martin, had made a great deal of noise in it?—There is no Martin but me.

14586. Do you make much noise there?—When it is necessary I do; I am not very modest when it is necessary to be otherwise.

14587. You often conceive it necessary to make a noise there?—When there is any unfair opposition, I conceive it my duty to uphold persons to the best of my power.

14588. Does that produce this bear-garden?—Very often.

14589. When you are engaged in those laudable endeavours to do justice to your side, are you at the time writing down those notes?—No.

14590. Is it during the examination of witnesses that this takes place?—Yes; if there is any dispute, the writing down of the notes ceases till that dispute is arranged.

14591. You were understood to say that you sometimes read to the barrister what you had written?—If any of the opposite party say the man swore so and so, and I say he did not swear so, then I take up the book and read what I conceive he swore.

14592. Do you, upon any other occasions, read what you have taken down to the barrister?—No, unless he refers to a former case as a precedent, I look out for it. If he said that he admitted a man under such circumstances upon such a day, then I look out for it, and read it in open court; but I never read anything for him as an individual privately, but upon the table.

14593. Mr. O'Connell.] Your book does not purport to be a report of all that takes place in each case, but particular points?—Particular points of the freemen only.

14594. And in the cases of the freemen it does not purport to be a report of everything that is said respecting each freeman, but of particular points that you think important?—Particular points that we conceive to be of importance.

14595. Not the entire, but particular points?—Yes.

14596. Do you write with a view to be able to give evidence upon oath before a Committee of the House of Commons?—Certainly.

14597. You

25 May 1837.

14597. You know that that is one of your objects in taking down those notes?—Yes.

14598. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Are you prepared to say that nothing has ever been said by a person coming forward to register, having the effect of qualifying in any respect his answer, which you have omitted to take down?—No, certainly; I think it would be very dishonest if I did so.

14599. Are you then prepared to say that you have in no instance omitted anything which tended to qualify the answer which had been previously given by the person under examination?—Certainly not.

14600. You are prepared to state that positively?—Positively; I would conceive it very dishonest if I suppressed the least item in his favour.

14601. The question does not refer to any intentional suppression; but considering the circumstances under which you made the notes, and the state of this court, brought to the state of a bear-garden, which you say it so constantly is?—Not constantly, but often.

14602. What do you call often?—Perhaps twice a week; whenever there is any dispute.

14603. How often is that; does it happen every day?—No.

14604. Is there loud talking there every day?—Pretty loud; not disputing; not what I call a dispute.

14605. What do you call a dispute?—A difference of opinion.

14606. Does that difference of opinion manifest itself in loud talking?—Generally.

14607. Does what you call a "bear-garden" occur every day?—No.

14608. That occurs about twice a week?—I cannot give any particular time.

14609. Perhaps it is more often?—Perhaps so.

14610. Do you think it is?—I cannot charge my memory.

14611. If it happens twice a week, would you not call that pretty constantly?—No, not at a registry in Ireland.

14612. Taking it as occurring twice a week, are you prepared to say, without imputing any intentional omission at all, that you did not necessarily omit many things which dropped from the witnesses which would have the effect of qualifying the answers?—I am sure not; because I am sure I would be as anxious, if I thought a man had got himself into an extraordinary position by his swearing, to give him every satisfactory opportunity of explaining it as he would himself.

14613. The question does not refer to any intentional omission; but as to the matter of fact, whether you are prepared to verify the reports of cases which you have read to-day to this extent, to affirm positively that in those several cases you have omitted no answer which could have the effect of qualifying the answer previously given by the witness?—I am.

14614. You are positively certain you have omitted nothing of the kind?—I can answer, that when I took down the notes at the time, I was taking them under the conviction that I might have to swear to them; I took them down with all the accuracy and solemnity of a man wishing to do right.

14615. Were you in the habit, before you took up this avocation, of reporting for the newspapers, or otherwise?—Never.

14616. Have you ever reported the proceedings of a court of justice?—Never.

14617. Have you ever reported any examination of witnesses?—No, only for amusement; I never did it professionally.

14618. Are you prepared to state, that you are so skilful and so expeditious and accurate in taking down notes of proceedings of this description, as to make it impossible that you can have omitted a single answer that could have the effect of qualifying the evidence?—No; but to the best of my knowledge, and the best of my belief, I gave it every care that I could, under the idea that I was doing a thing which I would have to swear to; under that feeling, I did it as carefully as I possibly could.

14619. You said you were a commercial agent; what is the nature of your business?—Selling goods on commission; I was originally a merchant.

14620. Are you now engaged in selling goods upon commission?—Yes, whenever I get them to sell.

14621. Chairman.] Are you a voter of the city of Dublin?—No.

14622. Or a freeman?—No.

14623. Or a householder?—No.

Mr. James Martin.

25 May 1837.

14624. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] In what right do you administer the questions in court?—As the agent of others; at every sessions some of the liberal party come forward, and appoint me their agent.

14625. You are not an attorney?—No.

14626. Have you had your name inserted in the notices, as if you meant to register?—Yes.

14627. How often have you done that?—I believe every sessions after the first.

14628. Did you ever claim to register?—No.

14629. For what purpose did you enter your name in the notices?—The first time I put down my name I intended to register. When I attended the registries I found that a person situated as I was could not register; I continued my name in, but I never made any effort to register.

14630. You ascertained, the very first time you put down your name, that you were not entitled to register?—Yes.

14631. And yet you have repeated in every instance since the putting down your name in the list?—Yes.

14632. Did you do that thinking that you had a bonâ fide right to be registered?—The first time I did, but not afterwards.

14633. Then, for what purpose did you do it upon each of those subsequent occasions?—It was stated in court, I believe the first time, that any claimant had a right to ask any question.

14634. Then, it was for the purpose of giving yourself an apparent right to interfere, and to put questions, that you inserted your name upon each occasion subsequent to the first?—Yes, it was partly that.

14635. Was not that a false pretence?—No; there was an objection made by different persons to my appearing in court, and the barrister decided that I appeared as agent for a large body of persons, and that others appeared upon the opposite side, and that we were both entitled to ask questions.

14636. Having ascertained that you were a person that could not register, was not it putting yourself forward in a false character to insert your name in the subsequent notices?—No, it was not; I just inserted my name, and that I claimed as a householder.

14637. Did not you, by the notice given to the proper officer, purport to be a person intending to come forward and register?—Yes.

14638. Did you intend to come forward and register?—If I could have come to terms with my landlord, I would.

14639. Did you try in each instance to make that arrangement with your landlord, when you put down your name in the list of notices to register?—Once I did.

14640. Then you did not intend upon the other occasions to come forward and register?—No.

14641. Then you put yourself forward in a false character?—No; I gave myself no character but what I actually had. I made no claim; I did not go upon the table.

14642. Is not the notice the notice of persons intending to register?—One half of them never come up.

14643. Is not the notice the notice of persons saying that they intend to register?—Yes.

14644. Did you intend to register?—The first time, but not afterwards.

14645. Then that notice is false?—So far it is.

14646. Who is your landlord?—Miss Butler.

14647. What do you mean by saying, "If you could have made an arrangement with your landlord which should enable you to register"?—If I could have bought her interest in the house (I occupy the upper part of the house, and have the dominion of the hall-door, and I pay her that amount which would qualify me to register; but she having reserved a part of the house to herself, I could not take the oath as a householder).

14648. You put down your name as householder?—I did; several had done the same thing in the city.

14649. Is that person your landlord now?—Yes; she resides in the county of Wicklow; she reserves a room in that house for herself.

14650. How long have you been her tenant?—Upwards of three years, I think; she took the house about a week before I took the upper part.

14651. Were

14651. Were you ever tenant to a person of the name of Tees?—No.

14652. Have you ever had any dealing with Mr. Tees?—Yes; I never had any dealing with him, but he is clerk in an establishment that I have served.

14653. What establishment is that?—Burns', in Abbey-street, wholesale glass business and chemical line.

14654. Is he the man of business of that establishment?—He is not the manager of it.

14655. In what capacity is he?—I believe he is salesman; I think it is Cookson & Co. now.

14656. Were you tenant of those people who were concerned in that house, or any of them?—Never.

14657. You are sure that you never was a tenant of Mr. Tees?—Positive.

14658. Did you ever apply to him for employment?—No.

14659. Did you apply to him to give you goods on commission?—I sold for a house that he did business for, but not to him.

14660. Did you ever apply to him to give you goods on commission?—No: unless he being clerk to another.

14661. Did you apply to him to give you goods on commission in any capacity at all?—No, I applied to the house, but not to him; he might have been in the office at the time, but it was to the house that I applied.

14662. Did you ever represent to him that you were a person of extensive influence; and that if he gave you goods to sell upon commission, you would effect extensive sales for him?—I might to any house that I wanted to sell for.

14663. Did you to Mr. Tees?—I do not think I did.

14664. Could you make such a representation to him and forget it?—I might.

14665. When was it that you had any communication with the house in which Mr. Tees is concerned?—I believe I have not sold anything for them for 18 months.

14666. Mr. O'Connell.] What did you sell for them then?—Soda and glass, and white lead, and any articles that they sold.

14667. Were they paid for, those goods?—Some were paid for and some not.

14668. Are you responsible for them?—No.

14669. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Did you get goods to sell upon commission?—I did.

14670. Mr. O'Connell.] Did you get possession of the goods?—No.

14671. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Did you sell the goods?—Yes.

14672. You received the proceeds?—No; I gave them the bills, or whatever settlements I got.

14673. Did you give them the value for all the goods you sold on their account?—I did, unless about 20 l., which they have my bill for, or 19 l.

14674. You gave them value for all the goods you sold on their account?—Yes.

14675. Was your first dealing with that house 18 months ago?—I think it is two years and a half ago, or three years ago.

14676. Have you had more than one dealing of the kind with them?—Ten or twelve.

14677. And you gave them the value for all the goods you sold on their account?—I gave them all the settlements I got except 20 l.

14678. Did you get settlements for all the goods you sold?—Yes.

14679. And you gave them settlements for all the goods you sold except 20 l.?—Yes.

14680. Are you now indebted to them in a sum of over 80 l.?—No; I will explain what that refers to. I do not know where I met Mr. Burns, but he asked me to sell goods for him. I told him that the city of Dublin was in such a state that I would not take upon myself to say whether they were safe or not; but if I sold any goods I would call upon him and let him know who the persons were, and if he chose, to deliver them or not. I sold 700 l. or 800 l. for him, or 1,000 l., and never any goods came into my hands. He delivered them; he made whatever inquiries he liked about them. If I could get more than the price he was allowed to charge, he was content. I might make as much as I liked. I handed him the settlements as I got them; he wished me to draw them, and I drew them. Then in the crash there have come some failures; he may have lost a couple of hundred pounds, but he never looked to me for it. There is the balance of another part, which I bought up on my own account, for which he is my creditor.

14681. What do you call the crash?—The failures in the city of Dublin. He arrested me for 80 l., and that on an endorsement which he said I was bound for; I said I was not. It was one of those houses to whom I had sold 200 l. worth of goods; their circumstances were getting rather embarrassed. I had heard that, and I wished of course, as agent, to get Mr. Burns out of it as well as I could. I called on the person some days before the bill was due, as I was intimate with the man, and asked him what he could do. He said he had, I believe it was, a 60 l. bill, or 70 l., which would be due in a few days; that he had the entire of the money but 15 l., and that if I could get him a good bill discounted, he could punctually pay the bill. I certainly thought that was a fair proposition as times were; I took a bill of Mr. Lynch's, a doctor in Kilkenny, and made the party endorse the bill. I brought the bill to Mr. Burns; I told Mr. Burns the circumstance, and reasoned with him, that it was better to get an additional security for the money, to shorten the thing. He first swore that he would not do it, but on reasoning with him, he said he would do it, if the man took goods for the remainder of the 40 l. I was wanting to leave the bill with him for 45 l.; he would not do it unless the man took goods at an additional price for the remainder. I went back to the man and told him the circumstance, and asked him if he would take the goods. He said, under the circumstances he was obliged to take it. I went back to Mr. Burns, got the money from him, left him the bill, went to the man, Mr. Mathers, he paid his bill coming due; and I believe at the lapse of 10 or 12 days afterwards Mr. Burns sent the goods direct to him, never coming into my hands at all. Being afraid that this bill might be a forgery, he said, "Martin, do you put your name to it." I considered that the bill came under my former agency, and that I was not accountable; but I never hesitated in putting my name to it. That was in April 1835. The bill was protested, and for nearly two years I never heard a word about it. I was served with the protest as a matter of course. It never was demanded of me, though I met the gentleman constantly. When I went to attend the registry (for Mr. Burns is a conservative), I met him one day in the street. "Oh!" said he, "you have turned patriot, Martin!" and then, the next morning, without a letter being written to me, to keep me from the registry, I was arrested for the money going out of the house. I gave bail instantly, not to be kept out of the court. I consulted some of my friends; they said I had no other proof but the person who was by when the transaction occurred, and that it was ten to one whether he would say that I was exonerated. They proceeded with the utmost hostility to execution. The attorney is Mr. Fitzgerald of Fleet-street. When I called upon him, he made an apology, and said that if he had known that I was the person, he would not have arrested me without writing to me. I told him how I was circumstanced; that I could not pay the money all at once, but that I did not wish to put myself under any compliment to Mr. Burns; that I would pay it by instalments, and I have paid it by instalments of 1 l. a month; I am now in course of paying 1 l. a month; but I would never have heard anything of it, had I not attended the registry. I never put one penny piece of the money in my pocket; but Mr. Burns decidedly said, "It is a good bill, I have had several of them before; let him take goods to the full amount." I understood that the man failed, and came out under the Insolvent Act. Since I have been here I have got word that Dr. Lynch had served notice at my place, that he had taken the benefit of the Insolvent Act. I have paid 20 l. at 1 l. a month; if I am going out of town I leave it with Mr. Fitzgerald a day or two before; but I have not property enough that I could take out of my current expenses 80 l. at once.

14682. Chairman.] When did that arrest take place?—About a year ago; it was the second registry I attended.

14683. When was that?—It was in April 1836.

14684. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] What was the writ marked for?—Forty-five pounds, I think.

14685. And the difference of the 80 l. was costs?—I have never been furnished with the bill of costs; but the attorney said it was 80 l.

14686. Was that demand a demand exclusive of the one which you mentioned before?—Yes; Cookson & Co. hold my bill for 20 l., or 19 l. 15 s.

Mr. James Martin.

25 May 1837.

14687. Are you rightly understood to have said, that the overture to employ you in selling goods upon commission proceeded from that house and not from you?—I do not know whether it was from me; I suppose I was anxious to get goods to sell upon commission, and I might have walked in and said "Can I do anything for you?"

14688. Are you at present engaged in any other business except superintending these registries for the General Association?—Not latterly; I have got none to do. Part of the business is carried on so high in Dublin, that those persons had nothing to give me to do.

14689. How long have you been disengaged from any other business than superintending the registries?—I have been attending at the registries for the Association only six months; I have been attending the registries of the city of Dublin two years, at my own sole expense.

14690. How long before six months ago was it that you ceased to have other business and occupation?—I believe I had not as much as I could live by after I had been about six months at the registry; before that I could live very profitably.

14691. You have not been engaged in transacting any other business?—I do a little, but not much; I transacted business up to the hour that I came here, whenever I got it to do.

14692. Did you get it to do?—I did, till within about two months; but since I have been engaged for the Association, I have not got much business.

14693. Before you were engaged in selling upon commission, had you any other business?—I was doing business for Mr. M'Kenny.

14694. Is that the gentleman that is engaged in the chemical works near Ballybalk Bridge?—It is.

14695. In what capacity were you then in his employment?—I was collector, salesman, traveller, and confidential examiner of the works; in fact, having the general guidance of the thing left to me generally as salesman, and travelling through the country as collector, to get orders and collect debts.

14696. When did that employment cease?—It ceased about a year ago; I stipulated that he should let me attend the registries every three months, and he was not satisfied with that.

14697. Then you continued in his service till about a year ago?—Till a year or a year and a half ago.

14698. Then you were engaged with him at the same time that you were engaged as commission-broker upon your own account?—Yes; my stipulation with him was, that if I could I might do anything for myself. We made a specific agreement for every thing. If he had a valuable parcel of goods that he wanted to sell, I had a commission; and if I travelled, I then had a commission, and was paid for my expenses and a commission according to the agreement; he is a man that must have his business done very exactly. We parted good friends, and I believe I could go back to him whenever I chose, and we are on perfectly good terms. He thought that I gave up too much of my time to the registry, and I was determined not to give it up.

14699. You are a very ardent politician?—Very.

14700. Very zealous in the cause of the Association?—No; of the country.

14701. The Association and the country in your view go hand in hand?—They do; their views on politics are the same as mine, and therefore I act with them.

14702. You are so zealous and so active in your political pursuits, that Mr. M'Kenny could not keep you?—Unless I attended constantly to his business. I found that I could not do it. I quitted Mr. M'Kenny's employment under the idea of going back to it as soon as the registry would be over. The registry lasted longer than I had any idea of; it lasted 45 days; and in consequence I called upon Mr. M'Kenny and said I could not go back to do his business.

14703. Mr. M'Kenny is a gentleman of liberal politics?—He is.

14704. Mr. O'Connell.] Is he a Protestant?—He is.

14705. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] But you went a little beyond him?—No; I believe believe his opinions on politics and mine agree exactly; but I could not mind his business and give my attention to the registry.

14706. Are you sure that nothing like the relation of landlord and tenant existed between you and Mr. Tees, or that house, or members of that house that you have spoken of?—Never; I never resided in any house of theirs.

14707. You owed nothing at all as a tenant to Mr. Tees, or to that house?—No.

14708. Is Mr. Tees head landlord to Miss Butler?—No; the Society for the Suppression of Vice is the head landlord of that house.

14709. Where is the house?—It is in York-road, just opposite the chapel.

14710. Opposite to what chapel?—To the Catholic chapel in Whitefriars-street; there are just three houses in the street; a Carmelite chapel; and being a quiet place and very small, I had set my eye upon it, and Miss Butler then took it, and the moment she took it, I took the upper part of the house.

14711. Has your report of the proceedings in the register court been impeached for its inaccuracy?—So far as regards the number that were passed in a day. They would shout out that they had a majority of 20. I looked at my list, and would say it is only 18; and, to my astonishment, I have seen in "Saunders," or in the "Mail," the next day, a majority of 30, when there was not 30 done altogether.

14712. Has the accuracy of your reports of cases that have occurred in court been impeached in the court itself?—No, I do not think it has.

14713. Has Mr. Hyndman, the barrister, ever stated openly in court that your reports of the cases and of the evidence were inaccurate?—I do not think he has.

14714. Are you sure of it?—I am; we have often said to one another jokingly, "Take care what you are putting down, for it is false."

14715. Are you quite sure that Mr. Hyndman has never stated openly in court that your reports of the evidence were inaccurate?—I am quite positive. The impression upon my mind is that he never did it seriously, for if he had done it seriously I would have asked him to look into it and convinced him that he was wrong.

14716. Mr. Hyndman has never declared that no such evidence was given by the witness as you read from your book?—Not as a serious assertion. He has said thousands of times, "Martin, all that you are putting down in that book is false."

14717. Has he ever asserted seriously with respect to any evidence that you read out, "The witness never gave such evidence"?—No.

14718. Then no such thing could have occurred?—I think not.

14719. Are you sure?—No further than if I had had the impression at the moment that it did occur, I would have rectified it immediately.

14720. Are you sure, or are you not sure, that it did not occur?—It is impossible to say, at this length of time, what has occurred.

14721. Then you are not sure whether Mr. Hyndman has, in any instance, told you that the witness never gave such evidence as what you had written down?—I do not think he has.

14722. Are you sure?—I can be no surer than that.

14723. Then it may have occurred?—It may have occurred.

14724. May it have occurred more than once?—It might.

14725. May it have occurred several times?—If it ever occurred, it may have occurred several times; but I do not think it did occur.

14726. Mr. O'Connell.] You cannot take upon yourself now to say all that Mr. Hyndman said?—No.

14727. Nor how often he might have accused you of inaccuracy?—No.

14728. Can you say that if he accused you of inaccuracy, you immediately examined to see whether you had been inaccurate or not?—Instantly.

14729. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Do you recollect now that you did in point of fact examine?—I recollect several times his saying, "Martin, what you are putting putting down is not right;" and I did not know whether he was joking or not; but I would immediately refer to it, and say "That is not so."

14730. Then you have now a distinct recollection that Mr. Hyndman did arraign your reports?—I have a recollection of his often saying the thing; but I have no recollection of his having said it as a serious charge.

14731. You have a recollection of his having said it?—Yes; I often said things that I did not mean at all serious, and he often said things that he did not mean as serious.

14732. Then there can be no doubt that he has, in several instances, either jokingly or in earnest, stated, "the witness has not given any such evidence as you have taken down"?—He has; but whenever he has said that, I immediately looked, and if the witness was there, I asked him.

14733. Mr. O'Connell.] You have no recollection of a serious charge of that kind made by him?—No; certainly not.

14734. Mr. Hamilton.] You stated that you compared your books with theirs, when any doubt arose?—Yes; I read it out to them, and asked them what they had down, and if the witness was there, and there was any dispute about it, I would ask the man, "What did you say?" and if it was wrong I would alter it.

14735. As far as the comparison went, can you state whether your memoranda agreed with those made by the opposite party?—I cannot; because I would read that which was in mine, and they would never let me see theirs.

14736. Chairman.] Did the other side take notes as constantly as you did?—They took notes.

14737. Who was the person that usually took notes on the other side?—A Mr. Gale.

14738. Were they entered in a book in the same way as yours?—Yes.

14739. Is the book that you are now reading from, the original book in which you entered those notes?—This is the original itself.

14740. That was the book in which you entered the memoranda of the proceedings?—Yes.

14741. Mr. O'Connell.] And all those entries which you have read, were entries made at the period when they purport to bear date?—Yes; and I signed it instantly.

14742. Chairman.] Had they a similar book on the other side?—They had a large book, and alphabeted, but I never looked at their book.

14743. Mr. Hamilton.] When you referred to your book to show that you had taken down the evidence of the witness correctly, did the opposite party in those cases still object to it as incorrect?—Generally in a joking way, but not seriously; and they would laugh at me and say, "Martin, all yours is wrong;" and we humbug one another in that way, but nothing serious; nothing that I would have thought a charge that affected me, so far as to lead me to examine it over again.

14744. You noted down those memoranda with a view to the Committee of the House of Commons?—To be able to swear to their correctness in any manner afterwards upon anything that might arise; I did not at the time know what course might be taken, but I took notes of the evidence.

14745. With a view to disfranchise improper freemen?—Yes.

14746. Mr. O'Connell.] Is not a caution given in those books of the Reform Association that these things are to be done with a view to give evidence before a Committee of the House?—There is.

14747. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Will you look at your book and turn to the note of the first case you read of John Wilson Barlow, and state whether or not there appears to be any interlineation there, or whether it is all fairly written?—There is a little interlineation of William-street.

14748. Will you refer to the next, Thomas Lapham, and state whether there appears any interlineation there?—No.

14749. Look at the next, Simon Forrest, and state whether there is any interlineation?—No; but there is something struck out in it.

14750. Will you look at the next, John Meathe, and state whether there is any interlineation there?—There are three interlineations there.

14751. Do you consider the first one, "no answer," an interlineation?—No, I do not; it is on the line immediately after; when it is between two lines I consider that an interlineation; they were both done immediately after, in court; I had begun to write the other line.

14752. Do you consider "the court overruled his answer" as an interlineation?—I do, because it is made between two lines.

14753. Was that inserted there as a correction?—It was inserted there at the moment.

14754. Was it inserted as a correction?—I do not know.

14755. Is there any one of those inserted as a correction?—I cannot tell; I never corrected anything after I left the court.

14756. When was that written?—On the 16th of November 1836.

14757. Mr. O'Connell.] Was it inserted in order to be more accurate?—It was; it was inserted while the man was upon the table.

14758. The entry was inserted in court as it stands now?—It was.

14759. You never made an alteration in any of those after you left the court?—Never; nor after the individual case closed; if anything arose from the difference of the cross-examination, I then altered it to what he said was his answer; but I never, after his examination was closed, made the least alteration.

14760. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] You had no rough book, nor any notes in which you first took down the subject-matter, which you afterwards entered in this book?—Save this [producing another paper]; the first day, before I had that book with me in court, when Mr. Hobson made the objections, I took down those upon this paper, which I made in court.

14761. Then after the first day the first entry you made of every case was in this book, and it was not transcribed into this book from any other book or paper whatever?—None whatever.

14762. Now look at the note of the case of M. H. Black, and state whether there is any interlineation there?—There is a correction here; there is the word "it" interlined.

14763. Mr. O'Connell.] That you made upon the spot?—Upon the spot; every entry was made while the man was under examination.

14764. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Will you look at the next, "James Connor, Temple-street"?—There is something struck out here; that was done upon the spot; there is an interlineation there of the word "minor," and the word "time;" I corrected it upon reading it in court; while they were disputing about it, I would read over what I had written.

14765. Will you look at the next, which is James Crofton, and state whether there is any interlineation there?—No; there is just the word "for" struck out.

14766. Mr. O'Connell.] You have stated that you receive 2 l. a week for this employment from the Association; do you recollect that when that was settled you were asked how much you would want?—Yes; and I said 2 l. a week would keep me from loss.

14767. Do you recollect an observation which was made?—The observation was, that it was considered too little; but I said that my family was small, and it would be sufficient, and I did not wish to make anything of the public.

MEMBERS PRESENT.

Mr. Serjeant Ball.
Mr. O'Connell.
Mr. Hamilton.
Mr. Hogg.
Mr. Serjeant Jackson.
Mr. Lefroy.
Lord Granville Somerset.

LORD GRANVILLE SOMERSET, IN THE CHAIR.

George Archer, Esq., called in; and Examined.

G. Archer, Esq.

30 May 1837.

14768. Mr. O'Connell.] WHAT situation do you fill in the corporation of Dublin?—Town clerk of Dublin.

14769. How long have you been town clerk of Dublin?—Since the month of January 1830.

14770. Were you before in the office?—No.

14771. Do you hold any other office but that of town clerk?—Clerk of the peace.

14772. Chairman.] For the city of Dublin?—For the city of Dublin.

14773. Do you call it the county of the city?—The county of the city.

14774. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you had a partner in either of those situations?—The office is held jointly.

14775. Each office?—Each office.

14776. Who is the other gentleman?—Mr. John Long.

14777. Chairman.] I believe Mr. Long is very unwell?—Yes.

14778. And unable to attend?—Yes.

14779. Mr. O'Connell.] You possess every information that he does in all probability?—I do.

14780. Have you filled any other office in the corporation, or for the corporation?—At any other time?

14781. Yes?—But not in the corporation; springing out of the corporation; I have served the office of sub-sheriff.

14782. How often?—Twice.

14783. You have been law-agent for the corporation have you?—Never.

14784. You are a professional gentleman, I believe, in Dublin?—I am.

14785. Who does the law business of the corporation at present?—Mr. Robert Dickenson and Mr. William White.

14786. Who have they succeeded?—They succeeded Mr. Long, my colleague, and Mr. Thomas Greene.

14787. I suppose Mr. Long was law-agent until he became town clerk and clerk of the peace?—He was.

14788. And only gave up those offices on what I presume was promotion?—Yes.

14789. Have you the corporation books here?—I have.

14790. There is in Dublin what is called, "The corporation at large," is there not?—There is.

14791. And there are particular guilds beside?—There are.

14792. How many guilds are there at present?—Twenty-five, I think.

14793. A person by being free of a guild is not free of the corporation at large?—No.

14794. And the corporation at large can reject any person belonging to a guild, who makes a claim of freedom, if they think fit?—They can.

14795. There are two bodies that can so reject, are there not?—There are.

14796. What are they called?—The lord mayor and board of aldermen is one, which which we call the upper house; and the sheriffs and commons is the other, which we call the lower house.

14797. Each of these bodies has, and exercises, the power of refusing freedom if they think fit?—They do.

14798. Each does?—Each.

14799. And has that power?—Yes; the question is put with regard to each freeman.

14800. And they are free to admit him, or to reject him, as they please?—They are.

14801. And they are so free, whether the allegations in his petition or beseech, as it is called, be true or not?—They are.

14802. The claim for a freedom in the city of Dublin is called a beseech?—It is.

14803. And does that beseech go equally to the board of aldermen and to the commons' house?—It does.

14804. To each of them?—To each.

14805. Then before any man can be free of the city of Dublin he goes through two ordeals; does he not?—He does.

14806. The one before the board of aldermen, and the other before the commons; is not that so?—It is.

14807. Which is usually appealed to in the first instance?—The lord mayor and board of aldermen.

14808. And if he passes that, then the commons are appealed to?—The beseech is then sent down to the sheriffs and commons.

14809. That is if it passes?—If it passes.

14810. If it be rejected, the lord mayor and board of aldermen assign no reason for the rejection?—No.

14811. But their good will and pleasure?—None other.

14812. The lord mayor and board of aldermen decide by vote; do not they?—The question is put.

14813. Ayes and noes?—Yes.

14814. If it comes then before the commons, it is decided by ballot, is it not?—I never knew of a question by ballot on freemen; I never heard of it by ballot; only a question of division. Nor did I ever hear there was a division in the commons.

14815. They generally decide unanimously?—Indeed it is generally the case.

14816. It is tolerably well known how they will decide before the question is put, I suppose?—I cannot say that.

14817. But they have the right to negative, if they think fit?—They have.

14818. And without assigning any reason?—Without assigning any reason.

14819. And that right, of course, although the facts stated in the beseech may be unquestionable?—Certainly.

14820. Have you the form of the beseech?—I have.

14821. Will you be so good as to produce it?

[The Witness produced it.]

14822. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] I suppose it is called a beseech the same as writs are called, because of the introductory words at the commencement of it?—Yes, just so.

14823. It is in the form of a request, I suppose, for the franchise?—Yes.

14824. Mr. O'Connell.] Is not the beseech in the following form; "To the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, Sheriffs, Commons, and Citizens of the City of Dublin, beseech your Honors, Reverend James Phelan, of Finglass, apothecary, to be admitted into the liberties and franchises of the City of Dublin by marriage, he being married to the daughter of John Giffard, esquire, who came in at Michaelmas Assembly, 1768, by grace especial"?—Yes.

14825. Have you any other form of beseech but this?—No; unless changing the claim.

14827. Especially

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

14827. Especially the words "By marriage, he being married to the daughter of," are printed?—Yes.

14828. In the margin, there is "Easter Assembly, 1837," in writing?—Yes.

14829. "Granted on taking the oaths;" does that "granted on taking the oaths" refer to the commons, or to the board of aldermen?—That refers to the general order.

14830. And there is the word "allowed"?—Yes, the word "allowed;" that is the confirmation of that order by the sheriffs and commons.

14832. And in the margin there is, "granted on taking the oaths, if it shall appear by indenture;" what oaths are these; do these oaths mean the freeman's oath?—No; there are other oaths.

14833. You are aware that the latter part of this oath no Catholic can take; "And I do declare that no foreign prince, person, prelate, state, or potentate"?—Yes.

14834. There is no Catholic admitted free of the corporation of Dublin, to your knowledge?—There is not.

14835. I suppose they could not well be without your knowing it?—No.

14836. Then of course you can state positively there is no Catholic free of the city of Dublin?—I can.

14837. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] When you say Catholic, you mean Roman Catholic?—I mean Roman Catholic.

14838. Chairman.] Do you state that, from the incapability of a Roman Catholic to take the oath necessary to be taken; or from what other source of information do you state that no Roman Catholic can be free of the city of Dublin?—I am quite satisfied there is no Roman Catholic in the corporation of the city of Dublin, from my knowledge.

14839. But is there any oath or any positive impediment of that sort that precludes their being admitted, or is it a simple fact that you know from other sources of information?—I think that oath would not be required in the case of a Roman Catholic's admission, because the law has substituted another oath.

14840. Then I am to understand there is no law which prevents their admission; but it is a simple fact that no one has been admitted?—Precisely so.

14841. Mr. O'Connell.] I believe you are aware that for upwards of forty years, near fifty, no law exists that prevents their being admitted?—I understand not.

14842. But that in fact they are not admitted?—They are not admitted.

14843. And if a Catholic had a claim by birth, marriage, or servitude, he still would not be admitted?—I do not say that; I do not say he would not be admitted, because I know that there was a gentleman not very long ago, who was very near being admitted.

14844. Why was he not?—Because he did not succeed with the board of aldermen.

14845. But still, did he pass the commons?—No; he could not go before the commons, not having passed the board of aldermen.

14846. Then the board of aldermen may reject him, although he be the eldest son of a freeman?—No doubt.

14847. And may reject him, although he has served a regular apprenticeship?—Certainly.

14848. And they may reject him if his claim be undoubtedly true in point of fact, by marriage?—They may.

14849. And if the board of alderman did not reject him, the Commons may do it, notwithstanding the facts be in his favour, may they not?—They may.

14850. Have you any doubt they would if they knew him to be a Catholic?—Indeed I have no doubt but that they would.

14851. You have no doubt that the board of aldermen would reject any person they knew to be a Roman Catholic, no matter what facts his claim was founded on?—I am not so sure of that.

14852. But you are quite sure of the Commons?—I am more sure of the Commons,

30 May 1837.

Commons, because I believe the case of Mr. Ignatius Callaghan, a Roman Catholic merchant, was decided by a casting vote in the board of aldermen.

14853. Considered to be a wealthy man?—Yes.

14854. And I believe at that time he was not a politician?—I declare I do not know how that is.

14855. The technical name of a rejection by the board of aldermen is cushioning, is it not?—The question of admission is postponed, not cushioned.

14856. That is a new way of putting down the rejection, is it not?—It is the usual way.

14857. Now, here is one of your beseeches for birth; it is the same form, except that the words are, "by birth, being the son of"?—Yes.

14858. And those words are printed?—They are.

14859. Now will you show me a beseech by grace especial. [The Witness did so.] The beseech by grace especial only contains these words: "Beseech your honors, John Gedder, of Nelson-street, merchant, to be admitted into the liberties and franchises of the City of Dublin, by grace especial"?—Yes.

14860. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Those persons who are admitted by grace especial, do you call them in the corporation "honorary freemen?"—By grace especial I do.

14862. Mr. O'Connell.] The words "honorary freemen" were not known in the corporation of Dublin until the Reform Bill?—No, but it would apply to freemen of the city at large, such as Mr. Serjeant Jackson suggested.

14863. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Persons who are not admitted into any guild do you mean?—Yes.

14864. They are admitted at first into the corporation at large?—Yes, they are called freemen of the city at large.

14865. Mr. O'Connell.] Are there any beseeches for admission to the city at large in consequence of birth, or service to a freeman in the city, prior to the Reform Bill?—No.

14866. Have you any such subsequent to the Reform Bill?—No.

14867. So that birth and service attach themselves to particular guilds, do they?—Birth, service, and marriage.

14868. To particular guilds?—Yes.

14869. How long have you had this form of beseech by grace especial?—It has been from time immemorial, I should say.

14870. How long have you had the form of beseech for birth?—The same, I take it.

14871. And service?—The same.

14872. And marriage only since the Reform Bill?—Only since the Reform Bill.

14873. There is no instance of a beseech by marriage until after the Reform Bill?—No.

14874. This book that is before me is the alphabetical book of admissions of freemen?—I should, perhaps, explain as to marriage, that marriage conferred a right of claim prior to the Reform Bill, by grace especial. It was recognized in the minor corporations as a ground whereon to claim admission by grace especial. The effect of the Reform Bill was, to do away with the right by grace especial, and to set up the distinct right by marriage, which is the reason why the beseeches then commenced upon that right of claim.

14875. But the other beseeches were printed beseeches before the Reform Bill?—Yes.

14876. Then you had no printed beseech by marriage until subsequent to the Reform Bill?—No.

14877. Now the book before me that you have handed to me, is the alphabetical book of freemen, commencing Michaelmas 1820; is it not so?—It is.

14878. Kept in your office?—Yes.

14879. And under your inspection since you have been in the office?—Yes.

14880. Now in this book I find, that the claim of admission is abbreviated for grace especial; it is "g. e."?—

14881. For birth it is "b."?—Yes.

14882. For

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

14882. For service it is "s."?—Yes.

14883. There is no such entry of admission by marriage?—No.

14884. Until after the Reform Bill?—No.

14885. And after the Reform Bill, for the first time, the letter "m." is introduced instead of the other entries; is it not so?—Yes.

14886. Are there several freemen admitted in that way since the Reform Bill?—Several.

14887. And none before?—And none before on that distinct ground.

14888. With the "m."?—No, not with the "m."

14889. The number of freemen admitted before the Reform Bill, the far greater number of them was by grace especial; was it not?—I do not know; the book will show; I should think there was a greater number by grace especial.

14890. There are very few now admitted by grace especial?—Very few.

14891. It merely confers corporate privileges and rights, admission by grace especial?—No more. Admission by grace especial is seldom sought for now.

14892. Shall you be able to state how many have been admitted in each year previous to the Reform Bill; have you documents to show that?—That document will show it; that is up to the year 1820.

14893. And you can from this book make out a list of those admitted in each year before the Reform Bill by grace especial?—I can.

14894. And those who have had birth as the claim of admission?—Yes.

14895. And those who have had service as the claim of admission?—Yes; but it will take a long time to do that; to begin from 1820.

14896. Where do you ascertain the fact that the man who claims is a Protestant?—I do not know; we do not seek to ascertain that question.

14897. How do you ascertain he is not a Roman Catholic?—We take for granted that the guilds would send us none others but Protestants.

14898. That inquiry you leave to the guilds?—We leave that to the guilds.

14899. If any Roman Catholic were to apply it would probably be soon discovered?—I think it would.

14900. So that one way or the other it is as certained that the individual applying is a Protestant?—Yes, I think so.

14901. Otherwise he would be rejected, or would be likely to be rejected?—I apprehend he would be likely to be rejected.

14902. Your opinion is that he would?—At present my opinion is that he would.

14903. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Have there been many rejections in your time?—Of Roman Catholics?

14904. Of any persons who sought their freedom of Dublin?—There have been some; not a great many, I think.

14905. Upon what grounds have they been rejected?—Inquiries made as to character, and men's moral characters, and not found creditable and sufficient.

14906. Mr. O'Connell.] And the political character of some others?—Yes; and the political character of others has been inquired into.

14907. Now you never rejected a man by reason of his politics being adverse to the Roman Catholic claims?—I cannot call to my recollection any such occurrence.

14908. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] When you say there is no reason assigned for rejection, you do not mean that when the subject is under the discussion of the corporate chambers, that no reasons are assigned in the discussion; but you mean that no reason is given on any record?—Yes.

14909. There are reasons given in the discussion, I suppose?—Yes.

14910. The fitness of a man, I suppose, is considered in the discussion?—Yes.

14911. His moral character?—Yes.

14912. And whether he be a man of constitutional principles?—Yes.

14913. Mr. O'Connell.] What do you call constitutional principles?—The constitutional principles of the corporation, the maintenance of the church and state.

14914. Protestant ascendancy?—Precisely.

14915. You include that?—We do.

14916. In short, your corporation is an exclusively Protestant corporation; is it not?—I should say it was.

14917. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Have you been present at any discussion upon the merits of a person?—Yes, I have.

 14918. Are

G. Archer, Esq.

30 May 1837.

14918. Are you a member of the commons?—No, I am not.

14919. You are not an alderman?—No.

14920. Then ex-officio you attend?—It is my duty to attend the board of aldermen.

14921. In the chambers?—Yes.

14922. And therefore you hear the discussions?—Yes.

14923. And you hear the moral characters of individuals canvassed?—I do.

14924. And you have known instances of men rejected by reason of deficiency in point of moral character?—I have.

14925. Is that the principal cause of rejection, with regard to a large proportion of those that are rejected?—No; but I do not think many rejections take place.

14926. But of those who are rejected, is that the principal cause of rejection?—Yes.

14927. Are you able to call to mind any other grounds of rejection that occurred within your observation, except that of the moral character of the individual being tried and found wanting?—I should say upon political grounds, I should think there have been postponements.

14928. Mr. O'Connell.] Postponement is the term for rejection?—Yes, it means that.

14929. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Have you known any other grounds of rejection, save a deficiency in point of moral character or political?—No, I cannot say I have.

14930. Mr. O'Connell.] Is a Protestant, who is a strong advocate of the Catholics' claim as likely to be rejected as a Catholic?—I do not think he is as likely as a Catholic.

14931. But he would be likely to be rejected?—He would.

14932. A Roman Catholic would certainly be rejected; did you not say that?—No, not with certainty; I mentioned the case of Mr. Callaghan; I cannot say with certainty.

14933. There was no chance of its going through both houses?—Sentiments may change; that was some time ago.

14934. However, you never knew an instance of a change?—No.

14935. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] If a Protestant came, claiming in right of service, birth, or marriage, and it appeared that he was not a man of loyalty attached to the monarchical government and constitution of these realms, I apprehend the corporation of Dublin would reject him?—They would.

14936. Just as soon as they would reject a Roman Catholic?—The same.

14937. They therefore look for an attachment to the constitution of these realms as an ingredient?—They do.

14938. Which they would require in any man they would admit?—They do.

14939. Mr. O'Connell.] But by the existing constitution do you include the Catholic Emancipation Bill?—To be sure.

14940. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] Do you consider that part of the constitution?—I consider the law of the land must be upheld.

14941. But do you consider it a component part of the constitution of these realms, the continuance of the Catholic Emancipation Bill?—I do, certainly; I should consider it part of the constitution, the law of the land.

14942. Do you consider it as a component part of the constitution?—No, I do not consider it a component part of the constitution.

14943. Mr. O'Connell.] But certainly a man who was proposed to the corporation, and was strongly favourable to the Emancipation Bill, would not be so likely to be admitted as a Protestant who was adverse to it?—I think not.

14944. In short, the corporation is in its nature adverse to what are called the Catholic claims?—It is.

14945. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] Before the passing of the Catholic Emancipation Bill, was it not deemed a part of the constitution to oppose the Catholic claims?—In our corporation it was.

14946. Mr. O'Connell.] And no Protestant would have been likely to have been admitted who had been considered to have been active in support of those claims?—I think he would not.

14947. Have you here a form of the certificate given to any persons who are admitted to their freedom, who pass the corporation?—No, I have not. I did not know that the form would be required. I can state the substance of it, I think, from recollection.

14948. Mr. O'Connell.] No; it will be desirable to have the exact form?—The

The witness was directed to send for a blank form of the four certificates; one by grace especial, one by birth, one by service, and one by marriage.

Witness.] There is but one form; it is only the alteration of the claim.

14949. They differ as the beseeches differ, I suppose?—Just so.

14950. Chairman.] They are counterparts of the beseeches, in fact?—They are.

14951. Mr. O'Connell.] Then these forms; there were none known by marriage until after the Reform Bill; no certificates by marriage?—No.

14952. Since the Reform Bill there are many?—There are many.

The witness was directed to make out the number of persons admitted in each year for five years before the Reform Bill, from 1826 to 1830 inclusive, distinguishing the classes.

14953. Chairman.] If I understand you right, this claim of freedom by marriage was known, though it was not much exercised previous to the passing of the Reform Bill; was that it?—It was; it furnished a claim on the ground of grace especial.

14954. Mr. O'Connell.] It furnished an inducement for the ground of grace especial?—Yes.

14955. Chairman.] Now, could you state to the Committee in how many cases, in the preceding ten or fifteen years, to the passing of the Reform Bill, such applicants had been admitted?—No, I could not.

14956. You have no means of ascertaining how many persons were admitted to the freedom on the supposed ground of marriage?—No, I have not.

14957. Could the corporation books in any way furnish that information?—No; the entries in the books appear under the head of "Grace Especial."

14958. Mr. O'Connell.] Those who claimed by grace especial had to make out a case to induce the corporation to grant their claims?—Yes.

14959. And somebody stated something to induce the corporation to grant it; was not that it?—Yes.

14960. Sometimes they talked of their loyalty?—Yes.

14961. I believe that is generally what they talked of?—Very often.

14962. At other times they talked of some service to the city?—Yes.

14963. Chairman.] But is the Committee to understand that whenever a claimant did advance his claim to grace especial upon the plea of marriage, that he was more likely to obtain it than not, if there was no particular objection to it?—I should say he was.

14964. That that would be the foundation of a claim which would be most likely granted?—Yes.

14965. I am talking now of previous to the Reform Bill?—I mean previous to it.

14966. Mr. O'Connell.] That it would be an inducement to them to grant it?—Certainly, I think it would.

14967. Considering him friendly?—Conferring the right on the son-in-law, the son having a claim.

14968. When a beseech comes forward by grace especial, is it usual for somebody in the corporation to state some reason?—Yes, then it generally is.

14969. That is, those reasons you gave, loyalty or service to the corporation, or being connected with a freeman?—Yes.

14970. And it is perfectly in the power of the board of aldermen to reject that reason if they please?—Certainly.

14971. Though the reason may be perfectly true?—Certainly.

14972. You have altered since the Reform Bill the mode of entry, by making an entry for marriage which never was found before?—Yes; I mentioned that before.

14973. Chairman.] I think your first charter was the one granted by Henry the 2nd?—Yes, it was.

14974. To the men of Bristol, was it not?—Yes.

14975. And the citizens of Dublin appear occasionally to have inquired respecting particular customs used in Bristol?—Yes.

14976. And to have received certificates from the authorities of that city; the fact is so, is it not?—That I believe to be the fact.

14977. Mr. O'Connell.] This is the freeman's oath, is it not?—It is.

14978. Mr. O'Connell.] "You shall swear that you shall be good and true to our Sovereign Lord King William IV., and to the heirs of our said Sovereign Lord

G. Archer, Esq.
30 May 1837.

Lord the King; obeysant and obedient you shall be to the mayor and ministers of the city. The franchises and customs thereof, you shall maintain, and this city keep harmless in that that in you is. You shall be contributory to all manner of charges within this city, as summonses, watches, contributions, tasks, tallages, lot and scot, and all other charges, bearing your part as a freeman ought to do. You shall colour no foreign goods, whereby the King or this city might lose their customs and advantages. You shall know no foreigner to buy or sell any merchandizes with any other foreigner within this city, or franchises thereof, but you shall warn the mayor thereof." I believe that clause has very little meaning in it?—I do not think it has a great deal.

14979. "You shall take no apprentice, but if he be freeborn; that is to say, no bondsman's son, and for no less term than for seven years; within the first year you shall cause him to be inrolled, and at his term's end you shall make him free of this city if he have well and truly served you. You shall also keep the King's peace in your own person, and shall always, whilst you are able and in your power, keep a good musket, carabine, or fusee, in good, clean, and sufficient order. You shall know no gatherings, conventicles, nor conspiracies made against His Majesty's peace, but shall warn the mayor thereof, or let it to your power. You shall not be free baker, butcher, or fisher, without you pay custom; and whatever office that you be lawfully called unto within the said franchises, you shall not refuse. All these points and articles you shall well and truly keep, according to the laws and customs of this city." That is the oath?—Yes.

14980. Mr. Hamilton.] That form is an ancient one, I believe?—Yes, very ancient.

14981. Are there any traces of its origin in the books or muniments of the corporation that you are aware of?—No; I looked at the time when Mr. George Jackson was under examination before a Select Committee of the House of Commons in 1833; but I could not put my hand on any document at that time. I found a document afterwards; it was a document, I think, in the reign of Charles the 1st, and what became of it subsequently I do not know; but I am quite satisfied that form of oath was framed at an earlier period.

14982. Chairman.] I see there is a charter in the 17th Charles the 1st, which recites the charters of the 2d Richard the 3d, and the 2d Edward the 6th: would it be in that?—No, I think not; not in the charters. It is certainly an oath that was framed in early times by the corporation.

14983. I want, for another reason, to call your attention also to the charter in the reign of Richard the 1st, 1192, by John, then Lord of Ireland and Earl of Morton, and he declares the citizens may have all their reasonable guilds, as the burgesses of Bristol had, or were accustomed to have; is not that the fact?—It is.

14984. Mr. O'Connell.] Have they separate guilds still in Bristol, as you have in Dublin?—I do not know.

14985. Mr. Hamilton.] What is the meaning you attach to the words "bondsman's son," in that oath?—The meaning I attach to that is, a description of freemen that was merely permitted to trade. I have seen old documents, showing that what was then considered a foreigner was a man who occasionally came into the old city to trade, and trade was so restricted by the rights the corporation exercised, that a temporary freedom was frequently granted, on the party acquiring it paying a fine and entering into a bond.

14986. Mr. O'Connell.] And that person was allowed to trade?—Yes; and I take it that such person was, according to the terms used in the freeman's oath, a bondsman.

14987. In making freemen since the Reform Bill, have you been assisted by anybody in recommending freemen not immediately belonging to the corporation?—No; we have had no assistance of any body. I am aware that great exertions have been used since.

14988. By whom?—I understand by the conservatives.

14989. Who in particular have you known active in it?—Mr. Collison.

14990. Anybody else?—No, I cannot say I have; I may have seen persons whom I do not know.

14992. Does he ever get the certificates?—Yes, frequently.

14993. Are there any certificates ever signed in blank?—I think they have been sometimes signed in blank.

14994. And left them in the office to be filled up by the clerks, I suppose?—Left

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

Left them sometimes in our office in Green-street, for the convenience of parties registering; the register-court is held in Green-street, and the corporation is held in William-street, and in our absence we sometimes leave blank certificates for the purpose of having them filled up.

14995. That is, certificates in blank, but signed by the corporate officer?—Yes.

14996. How long has that practice prevailed; only since the Reform Bill, I suppose?—No; it prevailed always, so far as I recollect.

14997. Was it the practice before that?—Yes.

14998. Mr. Hamilton.] In whose custody are those blank certificates left?—In the custody of our confidential clerk.

14999. So that they are still in the custody of yourself, or those for whom you are answerable?—Certainly.

14999.* Mr. O'Connell.] Your confidential clerk is a gentleman of the name of Grabham?—Yes; but he has not been in our office for some time.

15000. How long has he left your office?—Since, I think, the end of March last.

15001. Is there any power to fill up a beseech after the assembly rises?—No.

15002. When do the assemblies meet?—Quarterly.

15003. What are the regular days of each quarterly meeting?—They are not stated days; they follow in some peculiar way, according to the charter, but commence in January.

15004. There is one day in January?—There is one day in January, another in April, another in July, and the fourth in October; and that in January is called "The Christmas Assembly." That is, the Christmas Assembly of 1837 has taken place.

15005. Then, is January 1837 called "Christmas 1837"?—Yes, it is; that has been so all through.

15006. Then April 1837 is called "Easter 1837"?—Yes.

15007. July is called, what?—"Midsummer."

15008. And October is called "Michaelmas"?—Michaelmas.

15009. Then the quarterly assembly meets only upon one day in each of these quarters?—One day, unless adjourned. They adjourn frequently.

15010. Have you books to show how many adjournments have taken place in each year since 1820 to 1831, and from 1831 to the present?—I have not.

15011. Can we get that information?—I do not see how you can.

15013. Notwithstanding the adjournments?—Notwithstanding the adjournments. They are always one assembly.

15014. Have not frequent adjournments taken place within the latter years?—Yes.

15015. Have they not been much more numerous since the Reform Bill than before?—I think they have.

15016. Have you not continued them from week to week since the Reform Bill?—There have been three or four adjournments of one quarterly assembly since the Reform Bill.

15017. You never knew so many as three or four adjournments of one quarterly assembly before the Reform Bill; did you?—No, I did not.

15018. And these adjournments since the Reform Bill are for the purpose of passing freemen principally?—Principally.

15019. Can you give us the days upon which the freemen passed since the Reform Bill?—I do not see how I can. I will try, if possible.

15020. What book would contain it?—Probably some of the beseeches; but, in point of fact, there have been these adjournments.

15021. What is the greatest number of adjournments that you remember of any quarterly assembly since the Reform Bill?—I recollect one assembly, when several adjournments took place, the last adjournment nearly running into the next quarter.

15022. What assembly was that?—I cannot recollect; I believe it was some time last year, but these adjournments did not occur with a view to the passing of freemen.

15023. Well, it gave you the opportunity of passing freemen?—No; there is generally but one day for that purpose.

15024. What was the reason of the adjournment?—I think it was induced by the the proceedings in Parliament respecting Irish municipal corporations, and to prevent the necessity of calling what is called a post assembly.

15025. Can you pass freemen at a post assembly?—No.

15026. What investigation as to facts takes place upon a beseech; do you in general take it for granted?—I speak of the board of aldermen; when they are not satisfied by facts coming within their own knowledge, of the character and qualification of the claimant, resort is made to the representatives, or one of them, of the guild in which the claimant has passed, for the necessary information. It is further requisite, before the sheriffs and commons pass a beseech, that the representative of the particular guild to which the claimant belongs or has passed, should confirm it by standing up in his place and making use of the word "Allowed."

15027. And there is no formal examination into the facts?—No, unless what takes place in the corporation below; in the junior corporation.

15028. Then you could not give us the days on which the parties have been admitted since that period?—No, I could not.

15029. Can you swear in persons any day?—Yes.

15030. The swearing in is before whom?—The lord mayor and one of the sheriffs must be present.

15031. Was that so always?—Always.

15032. What other alteration have you made since the Reform Bill?—I do not know of any other alteration.

15033. In 1833 you made scarcely any freemen I perceive?—I believe very few.

15034. The notion of your being able to set up the rights was not prevalent, I suppose, at that time?—I do not know exactly what the reason was.

15035. You made very few in 1834?—Very few.

15036. Can you let us know how many you made in 1835?—Yes, I can; the return which I am going to make will give that.

15037. Now, if you made a man free by grace especial this day, would his son have a right to claim to-morrow?—No.

15038. That is, you do not trace the fact of the birth by any entry in your books?—No; but from the date of the claim, we go back twenty-one years. That is the reason why he could not claim the next day.

15039. You do not conceive that any man is entitled to claim as a son, unless his father has been twenty-one years a freeman?—We do not.

15040. But you have no means of ascertaining, have you, whether the father has been a freeman twenty-one years of the particular guild?—No; only of the corporation of Dublin at large.

15041. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] Do you mean by what you just said about twenty-one years, that the son must have been born at the time when his father was free?—I do. The son, to entitle him to his freedom, must be born subsequent to his father's freedom.

15042. That is to say, at a time when his father was free?—Yes.

15043. Then that may go back further than twenty-one years?—But if it does, that satisfies our inquiry.

15044. Chairman.] Has any legal advice been taken, as to the rights of persons claiming upon the ground of marriage, since the passing of the Reform Bill?—I think not.

15045. Has any resistance been attempted to be made to that right in any way?—Never, that I heard.

15046. Has that question, do you know, ever been argued before the revising barrister?—Not to my knowledge.

15047. Mr. O'Connell.] By resistance, you mean no resistance in the corporation?—I do.

15048. Chairman.] My question was, has any legal proceeding been taken in any way, or by any party, to your knowledge, to resist this assumption on the part of persons claiming on the ground of marriage?—Never, to my knowledge; I believe not.

15049. Have parties been opposed, to your knowledge, before the revising barrister on the ground that they were so admitted?—I am not aware how that fact is.

15050. Would it have come to your knowledge if such a circumstance had occurred?—I should think it would; I do not recollect ever having heard it.

15051. Mr.

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

G. Archer, Esq.

30 May 1837.

15051. Mr. O'Connell.] You do not attend the assistant barrister's court?—No; Mr. Dobbs is in attendance; he is the barrister.

15052. The corporation are now anxious to make freemen on these claims; are they not?—They certainly have an anxiety to have as many freemen as they are entitled to.

15053. That is, to have as many freemen in their interest?—I should say so.

15054. You know they would not make a man free by birth, servitude, or marriage, that they knew would vote against the present sitting members?—I do not say that they are so exclusive as that, because they certainly have made many free that were adverse, and voted always against them since the Reform Bill.

15055. Do you think they would make any man free who avowed he would vote against the present sitting members, and for the members that ousted them?—I think not; at the same time it is not very long ago since two of Mr. M'Causland's sons, nephews of Lord Plunket, were admitted.

15056. But the corporation are naturally anxious to increase the number of freemen in their own interest; are they not?—They are.

15057. And they are people looking out for persons who can make these claims?—Indeed I should say they are; that is my belief.

15058. Have you any books here that will show when the persons were admitted, in whose right the birth, servitude, and marriage, have been claimed?—I have.

15059. Mr. Hamilton.] Admissions in respect of marriage arose from a clause in the Reform Act?—Yes.

15060. By which it was conceived there was a subsequent claim established by marriage?—Yes.

15061. Mr. O'Connell.] It was conceived a new right was created?—It was.

15062. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] And that it was the intention of the Legislature to create a new right to freedom by the Reform Bill?—I do not know that it was understood to be the intention of the Legislature to create a new right to freedom.

15063. Mr. O'Connell.] But that the law did it?—Yes; and I take for granted that the Legislature intended it.

15064. And it was acting upon that idea that you introduced the new beseech for marriage?—It was coupled with the loss of grace especial, and marriage having before furnished a claim for grace especial.

15065. Rather an agreement than a claim?—No, a claim.

15066-7. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] What do you mean by the loss of grace especial; that was not lost until the Reform Bill?—

Mr. O'Connell.] Do you mean the right of voting for a member?—

Witness.] I do.

15068. Mr. Hamilton.] The honorary freemen excluded under the Reform Bill were the same as those who, before the Reform Bill, were admitted by grace especial?—Yes.

15069. Mr. O'Connell.] Then, what the corporation has been acting upon is this: having the power to reject any freemen they pleased, they do not consider any man an honorary freeman unless they admit him by grace especial?—Or the city at large.

15070. Which is the same?—It is the same, but it arises in a different way.

15071. And therefore they have created this new mode of doing the thing by marriage?—They have made this claim as of right.

15072. The marriage?—Yes.

15073. In order to avoid a clause of the Reform Bill which speaks of honorary freemen?—So far as that is concerned.

15074. They have done that to get rid of their being honorary freemen?—Yes, so far as the claim in respect of marriage.

15075. And there never was a certificate by marriage before the Reform Bill?—There never was.

15076. Mr. Hamilton.] And there was not, either in the beseech or certificate, a distinction made between those who were admitted as of grace especial, without any other qualification, and those who were admitted by especial grace, as of marriage?—No, I do not think there was; it furnished a claim of right to especial grace by the statement, it not being known that the party claimed as the son-in-law of a freeman.

15077. Mr. O'Connell.] And do you think there was any right by especial grace at all?—I think there was; I think there was a claim of right by especial grace as well as by birth and by service.

15078. Was

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

J. Archer, Esq.

30 May 1837.

15078. Was not especial grace through courtesy?—No; especial grace was a foundation of freemen passing in the corporations below the junior corporations; so was birth and service.

15079. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] But was not the one gratuitous, and the other not?—The question was put upon all; but if by especial grace a freeman was passed in one of the junior corporations, that founded a claim of right to admission, or to seek admission in the corporation above.

15080. Mr. O'Connell.] The right you speak of, is only a right to seek admission, not to enforce admission?—No, a right of claim.

15081. Nobody has a right to enforce admission in spite of the corporations?—No.

15082. Mr. Hamilton.] The admission into the corporation at large was an enlargement of the right which was acquired in the minor corporation?—It was.

15083. Mr. O'Connell.] Whenever the corporation chooses to admit a man to the corporation of the city at large?—Yes.

15084. Now in the return you have given me of Easter 1835, there is a John Hanbridge, carpenter, by marriage?—Yes.

15085. Is that the person who was tried for throwing the bottle at the Lord Lieutenant?—I do not know; I should think not; for as far as I recollect, that man's name was Henry.

15086. Am I to understand distinctly that you cannot give me a nearer day of admission than by putting, as you have done in the return, "Date of admission, Christmas Assembly, 1831;" you cannot give me any other date?—I do not think I can.

15087. Christmas Assembly 1831 was before the 20th July 1831, was it not?—Yes; that I have already explained to the Committee.

15088. Mr. Hamilton.] By whom is the beseech prepared?—By one of our clerks, or by ourselves, just as it may happen.

15089. Mr. O'Connell.] In the town clerk's office?—Yes.

15090. Mr. Hamilton.] Upon what document is that beseech grounded?—It is grounded upon a certificate that comes from the junior corporation.

15091. The certificate of admission?—Yes.

15092. Does that certificate state in what right the party has been admitted?—Yes.

15093. When it comes to the town clerk's office, does the town clerk take any steps to investigate the reality of that right?—Yes; and his investigation furnishes the ground of the beseech.

15094. Then the town clerk scrutinises the corporation books to ascertain whether the right set forth in the certificate is a bonâ fide one or not?—Yes.

15095. Then having satisfied himself upon that point he prepares the beseech?—Yes.

15096. Does the beseech recite the right?—It does.

15097. And its particulars?—It does.

15098. Mr. O'Connell.] The junior corporations is another term for the guilds?—Yes.

15099. Mr. Hamilton.] When the beseech goes before the board of aldermen, is there any qualification attached to their granting the application?—I am not aware of any qualification.

15100. I mean in reference to the oath to be taken?—There is a qualification in the order on taking the usual oaths, in the case of birth, and in the case of marriage, and in the case of grace especial. In the case of service it is on taking the oaths, if it shall appear by indenture.

15101. So that the grant of admission is conditional on taking the oaths in all those cases?—Yes.

15102. And on production of the indenture in case of servitude?—Not on production of the indenture, but on proof of servitude.

15103. Mr. O'Connell.] Is it necessary to prove that the servitude was by indenture?—I think it is; but it is not always done.

15104. When is that done?—That is done prior to the swearing in of a freeman admitted by service.

15105. And how is it proved?—There is a jury empannelled of freemen, and the party claiming gives evidence.

15106. Does that occur in each?—Yes.

15107. The

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

15107. The admission by servitude?—Yes; it does.

15108. Where is that jury sworn?—Before the lord mayor and sheriff.

15109. How many does it consist of?—Twelve.

15110. Have you ever seen that take place?—Frequently; whenever the right by service is claimed.

15111. Then, besides the power of rejecting by each branch of the corporation, a freeman by servitude must go through another ordeal, must he?—He must.

15112. And does in every instance?—Yes.

15113. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] Do you mean to say he produces his indenture in every instance?—Those who have indentures produce them; in several cases they account for the loss of the indentures and prove the servitude in some other way than by the production of the indentures.

15114. Mr. O'Connell.] Then the indentures need not be enrolled?—No.

15115. Chairman.] Then this jury, in point of fact, are to ascertain the facts of the case?—To ascertain the simple fact of service.

15116. They decide upon the fact, but as to the admission, they do not interfere?—No.

15117. Therefore all the power they have, is to see whether or no the man has or has not really served?—That is all.

15118. They have no discretionary power, have they?—No.

15119. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] Do you mean to say the indenture is proved by the subscribing witness; is it ever proved?—It is very often proved.

15120. And very often not?—And very often not.

15121. Mr. Hogg.] As to a claim by birth, how can you ascertain the correctness of the statement?—By referring to our books, we ascertain, before we put forward a beseech, that the father was twenty-one years a freeman prior to the claim of the son.

15122. And who makes that inquiry, or certifies that fact, or proves the identity of the person?—The town clerk certifies the fact, but as to the identity, I know of no means of ascertaining that, except the representation coming from the junior corporations, and the member or the representative of the particular corporation in the commons, stating the fact that it is all right, or using the word "allowed," which means that it is right and that it has passed the junior corporation in the regular way.

15123. Mr. O'Connell.] So that if he be mistaken in fact, or chooses to misstate the facts, he can do the entire by using the word "allowed"?—Yes; misstatement he certainly can make; it is possible.

15124. Mr. Hamilton.] Is the word "allowed" conclusive?—It does not prevent anybody else getting up and challenging the party.

15125. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] Is that ever done?—I cannot say; I am not there; that is not my place; I never heard.

15126. Mr. O'Connell.] It has not usually been done?—No.

15127. And you never heard of its being done?—No; I never did.

15128. Then your opinion is, that whenever the representative of the guild cries out "allowed," that all the facts are conceived to be admitted?—Yes.

15129. Chairman.] Do you belong to a guild yourself?—Yes.

15130. Which guild?—The guild of merchants.

15131. Were you present when you were admitted to your freedom?—It is so long ago, I cannot say.

15132. So that you know nothing of your own knowledge upon this point?—Not with regard to the guild of merchants.

15133. But any other guild where this takes place?—Mr. O'Connell alluded to what takes place in the sheriffs' and commons'. That is not my place to attend.

15134. Mr. Hogg.] Is there a previous inquiry into the same facts, before a person is admitted into the guild of merchants?—Certainly.

15135. Both as to birth and marriage?—Yes.

15136. So that this statement and this inquiry, and this authentication of the word "allowed," is all superadded to the previous investigation, before the person is introduced into what you call the senior corporation?—Yes.

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

G. Archer, Esq.

30 May 1837.

15137. Mr. O'Connell.] Were you ever present on any such investigation in the guild of merchants?—No.

15138. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] Or any other corporation?—No.

15139. And therefore you do not know that any investigation of the kind takes place?—I cannot speak of my own knowledge.

15140. Is it not deemed necessary in the case of servitude that the apprenticeship should have been to a freeman; to a person who was free?—Yes.

15141. And of course he must have been free during the whole time of the apprenticeship?—He must.

15142. Now have you not told us that in the case of servitude the only inquiry made by the jury is, whether there was an indenture executed or not?—Yes, or the fact of service.

15143. Therefore the jury do not inquire whether the person to whom the apprenticeship has been served, was himself a freeman or not?—No.

15144. Then that fact is not in any way authenticated?—Yes; we ascertain that fact before the beseech goes forward, that he served his apprenticeship to A. B., who came in at a period antecedent to the apprenticeship.

15145. You ascertain that?—Yes.

15146. And it is deemed necessary that that should be ascertained?—Certainly.

15147. Mr. Hamilton.] It is the invariable practice to ascertain in every case, whether the parties are entitled according to the books?—Yes.

15148. Mr. O'Connell.] Is any beseech sent up that does not pass through your office?—No.

15149. Then are you able to state distinctly that none of those beseeches leave your office until the fact is ascertained that the person in whose name the claim is made was a freeman?—Certainly. They cannot, as we prepare and bring the beseech before the board of aldermen and the lord mayor.

15150. You would not bring forward the beseech unless it was ascertained that the facts put forward were true?—Certainly not, and the tracing of our books shows it.

15151. Mr. Hogg.] Have you ever in your experience known an instance of a person being introduced or admitted into the corporation where the facts as stated in the beseech were untrue?—I never knew it; never.

15152. If such an occurrence had taken place, from your official situation would you probably have known it?—I think I would. I should have heard it.

15153. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] Are you aware that the only fact stated in the beseech is the fact of an apprenticeship having been served to a particular person?—Yes.

15154. But it is not stated that that particular person is himself a freeman?—Yes, it is.

15155. Mr. Hamilton.] The document on which you give the beseech is certified by some of the officers of the minor guild?—Yes.

15156. Generally by more than one?—Sometimes they are. Generally by more than one.

15157. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] However, the fact of the apprenticeship having been by indenture is not stated in the beseech?—No.

15158. Mr. Hamilton.] The beseech having been disposed of by the board of aldermen, what becomes of it?—One of the aldermen takes the beseeches when passed from the board of aldermen to the sheriffs and hands them to the sheriffs, and then in the course of the business of the day they are taken in their order and brought before the commons.

15159. Then being disposed of by the commons, what becomes of them?—A deputation from the commons brings the papers from the sheriffs and commons and returns them to the lord mayor.

15160. What entry does the town clerk make of the granting of a beseech by the aldermen and by the commons?—The entry is in a small book.

15161. That entry is never made until the claimant has passed both the aldermen and the commons?—Never until then.

15162. The admission is completed only when the oaths are taken?—It is so held now.

15163. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] Was there any period when it was held otherwise?—I think, prior to the Reform Bill, it was held that it was the date of admission, though the oath had not been taken. But that a freeman admitted ten years before before, on coming up at the period when the poll at an election for members of Parliament was going on, upon his being sworn, was entitled to vote.

15164. So that, in point of fact, there were many freemen who were never sworn at all?—A great many.

15165. Mr. Hamilton.] When the oath is administered, the freeman signs his name to the roll?—Yes, he signs his name to the roll, and then he is transferred into this book, and appears in the freeman's book.

15166. And on signing the roll, and his name being entered, a certificate is issued?—Yes, the certificate is then issued.

15167. Is the certificate ever issued previous to the swearing in of the freeman and the signing of the roll?—Never.

15168. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] But are you aware that the production of the certificate is deemed to be conclusive by the registering barrister?—So I understand.

15169. That he cannot make any objection to the right of admission to the freeman?—No.

15170. Mr. O'Connell.] That is since the decision of Chief Baron Joy?—Yes.

15171. Now look at this certificate of John Lane Macray; is that the celebrated John Lane Macray?—No, I believe not.

15172. You see in that "certificate last assembly;" what is the meaning of that?—He was postponed; he was on the list at the prior assembly, but was postponed; that is the reason of it.

15173. It runs thus: "Beseech your honours, John Lane Macray of Kingstown, cook, to be admitted into the liberties and franchise of the city of Dublin by marriage, he having married a daughter of ."

"Certificate last assembly."

—Yes; that was the certificate; he came forward at a former assembly on a certificate, and for some reason or other was postponed; perhaps a member not being in the house below to vouch for him was the reason of it.

15174. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] What do you hold to be the law as to the son of an honorary freeman, since the Reform Bill, claiming in right of birth; do the corporation consider he is entitled?—They do; an honorary freeman since the Reform Bill.

15175. A freeman admitted by grace especial since the Reform Bill, do the corporation hold his son is entitled by birth to his freedom?—They do not.

15176. They hold he is not?—That question cannot arise for twenty-one years.

15177. Chairman.] Now, it has been stated by a previous witness to the Committee, that various persons have been admitted to the right of freedom before they have attained their legal age of twenty-one; how do you explain that circumstance?—It is quite possible; and I should think not only possible but probable, that some may have been so admitted, because I know myself and have seen, I am sure four or five times, the lord mayor refuse, on the ground of non-age, to administer the oaths.

15178. Then am I to understand that care is taken not to swear in any persons to their right to freedom till they are of age?—All the care that can be taken is taken.

15179. And that therefore, though individual instances may be pointed out where persons of non-age may have been admitted, yet on the other hand those cannot be cases to any very great extent?—I should say not.

15180. It is a circumstance to which attention is paid before they are sworn in, is it?—Yes.

15181. And pains are taken that no one of non-age should be sworn in?—Certainly.

15182. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] You admit marksmen to their freedom, I see?—There are some; very few.

15183. Mr. Hamilton.] The admission is recorded from the date of the oath?—Yes.

15184. If a freeman establishes his claim, and does not come to be sworn, he does not appear on your books?—No.

15185. Chairman.]

G. Archer, Esq.

30 May 1837.

15185. Chairman.] And not appearing on the books, he would not appear on the register, would he?—Certainly not.

15187. Then in your books, at what period does Mr. Cane appear to have been admitted?—Sworn 27th April 1835, and admitted at the Christmas assembly of 1805.

15188. Then the record of his admission is in 1835?—Yes.

15189. Has he been registered, do you happen to know, since?—No, I should think not.

15190. Has it ever happened that father and son have been admitted on the same day?—It is quite possible.

Mr. O'Connell, to Mr. Hamilton.] Perhaps if you call his attention to some name he will be able to recollect.

15191. Mr. Hamilton.] If I call your attention to the name of Thomas Lapham, perhaps you will recollect whether he and his father, Henry Lapham, were admitted or not on the same day, the 31st October 1836?—Son and grandson; I should suppose that is quite possible.

15192. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you the beseeches here for Michaelmas 1836?—Yes. [The Witness referred to them.] It is just as I said; Henry Lapham claimed by birth, being the son of Henry Lapham who came in at Michaelmas 1789 by service. Thomas claimed in right of being a grandson of the same Henry.

15193. Chairman.] Is the right of grandsons then recognised?—It is.

15194. Mr. O'Connell.] That is a claim as grandson?—Yes.

15195. Then birth gives a claim to the descendants for ever; if there was son, grandson, and great grandson, they might all be admitted upon the same day?—Yes, I think they might.

15196. Chairman.] But in point of fact, is the claim of a lower descendant than a grandson admitted?—I never knew it rejected.

15197. Mr. O'Connell.] It is unusual that there should be a fourth person being of age; but is there any reason why a great grandson should not be admitted as well as the grandson on his father's title?—Except practice.

15198. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] In practice great grandsons are not often heard of, and of age; that is not a thing likely to occur?—No, not very often.

15200. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] You stated, I think, that Mr. Cane was admitted in 1805?—Yes.

15201. And was not sworn till 1835?—1835.

15202. So that thirty years intervened?—Yes.

15203. And have you not stated also, that the swearing in is deemed conclusive of the admission of a freeman?—Yes.

15204. And that without swearing in he was not deemed admitted?—Yes.

15205. Accordingly, to apply that rule to Mr. Cane, Mr. Cane cannot be deemed to be admitted until he took the oath in 1835?—No.

15206. He was admitted by especial favour, I think I understood you to say? Yes, in 1805.

15207. Is he on the register?—I should think not.

15208. Would you consider, according to your conception of the law, that he was entitled to register?—Not according to the way that decisions have been made.

15209. That is to say, that having been sworn in a freeman subsequent to the Reform Bill, although he was admitted prior, you do not consider he is entitled to register?—That is a question of law, and the decisions have been such.

15210. The decisions have been, that he is not entitled to register?—Yes; I mentioned before, that prior to it, he certainly would have been entitled.

15211. Mr. Hamilton.] He was looked upon as an honorary freeman?—Yes.

15212. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] Created since the Reform Bill; is it not so?—Yes.

15213. Mr. O'Connell.] What is the body called that takes an active part in obtaining information; there is such a body, is there not?—I believe there is, but really I do not know.

15214. Of course you d not belong to them?—No.

15215. Chairman.]

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

G. Archer, Esq.

30 May 1837.

15215. Chairman.] But can you state any other instance in which the father and the son have been admitted to their freedom on the same day, the son deriving in right of the father, and not going back to the grandfather?—No, I cannot.

15216. Mr. O'Connell.] You cannot state any other but the Laphams?—No.

15217. Chairman.] Are you aware that that often takes place, or do you believe such things have taken place?—I am not at all aware; if that had not been called to my attention I would not suppose such a circumstance had taken place at all.

15218. But that is a case which does not strike you as extraordinary, because they registered under separate rights; although one registered as the son, and the other as the grandson, one did not register under the right of the other?—No; the one was the son, and the other the grandson.

15219. But I want to know if you can call to mind, or if you believe there are cases in which two parties have been admitted on the same day, one of those parties deriving from the right conferred upon the other, in the course of that day?—I declare I could not call to recollection any such case occurring; I think it very doubtful whether there is any other such case.

15220. Supposing the father to be admitted in the morning, might the son claim as deriving from the father, in the course of the same day?—Of course, if the father claimed by birth, the son might claim on the same day.

15221. Mr. O'Connell.] But if the father were to claim by servitude, and was admitted in the morning, could his son be admitted the same day or the next?—Certainly not.

15222. Not for twenty-one years?—No.

15223. Chairman.] There must be twenty-one years' interval between the admission and the right by birth arising?—Yes.

15224. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] At the least?—At the least.

15225. Because he must be the son of a freeman at the time of his birth; is it not so?—It is.

15226. Mr. O'Connell.] Now, there was no inquiry as to when Henry Lapham the elder, the man of 1789, had died?—No.

15227. Can you find out any other grandson admitted in that way?—No; I do not think it is possible.

15228. Chairman.] Are there cases of grandsons admitted whose fathers died, and whose grandfathers were alive?—I do not know whether they were alive or no; I do not think inquiry was made as to the death of the grandfather.

15229. Mr. O'Connell.] Then, for anything that appeared as to the Laphams, the grandfather might have been dead long before the birth of the grandson?—He might.

15230. Chairman.] In point of fact, you do not know whether he was alive or dead?—No.

15231. Mr. O'Connell.] You made no inquiry?—No.

15232. Mr. Hamilton. The stamp is imposed upon the certificate of admission, I believe?—It is imposed in the minor corporations; it is there the stamp is imposed.

15233. Mr. O'Connell.] There is no stamp duty paid to you?—No.

15234. You never receive any stamp duty?—Never.

15235. Do you receive any fees?—I do.

15236. On each admission?—Yes.

15237. How much do you receive upon each admission?—Eighteen shillings.

15238. Is that the same for grace especial, birth, marriage and servitude?—The same.

15239. Is there any other fee paid upon each of these?—No, except a shilling for the certificate.

15240. Have those fees been paid in all the instances in this Return?—They have.

15241. Have they been paid by the individuals themselves, or for them, do you know?—I do not know how that is.

15242. Does Mr. Collison pay any?—He has paid some; I have seen him pay for some; persons said they had not money, and he paid the money for them. When I say Mr. Collison paid, I speak of the shilling for the certificate; I am not aware as to the 18 s., that he ever paid any of those fees.

15243. Mr. Hamilton.] Do you happen to know whether the stamp is different on

G. Archer, Esq.

30 May 1837.

on the admission by especial grace, and on the admission under the claims of servitude, birth, or marriage?—It is 3 l. on especial grace, and 1 l. on the others.

15244. Was that the same before the Reform Bill?—Yes.

15245. Was it soon after the Reform Bill, that the distinction was taken with respect to the admission by marriage?—Yes, immediately after.

15246. Chairman.] What do you ground that right of marriage upon?—We conceived that marriage, having furnished a ground of grace especial prior to the Reform Bill, and that grace especial having been done away by the Reform Bill, and the franchise of marriage set up, we on those grounds entertained the claim as of right, upon the foundation of the party being married to the daughter of a freeman.

15247. Mr. O'Connell.] With the same unlimited power to each of the branches of the corporation of rejecting whoever they please?—Yes; just the same.

15248. Mr. Hamilton.] You conceive then, that in point of fact the right, or claim, whichever it may be called, in respect of marriage, existed before the Reform Bill, but that the mode of admission was under the title of grace especial?—Yes.

15249. Chairman.] Do you mean to state, that that right existed before the Reform Bill, the same as other rights did; for instance, the rights by birth or servitude?—I think so.

15250. They are founded upon the same authority?—The same authority in another character; in another denomination.

15251. Mr. O'Connell.] And with an equal right of rejection by each body of the corporation?—Yes.

15252. Chairman.] Was that a right founded upon charter or upon prescription?—I should say prescription.

15253. Mr. O'Connell.] By right, you mean claim?—I mean a claim of right.

15254. Chairman.] And that you say was founded on prescription?—I say so.

15255. How far can you carry back the prescription of that claim of right?—I find it difficult to say.

15256. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] There is no record?—No.

15257. Mr. O'Connell.] The fact was precisely the same as to a man who claimed by grace especial, by birth, or by servitude, before the Reform Bill?—It was.

15258. The corporation admitted him if they chose?—Yes.

15259. They rejected him if they chose?—Yes.

15260. They were not bound to assign any reason for the rejection, if they chose to reject him?—No.

15261. And they could thus reject him whether what he stated was true or false?—They certainly could.

15262. And whether he was a man of good or bad character, or whatever he was?—They had the right of rejection certainly, and exercised it.

15263. Mr. Hamilton.] Has the point been ever brought to the test of a judicial decision, except in the case of Adcocks?—I believe not.

15264. There was a mandamus in that case?—So I understood.

15265. But you cannot state whether there has been a mandamus applied for in any other case?—No.

15266. Chairman.] What were the peculiarities that caused a mandamus to be sought for in that case?—The peculiarities, as I understood, were these: a party sought, I believe by service, to be admitted, and he was rejected, and he brought his mandamus, and that was answered by the corporation returning that they had from time immemorial exercised the right of admitting or rejecting.

15267. Was that return considered valid?—It was, I believe, in that case; I do not know how that case went off.

15268. Now there was a charter in the time of James the 2d, was not there?—Yes.

15269. Which you do not consider valid?—No; it has never been acted upon.

15270. Now as to the claim of rights, or rights of claim; can you trace them prior to that charter?—I think I could not. The book I have only goes back to 1696.

15271. Mr. O'Connell.] Is there one prior?—No; I do not know of any other prior.

15272. Chairman.] I see it is stated by the Municipal Corporation Commissioners, that the present constitution is founded partly on the provisions of several

ral charters, partly on usage and ancient customs, partly on the new rules made in the 25th of Charles the 2d, and principally on the enactments of the statutes of the 33d of George the 2d and the 12th of George the 3d; is that your view of it too?—Yes, it is.

15273. Mr. O'Connell.] You were examined before the Corporation Commissioners?—I was.

15274. Upon oath?—Yes.

15275. Chairman.] Now, with reference to that statement, do you mean to say you conceive that these claims of right are recognised, or if not recognised, are they in any way derogated from by those several charters and those several customs?—I should say not.

15276. They are supported, as far as you can make out, by immemorial usage?—Certainly.

15277. Were you examined before the Corporation Commissioners on this point at all?—Not on that point.

15278. But on the claims of right generally were you examined?—No, I was not.

15279. Are there any rights or immunities belonging to the freemen of the city of Dublin exclusively of parliamentary voting?—Yes; they qualify to become sheriff of Dublin and alderman, and all the corporate offices.

15280. Have they any advantage in point of tolls?—When we had tolls. They have been lost to the corporation for some years past, but at that time every freeman had an advantage by exemption from payment of tolls.

15281. Have the freemen of Dublin any right in other parts of the country besides Dublin?—No.

15282. Have they any peculiar privileges or immunities over their fellow citizens except in the elective franchise?—Not that I am aware of.

15283. Now have they in the guilds any peculiar advantages as to trade or anything of that sort?—No, I think not.

15284. Mr. O'Connell.] Most of the guilds are composed of persons not of the trade of the guild to which they belong?—A great many are so.

15285. In the merchants' there are a great many, are there not?—A great many.

15286. You were a merchant though you were a sworn solicitor at the time?—Yes.

15287. There are clergymen among the merchants, are there not?—Yes.

15288. And half-pay officers?—Yes.

15289. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] And full-pay officers?—Yes.

15290. In fact there is almost every trade there except that of merchant?—I will not say that.

15291. Mr. O'Connell.] But a great body of the merchants of Dublin are not free of the corporation?—The great body of the inhabitants of Dublin are not free of the corporation.

15292. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] But the great body of the merchants of Dublin do not belong to the guild of merchants?—No, they do not.

15293. Chairman.] Do I understand you right then, that a freeman has no peculiar advantages or privileges excepting the elective franchise?—No, none other.

15294. Mr. O'Connell.] Except as being officers in their own guilds?—Except as being officers in their own guilds.

15295. Chairman.] They have no advantages that in any way interfere with the general privileges of their fellow-citizens?—No.

15296. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] But they had freedom from tolls?—Yes.

15297. Mr. O'Connell.] When did you lose the tolls; about what year?—I think it was ten or a dozen years ago.

15298. Do you remember how much they amounted to?—I believe something between 4,000 l. and 5,000 l. a year.

15299. Chairman.] How is the lord mayor elected?—He is elected under the provision of the Act that is stated there, Lucas's Act; the Act of George the 2d.

15300. He is elected from the aldermen and by the aldermen?—He is returned first by the lord mayor and board of aldermen to the sheriff and commons, and then a ballot takes place, and he is either admitted or rejected.

15300*. Chairman.] Are there frequent elections by the freemen of corporate offices of any sort?—Yes; annually, in their respective guilds.

LORD GRANVILLE SOMERSET, IN THE CHAIR.

George Archer, Esq., called in; and further Examined.

G. Archer, Esq.
1 June 1837.

15301. Mr. O'Connell.] HAVE you been able to make out those returns that were required?—I have; these are the returns that were required.

[Handing in two Returns.]

15302. Is this a return of the number of freemen admitted into the corporation of Dublin from 1825 to 1830, showing the classes and the number admitted in each year; is this return accurate?—It is.

15303. Is this return of the numbers admitted from 1821 to 1825 inclusive, an accurate return?—It is.

15304. Have you no return of persons admitted in those years who did not take the oaths?—No, I have not.

15305. You could not make that out?—I think I could.

15306. Chairman.] You have divided the first return to which you have alluded under four classes; birth 244, service 103, grace especial 251, city at large 89?—Yes.

15307. Now what particular class of freemen do you represent by the term city at large?—A class of freemen by mere favor; freemen admitted at meetings of the corporation, conferred without claim, or the party seeking for his admission.

15308. Mr. O'Connell.] And those persons do not belong to any minor guilds?—No.

15309. Chairman.] Do the freemen admitted under the other three classes all of them belong to minor guilds, or did they?—Yes.

15310. And they were all persons who presented beseeches?—Yes.

15311. But this last class did not present beseeches, and did not belong to the minor guilds?—No.

15312. But previous to the Reform Bill, that last class had a right to vote, had they, for election of members of Parliament?—Yes.

15313. Since the Reform Bill, that last class would not have a right to vote, would they?—No.

15314. Then in point of fact the class of city at large represent what is usually termed honorary freemen?—Yes.

15315. But the class grace especial does not?—I should say not.

15316. And of that class (grace especial) do you conceive the greater proportion were persons claiming under the right of marriage?—Yes.

15317. You cannot state to what extent that claim under the right of marriage extended, can you?—No, I cannot.

15318. Mr. O'Connell.] Could you not make that out by examining the beseeches?—I have not the beseeches here of that period, of 1820.

15319. And besides, in the beseeches for grace especial nothing is said but "by grace"?—The junior corporations state the ground.

15320. How do they state the ground; is it in writing or verbally?—In writing.

15321. Have you any of the documents from the minor corporations, stating the ground of admission?—No, I have not; but I can state what the general grounds were.

15322. Are

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

15322. Are there any writings preserved by the corporation of Dublin coming from the minor guilds, and stating these things?—I think there are; I think some can be found.

15323. Have you any of them here?—No, I have not.

15324. Mr. Hamilton.] Those under the three former classes are actually freemen of minor corporations, independently of their being admitted into the corporation at large?—Those by birth, service, and grace especial, were freemen previously admitted into some one of the minor guilds.

15325. And they possessed certain corporate privileges as freemen of the minor guilds?—Yes.

15326. From what privileges were they excluded prior to their being admitted members of the corporation at large?—The privilege of voting for members of Parliament.

15327. Any other privilege?—Yes, the right of custom; I do not know of any other except that.

15328. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Do you mean freedom from toll and custom?—Freedom from toll.

15329. Mr. O'Connell.] Were they exempt from giving bail in the Recorder's Court?—There would be an exemption in the case of the Recorder's Court too.

15330. And that exemption existed for the men who were only members of the minor guild without being members of the corporation at large?—No, I should think not.

15331. Then they have these two additional privileges, or three while customs were paid, by being members of the corporation at large, that they were exempt from custom; was not that so?—Yes.

15332. That they were exempt from giving bail in the Recorder's Court?—Yes.

15333. And that they had a right of voting for members of Parliament?—Yes.

15334. You have no court of D'Oyer hundred?—No.

15335. Or general meetings of the freemen of Dublin for any corporate purpose?—No.

15336. Mr. Hamilton.] Then, with those exceptions, they possessed all the corporate privileges as members of the minor guilds?—Yes.

15337. Mr. O'Connell.] What are those all?—The right of voting for the officers of minor guilds and participating in any patronage or authority vested in the particular body.

15338. Then they had no share of the general patronage of the corporation without being free of the corporation at large?—None.

15339. They could not be mayors, aldermen, sheriffs, sheriffs' peers; could they?—They could not.

15340. Chairman.] Explain what sheriffs' peers are?—

Mr. O'Connell.] By sheriffs' peers, you mean a person who has either passed the office of sheriff, or fined for it?—

Witness.] Yes.

15341. And these are members of the common council as of right?—They are.

15342. Without election?—Without election, after having served or fined; and they remain members of the common council for life.

15343. Under the title of sheriffs' peers?—Under the title of sheriffs' peers.

15344. And have as much right to speak, vote, and act there as any representative of the guild?—Yes, the same.

15345. Mr. Hamilton.] The honorary freedom, or freedom of the city at large, was only conferred where cause was given for it in the corporation at large?—Some statement was made as a ground of resolution, with a view to confer a compliment in that way.

15346. Mr. O'Connell.] That was given to persons whom they thought deserved it by public service?—Yes.

15347. Such as beating the French?—Yes.

15348. Opposing Roman Catholics, or anything of that kind?—Yes.

15349. Mr. Hamilton.] In the other cases, was it usual for the claim to be rejected, unless cause shown?—I think not.

15350. So that the claim in the first three classes was recognized, and the negative power only exercised on cause being shown?—On cause being shown.

15351. Do you consider then the power of rejecting as being, in point of fact,

G. Archer, Esq.

1 June 1837.

fact, a veto?—Of course, that is what I understand as a veto; the power of rejection and the power of admission.

15352. Mr. O'Connell.] You have already said they had the unlimited power of rejection, each body; have you not?—I have.

15353. That is, I suppose, what the honourable Member means by "veto;" they could put a veto on any man they please?—They could enforce a veto on any man they please. What I understand is, that freemen coming from the minor corporations who have a claim of right, and upon which a veto is xercised, contradistinguished from freemen of the city at large.

15354. That is, a claim of right to ask it; is not that so?—Yes.

15355. And to have the question put to the aldermen upon it?—Yes, precisely.

15356. And then the aldermen have a right to say "No," as well as to say "Yes," if they think fit?—They have.

15357. To say whichever of the two they please; is that so?—Yes.

15358. And the common council have precisely the same right?—They have.

15359. So that the amount of the right is, in fact, a mere right to demand?—Yes, a right to demand.

15360. Without any remedy, in case there be a refusal?—I do not know that.

15361. You do not know any remedy?—Except by mandamus.

15362. Do you think that would succeed?—I really do not know how that is. I heard of a case.

15363. That a mandamus was applied for?—Yes; and did not succeed.

15364. Mr. Hamilton.] On reference to the first general Report of the Commissioners of Municipal Corporations in Ireland, can you tell me whether any mode or form of election, or admission into corporate bodies, is stated there to be prescribed in the early charters?

15365. Chairman.] What page is it?—Page eleven. The early charters (it is stated here) do not define the numbers of the corporate body, or prescribe any mode or form of election or admission to it.

15366. Mr. O'Connell.] Is the paragraph numbered?—It is; the first paragraph.

15367. Mr. Hamilton.] Can you tell me whether it is stated there, that there is any right to claim admission, or that the right to claim admission became subject to conditions, limitations, and restrictions?—It is stated, that at a very early period, the right to claim admission as a member of the corporate body became subject to conditions and restrictions.

15368. Those are the observations of the commissioners in relation to corporations in Ireland generally?—Yes.

15369. Is the right spoken of in the last paragraph which you have read, the right of admission or the right to claim admission?—The right to claim admission.

15370. Does it appear in a subsequent paragraph that the King's Bench, in the case of Sligo, refused a mandamus, thereby deciding in that case that the right of claim was not a right of admission?—I think so.

15371. Chairman.] In what year?—I will read the paragraph: "The ruling bodies of these corporations have almost uniformly acted on this clause, as not giving to the inhabitants at large a right to admission, but as vesting in the chief officers and free burgesses a discretionary authority to bestow or withhold the franchise, and to determine who shall be admitted, whether they be inhabitants or others." The soundness of this construction was questioned before the Court of King's Bench in Ireland, in the case of the borough of Sligo, in the year 1824. That court considered, that it appeared upon the affidavits used, that the corporators had been uniformly elected by the provost and free burgesses, and as there was no precedent adduced of admission of any person to the freedom of the borough as of right by virtue of residence or inhabitancy, they decided that the charter admitted of a construction consistent with the usage, and refused to grant a mandamus to admit a resident merchant to the freedom of the borough on the mere ground of inhabitancy.

15372. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] That was the case of the borough of Sligo?—It was the borough of Sligo.

15373. The claim brought forward there, was a claim on the part of the prosecutor in that mandamus to be admitted to the freedom of Sligo, on the ground that he was a merchant living in the town of Sligo?—It was; it so appears.

15374. And he contended, that according to the charter which was produced, all all such merchants inhabiting within the borough were entitled to be freemen? —Yes.

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

15375. For the charter ran thus; it granted to the inhabitants?—Yes.

15376. Mr. Hamilton.] Do the corporation commissioners state generally that there is no general uniform and absolute right of admission?

Mr. O'Connell.] You had better ask him what they state.

15377. Mr. Hamilton.] What do the commissioners state with regard to a general uniform and absolute right of admission?—It is stated that there is, in fact, no general uniform and absolute right to admission into the municipal corporation.

15378. Mr. O'Connell.] Where is that passage?—It is in page 13.

15379. Mr. Hamilton.] That is in reference to corporations in Ireland generally?—So it appears.

15380. You are aware, I presume, that the Reform Act preserves to corporations in Ireland the rights acquired by birth, marriage and servitude?—I am.

15381. Do the commissioners divide the freemen into two classes, those entitled by birth, servitude and marriage, and those admitted not upon any claim of right but by mere favour?—Yes; the Report states that "the freemen in corporations the most popular——"

15382. Mr. O'Connell.] What page is that?—Page 21. "The freemen in corporations the most popular consist of two classes, those entitled by birth, servitude or marriage, and those admitted not upon any claim of right but by mere favour."

15383. Birth, marriage and servitude, therefore, are there contradistinguished from admission by mere favour?—Yes.

15385. Do you perceive that that is part of a paragraph having in the margin birth, marriage and apprenticeship?—I do.

15386. Now, that paragraph begins thus, does it not: "Being the son of a freeman or married to a daughter of a freeman, or having served an apprenticeship to a freeman, are the common titles"?—Yes.

15387. It goes on, "No qualification of property, or the being a householder, is anywhere requisite to, or regarded in, the claim or title to freedom. In fact, many freemen in Dublin and elsewhere are roomkeepers. In Carrickfergus, Dublin, Kilkenny, Limerick, Londonderry, Waterford and Wicklow, the rights of birth, marriage and apprenticeship appear to be now recognized; but in Limerick that by birth is confined to the eldest son. In Cork and Drogheda, those of birth and servitude only are acknowledged, though that of marriage appears formerly to have been admitted in the former and is supposed to exist in the latter. In Cork, the right by birth is now confined to the first born son; in Wexford, the only title is by apprenticeship; in Bandonbridge, being the eldest son of a freeman; in Naas, the privilege is confined to sons of freemen while resident; in Trim, sons and sons-in-law of freemen are admitted as of right; in Londonderry, the right by birth is confined to the sons of aldermen or burgesses, and that by marriage to the husbands of daughters of aldermen or burgesses; in Dublin, it is necessary that the admission as of right should be previously granted in one of the incorporated guilds, to entitle the applicant to seek admission to the corporation at large from the common council, each branch of which body exercises an arbitrary discretion in granting or withholding the franchise, even when so substantiated." That is the preceding paragraph to the one you read?—Yes.

15388. Mr. Hamilton.] Now look to the First Report on Dublin: do you find in the First Report of the Commissioners on the City of Dublin; do you find it stated that the first charter is a grant by Henry the 2d, of all liberties and free customs which the men of Bristol had, at Bristol and throughout all his territory?—Yes.

15389. Do they subsequently recite the charter as securing to the burgesses of Dublin all their liberties and franchises?—

Mr. O'Connell.] Read the part referred to in your last answer.

Witness.] "The first charter is a grant by Henry the 2d, made at Dublin, but without date (1172 or 1173), to the men of Bristol, of his city of Dublin, to inhabit and hold of him and his heirs with all liberties and free customs, which the the men of Bristol had at Bristol and through all his territory. This grant was confirmed by John, when Lord of Ireland, in the lifetime of his father."

15390. That you perceive is a grant to the people of Bristol, of Dublin?—Yes.

15391. Mr. Hamilton.] Now read the second part that I have marked?—"In a claim of cognizance of pleas made in the reign of Richard the Second, and hereinafter noticed, this charter of Henry the Second and the liberties of Bristol are relied on; another charter of Henry the Second is relied on in this claim of cognizance, but its date does not appear; it is the same charter which is published in Leland's History of Ireland, volume i., page 81, from the Sterne manuscripts, and by which King Henry granted to his burgesses of Dublin, that they should be quit of toll and passage, and pontage, and all customs through his whole land of England and Normandy, Wales and Ireland, wheresoever they and their goods should come, and should have all their liberties, and acquitances, and free customs, fully and honourably, as his free and faithful men, and that no one should disturb them in those things contrary to that charter, on pain of 10 l."

15392. Now, will you turn to the Report of the English Commissioners of Municipal Corporations, and state from it whether there is a recital of the same charter; read that charter in reference to Bristol?—Under head "Bristol," in the Report of the English Commissioners of Municipal Corporations, page 1152, I find it stated: "The earliest charter for which any authority can be stated is by Henry the Second, about the year 1164. It is merely a grant to the burgesses of Bristol, of freedom from toll, passage, and custom for them and their goods throughout England, Normandy, and Wales. The next in the collection is a very remarkable one, being a grant in 1172-3, by Henry the Second, of the city of Dublin, to his men of Bristol to dwell in, with all the liberties and free customs which the men of Bristol have at Bristol. It was apparently granted to a colony, which about that time was removed from Bristol to Dublin."

15393. Now will you take the Appendix No. 2, to the Report of the English Municipal Corporation Commissioners, and under the head "Bristol," will you tell me what they recite as being the rights of freedom there?—Under the head of "Freedom, how acquired," I find as to Bristol, birth, marriage, apprenticeship, purchase, and gift.

15394. Marriage then is stated in that Report to be one of the rights acquired for freedom in Bristol?—Yes.

15395. Would you read the paragraph in page 1154 of the second part of the same Report, in reference to the admission by marriage?—Yes; I find under the head of "Bye Laws," that among them is mentioned the custom which still prevails at Bristol, that the husband of a daughter or widow of a freeman is entitled to his freedom.

15396. Mr. O'Connell.] That passage begins, does it not, with these words: "Only a few of these ordinances now have any interest?"—Yes.

15397. Then the words go on which you have read?—They do.

15398. And the paragraph begins with "Before passing to the next and most important charter of Edward the Third, it will be well to notice the compilation of a set of bye-laws which were drawn up by William Colford, recorder of the town, in the 18th year of Edward the Third" (little red book, folio 13). They begin by mentioning, that Stephen Spicer, who was mayor in 1343 and 1344, by common consent, had associated with himself for helping and expediting the business of the town forty-eight of the more principal and discreet men of the town, as assistants and assessors, in form following:—"That they should meet at the Guildhall when summoned by the mayor, and there proceed to business, and that if any of them were absent, the business should be ordered by twenty-four of them, or if there were not so many present, by twelve, and states that many good ordinances of the town having become obsolete, and some nearly forgotten, those three following were agreed on in the presence of most of the abovenamed forty-eight persons." That is the preceding part of the paragraph; is it not?—Yes.

15399. Mr. Hamilton.] Now I wish to call your attention to the Report of the Irish Corporation Commissioners in reference to Dublin, and tell me whether it appears from that Report that the citizens of Dublin have occasionally had recourse to the customs of Bristol, by way of establishing their customs as a branch of the Bristol corporation?—In page 3 it says, "We are not aware of any privileges vileges now exercised or claimed expressly under the authority of this charter, (that refers to the charter of Henry the Second,) but the citizens of Dublin appear occasionally to have inquired respecting particular customs used in Bristol, and to have received certificates of them from the authorities of that city."

15400. In the subsequent page, do you find that the original charter was confirmed by the great charter of Henry the Third?—Yes. "It is one of the articles of the great charter of Ireland, granted by Henry the Third in the first year of his reign, that the city of Dublin shall have all its ancient liberties and free customs."

15401. Do you conceive admission into the corporation at large, in a case in which there has been a previous admission into a minor corporation, is the conferring or the completion of a right; is it the perfecting or the conferring of a right?—It is conferring a right; it is confirmatory of the right, the admission in the corporation.

15402. Is confirmatory of a right?—Yes.

15403. Mr. O'Connell.] How is that; the right in a minor guild refers only to that guild; a man admitted in a minor guild has a right only in that guild?—But unless he comes admitted in a minor guild, we do not entertain him.

15404. Unless by grace especial?—No, unless the city at large.

15405. But a man who is free of the minor guild gets nothing in addition in that guild by becoming free of the city at large; but he gets free of a different corporation?—He gets in that corporation by becoming free of the city at large. He exercises the right in the junior corporation to vote for members for representatives in that corporation to the great corporation; and until he passes the great corporation, he cannot vote either for members of Parliament or for representatives in his own guild, to be returned to the corporation at large.

15406. The man that is free of a minor guild has no right to vote for a member of the common council?—He has not, unless he has passed the city of Dublin.

15407. And then, by passing the city of Dublin, two new rights are conferred upon him?—Yes.

15408. One of those new rights is voting for representatives in his guild, or any guild?—No, not any guild; the particular guild; it must be the particular guild.

15409. The man must be free of a guild before he can be presented?—Yes; upon his passing the corporation of Dublin the effect of it is to give him a right in his particular guild; namely, to vote for representatives in the corporation at large.

15410. Or to be a representative himself if he be elected in the corporation at large?—Yes.

15411. And it also gives him a right to vote for representatives in Parliament?—It does.

15413. Mr. O'Connell.] Whether you use the word confirm or confer a right, that is your meaning?—It confirms the right that he has; it especially confirms the right that he seeks as a freeman of the junior guild.

15414. Until he passes the corporation at large, he has no right to vote for a representative of that guild?—No.

15415. Then the allowing him to vote for a representative is not confirming any thing he had before, but giving him something in addition; is not that so?—It is completing his right in his own corporation.

15416. Is it not giving him something he had not before, and something that he never would have unless he passed the city at large, although he had been fifty years; he may be master or warden of his own guild, without passing the city at large, may he not?—I declare I am not able to answer that; I cannot tell.

15417. Now you know in point of law there is an Act of Parliament directing that no man shall represent a guild but a man of the trade belonging to the guild for which the guild is supposed to be constituted?—There is some provision, I believe, in Lucas's Act.

15418. But, however, it is a provision that is totally neglected, or very much neglected, is it not?—It is neglected, but it is open to petition.

15419. Do

C. Archer, Esq.

1 June 1837.

15419. Do you ever remember a petition?—I do.

15420. Do you remember that the fact was admitted, and yet that the petition was rejected?—I cannot bring it to my recollection; I am sure it has been established both ways.

15421. Do you ever remember my being counsel on a petition before the common council, I believe?—I do.

15422. But there are attornies representing the guild of merchants?—Yes, I believe there were; but not now.

15423. And there were attornies representing several other guilds?—In one or two instances, I think, there are attornies representing them.

15424. Who was your partner in the year 1830?—Mr. William White.

15425. Who was your partner in 1831?—I think he was.

15426. Who was the other town clerk in 1830?—Molesworth Green.

15427. The persons described as Green and Archer, town clerks, in 1830, were Mr. Green and yourself?—Yes.

15428. And it has continued so ever since?—Until the death of Mr. Green, and the election of Mr. Long.

15429. What year was that in?—I think it was about two years ago.

15430. And were Green and Archer town clerks until the death of Mr. Green?—Yes.

15431. And it is now Archer and Long, I suppose?—Yes.

15432. Mr. French.] Do you know of any alphabetical list of the freemen of Dublin admitted since 1756, or a book containing the names and the dates of admission, and specifying the respective rights of birth, marriage, &c.; do you know of such a book having been printed?—I do not; I know of a book commencing, I think, in 1774.

15433. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you any ancient printed list of the freemen?—I do not know of a very ancient one; we have a list that is many years made, certainly.

15434. Printed?—Yes.

15435. Where is that list?—It is in Dublin.

15436. In the custody of the town clerks?—Yes.

15437. Can you state from recollection what the date of it is?—I think it commences in 1774; one book commences in 1774; there is another book which takes up from a period I cannot exactly say when.

15438. Is it prior or subsequent?—Subsequent.

15439. Are these books printed?—They are.

15440. Chairman.] Are they books of authority?—

15441. Mr. O'Connell.] Are they books used by the corporation?—They are so far authority that they were printed for the purpose of elections prior to the Reform Act; that was the object with which they were printed, for use at elections prior to the Reform Bill.

15442. By elections, you mean elections for members of Parliament?—Yes.

15443. And they were used for that purpose?—They were.

15444. And they have been kept as corporation documents since?—Yes.

15445. Is there any such book, printed or manuscript, prior to 1774?—Yes, I have a book here prior to that period.

15446. Manuscript?—Yes.

15447. No printed book is there?—No printed book.

15448. Have you ever seen a printed document of that kind prior to 1774?—Never.

15449. And of course if such a one was in existence it would be in your possession?—I think I should have seen it; it would have been in my possession.

15450. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Was that of 1774, printed under the authority of the town clerk?—It was.

15451. And was it circulated generally?—Except for those occasions it was not.

15452. Was it circulated generally for the purpose of elections?—Copies of those books were placed in the hands of the deputy sheriffs, the manuscript remaining with the assessor to check in case of objection.

15453. Then it was to facilitate the deputies in seeing whether the persons who tendered themselves to vote, were truly upon the list of freemen or not?—Yes, to facilitate reference.

15454. Inasmuch as the manuscript book could only be in one place?—Yes.

15455. Mr.

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

G. Archer, Esq.

1 June 1837.

15455. Mr. O'Connell.] And it enabled him to reject any body that was not upon that list?—Yes.

15456. And whoever appeared upon that list, he primâ facie was entitled to be admitted?—Yes.

15457. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] There is, I suppose, extant, several copies of that?—I cannot say several, there are some.

15458. There are some in your office probably?—Yes.

15459. Mr. O'Connell.] You can produce one by sending for it?—Yes.

15460. Mr. O'Connell.] Then be so good as send for it.

15461. Show me the manuscript book prior to that of 1774?

[The Witness did so.]

15462. Then the printed list was printed from a book of the description, such as you have already produced?—It was.

15463. And such as you use at present?—Yes.

15464. Now be so good as to look at the admission of freemen in Christmas 1836, I mean that which was held in January 1836?—What name?

15465. Henry Hall; do you find Mr. Henry Hall?—I do.

15466. When was he admitted?—In Michaelmas Assembly, 1835.

15467. What was his claim?—Service.

15468. Have you his beseech here?—Yes.

[The Witness produced it.]

15469. In several of the beseeches which you have produced by service, there was "To be granted, provided it appears by indenture"?—Yes.

15470. Why was that omitted in the case of Mr. Hall?—Some omission of the clerk; but there was no omission intended in point of practice, certainly.

15471. Read, if you please, from another beseech for service, the words that are attached to the grant by the board of aldermen?—"Granted on taking the oaths, if it shall appear by indenture."

15472. The beseech of Mr. Henry Hall appears to be in the following words: "To the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, Sheriffs, Commons and Citizens of the City of Dublin, beseech your Honors, Henry Hall, of 22, Lower Ormond Quay, to be admitted into the liberties and franchises of the City of Dublin by service, having served his years of apprenticeship to Edward Carolin, junior, free carpenter, who came in at Michaelmas Assembly, 1813, by service, granted on taking the oaths;" but there should have been in the margin, "On taking the oaths," (the words should have been added) "if it shall appear by indenture"?—Yes.

15473. But it was understood these words were applicable to it?—Certainly.

15474. And it is only a mistake?—That is all.

15475. It is only a mistake of the clerk that those words are not added?—It is.

15476. I believe that is filled in your handwriting, is it not?—It is not.

15477. Whose handwriting is that?—I think that is Mr. Grabham's handwriting.

15478. Do you know Mr. Henry Hall?—No.

15479. Can you state what guild he came from; I suppose from the carpenters'?—Yes, the carpenters'.

15480. Who is the clerk of the guild of carpenters?—I declare I do not know.

Mr. Henry Hall, called in; and Examined.

Mr. Henry Hall.

15481. Chairman.] WHAT are you?—An architect and builder.

15482. Where do you live?—23, Arran-quay, Dublin.

15483. Mr. O'Connell.] How long have you been in business?—Since Christmas 1836.

15484. Have you been in business for yourself since; is that what you mean?—Yes.

15485. You were in the employment of a Mr. Carolin, were you?—Yes.

15486. Which Mr. Carolin?—Mr. Edward Carolin, jun.

15487. Were you ever bound to him by indenture?—I was.

15488. When?—I was bound on the 4th of August 1828.

15489. Where is that indenture?—Here it is [producing it].

15490. Chairman.] You are on the register for the city of Dublin, are you?—Yes, I am.

15491. When were you registered?—My certificate bears date the 2d of February 1836.

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

Mr. Henry Hall.

1 June 1837.

15492. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] When were you out of your time as an apprentice?—I was out of my time seven years from the 4th of August 1828; that is, in 1835, the 4th of August 1835.

15493. Your servitude expired then?—Yes.

15494. Mr. O'Connell.] Was this executed on the day it bears date?—It was lying in Mr. Carolin's hands some time.

15495. When was it actually executed; I expect you to be candid with me; when was this, in point of fact, executed?—It got Carolin's name to it when I was out of my time; when I was seven years with Carolin.

15496. Then it was not signed until after you had been seven years with him?—Not by Carolin himself.

15497. You perceive that Carolin's is the first signature?—Edward Carolin, jun., is the first signature.

15498. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Was it signed by any other person before that time?—Signed by me.

15499. Was it signed by you at the time you were put apprentice to him?—It was signed some time after; I cannot exactly say the time.

15500. Mr. O'Connell.] Then you mean to say this was not signed, either by you or Mr. Carolin, in the year 1828?—No, it is not a usual thing; because the way that is generally regulated is, you are taken on trial for some time previously, and that time is allowed you in your indenture.

15501. Can you tell us in what year this was signed by you, or by Mr. Carolin?—I cannot tell when it was signed by me, because it was lying in Carolin's hands for a good while previously.

15502. What documents are those you have?—They are only my certificates.

15503. Will you have the goodness to show them me [the Witness did so]; what is that other?—It is the copy of a letter I wrote to the Chairman of this Committee, for the summons was issued in a wrong name.

15504. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Do you state it is usual in Dublin, when young men are put apprentice, that they should remain for a certain time in the service of their masters before the indenture is regularly perfected?—It is generally, except where there is a fee given.

15505. Was there any fee given with you?—No, there was not.

15506. And the usual course is, when young men, who do not bring a fee to the masters, are being put apprentice, that they remain in their employment a certain time upon trial, and then that time of trial is allowed in their time of servitude?—Yes.

15507. And their indentures are dated as from the time they first went?—Yes.

15508. Mr. French.] Do you think that that indenture was signed by you before the end of the year 1829?—I cannot say when it was signed.

15509. Mr. O'Connell.] Look at it; was it not signed by you after Carolin had signed it?—No, it was not; because though Carolin's name goes first, I signed my name there to leave room for Carolin to put his name before mine; because the master always signs the indenture before the person bound to him.

15510. Can you tell us what year at all you signed it?—I could not now.

15511. Was Philip Morris or Mary Ann Hall present when you signed it?—Morris was present.

15512. Who is that Mary Ann Hall?—My mother.

15513. Is she alive?—No.

15514. She was not by when you signed it?—I got her to sign it because I left the indenture in Carolin's hands for Carolin to complete it.

15515. Was your mother present when you signed it?—My mother was; no, she was not; not when I signed it.

15516. Was Philip Morris present when you signed it?—He was.

15517. Where is Philip Morris?—I do not know, indeed.

15518. Who was he?—He was a young man, a friend of mine.

15519. Was he in business?—No, he was not.

15520. When did you see him last?—I cannot exactly say.

15521. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] About how long ago is it since you may have seen him last?—I think about 12 months ago.

15522. Where did you see him?—I met him in Dublin accidentally.

15523. He is a witness to your indenture?—He is.

15524. Do not you know what trade he belonged to?—He was no trade.

15525. Had he any occupation?—He lived with his father at that time.

15526. What

Mr. Henry Hall.

1 June 1837.

15526. What was his father?—He was something in the Custom-house; I did not know his father, but I know he was in the Custom-house at that time.

15527. Did he see you sign this?—I do not think he did.

15528. Then your opinion is that neither of the witnesses saw you sign this?—They did not see me sign it.

15529. Neither of them saw you sign it?—Morris saw Carolin sign it.

15530. How long is your mother dead?—She is dead, I think, about two years.

15531. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] And you say your mother saw you execute it, and Morris saw Carolin execute it?—Yes. My mother did not see me. I handed it over to my mother because it was a form that she put her name to it.

15532. Mr. O'Connell.] You have told me that neither of the witnesses saw you execute it?—Saw me write it.

15533. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] How came your mother, then, to sign it?—Because it was necessary she should put her name to the indenture, that it was with her consent I was apprenticed; my mother was not a necessary witness to it at all.

15534. Is that your mother's handwriting, her name?—My mother's handwriting; I left it with her to be signed.

15535. Look at it again, and look at it very attentively, and recollect, I would beg of you to recollect, you are giving evidence, though you are not upon oath; now I ask you, is that a feigned handwriting at all?—I suppose it is.

15536. Did you ever see your mother write?—I did.

15537. Do you believe that to be her handwriting?—I cannot say it is.

15538. Do you believe it to be her handwriting?—I do not think it is her writing; but if you will let me remark, it is not necessary she should put her name to it at all.

15539. Mr. O'Connell.] Then when was her name put to it; by whom; tell us the fact?—Her name was put to it by me.

15540. Then you know perfectly well that that is your handwriting, and not your mother's?—I do; but it was with her desire I put it.

15541. Then that is your handwriting, and not your mother's?—Yes, that name is my handwriting.

15542. Now could you not tell us where Philip Morris is to be found?—I could not, indeed, I cannot tell you where he lives; but I can tell you where he is, and where he can be met with; he is in Carolin's employment, at present, I think; at least, he was about four months ago.

15543. Now when did you put your mother's name here to this; was it after Carolin signed it?—It was.

15544. Now tell us the fact, when you really put your mother's name to it?—It was after Carolin, some time after Carolin signed it.

15545. Carolin signed it about the time you were going to apply for your freedom to the corporation?—He signed it the day after I was out of my time, I think.

15546. When was that?—The 4th of August 1835.

15547. Mr. French.] Was it before or after your mother's death that you put her name to it?—After her death.

15548. Mr. Hogg.] And why did you put her name to it?—In fact, there was no occasion for her name to be put to it; that was in order that it should appear with her consent that the indenture was performed.

15549. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] You said she desired you to put her name to it; when did she desire you?—She desired me to put her name to it; at first she intended, when the indenture was got from Carolin, that she should put her name herself.

15550. Are you sure she desired you to put her name to it?—I am.

15551. Mr. O'Connell.] How long is she dead; three years?—No, only two.

15552. Two years, and how much?—Two years in July next.

15553. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Was this document deposited with Mr. Carolin?—It was deposited some time ago; I cannot exactly say how long.

15554. Mr. O'Connell.] Tell us the honest truth; have you not often said it was made up in order to get you registered?—It was. I served my time regularly to Carolin for seven years.

15555. But there was no indenture?—Well, I conceived that to be an apprenticeship; I was seven years with him.

15556. There

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

Mr. Henry Hall.

1 June 1837.

15556. There was no indenture during those seven years, nor until you were going to be registered?—No, there was not. I had the indenture, and was always wanting Carolin to sign it, but he deferred it.

15557. But there was no indenture until you were going to be made free; to be registered; is not that the fact?—It is.

15558. Then this indenture was made up for the purpose of getting you freed, that you might be registered, is not that the fact?—It was not the fact on my part, nor I do not think on Carolin's part either; I only wanted that to show; because if a person is in business it is pleasant to have his indentures to show if called on for them at any time.

15559. Had you any conversation with Mr. Carolin as to your being registered and becoming a voter?—I had.

15560. Now was it not after that conversation that the indenture was filled?—The day I was out of my time, I told Carolin I was seven years with him that day; "Well," said he, "them indentures of yours that you asked me about, I will fill them for you now;" according to the way that he proposed to take me at first.

15561. In whose hand was this filled up after you had served the seven years?—The body of it in my handwriting.

15562. How soon after you had served the seven years did you fill it up?—The very day.

15563. The day after?—Yes.

15564. Then when you said awhile ago this was executed in August 1828, you said what was not the fact?—I will tell you how it was; I did not recollect at the moment there was an indenture that I had filled up, and that indenture was worn out. I was carrying it about my person for a length of time, and that indenture was worn out, and I copied that indenture from it; it was so defaced that it could not be intelligible.

15565. But Carolin had not executed that?—No, he had not.

15566. Now, when exactly was it that you filled it up, tell us?—That one?

15567. Yes?—I filled up that the very day after I was out of my time.

15568. That is, after you had been seven years with him?—Yes.

15569. Now I call upon you to tell the facts; you may perhaps place yourself unpleasantly, but tell the facts?—

15570. Chairman.] Now tell the whole story?—

15571. Mr. O'Connell.] Tell the whole truth; was not this an arrangement in order to get you free, and to have you registered?—It was not an arrangement on my part, because I was anxious when I was with Carolin for seven years that I should get the indenture from him, that I might claim from Carolin proper man's wages.

15572. Were you not at wages during the entire time?—I was; but I had not the wages while serving my time that I would have had afterwards.

15573. Had you ever served the business at all before you went to Carolin?—Never a day.

15574. What capacity were you in with Carolin; what particular department?—I was working at the bench; I was measuring.

15575. Had you wages from the beginning?—Yes, from the beginning.

15576. Were you paid them?—I was paid them regularly every Saturday night.

15577. There was nothing due to you when you had been seven years with him?—Not a penny.

15578. He had paid you everything?—He had.

15579. Was not this a contrivance of Carolin's; tell the truth; was not this a contrivance of Carolin's? I call upon you to tell the truth; recollect the presence you are in, and tell the truth; was not this a contrivance of Carolin's; I do not say an improper one, but was it not an arrangement of Carolin's to have you pass the corporation and be registered?—I cannot say it was.

15580. Did he not say something of that kind to you, that he would wish you to do so?—Not until I had asked him for the indentures first.

15581. When you did ask him for the indentures he said so?—I will tell you what he said to me, candidly. He said, "In a short time the corporation may be abolished, and it will be useful to you in the way of your business; it will bring you in conjunction with a number of people in your line."

15582. "And it will be useful to you to pass the corporation and be registered"?—"To pass the corporation; because if you do not do it shortly you will not be able to pass it at all, as we expect them all to be done away."

15583. "And

15583. "And then you will be registered"?—When I passed the corporation, that would follow as a matter of course.

15584. He said that to you?—He said that to me.

15585. He said it would follow as a matter of course?—

15586. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Do you mean he said it would follow as a matter of course?—He did not say anything to me about the registering of me; I said that for myself, that it would follow as a matter of course when I passed the corporation.

15587. Did he speak to you about registering?—No, only about passing the corporation he spoke to me.

15588. Mr. O'Connell.] Was this indenture enrolled while you were serving your apprenticeship?—It was enrolled afterwards, it did not require to be enrolled, I think, while I was serving my apprenticeship.

15589. When was it enrolled?—It was enrolled when I passed the commons or passed the guild.

15590. But when was that?—It was in October 1835, I think.

15591. That was just before you passed the city to be registered?—Before I passed the city.

15592. Did Mr. Carolin know how you would vote if you were registered?—Did he know how I would vote? He never said a word to me on the subject.

15593. Did Mr. Carolin ever certify you had served your apprenticeship under this indenture?—In the beseech that was sent in to the commons, it was specified that I served my time to Edward Carolin, junior.

15594. Did Mr. Carolin ever certify you had served your time to him under this indenture?—It was he that proposed me in the commons. I did not see that.

15595. You never saw that?—I saw the stamp it was on in the book; I was shown it, the stamp that my proposal was on; I do not know whether it was written by Carolin or not.

15596. How much did you pay for the stamp?—A pound.

15597. Who gave you the pound?—Who gave me it?

15598. Yes?—I gave it myself.

15599. Who gave it to you?—Who gave it to me? I had a pound of my own money.

15600. Earned from Mr. Carolin?—I cannot say whether it was earned from Mr. Carolin, because I have other ways of getting money besides having it from him. I cannot exactly say whether the pound was earned from Mr. Carolin or not.

15601. Mr. Hamilton.] But it was your own money, bonâ fide?—My own money, bonâ fide my own money.

15602. Mr. O'Connell.] Who proposed to you to have this thing done at all?—To have which done?

15603. To have you made free of the corporation?—Carolin. I told you what Carolin said to me, if I did not get free of the corporation now, I would not be able to do it.

15604. Who proposed to you to get free of the corporation?—Carolin; I told you what he said to me.

15605. Now, can you tell us the very day you commenced with Carolin?—The 4th of August 1828; it was on a Monday, I think.

15606. Show me the letter you wrote to his lordship. [The Witness did so.] Now did Morris know you were making up this indenture?—He did not; he knew nothing at all about it.

15607. When did you first tell Morris of it?—Morris was in the office when I was speaking to Carolin, and he said, "Come here," says he, "and witness this;" and Morris just put his name to it.

15608. It was Carolin that called on Morris to witness it?—Yes.

15609. Morris is still in the employment of Carolin, is he not?—I do not know indeed; I have not seen him for some time.

15610. Have you any doubt he is?—I cannot exactly say that he is.

15611. Your mother was dead, then, at the time this was signed, according to you?—Yes, she was.

15612. It was after her death you put her name to it?—Yes. I had forgotten when I stated before; the other indenture that I had was worn out, and it was with my mother's consent that I went to Carolin.

15613. Of

Mr. Henry Hall.

1 June 1837.

15613. Of course it was; but the other was never executed, you told me?—No, it was not.

15614. Were you by when Carolin gave you that certificate of having served your apprenticeship?—I was.

15615. You saw him write that?—I did.

15616. Mr. Hogg.] Was your father living when you first entered into the service of Carolin?—No, he was not; he was just a week dead when I went to Carolin.

15617. How old were you then?—I was 14.

15618. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Is it usual for an apprentice to receive payment or wages of his master?—It is, when he is not an indoor apprentice.

15619. And you were not an indoor apprentice?—No.

15620. And there was a certain allowance made to you from the very time you began?—Yes; Carolin was a friend of my father's, and when my father died, he took me as his apprentice; he was only a week dead when Carolin took me, and allowed me 4*s.* a week for the first year.

15621. And was it understood at the time you went that you should be in the capacity of an apprentice?—Certainly.

15622. Although you received this payment?—Yes.

15623. And you say that is usual?—It is usual; all the apprentices had it.

15624. Had he other apprentices?—He had.

15625. And did they all receive payment in that way?—They did, all.

15626. Permit me to ask you, with reference to your going apprentice, was it understood from the beginning, from the time you first went into his employ, that you went there, or were to go there, as an apprentice?—It was understood from the first day I went.

15627. Was it understood you should be an indentured apprentice?—Yes.

15628. Was that the understanding from the beginning?—It was the understanding from the beginning.

15629. When was it that you originally prepared that indenture, which you say was defaced by being carried about your person for a length of time?—I prepared it shortly after I went to Carolin's.

15630. When you say shortly after, are you able to say it was within the first year?—It was within the first year.

15631. And you filled it up?—I filled it up, and I was always wanting Carolin to sign it, and he always deferred it from day to day, saying, "I have not time now; I will do it for you; there is time enough, because, whatever time you are with me I will allow you when I sign the indenture."

15632. Are you clear in your recollection that you repeatedly applied to Mr. Carolin to execute that indenture?—I am confident.

15633. And that he postponed it in that way from time to time, saying he would do it?—He did, until at last I got careless; Carolin being a friend of my father's, I knew he would not defraud me out of any time I was with him.

15634. Now I ask you, as a witness under examination, and I think, under the solemnity, very little short, if at all short, of the solemnity of being on oath?—Certainly, I consider myself so.

15635. But I ask you, under the solemnity of that obligation, to tell the truth; was it a contrivance on your part, or to your knowledge on Carolin's part, to get up this indenture, as if you were an indentured apprentice, for the purpose of registering you as a voter?—Certainly not; I proposed to Carolin the day I was out of my time to give me the indenture, because I should have the indenture to show to any one I would endeavour to get employment from, if they wanted to look at it.

15636. And when you drew up the document you now produce, and conversed with Mr. Carolin on the subject, was there any reference made upon that occasion to your being an elector of Dublin, or your being registered, and getting this document for the purpose of being registered?—It was not for the purpose of being registered that I got it. When the indenture was drawn up, Carolin said, "I will get you enrolled in the corporation now, and if you do not get it now, it will not be in your power to get it, because the corporations will shortly be done away with."

15637. Mr. O'Connell.] How soon after you made up this indenture were you admitted free?—I was out of my time in August 1835, and I was passed in the October assembly, I think.

15638. Mr. Hogg.] How many other apprentices were there besides you?—

15639. Mr.

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

Mr. Henry Hall.

1 June 1837.

15639. Mr. O'Connell.] How many others has Mr. Carolin lately passed as apprentices?—While I was with Carolin, I could only say to one more besides myself.

15640. How many were registered with you as apprentices of Carolin?—None; no one at all.

15641. Do you know of any persons having been passed as apprentices by Carolin, or certified for?—Only one.

15642. What is his name?—His name is Dobbin.

15643. What is his christian name?—David.

15644. Now I caution you again, because it will be my painful duty to take some steps about the evidence you have given; I call upon you now to tell the real fact; did you ever tell anybody this was a contrivance of Carolin's to get you registered?—I never told any one of it at all, although they knew in the yard (several people) that I was made free at the time I was.

15645. Did you ever tell anybody that Carolin asked you whether you would vote the right way if he would make you free?—I never did.

15646. Did he ever say if you would vote the right way?—He never said a word about it to me at all.

15647. Can you tell me how many Mr. Carolin has brought into the corporation by service, within the last two years?—I can only state positively to one person.

15648. Can you state from hearsay any others?—I cannot state anything from hearsay at all.

15649. Now, you have not the least doubt this indenture was not filled up until after the 28th of August 1835; you have not the least doubt of that; you recollect that perfectly well?—I do.

15650. You remember you own filling up the entire of it after the 28th of August 1835, do not you?—Yes.

15651. At whose place did you fill it up?—At whose place?

15652. Yes, at whose residence?—I filled it up at my own residence.

15653. Who was present when you filled it up?—I do not know, indeed.

15654. How soon after you filled it up did you produce it to Carolin?—I produced it, I think, that very day.

15655. It is very recently; surely you must recollect; how soon after you filled it up did you present it to Carolin?—I presented it that day; the day I filled it up; the day I copied it from the other one, rather.

15656. Did you or Carolin first sign it; which of you?—I signed it first.

15657. Was Carolin by when you signed it?—No, I do not think he was; he was not by when I signed it.

15658. How long had your mother been dead before you put her name to it?—My mother died in the July or June before I was out of my time.

15659. Answer my question; how long had your mother been dead before you put her name to it?—I think about three months, or two months.

15660. Full two months?—Yes.

15661. When did Philip Morris put his name to it?—When Carolin signed it.

15662. When was that?—The day after I was out of my time.

15663. When did Carolin put the certificate of service upon the back of it?—He put it when I was going to the commons to be sworn in.

15664. Did you swear that you had served an apprenticeship to him under this indenture; did you not swear that?—I swore that that was my indenture.

15665. And that you had served under it?—I swore I had served seven years to Carolin, because I conceived myself, and Carolin too, that I had served a lawful seven years to him.

15666. Conceiving that, you swore you had served seven years under this indenture?—Yes, conceiving I had served a lawful seven years.

15667. You therefore swore you served seven years under this indenture?—I do not say under that indenture. I swore I had served seven years to Mr. Carolin, and that was my indenture.

15668. And did you not swear you had served those seven years under this indenture; was not that the meaning of what you swore?—As well as I can recollect, I was not sworn to the indenture at all.

15669. Were you not sworn to the service?—I was.

15670. Were you not sworn to the service under the indenture?—No, I was not.

Mr. Henry Hall.

1 June 1837.

15671. Did you not produce the indenture at the time you were sworn?—I did.

15672. Did you not produce it as that under which you had served your apprenticeship?—I produced the indenture, certainly.

15673. Did you not produce it as that under which you had served your apprenticeship; did you not?—Yes, I produced it in William-street.

15674. At the time you were sworn?—Yes.

15675. Before whom were you sworn?—I was sworn, I think, before Mr. Archer.

15676. Mr. Archer.] You were sworn by me.

15677. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Do you remember the tenor of the oath you took; the words?—It was to be faithful to His Majesty, and different other things.

15678. Mr. O'Connell.] You were sworn before the lawyer of the minor guild, were you not, first?—No, not first.

15679. How many oaths were you sworn to?—I think two.

15680. Well, where did you swear you had served your apprenticeship faithfully; before whom did you take that oath?—I do not recollect taking that oath.

15681. Did you not tell us just now you swore you had served your apprenticeship faithfully?—I said I was sworn at William-street; but I do not recollect the tenor of the oath I was sworn to; I did not say I swore I had served my time faithfully under that indenture.

15682. But did you not tell us you swore you served your time faithfully?—Faithful to the King, I said.

15683. Did you swear before anybody that you served your apprenticeship faithfully, no matter whether under this indenture or otherwise?—I do not recollect swearing that.

15684. Do you recollect whether you did or not swear anything of that kind?—I do not.

15685. Could you have sworn that and have forgotten it?—I could have sworn it, and have forgotten it, but to the best of my belief I did not.

15686. Since the 28th August 1835, cannot you tell us positively whether or not you swore that you had served your apprenticeship faithfully?—I do not recollect having sworn that.

15687. Can you tell us positively whether you did or not?—I cannot positively. I do not recollect, because it was a very long paper that I read the oath out of; and perhaps them words were in it; I do not recollect them words being in it.

15688. Then you cannot tell us whether you did or not?—No, not positively.

15689. Mr. Edward Carolin is, of course, alive?—He is.

15690. And Mr. Philip Morris; who asked Morris to be witness to this?—He was a boy in the office, and Carolin said "Come over here and witness this."

15691. Then it was Carolin who called him to witness this?—Yes.

15692. Who got you the indenture?—I got it myself.

15693. From whom?—I do not know; from some one on the Quay.

15694. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] A stamp-seller, a law-stationer?—Yes.

15695. Mr. Hogg.] Was Dobbin an apprentice with Carolin at the same time as you were there?—He was.

15696. Was he an apprentice under indentures?—He was.

15697. Were his indentures executed and signed at the time he entered into the service of Carolin?—He was given over by another person to Carolin.

15698. At the time he was so given over, was there any formal transfer of the indentures?—I do not know; I only heard that from himself, because it was a thing there was no secret kept about.

15699. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Have the kindness to take the indenture in your hand. Would you look at the body of that, and see whether it contains any mention of the terms of your serving and being paid at any rate?—It does. It mentions the exact payment that I was to receive.

15700. Read what it states?—"4*s.* every week for the first year, and an increase of 2*s.* for each succeeding year."

15701. Is that embodied in the indenture?—Yes; and "all the time Henry Hall wilfully loses, not to be allowed him."

15702. Now just look at the other parts of it, and see whether the words "to dwell" (the form of that was for an in-door apprentice), see whether the words "to

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

"to dwell" are struck out?—Yes, I think the indentures are all printed in the same form.

15703. But you were an out-door apprentice?—I was.

15704. And was that the agreement that was made, that you should be so?—Yes, when I went to Carolin.

15705. Then you filled that up after your time was out, but agreeably to the terms on which you originally went to Carolin's?—Exactly.

15706. Now look at the back of it; the certificate; is that Mr. Carolin's?—It is.

15707. Is it his handwriting?—It is, every bit.

15708. Read it?—"I certify that the within-named Henry Hall served me for the space of seven years, faithfully, industriously and honestly, with the greatest care and attention. Edward Carolin, junior, 13, Talbot-street."

15709. Is that true?—It is; on my oath, that is true; I served him for the full time of seven years, and it was owing to a procrastination on his part, and partly carelessness on my own, that the indenture was not filled up before.

15710. Then all that is stated in that is true?—It is; everything that is stated in it.

15711. Mr. Hamilton.] You are quite sure a previous indenture, though not perfected, existed?—It did; and as well as I can recollect, Carolin saw the torn indenture in my hand.

15712. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you ever taken an apprentice?—No, I have not.

15713. Have you ever certified for any person as having served you?—Never. I might have vouched for people when they have been passing the corporation, whether they were respectable characters or not.

15714. Did you ever vouch anybody ever served an apprenticeship to you?—Never.

15715. Who did you vouch for on passing the corporation; who by name?—I think Mr. Roger Cooper was one; when they asked the people who were in the guild, did any one know him or know his character, I said I did know him.

15716. Who else did you vouch for?—I do not recollect vouching for any one else.

15717. Can you say you did not vouch for anybody else?—I can.

15718. It was after you were made free yourself that you vouched for Roger Cooper?—It was; that was a mere matter of form, the vouching.

15719. Was it true, what you vouched for him?—I said that I knew him.

15720. Was what you said of him true?—It was.

15721. Did you say anything more than that you knew him?—Nothing whatever.

15722. Only that you knew him?—That was all.

15723. Now did you never tell anybody that you had passed several people as apprentices to yourself?—I never told any one that.

15724. Nor any such thing?—I never told any one any such thing.

15725. Did you ever tell any one that Mr. Carolin had passed a great many freemen?—I never told any one a word about it; I might have told people that I vouched for persons in the guild.

15726. Who was it went with you to be registered; who called upon you to be registered?—The notice to register was served for me by Mr. Pike.

15727. Who is Mr. Pike?—He was master of the guild of carpenters at that time.

15728. Do you belong to any particular body; to any lodge of any kind?—No, I do not.

15729. You never did?—Never.

15730. You altered the sums in filling that indenture; look at it, you made alterations?—I altered the figure 4 into letters.

15731. When did you make that alteration?—I made it since the indenture was signed by Carolin.

15732. There is another alteration, "every week;" when did you make that?—That was "per week," and it was altered into "each week."

15733. "Every," it is?—It is "every;" it was "per week."

15734. When did you make that alteration?—At the same time with the 4.

15735. That was after it was executed by Carolin?—Yes.

15736. Mr. Lefroy.] You were going to state why you altered it?—Why it was altered was, because the 4 was very small, and it would have been liable to have have been altered into 14. It is always the rule in making indentures to write the sum in writing instead of putting it in figures.

15737. Mr. Hamilton.] Your business is that of an architect, or builder? —Yes.

15738. Is it expected, in that line of business, that men should have their indentures, if they are entitled to them?—It is.

15739. So that your indenture was an object to you?—I could have compelled Carolin to give me the indentures, or a certificate that I had served seven years to him, if he had refused doing it; it is a very great object.

15740. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Is it the practice in Dublin, amongst the tradesmen, to prevent persons from going into the employ of anybody, who have not been regularly apprenticed?—It is.

15741. And is it of importance for masters, in that view, to be furnished with the indentures, if, in fact, they had served their apprenticeship, in order to prevent any objection on the part of the union of trades?—Certainly, if the person serves the full time; if the person serves the seven years.

15742. Have there been any formidable combinations among the workmen in Dublin?—There are, at present, two.

15743. Have there been homicides committed in Dublin by either of those persons who were employed in that carpentering and building trade?—There have, several, and in that very employment that I was in, too.

15744. That is in the building line?—Yes.

15745. Among the carpenters?—Yes.

15746. And have the workmen who have entered into these unlawful combinations, and proceeded to these dreadful extremities, made it a pretext, at any time, to accuse men of their coming into the trade without having their indentures, and served their time?—That is one of the principal causes; they have.

15747. And did you consider it an object, as a person having an indenture on account of trade, that you should be armed with a certificate and regular document? —Certainly I did, and at the very time I was out of my time; I can take my oath of that, that I mentioned it to Carolin to complete the indentures for me.

15748. On that ground?—On that ground, certainly, because I could not go to any other man and look for employment from him if I had not my indentures to show.

15749. Mr. Lefroy.] Has this practice of serving apprenticeship without indentures being executed, taken place with other carpenters?—I do not know, indeed; I was peculiarly situated with Carolin.

15750. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] I believe Mr. Carolin is a most respectable man, and in a very extensive way of business in Dublin?—He is.

15751. He has been very forward in resisting those unlawful combinations among workmen in Dublin; has he not?—He has been one of the most forward in it.

15752. Mr. O'Connell.] He has set the men at defiance?—Yes.

15753. Has he been instrumental in bringing any of those men to justice who have been concerned in these unlawful combinations?—Yes, he has, several; three or four.

15754. Sir Robert Ferguson.] Is he not in the habit of employing workmen without certificates of their having served their time?—He is; he must do so.

15755. Mr. Hamilton.] Why do you say he must do so?—Because, if he gets a press of work, he cannot go and examine every man that comes to him to look for work; and men from the country, who do not serve their regular time, will come up to Dublin, and work for low wages.

15756. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you a brother-in-law who is free of any corporation?—I have.

15757. What is that gentleman's name?—His name is Price.

15758. What is his Christian name?—Henry Price.

15759. What is he by profession?—He is a chemist; he keeps chemical works.

15760. Where?—In Lincoln-lane.

15761. Has he served an apprenticeship to anybody, do you know?—I do not know.

15762. He did not serve an apprenticeship to Mr. Carolin?—Not at all.

15763. When was he made free of the corporation of Dublin?—I do not know about him, when he was made free.

15764. Is he married to a sister of yours?—No.

15765. Are you married to a sister of his?—I am.

15766. Mr.

Mr. Henry Hall.

1 June 1837.

15766. Mr. Hogg.] Did you remain with Carolin after your seven years were expired?—I remained with him, I think, about two months.

15767. After the expiration of the seven years, were your weekly or monthly wages increased?—They were.

15768. Did you claim an increase on the score of having completed your servitude?—Certainly I did.

15769. And did he admit an increase of wages on that ground?—He did.

15770. What was that increase?—I had 1 l. 4 s.

15771. During the last year?—No; I had only 18 s.

15772. What had you weekly immediately before the expiration of your servitude?—Eighteen shillings.

15773. Did you, when that period was expired, claim an increase on account of the servitude having been completed?—I did.

15774. Did you get it?—I got it; 1 l. 4 s.

15775. Then you got an increase of 6 s.?—Six shillings.

15776. On the ground of your apprenticeship being completed?—Yes.

15777. Do you happen to know if it is usual, that system of antedating indentures among apprentices in Dublin?—It is usual, as I stated before.

15778. Where no fee is given?—Where no fee is given; whatever time you are with them they always allow in the indentures.

15779. And you believe that to be a common practice?—It is a common practice.

15780. Mr. O'Connell.] How much a week had you the last year?—Eighteen shillings.

15781. That is the year 1834; from 1834 to 1835 how much had you; from August 1834 to August 1835 how much had you?—Eighteen shillings.

15782. How long had you that 18 s.; how many years?—One year only.

15783. How much had you the year from 1833 to 1834?—Sixteen shillings.

15784. How much had you the year before that, from 1832 to 1833?—I think it was 14 s. I had that year.

15785. How much had you the year before that again, from 1831 to 1832?—I had 12 s.; I got an advance of 2 s. every year.

15786. From 1830 to 1831?—I had 11 s. part of it, and I had 10 s. He gave me an advance for more than I was entitled to at one time.

15787. From 1829 to 1830?—I think it was 8 s. I had then, and 9 s.

15788. Eight shillings part of that year, and 9 s. the remainder?—Yes.

15789. From 1828 to 1829?—That was the first year I went to him. I had 4 s., and I had 5 s. part of it; and I think, as far as I can recollect, he gave me 6 s. on one occasion.

15790. Can you state positively he gave you 6 s.?—I can.

15791. These payments you mean are weekly payments?—Weekly; every Saturday.

15792. Who advised you to put your mother's name to this?—No one at all advised me; it was not at all necessary.

15793. To advise you?—It was not necessary to put it to it; if she had lived I would not have put it to it.

15794. Mr. Hamilton.] Was her name to the previous indenture?—I do not think it was.

15795. Was there any name to it?—My name was to it.

15796. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Do you mean your name was to it as an executing party?—Yes, it was.

15797. Mr. Hogg.] Was there any witness attesting your signature to the first indenture?—No, I do not think there was; because it was when Carolin would sign it that the witness would be necessary.

5798. Chairman.] How long ago is it that Mr. Carolin resisted these unlawful ssociations?—He resisted them before I went to him.

15799. Were the persons in his employ the objects of particular dislike by these associations?—They were particularly so.

15800. Were the persons in his employ likely therefore to have a great number of enemies?—More than any other employment in the city of Dublin.

15801. So that all those persons who had been in his employ, whether apprentices or not, were likely to have created a great number of enemies for themselves, by being in his employment?—They were; and in danger of walking the city; in danger of their lives.

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

Mr. Henry Hall.

1 June 1837.

15802. In every possible way they were sure of being annoyed?—They were.

15803. By accusations, as well as by manual violence?—On every point they were liable to annoyance.

15804. I think you were summoned, in the first instance, by this Committee, in a wrong name; were you not?—I was.

15805. You wrote a letter to me, as Chairman, stating that fact, but professing your readiness to come and give evidence, if required so to do?—Certainly, I did write that.

15806. In consequence of that you received a letter from me as Chairman, stating you had better attend?—Yes, that I was the person.

15807. And without any further summons you did attend?—Yes.

15808. Mr. O'Connell.] Now recollect yourself; it is not my wish to act harshly; I call upon you to tell us the exact truth, of how the arrangement was made for your passing the city to get yourself registered?—I told the exact truth, word for word, as far as I can recollect that it happened.

15809. Now you will remember I have cautioned you upon that subject?—Yes; I told the truth exactly as it happened, word for word.

15810. You have told us nothing but the truth since you came here?—Nothing but the truth.

15811. Well now, I ask you how many fellow-apprentices you had while you were serving your apprenticeship?—I do not know exactly; I could not say that.

15812. Had you one?—There was more than one.

15813. What was the name of that one?—There was one of the name of Wishart.

15814. What was his christian name?—Robert; but he ran away before he was out of his time.

15815. Now, is there anything that a young man knows better, who is serving his apprenticeship, than how many fellow-apprentices he has?—No, perhaps not.

15816. Now, if you were an apprentice, tell me how many fellow-apprentices you had?—If you will just listen to me for a moment I will explain; there are in Carolin's employment four brothers: there is Edward Carolin, Charles Carolin, Robinson Carolin and John Carolin; each of them may take as many apprentices as they like. I had no means of knowing, nor have I, whether the persons were regularly bound to them or not, because they never told me.

15817. Is it not one firm; one house of business; those four Mr. Carolin's?—I do not know indeed; it is one firm, but I do not know how they manage with regard to that.

15818. Is it only one firm?—One firm.

15819. The person who is in the employment of one of them is doing business for all, is he not?—Not always; he is liable to be taken away by one person, and made to do business exclusively for him.

15820. But how many persons were as apprentices in the same employment with you during what you call your apprenticeship?—Is it to Edward Carolin?

15821. To the four?—There were none apprentices to the four.

15822. To any of the four?—To any of the four? There was no one with Edward Carolin but me.

15823. There was no apprentice to Edward Carolin but you?—No one but me.

15824. Now, to each of the other three; how many were apprentices to Charles?—I do not know whether there were any regular apprentices to him or not.

15825. There were no regular apprentices to Charles Carolin, to your knowledge?—Not to my knowledge; but that is not saying there were not; perhaps there might have been some of them regularly apprenticed to him, but to my knowledge I do not know any.

15826. They might have been regularly apprenticed after they had served their apprenticeship; that you would call regular?—No, I would not.

15827. Now, to Robinson Carolin; were there any apprentices to him while you were serving?—Not that I know of.

15828. To John Carolin?—There were two boys, bricklayers; I do not know whether they were apprenticed to John or not.

15829. Do you know any apprentices, during your seven years, to John Carolin?—I know of two; but, as I told you before, I do not know whether they were regularly bound or not.

15830. Do you know whether there were apprentices of any kind?—They were called apprentices.

15831. What

Mr. Henry Hall.

1 June 1837.

15831. What were their names?—One of the names was Whelan.

15832. What was the other's name?—Golding.

15833. Well, now, these are the only two persons that were called apprentices during the time you were serving your seven years?—To John Carolin; he is a bricklayer; he is not a carpenter.

15834. Were they the only two persons that were called apprentices during your time?—To John Carolin?

15835. Yes.—Yes.

15836. You cannot name any for Charles, can you?—I cannot name exactly any for Charles. I cannot call these apprentices that have been with him as apprentices for a space of four years, or more or less than that.

15837. Then you do not call anybody an apprentice until he has served seven years?—No.

15838. Then, during the first, second, third, fourth or fifth year you do not call him an apprentice; is not that so?—I do not consider he has regularly served his time unless he has served seven years.

15839. Do you call him an apprentice during the seven years?—Yes, if he never was at the business before he went to Carolin's, I do.

15840. But if he had been employed by anybody else, he is not an apprentice?—No.

15841. So that nobody is an apprentice but those who come for the first time to Carolin's?—Without going to any other builder previously.

15842. That is what you call an apprentice?—Yes.

15843. Now, as you have given us such limits, tell me how many persons you call apprentices that were in the employment and at Carolin's during your seven years or any part of it?—There were two of the name of Talbot that were serving their time there regularly, until they misbehaved.

15844. When did they misbehave?—They misbehaved some time a little before I was out of my time.

15845. What year?—They were put away by him.

15846. What year?—I think it was in the year 1835.

15847. Are the four brothers of the same calling, all builders or all masons, or all carpenters, or one a mason and another a carpenter, or how is it?—There is one brother a bricklayer and the other three are in the general building way.

15848. And they are all in partnership?—Yes, they are; I do not know whether the father is or not.

15849. Chairman.] Then is the father Edward?—Edward Carolin, senior.

15850. Then there are Edward Carolin, senior, Edward Carolin, junior, Robinson, Charles and John?—Yes.

15851. Then there are five, in fact?—I do not think the father is in the firm at present.

15852. Mr. Hogg.] Did all the people employed there, either as apprentices, workmen or otherwise, know you were serving as an apprentice in your apprenticeship?—Yes, they did.

15853. It was a matter of notoriety?—It was a matter of notoriety that I went there at 14 years of age, and continued for seven years.

15854. Would it not be equally matter of notoriety to you and to others whether the other persons employed were apprentices or not?—There were some there who were serving their time regularly, but as I say, when they had misbehaved, Carolin put them away.

15855. Mr. O'Connell.] Now tell me the names of those who served their apprenticeship regularly and throughout while you were there?—I cannot; I can say one; I can say there was Edward Wildman; he was in Carolin's office from the time I went to the day I left.

15856. Was he an apprentice?—He was in Carolin's office; I do not know whether he was an apprentice; I am not sure. I told you I could not say who were apprentices; I say he was at Carolin's (a boy) at the same time with me.

15857. But you do not know whether he was considered an apprentice?—No, he never worked at the bench, nor served his time to the carpentering business, only in the office. He was about the same age as myself.

15858. But he was an apprentice for what you know?—No, I do not think he was.

15859. He had never served anybody before he served Carolin?—No, he had not.

Mr. Henry Hall.

3 June 1837.

15860. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Were there any other young men in the concern during your time?—There were seven.

15861. Who were considered in the concern as apprentices, in the same way that you were considered an apprentice?—There were.

15862. Now will you tell us what were the names of these young men who were in the concern during your time, and who were considered, as you were, apprentices; whether they were bound regularly or not? Have you any unwillingness? I should not like to put a question that might be an annoyance to you or to others. Have you any reluctance to mention the names of those who were put away on account of misconduct?—I mentioned two that were put away.

15863. Then you do not feel any reluctance about mentioning them?—

15864. Mr. O'Connell.] There was nobody else put away but those two, were there?—Yes, there were; or left on their own account.

15865. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Have you any unwillingness to mention their names?—No, I have not.

15866. Then mention their names?—I could mention all the names that I knew, I think.

15867. Will you be good enough to name to us any young men who were in the concern during the time you were there, and who were considered in the same manner as you were, as apprentices during that time, and name those who did not complete their seven years as well as those who did; just give, as far as your recollection will serve you, the names of those?—There was John Towson; he did not fulfil his apprenticeship.

15868. But was he considered, as you were, for the time he was there, as an apprentice?—He was.

15869. Are you able to name any other who was, the same as you were, considered as an apprentice, whether he finished his time or not?—I do not think there were, who had finished their time.

15870. I did not ask you whether they did finish their time?—I cannot name any one who did finish his time in it.

15871. I want to know the names of them, whether they finished their time or not, provided during your time they were in the concern, and were considered as apprentices, whether they finished their time or not?—I have named John Towson; I can name some that are in it yet that have not completed their time.

15872. Were they there in your time?—They were part of the time. There is Barnard Cassady.

15873. Any other?—There was Michael Mara.

15874. Mr. O'Connell.] Did you consider him as an apprentice?—He was a boy there.

15875. Did you consider him as an apprentice?—I tell you I could not consider any of these apprentices, because I did not know whether they were regularly bound to Carolin or not.

15876. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] I am not asking you whether they were regularly bound or served out their seven years, but I am asking you, as far as your memory enables you, to give the names of any young men who were in the concern at the same time you were, and who were considered, as you were, as apprentices?—Well, I have named Michael Mara, and John Towson and Barnard Cassady.

15877. Mr. O'Connell.] Was Barnard Cassady considered to be an apprentice?—He was. He came to Carolin first of all, before he went to any one else.

15878. Is that the only reason you have for considering him as an apprentice?—I think if you had an establishment, and if you took a boy that never worked at any business, you would consider him in the light of an apprentice; that is the light I take it in.

15879. Did you consider him as an apprentice?—I considered him as an apprentice.

15880. For no other reason than this, that he had not served any one else before; is not that the reason that you so considered him?—Yes.

15881. Is that the only reason you had for considering him as an apprentice?—The only reason.

15882. Did you consider everybody who came for the first time to Mr. Carolin to be an apprentice?—That came for the first time to him?

15883. Yes, who had not served any body else, but began his work with Mr. Carolin; did you consider every such person an apprentice?—Yes, every one that he put to work with the carpenters, or to learn their business from him.

15884. Now

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

Mr. Henry Hall.

1 June 1837.

15884. Now how many of that class were there during the seven years you say you served him?—I have named, I think, five.

15885. Can you name anybody else?—I cannot immediately recollect any other name.

15886. Do you call these five apprentices?—I consider them as such.

15887. Chairman.] When you call these five persons apprentices, you do not mean thereby to convey they finished their apprenticeship?—Certainly not.

15888. All you mean to say is, that they began with Carolin?—They began with Carolin, and on account of misbehaviour or otherwise, some of them left, and some are with him yet.

15889. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] That they were learning their trade is what you mean?—Yes.

George Archer, Esq., called in; and further Examined.

G. Archer, Esq.

15890. Chairman.] WILL you state to the Committee what is the oath that is taken by a freeman when he is sworn in?—That is the freeman's oath [handing it to the Chairman].

15891. Now is that oath the same oath that is taken by every freeman, whether he gains his freedom by one right or another?—Yes.

15892. Is there any peculiar oath taken by a freeman, in addition to that oath, who acquires his freedom from servitude?—No.

15893. Then he does not swear that he has faithfully served his apprenticeship?—No, except when he comes forward to prove before a jury, which in the case of service is always empanelled for the purpose of ascertaining the fact.

15894. Now, will you state the exact words of the oath which he swears before that jury?—It is the common oath to give evidence, to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

15895. But is one of the necessary parts of the investigation that he has faithfully served; are those words regularly used in that examination?—I think not, in all cases.

15896. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] I thought I understood you to say on a former day, the only fact that was inquired into by that jury was the execution of the indenture?—No; the fact of service.

15897. Then the execution of the indenture is not of itself necessary?—It is not of itself necessary.

15898. It is not a necessary fact of inquiry?—No, it is not.

15899. Chairman.] What is the meaning of the words, "If it shall appear by indenture"?—I should explain to the Committee that at the time this oath was framed, enrolment of the indenture was necessary, and the order made is the ancient order following this part of the oath; formerly it was the practice, and I believe some of the junior corporations continue the practice still, to enrol indentures; but that has been given up, I believe, in almost all corporations; if there be one or two that continue it, it is the most; the old order is still preserved, although the enrolment does not take place; the means of showing the existence of the indenture by proof of its enrolment in the minor corporations, do not now exist; and that fact is permitted, and has been for a long time permitted, to be supplied by evidence, although an indenture be not produced.

15900. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] When you say "evidence," do you mean secondary evidence of the contents of the indenture?—I do.

15901. Then, if so, I believe I did not misunderstand you in the former day; if so, then, the jury do inquire into the fact of the existence and execution of the indenture?—They do.

15902. But secondary evidence of the contents of the indenture is admissible in every case?—In every case.

15903. And it is not essential, then, to entitle a party to give secondary evidence of the contents of the indenture, that he should first prove the loss of it?—No, they do not go through that form; but there have been cases, I certainly have seen cases frequently, where the evidence did not go to the length of establishing that there was an indenture, but the fact of service.

15904. And was that deemed sufficient?—Yes, the juries have deemed it sufficient.

15905. Then these qualifying terms of the allowance appear to be nugatory, namely, namely, if it shall appear by indenture: according to you, there are cases in which there was no evidence at all of an indenture being in existence, but there was evidence of servitude?—Yes.

G. Archer, Esq.

1 June 1837.

15906. And that was deemed sufficient?—Yes, it has been so.

15907. Then, in practice, I am warranted in saying that that qualification of the allowance by the board goes for nothing, "if it shall appear by indenture"?—It does in that case.

15908. Mr. Hamilton.] But it operates as a check?—Yes, as a check.

15909. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] As a check; however, that is not enforced?—Not enforced.

15910. Mr. Hogg.] I understood you to say that the indenture was never proved, at least scarcely ever proved, before the jury as a legal document?—No, not in the way of a legal document.

15911. For instance, that the attesting witnesses to the indenture were never, to your knowledge, called?—I would not say never.

15912. At least, very rarely?—Not frequently; not often.

15913. So that the main point is the fact of the servitude?—It is; that is the main point.

15914. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] And that is got at by very loose evidence?—I should say they are not very strict.

15915. Mr. Hogg.] Did you ever know the question asked whether the instrument was executed the same day upon which it bore date, or any force laid upon that fact?—I cannot charge my recollection.

15916. Can you charge your recollection with ever having heard that question asked or that point made, for the purpose of attempting to vitiate the document and render the servitude null?—I have certainly often seen men fail in proving their claim and be rejected.

15917. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] But has that been a failure by reason of their not proving the fact of their servitude satisfactorily, or has it been by reason of not proving the execution of the indenture on the day it bore date?—I think, both ways.

15918. Mr. Hogg.] Have you any distinct recollection of that particular point being ever brought forward and interrogated to, as to the execution of the instrument on the day it bore date?—No.

15919. You have no recollection of that point ever being made?—No.

15920. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] But you have a recollection of cases where the claim failed by reason of the party not being able to prove satisfactorily the absolute service of seven years?—Yes, I have.

15921. Mr Serjeant Ball.] Do you recollect any of those cases within the last three or four years?—Not the particular cases.

15922. But is it in your recollection that such cases have occurred within the last two or three years?—As to the rejections?

15923. Yes.—Yes, I am sure there were.

15924. Within the last two or three years?—Yes, certainly.

15925. Now, with reference to the evidence that has just been given as to persons who were called apprentices of Mr. Carolin; you attended to that evidence?—I did.

15926. Were they admitted to their freedom in right of servitude?—The person just now examined was.

15927. But were the others?—No; I have been looking, and I do not find they were.

15928. Mr. O'Connell.] Does the name of John Thomas Kirkwood appear as admitted in Michaelmas 1836?—Yes.

15929. In what right?—By marriage.

15930. When does he appear to have been sworn?—The 7th of November 1836.

15931. That was the first day of the registry sessions, was it not?—It was.

15932. The notice for his registry was dated the 17th of October?—Yes.

15933. Chairman.] When was he registered?—The 14th of November.

Mr. James Martin, called in; and further Examined.

Mr. James Martin.

15934. Mr. O'Connell.] WHAT entry have you respecting John Thomas Kirkwood?—He registered on the 14th of November 1836. His certificate appeared appeared to be sworn on the 7th of November 1836, of the guild of smiths, by marriage. He said others were sworn along with him; the different freemen's queries, 1, 2 and 5, that I read the last day, were proposed to him, and he refused to answer them. Mr. Dobbs overruled them, as usual, and then the usual objections were made by Mr. Seton and Mr. John Curran. They made the usual objections, numbers 1, 2, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 9 ½, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 16, and 17, and he was admitted. He refused to answer all the questions put to him, and they were overruled; that is, all the freemen's queries were overruled. That is all I have regarding him.

Mr. James Martin.

1 June 1837.

15935. This is the beseech: "Beseech your Honors, John T. Kirkwood, of Upper Ormond Quay, smith, to be admitted into the liberties and franchises of the city of Dublin, by marriage, he being married to the daughter of George Gonne, a freeman, who came in at the Midsummer assembly, 1798, by service."

15936. Chairman.] You put no other question to Kirkwood?—He was asked, I should suppose, about his age, but these were all the questions that were taken; he said others were sworn along with him.

15937. Mr. O'Connell.] But you have no entry about any others?—No, no entry about any others.

15938. Chairman, to Mr. Archer.] Does it appear George Gonne was admitted a freeman?—Yes, in 1798.

Francis James Card, called in; and Examined.

15939. Chairman.] ARE you a solicitor or attorney?—I am a solicitor and attorney.

Francis Jas. Card.

15940. Are you clerk to any guild in Dublin?—I am clerk to the guild of bakers.

15941. How long have you been so?—About 20 years.

15942. Mr. O'Connell.] Be so good as look at that return [handing a return to the Witness]; is that return made by you?—It is.

15943. Is it correct?—To the best of my belief, it is.

15944. You examined the books?—I made it out myself.

15945. Has no other person been admitted in your guild since the month of July 1830 to the present?—1831, this is; this does not contain all up to the present day; there is another return; this is the return for this period.

15946. Chairman.] This return is stated to be a list of persons admitted since 30th July 1831, to the guild of St. Clement and St. Anne, or guild of bakers, Dublin, by which it appears four individuals have passed since the 26th of October up to the 29th of April, inclusive; that is the return, is it?—It is.

15947. Mr. O'Connell.] Do not you admit persons by grace especial in your guild?—We do.

15948. Is there any person in that list admitted by grace especial?—There is not.

15949. Then since the Reform Bill you have not admitted anybody by grace especial?—Since that period we have admitted no person by grace especial.

15950. And you are quite certain upon this; the only point I have an object in wishing you to be precise upon is, that you have not admitted any persons into the guild of bakers since the 20th of July 1831, except the five that are specified here; I wish you to be quite positive upon that?—I am quite positive; that is a return made out conformable to a direction of yours, and I can declare again I am convinced of its being accurate.

15951. In short, you entertain no doubt of its perfect accuracy?—I do not; I made it out myself; it is barely possible, but I think not at all probable, that an error might be in it.

15952. You made it out with due diligence?—Yes; in consequence of your direction.

15953. Intending to have it perfectly accurate?—Yes; intending to have it accurate.

15954. And you have no doubt it is?—I have no doubt it is.

15955. Chairman.] Is yours a numerous guild?—It is.

15956. Can you state from recollection the numbers belonging to it?—I think they are in or about 20, probably a few over or under; I have the list at my hotel, but not with me at this moment.

Francis Jas. Card.

1 June 1837.

15957. Mr. O'Connell.] Of the entire number?—Yes.

15958. Chairman.] Are you strict in your admissions to see that all the requisites are complied with?—Certainly.

15959. In the case of service, what sort of evidence do you require of the facts?—The master vouches; the party proposing the admission vouches the service of the apprentice.

15960. And is the master, then, responsible to the guild generally as to the service having been properly performed and completed?—The person coming forward to propose the admission vouches the person entitled to his freedom, the master of the guild then gives the direction to me.

15961. The person coming forward must be a member of the guild, must he?—Yes.

15962. The person who proposes the claimant?—Yes; the person proposed is present, and he is proposed at a meeting of the guild, generally by the person whom he served his time to.

15963. Then you mean by that, the master vouches that the servitude has been passed?—Yes.

15964. He vouches for the correctness of the servitude?—Yes.

15965. Mr. O'Connell.] Is there a beseech presented to your guild, or is the proposition made by word of mouth?—It is made by word of mouth; in general, when the stamps were put upon separate sheets of paper, there was a beseech, merely for the purpose of having the stamp duty affixed to that beseech, and now the beseeches being in a book, the usual way to do it is by a resolution proposed vivâ voce.

15966. Then is an inquiry made as to the particulars of the apprenticeship, whether it be a legal apprenticeship?—The master of the guild has the inspection of the apprentice's indenture and enrolment, and then on coming forward on the guild day those matters are not produced.

15967. But that is left to the master?—Yes, the master of the guild.

15968. He is to inspect the indenture?—He inspects the indenture and the enrolment of the indenture.

15969. And therefore it is his duty to see that the apprenticeship was in conformity with the indenture?—Yes.

15970. Then you consider it necessary, of course, that the apprenticeship should be a regular one under the indenture?—I consider it should be regular and vouched on the day of proposition.

15971. You would not consider this a proper thing, that a man should serve at wages for six, eight, or ten or twelve years, and at the close of that period, or at seven years, have an indenture made up and passed as an apprentice?—Certainly not; I would not do it.

15972. You would think that very wrong?—I would.

15973. You have never done anything or concurred in anything of that kind?—Never.

15974. And you would feel it unbecoming to do so?—I would.

15975. Mr. Lefroy.] Do you know of any practice in Dublin of making an allowance to out-door apprentices, by way of wages?—I do not.

15976. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Have you ever known any practice in Dublin, in any other trades in Dublin, of allowing apprentices to serve their time, or a portion of their time, before indentures were completed, and then allowing the time which they have in fact served as a portion of the seven years?—No, I do not know anything of the practice of any guild but my own.

15977. But if there were any trade in Dublin in which such a practice obtained as that of allowing a young man to remain a while on trial, as it were, with the understanding that that time should be allowed him out of his seven years' apprenticeship; if that were the custom in any trade, would you feel it your duty, as clerk of the guild to which that trade belongs, to reject such an applicant?—I declare I do not know; I have never had a case of the kind.

15978. You never had occasion to consider that?—I have not considered how that might be if the case did occur; I think it is one that would require a good deal of consideration to decide upon; such a one never having occurred to me, I cannot be prepared to answer how the decision might be made.

15979. Then

Francis Jas. Card.

1 June 1837.

15979. Then you do not intend by the previous answer you have given to prejudice such a case as that?—Certainly not; I only speak of the practice of a guild with which I am concerned.

15980. That is the guild of bakers?—Yes.

15981. There is no such practice respecting apprentices in that guild?—No.

15982. Mr. O'Connell.] What would you say to making an indenture?—

15983. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] You do not know of any such practice?—No; I do not know of any such practice.

15984. Mr. O'Connell.] And you have been 20 years clerk to the guild?—Yes, about that.

15985. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] And if it were the practice in any trade, as for example carpenters and builders, if it were the practice that a young man should be allowed a certain weekly payment while he was serving his time in consideration of the services he rendered his master, although he was learning the trade as an apprentice, and not living in his house, not being an indoor apprentice, you are not prepared to say that that would be such an irregularity or malpractice as ought to disqualify the young man from receiving his freedom afterwards, on completing his seven years?—I am inclined to think there is not any irregularity in it; I should conceive not; an agreement being made between a master and his apprentice or his friends, I should conceive that he might, either living in the house or out of the house, that he might receive wages or clothes or consideration.

15986. And therefore you did not intend by your previous answer to prejudice a case of that kind?—Certainly not; I believe I was not asked.

15987. I wish distinctly to understand what your opinion really is; then I am to understand you, that if it appeared clearly that such was the understanding between master and apprentice, even in the trade of a baker, that a young man while serving his seven years should receive, he being an outdoor apprentice, a certain weekly allowance, I am to understand you, you would rather be disposed to say you would not reject him at all on that ground?—I should not, if he completed seven years.

15988. Mr. O'Connell.] But you, of course, feel that nothing can open such a door to fraud as making an indenture after the seven years are over and calling it a service under that indenture?—I do not think that would be regular at all.

15989. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Do you think it would deserve the name of a fraud if there were a bonâ fide intention from the beginning that the individual should be an indentured apprentice, and that an indenture should be made out, although the indenture was not perfected until the time had entirely or nearly elapsed?—It would be a great irregularity.

15990. But you would not call it a fraud?—No.

15991. Mr. O'Connell.] It is possible that it may not be a fraud, but it is probable that it would be a fraud?—It would be a very high irregularity on the part of every one, I should think, concerned in it; whether it would be a fraud I do not know; where the fraud would operate; how it could be called a fraud; I do not know in what way to extend the word fraud to it. I look upon it to be highly irregular.

15992. Mr. O'Connell.] It would lead to an opportunity to fabricate cases; would it not give an opportunity to fabricate cases?—Yes, it would be an inroad to fabrication; any great irregularity might tend to that.

15993. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Have any cases ever come within your knowledge where apprentices had in fact served any portion of their time before their indentures were perfectly in form?—I have no recollection of any such.

15994. Mr. O'Connell.] Your guild is called the guild of bakers?—It is the guild of St. Clement and St. Anne guild of bakers.

15995. I believe there are scarcely any bakers in it; mere bakers?—There are some.

15996–7. But few; your representatives, I believe, in the common council are not bakers, are they?—Mr. Whitton is one; he is a baker. I do not recollect the names of the others.

15998. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] An individual that is descended from a free baker would be entitled to be admitted; if he were the son of a freeman he would be entitled to be admitted?—Yes, born after the admission of his father.

Francis Jas. Card.

1 June 1837.

15999. He would be entitled to be admitted in the guild of bakers?—Yes.

16000. And then he would be called a free baker, though he might, in point of fact, exercise any other profession?—Yes.

16001. And the person who first acquired the freedom of the guild, might himself be a baker, and yet none of his descendants in the line of descent, none of the eldest sons might happen to be bakers?—No.

16002. That often happens?—That often happens.

16003. And yet the whole of them are called free bakers?—They are.

16004. Mr. O'Connell.] You do not deem it necessary to admit a man, either by grace especial or by service, that either by grace especial, or any other way, he should be an actual baker?—No; it is not necessary he should be a baker to be admitted by grace.

16005. The representatives are John Whitton; is he a baker?—Yes.

16006. Is he an actual baker by trade?—Yes, he carries on the baking business; he bakes in Fownes-street.

16007. William Smith, of St. Andrew-street, is what?—He is a baker.

16008. John Ince, of Nicholas-street?—I believe he is a baker.

16009. Michael Smith, of St. Andrew-street, I suppose is a baker?—Yes.

16010. Do you make any persons free of your guild who are under age?—Certainly not; to my knowledge I do not believe it has ever been done.

16011. You consider that every one admitted is of full age?—I consider that every one admitted is of full age.

George Archer, Esq., again called in; and Examined.

G. Archer, Esq.

16012. Mr. O'Connell.] DO you consider it proper that every person who is made free should be of age?—I do.

16013. You consider if a person has an indenture entitling him to his freedom, he ought to be of full age?—I do.

16014. And that has been the practice, as far as the corporation can ascertain the fact, as well as you remember?—As far as the corporation can ascertain the fact, it has been so.

16015. Chairman.] Do you believe, practically, many freemen are admitted under age?—There have been, I believe, some admitted.

16016. Mr. O'Connell.] But that is wrong?—It is not right.

Lunæ, 5° die Junii, 1837.

MEMBERS PRESENT.

Mr. O'Connell.	Mr. Serjeant Jackson.
Mr. Morgan John O'Connell.	Mr. Lefroy.
Mr. French.	Lord Granville Somerset.

LORD GRANVILLE SOMERSET, IN THE CHAIR.

George Archer, Esq., called in; and further Examined.

G. Archer, Esq.

5 June 1837.

16017. Mr. O'Connell.] HAVE you your Evidence there?—Yes.

16018. 15293, in page 19, a question of his Lordship's, and 15295, you gave these two answers: his Lordship asked you, "Do I understand you right then, that a freeman has no peculiar advantages or privileges excepting the elective franchise?—No, none other." Then I asked you, "Except as being officers in their own guilds?—Except as being officers in their own guilds." Then the Chairman asked you, "They have no advantages that in any way interfere with the general privileges of their fellow-citizens?" and your answer is, "No." Now I wish to ask you, having read to you the questions 15293, 15294 and 15295, whether the freemen have not this additional advantage, that they vote for members of the common council?—In their own guilds; I had forgotten that that entirely at the time it was first mentioned; but on a subsequent occasion I did state that additional advantage.

16019. The common council nominate the sheriffs of Dublin?—They do.

16020. The Four Courts are in Dublin?—Yes.

16021. It is in the centre of the judicial system in Ireland?—Yes.

16022. The sheriffs of Dublin nominate the grand jury of the court of King's Bench in Dublin?—Of course they do.

16023. They also make out the panels out of which all special juries are drawn?—They do.

16024. They make out the panels for all trials at Nisi Prius in the courts of Common Pleas, Exchequer and King's Bench?—They do.

16025. They make out the panels for all juries in the recorder's court?—Yes.

16026. They make out the panels for all grand juries at the commission?—Yes.

16027. And of all petty juries at the commission?—Yes.

16028. And no person has any interference in the selection of these sheriffs but a person who is a freeman of the city of Dublin?—No.

16029. Then you perceive with the freeman of Dublin is vested privileges and advantages which you will admit are important?—Yes; but I should say that as to the selection of the juries the sheriffs are controlled by the Jury Act.

16030. But that control does not relate to the grand juries?—I am not aware that it does; I do not know that it does.

16031. Could you state what the amount of taxation of the citizens of Dublin, in round numbers, has latterly been for the grand jury?—I declare I could not.

16032. You would not be surprised to hear it was 30,000 l. a year at least?—No, I dare say it is; I should suppose from 20,000 l. to 30,000 l.; but I am not aware.

16033–4. Chairman.] Then am I to understand, that although these are very important privileges enjoyed by freemen, namely, the voting in elections for members of the common council, the members of the common council returning the sheriffs, who have the power of nominating or rather selecting grand juries, and so forth, and that although, such being the case, there is a great deal of party spirit in Dublin, nevertheless there have been no attempts, by legal measures, to get rid of any particular class of freemen who have been admitted?—I never heard of any.

16035. Mr. O'Connell.] The city of Dublin have a right to appoint freemen by grace especial?—They have.

16036. Anybody they please they can appoint by grace especial?—I think so.

16037. Now be so good as to tell me what proceedings have been used to get rid of any man that the city of Dublin chose to nominate as a freeman?—To get rid of him?

16038. To deprive him of his freedom?—I know of no means but by disfranchisement.

16039. And that disfranchisement should be by the corporation itself?—It should be.

16040. But out of the corporation you know of no means by which a man, to whom the corporation thinks fit to grant his freedom, can be deprived of that freedom?—No.

16041. And you never heard of the least attempt or notion of that kind?—No.

16042. Chairman.] Do you mean to state there are no means of getting rid of freemen who are improperly put on the roll of freemen through misrepresentation, or any other circumstance of that sort?—I would not go that length, because I am quite satisfied that if the corporation were aware that there was any man got improperly upon the roll, they would take some means or adopt some course to remove that person.

16043. Supposing, for instance, that a party had obtained his freedom on the ground of service, and it were subsequently proved that he had no such legal ground of service, are there no means of removing him except through the medium of the corporation?—I think there are not; I know of no means except through the corporation.

16044. Mr. O'Connell.] Now just fill up that for me; put a fictitious name to it, John Doe?—

G. Archer, Esq.

5 June 1837.

The Witness filled up a certificate by birth, and handed it in, a copy of which is as follows:—" Memorandum, that at Michaelmas assembly, 1836, John Doe, merchant, was admitted into the liberties and franchises of the city of Dublin, by birth, and took the usual oaths, and was enrolled. In testimony whereof the same is signed by the town-clerks this 5th day of June 1837. Archer and Long, Town-clerks."

16045. That is the form of a certificate by birth?—It is.

16046. Now give me the form of a certificate (the same name) by service?—

The Witness filled one up and handed it in, a copy of which is as follows:—" Memorandum, that at Michaelmas assembly, 1836, John Doe, merchant, was admitted into the liberties and franchises of the city of Dublin, by service, and took the usual oaths, and was enrolled. In testimony whereof the same is signed by the town-clerks this 5th day of June 1837. Archer and Long, Town-clerks."

16047. Now give me a form of certificate by marriage, in the new form?—

The Witness filled one up, and handed it in, a copy of which is as follows:—" Memorandum, that at Michaelmas assembly, 1836, John Doe, merchant, was admitted into the liberties and franchises of the city of Dublin, by marriage, and took the usual oaths, and was enrolled. In testimony whereof the same is signed by the town-clerks this 5th day of June 1837. Archer and Long, Town-clerks."

16048. Marriage is the new form?—Yes, that is the new form.

16049. That was not known till the Reform Bill?—It was not.

16050. Now by grace especial?—

The witness filled one up, and handed it in, a copy of which is as follows:—Memorandum, that at Michaelmas assembly 1836, John Doe, merchant, was admitted into the liberties and franchises of the city of Dublin, by grace especial, and took the usual oaths, and was enrolled. In testimony whereof the same is signed by the town-clerks this 5th day of June 1837. Archer and Long, Town-clerks,"

16051. Mr. Hamilton.] There is a fifth, by the city at large?—There is; it is only the alteration of the city at large.

16052. Mr. O'Connell.] With regard to the fifth, by the city at large, of course the man does not belong to a guild at all?—No.

16053. And it is generally considered a complimentary thing?—It is generally; in fact, it is not asked for at all.

16054. And very few now for grace especial?—Very few.

16055. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Was any advice taken, to your knowledge, by any person as to this right or claim of marriage?—There was not.

16056. Mr. O'Connell.] Who was it struck off the idea?—I cannot recollect.

16057. But it was done in the corporation itself?—It was; it followed, I believe, immediately after the Reform Act.

16058. These certificates, by birth, marriage and servitude, when produced before the registering barrister; you are present, are you not, when they are produced?—I have been present.

16059. They are now considered as conclusive as to the matter stated in them?—I understand so.

16060. No inquiry is allowed to be gone into as to the period of service or anything of that kind?—I have not generally attended myself the registry court: I could not charge myself with it; but there are gentlemen here who have, and who can speak to that.

16061. Mr. Lefroy.] You have now, as I understand, given us the various forms of admission to the corporation, upon the grounds of birth, marriage, apprenticeship and by grace especial?—Yes.

16062. The form of application, as well as the form of admission, upon those several grounds, are quite distinct?—Yes.

16063. Have they always been so?—Always.

16064. As far back as you can trace that distinction has been preserved?—Always.

16065. So that, in no instance that you can find, has a person founding his claim claim upon birth, marriage or apprenticeship come to the corporation claiming on the ground of grace especial?—No.

16066. Nor vice versâ?—No.

16067. Then the distinction between admission on the ground of grace especial, and upon a claim founded on birth, marriage or apprenticeship, is a distinction perfectly well known and understood?—Perfectly.

16068. No corporator, or person acquainted with the proceedings of the corporation, could for a moment confound the one with the other?—No, quite impossible.

16069. Or fail to understand that there was a substantial distinction between them?—Certainly not.

16070. Am I right in taking it for granted, that in the exercise by a corporator of a right of admission, where the application was upon the ground of claim for birth, marriage or apprenticeship, he would consider that he was exercising a different right from that which he would have to exercise upon the admission of a person claiming on the ground of grace especial?—I think he would.

16071. You are a corporator?—I am.

16072. Then, as a corporator, should you feel in one case, namely, that of a claim founded on birth, marriage or apprenticeship, that if you rejected it you were rejecting a primâ facie title?—I think so.

16073. That would be your view of it?—It would.

16074. But in the other case, you were merely refusing to grant a gratuitous favour; is that your view of it?—Precisely; and I could illustrate that very strongly, I think, by a case at the time of the Brunswick clubs: there was an endeavour made to pass a great number of freemen by grace especial, coming from one of the junior corporations; and the corporation rejected a considerable number of them.

16075. Chairman.] Did they, at that time, reject any considerable number of persons claiming under the other rights?—No.

16076. Although they came from the same junior corporation?—No.

16077. Mr. O'Connell.] Do you know how many came by birth or service at that time?—No, I do not; perhaps I could tell the number.

16078. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] But there did come some?—Yes, there did come some.

16079. Mr. O'Connell.] When was that?—I cannot at this moment remember.

16080. Have you any document here that will enable you to let us know?—I think it was in 1829.

16081. Mr. Lefroy.] Then, in the exercise of the right of rejection of a claim founded on birth, marriage or apprenticeship, does a corporator feel that in the conscientious discharge of that duty he should require some ground for rejection?—As far as I can speak, that is of the lord mayor and board of aldermen; claimants never are rejected without some discussion with respect to the claim and the grounds of objection.

16082. And then if a primâ facie claim is made out?—It passes at once.

16083. Not so as to the case of a person proposed on the ground of grace especial; is not that considered as wholly within the absolute—I would say, the capricious discretion of the lord mayor and board of aldermen to reject or admit?—Certainly.

16084. Now, in saying you were not aware of any ground of getting rid of a person who had been admitted on an ill-founded claim, did you mean to say that an information in the nature of a quo warranto would not lay in case of its being established that a person claiming on the ground of birth, marriage or apprenticeship had founded that claim upon a false and fraudulent representation?—I did not profess to offer any legal opinion.

16085. Then what, in your opinion, would be the result of its being established by clear and satisfactory evidence, that a person had imposed on the corporation by one of these claims; do you conceive that an information in the nature of a quo warranto would not lay against him to oust him of his franchise in case he appeared to have founded that claim on a false and fraudulent representation?—I should think it would; and I am sure the corporation would press forward an information, in order to oust the person so practising fraud upon them.

16086. Are

G. Archer, Esq.

5 June 1837.

16086. Are you of opinion, that in the first instance the corporation themselves could disfranchise him?—I think they could.

16087. And if not, they would be willing, I understand from you, to assist in every way in having him ousted, by an information in the nature of a quo warranto?—Yes, I certainly think so.

16088. Now suppose the corporation improperly and unduly to usurp the right of admitting upon the ground of birth, marriage or apprenticeship, or upon any one of those foundations unduly and improperly, do you conceive that an information in the nature of a quo warranto would not lay against the corporation for usurping the privilege of admitting upon a ground which their charter did not warrant?—I should think that some sort of legal proceeding would certainly lay, but whether by quo warranto I will not pretend to say.

16089. But that would be the usurping of a franchise that did not belong to them, if they admitted him on any of those grounds where their charter withheld that ground of admission?—I think so.

16090. But you have never known any proceedings taken to question this right of the corporation, have you?—I never have.

16091. The right that has been established by the case that has been referred to is, as I understand it, merely a veto on the part of the corporation; a negative?—Yes.

16092. Upon the primâ facie title?—Yes.

16093. That they having the right, consider that they are held to be the judges whether they will admit upon that title or not?—Yes.

16094. But to entitle the claimant to have a primâ facie claim or case, he must make out the facts upon which he professes to rest his claim when he comes on the ground of birth, marriage or apprenticeship?—He must.

16095. Mr. O'Connell.] The corporation, however, have the unlimited power of admitting any man in the community they please by grace especial?—They have.

16096. And they may admit everybody by grace especial if they please?—They may.

16097. With a reason or without a reason?—Certainly.

16098. They may take any facts that they think of importance, as the reason to induce them to do that which they have the unlimited power of doing; may they not?—They may.

16099. For example, before you ever had an entry by marriage upon your books, the fact of marriage was an inducement to grant it under the head of grace especial?—Yes.

16100. It happened to many a man that he was admitted by grace especial, the reason being assigned that he was married to the daughter of a freeman; was not that so?—It was.

16101. Then you have the same right to reject, if you please, as capriciously as you have the right to admit?—Yes, we have the same right, and exercise the right either to reject or admit.

16102. As you please?—Certainly.

16103. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Do you say that there is a right to reject capriciously?—No, I do not say that.

16104. Do not you recollect in that case which has been already referred to, I allude to the case of the King and Adcock, do not you recollect the court of King's Bench said, in giving judgment in that case, that the presumption of law was that the corporation would exercise a sound discretion; that they appeared to have vested in them a discretion, whether that was a discretion to guard against the admission of improper persons or not; that the presumption of law was, that they would exercise a sound discretion?—I have already stated, the claim under goes discussion.

16105. Mr. O'Connell.] But it is at your discretion?—It is.

16106. Mr. Lefroy.] Is that a sound discretion?—

16107. Mr. O'Connell.] Sound or unsound, it is for you to determine; for example, now suppose the fact of the birth were ever so distinctly proved, of the man being the son of a freeman, if he were, before what is called emancipation, an emancipator, you would have rejected him, in all probability?—I think it is very probable.

16108. And you could do it, if you chose?—We could.

16109. And if now a man, the son of a freeman, whose father had been free 21 years

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

21 years before his birth, and was still alive, became publicly a Catholic, you could, if you pleased, reject that man?—Yes.

16110. Then do not you think the corporation would reject him?—I should think that it is questionable; at the same time, my opinion is they would.

16111. And you are quite sure they would have a right to do it, if they pleased; you have no doubt of that?—I think so.

16112. That is your judgment as an officer of the corporation; if you were consulted, as the town-clerk of a number of years' standing, and a professional gentleman of intellect, you would tell any corporator, who inquired, that, in your judgment, they had the right so to reject, if they pleased?—I certainly would if I were asked; in fact, the question should be put upon him as upon every other freeman.

16113. But if the question were put to you; you are, of course, from your experience in the office, consulted by the corporators as to their rights and privileges and powers?—Yes, frequently.

16114. And you feel it part of your duty, I will say I believe you, conscientiously and faithfully, according to your judgment, you would feel it your duty to answer that question as part of your duty to instruct the corporation?—I certainly would; if I were asked whether the question should be put upon the admission of such person or not, I would say that the question ought to be put.

16115. And that the question being put, there was the same power to negative that question as there was to affirm it?—Certainly.

16116. Mr. Hamilton.] Has the question ever been submitted within your knowledge to a legal tribunal, except in the case of Adcock?—No, not that I recollect.

16117. So that the question of the power of enforcing a right into the corporation of Dublin rests solely on that decision?—As far as I understand.

16118. You have not heard of a mandamus being applied for, by a Roman-catholic, for example, or in any other case excepting that?—No, I have not.

16119. Now with respect to any mode of getting rid of a freeman improperly appointed, all claiming as of right, must come from a junior corporation, I believe?—They must.

16121. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] But it would not follow, ipso facto, from his being disfranchised from the minor guild, that he loses his franchise in the city at large?—Most certainly not.

16122. It would require that process of the lower guild bringing the case specially before the corporation at large, produce discussion, and then deal with it according to the opinion formed by the body at large?—Yes.

16123. Mr. Hamilton.] Has such a case ever arisen within your knowledge; the case of a freeman disfranchised by a minor corporation?—I have some recollection of a man of the name of Harricks having been disfranchised.

16124. A mandamus will lay against a minor corporation to enforce the right of a claimant to admission into it?—I think I have heard so.

16125. I presume, if a mandamus lays with reference to a minor corporation, a quo warranto will lay also?—I am not lawyer enough to answer that.

16126. Freemen have been occasionally disfranchised by the corporation at large?—They have.

16127. Chairman.] Will you state any one instance that is most fresh in your recollection?—That case of Harricks is most fresh in my recollection.

16128. State the circumstances of that case?—I cannot charge my recollection with the grounds; but they were held to be sufficient.

16129. What year was that in; can you state that?—I think it was within the last seven years; I cannot say the year particularly.

16130. What minor guild did he belong to?—The guild of saddlers; and I think the grounds arose from misconduct on the election of representatives for the corporation of Dublin in that guild.

16131. Mr. O'Connell.] Wishing you to be exact as to the persons that you spoke spoke of as being proposed in a batch, I would point your attention to a paragraph already read in the Report, p. 18. Shortly previous to the Emancipation Act being passed, a proposition was made, &c. &c. That is the transaction to which you alluded a while ago?—Yes.

16132. Now, having shown you it was a short time before 1829, you probably will be able to find out the exact period; was it as many as 200?—No, nothing like that.

16133. I find in 1828 there were 190 admitted; probably that is the year?—It may be so; I do not know: yes, it is Christmas 1829; it is the same.

16134. That is it?—Yes, it is. I was counting the number; it was not so many as 200; nothing like it.

16135. In the year 1822 I see there were 245 admitted, and in the year 1825 there were 238; now will you be so good as to make out a table of this description for those two years?—Yes; I would have done so, but you said you would not require it for those two years.

16136. The year 1828 was the year in which the 1,000 were proposed in a batch?—The year 1828 was the time when a great number were proposed.

16137. About 1,000?—I do not know indeed.

16138. But a very large number?—Yes.

16139. Now these 81 were admitted by grace especial?—Yes.

Sic. 16140. Forty-one under the claim of service, and 57 under the claim of birth?—Yes.

16141. Mr. Hamilton.] Do you mean to say, that the numbers stated there were all the persons recommended?—No, not at that period, because that covers the whole year.

16142. Mr. O'Connell.] Can you, from any document, make out that large batch; can you take it by itself, that large batch, and give us the particulars of how many under the claim of birth, how many under the claim of service, and how many under the claim of grace especial, were admitted; can you do that this evening?—I will try; I do not know that I can; but I will do my best to do it.

16143. Mr. Hamilton.] Was the proposition of admitting the large number ceded to, or negatived by the board of aldermen?—Negatived.

The Witness handed in a printed alphabetical list of the freemen of the city of Dublin, commencing January 1774 and ending 15th January 1824; also, a printed alphabetical list of the freemen of the city of Dublin, commencing January 1824.

16144. Chairman.] Those are the printed books which you referred to on a former occasion?—Yes.

Mr. Timothy Allen, called in; and Examined.

Mr. Timothy Allen.

16145. Chairman.] YOU are clerk to the guild of merchants?—Yes, one of them.

16146. How long have you been in that situation?—Since January 1796.

16147. Mr. O'Connell.] It was you who gave in this return?—Yes, that is my writing.

16148. You have taken it from the book, and given it in as an accurate return?—I have, to the best of my judgment.

16149. You intended it to be perfectly correct?—I did, and I think it is.

16150. Then please to sign it as such?—[The Witness did so.]

16151. Mr. Hamilton.] Will you state the process by which freemen are made in the guild of merchants?—In the guild of merchants, when persons apply for freedom, their names are given to me, and then there is a summons issued to the council of the house 11 days before each quarter day; they meet three days before quarter day, that is, there is an eight-days' summons, and on their meeting they read over the list, proceed seriatim on the names, and require vouchers from members present of the truth of the claim, as to their being entitled by birth, service or marriage; the freemen's book is searched, and if it appears to the council that everything is right, the question is put upon each individual, and if he is passed, there is no objection, and he is marked "approved." If the council choose to take time for consideration, it is moved to postpone any person, and if they think he has no claim, the question is put, and he is rejected.

16152. Mr. O'Connell.]

5 June 1837.

16152. Mr. O'Connell.] By "no claim," you mean if they do not like to allow his claim?—If they think it is impossible he can be entitled, (perhaps his father's name not appearing on the books), that is, as to birth.

16153. Are they entitled to reject anybody they please?—Anybody disqualified, or having no just claim, they certainly are entitled to reject.

16154. Suppose a man applies by grace especial?—That is a grace and favour.

16155. They admit him if they choose?—Certainly.

16156. Is there any obligation on them to admit anybody that they do not think they ought to admit?—I always considered that they act in this way, they are willing to admit any man who has a fair claim.

16157. Do you think if that man was known to be a Roman-catholic, for example, they would admit him?—I have known the guild to admit Roman-catholics.

16158. Yes, they admitted Mr. Callahan?—They admitted 11.

16159. Soon after 1793?—Yes.

16160. But would they now admit Catholics, according to your judgment?—According to the practice, I sincerely say I think not.

16161. Although he might be the son of a freeman?—That would be different; you were speaking of grace especial; if you talk of birth it makes the case different.

16162. Therefore I wish to have from you, whether if a Catholic were entitled by birth, your corporation would not have the power to reject him if they pleased?—Upon that ground merely, is it?

16163. If they please to do it?—I do not think they would have the power, because I think a legal claim is legal, and ought not to be resisted. I think if the law gives it to a party, he ought to have it.

16164. Is it your opinion, in the guild of merchants the man, though he was a Catholic, would be admitted?—I would advise them to do it, it is my duty; I am the person who attends the council, and in case of any point of that kind arising they generally ask, and if they asked me I certainly would tell them the claim ought to be allowed.

16165. And what would they do, according to your judgment; do you think they would allow it?—I am inclined to think they would not; but then there is a dernier resort; the Court of King's Bench is open.

16166. But when a man had got through the guild of merchants, he would not be much the better for that, for his franchise?—No, he would have the corporation of the city still to get through.

16167. But, in your opinion, there would be a right to get into your guild by marriage or birth?—Most certainly there is that right; the law gave it them in 1793, and I think it ought to be conceded.

16168. But if there was a Protestant who took an active part in the present Reform Bill of Dublin, do you think they would admit him?—On that point there is a precedent: two young gentlemen of the name of M'Causland, nephews to my Lord Plunket, on account of their political principles they were postponed.

16169. They were ultimately admitted?—They were: they were postponed for a time in the city afterwards, but they were ultimately admitted. I have a memorandum here of the dates, if I am allowed to refer to it. July 1831 the merchants postponed the two Messrs. M'Causland, and afterwards the same occurred twice. But at the Easter assembly 1832 their petitions were passed by the guild, and their certificates were sent before the corporation. The city postponed them at that assembly; but on the 2d of August 1833 the city admitted them.

16170. Do you you know of any person being active in looking out for people to be made free latterly, since the Reform Bill?—I think I may say I have; it has been the practice, certainly.

16171. Was there any body formed for that purpose?—Not to my knowledge. I have heard of such a thing; I never had any knowledge of it, for I never took any part in those elections, or interfered with them.

Mr. Timothy Allen.

5 June 1837.

16172. Who did you find active upon those occasions?—Why, there were some of the corporation who appeared to be active; and I believe it is well known that there is an office to encourage young gentlemen to come forward.

16173. What is that office called?—I am told it is called the conservative office; I know there is such an office; I have been in it.

16174. Where is it held?—In College-street.

16175. Who did you find the leading man in it?—I have seen a Mr. Collison very active there.

16176. Who else?—Indeed I do not know. I have seen clerks there, but he appeared to me to be the manager, and the chief person. On the 29th October 1828 the corporation of the city passed a resolution to admit persons of uncompromising Protestant loyalty; that is certain. An amendment was moved to admit a large number in printed lists as members of Brunswick clubs; that was negatived; and then there was a committee appointed afterwards, and they recommended a number. In January 1829 there were 105 of those persons passed, recommended by the committee.

16177. Could you tell how many of these were free merchants?—I believe I could. As to them, they were persons esteemed gentlemen of high constitutional principles, and were not, at that time, free of the guild; they were passed the city at large, gratis.

16178. Mr. Lefroy.] On grace especial?—Grace especial.

16179. Mr. O'Connell.] Do you hold any office in the city at large?—I do; I am one of the clerks of the common council as well as being clerk of the guild of merchants.

16180. Then you know that the common council reject any man they please, no matter what his claim may be?—They have that power, I believe; if they abuse that power, as I said before, the Court of King's Bench is open.

16181. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] How many does that council consist of?—Which council.

16182. The common council?—Ninety-six from the guilds, and there may be 44 of sheriffs' peers; but there are now, I believe, at present, only 32.

16183. Mr. O'Connell.] I am told the sheriffs' peers average from 25 to 35?—I believe there are about 30 now.

16184. The general average is between 25 and 30?—The law allows them 44, but they have not been full; they had no fining sheriffs of late to fill up the number.

16185. Who was the last sheriff that fined?—I do not recollect; it was Mr. Lloyd, the apothecary, I believe: he is dead now.

16186. Every person who has passed the office of sheriff, or who has fined to avoid being actually sheriff, is what is called a sheriff's peer?—If the corporation allow them to assume their seats as sheriffs' peers, when they have served their office, they are entitled by virtue of their office.

16187. Then it is a grace to allow those who are merely fined?—You may call it so; but I believe it has been the custom. Some of the charters mention that sheriffs elected may be excused from the office on payment of a fine.

16188. But the corporation at present is under Lucas's Act in that respect?—Yes, that statute constituted the present corporation.

16189. If there were more than 44, would they belong to the corporation?—If there were any more they would sit outside until there was room; they could not vote.

16190. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Then the maximum council is 96 and 44?—Yes, to the best of my recollection.

16191. How many are aldermen?—Twenty-four aldermen and the lord mayor; that is 25.

16192. How many members does your guild consist of?—I should suppose we have perhaps, at present, 600 or 700 in it, or perhaps more.

16193. Is it by far the most numerous guild?—Certainly; it has very much increased, more than other guilds.

16194. Mr. O'Connell.] Great numbers are not merchants?—Great numbers; because, being entitled by birth, service and marriage, it has extended.

16195. You have clergymen of the Established Church?—Yes.

16196. A great many attornies?—Some attornies certainly, some attornies, by birth, and some have been allowed by service.

16197. A

Mr. Timothy Allen.

5 June 1837.

16197. A good many half-pay officers?—Certainly; every description of persons.

16198. A great number of a very highly respectable class of merchants in Dublin are not members?—Yes, I think there are many that never sought it.

16199. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] The trade and business of a merchant is not hereditary; does not descend from father to son?—No.

16200. And merchants have sons who choose to go into the army?—Yes.

16201. And to the church?—Yes.

16202. And to the bar?—Yes.

16203. And embark in all professions and businesses?—Yes.

16204. And accordingly persons being the sons of freemen or the apprentices of freemen they would have a right to their freedom?—Just so, if they are born free, of course they are entitled.

16205. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you not made by grace especial many of these classes free?—I believe I said something to that effect a while ago.

16206. But I mean attornies; have you not made them free by grace especial?—There have been several admitted by grace especial.

16207. You have made some clergymen free by grace especial?—Yes.

16208. Some half-pay officers by grace especial?—We might, I am not certain as to that; we might have made some gentlemen in the army free; it is a complimentary thing for gallantry during the war, or loyalty; that is a very common claim indeed, it has been allowed very commonly.

16209. Mr. Hamilton.] Are the Committee to understand then, that when the claim is advanced as of right, that the right is strictly investigated?—I think it is always investigated, every claim; whether it is decided upon exactly as we should wish, I do not know; but, as I said before, there is a superior tribunal to set that right if it were wrong.

16210. Mr. Lefroy.] The distinction between a claim founded on birth, marriage or apprenticeship and grace especial, is a well-known distinction?—Certainly.

16211. They are never confounded together?—Not now; marriage was formerly classed with grace especial; but of late, since the Reform Act and the Stamp Acts put them on a lower stamp, they are entitled by marriage certainly, and made a distinct class by grace especial.

16212. Mr. O'Connell.] That is only since the Reform Act?—I think since the Stamp Acts in 1815 and 1816; those two Stamp Acts put them on a 1 l. stamp only instead of 3 l.

16213. Did you after the Reform Bill make any alteration?—None, except in the classing of them.

16214. What was the alteration made after the Reform Bill?—Instead of putting them by marriage in the grace especial class, we put them into the marriage class, separate.

16215. Then it was one of the reasons for granting by grace especial before, that they were married to the daughters of freemen?—It was, certainly.

16216. But you never made a separate class of marriage until after the Reform Act?—No; for the Reform Act gave a statutable regulation.

16217. Mr. Lefroy.] Was it to give them the benefit of the Stamp Acts that you formerly classed those claiming in right of marriage with those admitted by grace especial?—It was the custom; they were always in the grace especial, but upon the lesser stamp.

16218. How long since was it that the Stamp Acts made the distinction between admissions founded on birth, marriage or apprenticeship and grace especial?—1815, I believe; but I am certain 1816, because the schedule is annexed to the Act of 1816.

16219. Then upon what stamp was the admission by grace especial; what stamp was required for that?—£. 3., and it is the same to this day; but the marriage is 1 l.

16220. And that by the Stamp Act of 1816; is the same stamp required upon an admission in right of marriage as upon apprenticeship or birth?—Yes, the very same, 1 l. each.

16221. Now, with respect to the fees that are paid, are the same fees paid upon an admission by grace especial as upon admissions founded upon birth, marriage or apprenticeship?—The officers' fees are the same except a very small trifle; but but there is a fine sometimes in the corporation payable to the city treasurer for the use of the corporation, that makes a distinction.

16222. But is that fine payable by those admitted by grace especial?—By grace especial.

16223. But not by the others?—Yes, the service pays 5*s.*; grace especial, some only 10*s.*; a merchant 1 l.

16224. Then, though there is only a small difference there is a difference with respect to the fees that are paid upon the admission by grace especial from the fees paid upon the other claims?—There is, because I have a fee as clerk of the commons on birth, service and marriage; it is only 3*s.* 6*d.*; by grace especial it is 5*s.*; it makes a small difference.

16225. But whatever the difference is, it is to the prejudice of the claim of admission by grace especial?—It certainly is.

16226. And has that distinction been made in the fees as long as you have been acquainted with the corporation?—Certainly it has. I am acquainted with the corporation since the year 1784, which is about 53 years, and that difference and distinction has always been.

16227. That distinction with respect to the fees payable on the different species of admission has existed as long as you have known the corporation?—It has.

16228. Mr. O'Connell.] And those fees were fixed by the corporation themselves?—No; my fees are mentioned in the old schedule of fees settled by the House of Lords above a century ago. I have never increased them since.

16229. Mr. Lefroy.] And they are the same fees as appear in that schedule of a century and a half standing?—The same.

16230. Chairman.] Do you consider it any importance to a man to become a freeman of the guild of merchants?—We look upon it as an honour to a man to be free of the guild of merchants.

16231. But is there anything besides honour belonging to it, any advantage?—Formerly there was; they might be free of custom; passed through the gates of the city with their goods.

16232. How long is it since that has been abolished?—I think about 20 years.

16233. Has it been abolished since the year 1815?—It never was abolished, but it was resisted by the country people, and the Government would not interfere to enforce it, and it fell to the ground.

16234. Well, since what period has that custom been abolished, whether it was legal or illegal?—It certainly was legal, for it was granted by several charters.

16235. Since what period has that custom been abolished?—I say I think about 20 years.

16236. You state that the Stamp Act, to which you have been alluding, was passed about the year 1815?—Yes, and 1816; there were two Stamp Acts, one in each year.

16237. Was that custom abolished before or at the same time?—I cannot say exactly, I can only speak from mere recollection; but I can be certain as to the stamps, for I have seen the Stamp Acts repeatedly since, and I know the dates of them, 1815 and 1816.

16238. But you cannot state accurately when this custom was abolished?—No, I know about the time; I recollect the time when a popular uproar and objection came against tolls, and the country people used to force through the gates without paying it; and then the Government would not allow guards or police to attend to enforce it, and it fell to the ground.

16239. But you cannot state what year that was in?—I cannot.

16240. Well then, do you state now it is of no importance to be a freeman of a guild?—I think it is, because they can belong to a respectable body of men, and they have several privileges; they can vote for representatives for the guild into the common council, 31 representatives; every third year there is an election. Next November, if we are not superseded, we shall have it again.

16241. Mr. O'Connell.] Can a man vote for a representative in the common council from the guild of merchants, without being free of the city?—No.

16242. Then as a member of the guild of merchants he has no privilege, and not having obtained his freedom from the city at large, he cannot vote for a member of the common council, can he?—I do not think he can; he cannot, because we have had the opinion of counsel on that point to direct us.

5 June 1837.

16243. Chairman.] And the Committee are to understand that a person though admitted a freeman of the guild of merchants, has no power of voting for common councilmen unless he is further admitted into the corporation at large?—That is the practice; it is founded on the opinion of counsel and the practice.

16244. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] On the other hand, no man that is free of the city at large, or free of any other guild, unless he be likewise free of the guild of merchants, can vote for representatives of that guild?—Certainly not; he is an alien to us if he is not free of our guild.

16245. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you your book here to show when first you made a particular entry by marriage?—Yes; I beg leave to explain. It was asked me if a freeman of the guild of merchants, though not a freeman of the city, has any privilege? He has a privilege belonging to that body, he can attend all the meetings, he can vote for masters and wardens, and of course all the privileges, except voting for common councilmen, and if he is free of the city he cannot vote for common councilmen.

16246. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Are the funds belonging to the guild to be administered, considerable?—Very trivial.

16247. Has he any voice whatever with regard to that, as a member of the guild?—The master has the handling of the money, as we call it; he receives all the profits or perquisites into the guild, and makes out his account at the end of the year, and that is laid before the hall, and they have a right to allow or reject any part of that; these members of the guild who are not members of the corporation at large, may do so.

16248. Is he eligible to the situation of master of the guild?—Yes.

16249. And warden?—Yes, and to vote at the election of them.

16250. Although not free of the city?—Yes.

16251. Mr. Morgan John O'Connell.] Are there many persons free of the guild and not free of the city at large?—There are not.

16252. Mr. O'Connell.] How many should you think?—I do not suppose 20, because they generally pass the city.

16253. Mr. Ignatius Callahan is one of those 20?—I do not know as to him; he never passed the guild of merchants; I believe he passed the board of aldermen. In 1822, Christmas assembly, there were a number of gentlemen applied for freedom of the Roman-catholic persuasion.

16254. Did any of them get it?—No; there were only two petitions read, Hugh O'Connell and Francis Codd.

16255. Both very respectable merchants; were they not?—I believe they were; they were not allowed, and the other petitions were withdrawn.

16256. Now, produce the original book, that I may see when you first made the class of marriage.—[The Witness produced it.]

16257. Is this the original book of the entries of the proceedings of the guild of merchants kept by you?—It is.

16258. Do you produce an entry bearing date Michaelmas quarter, 15th October 1832?—Yes.

16259. Do you produce that to show when the first entry appears in any of the books of that corporation, to your knowledge or belief, in which the admission was by marriage, a separate class?—I think there was such an entry in a journal before, and I believe I could refer to it, but not for many years; this is the first I made.

16260. In consequence of the Reform Act?—In consequence of the Reform Act.

16261. How many years before 1832 had you been keeping these books?—Since 1796.

16262. Thirty-four years?—Thirty-six years.

16263. And during that time you had never made any entry of freedom by marriage?—I had, but not as a separate class.

16264. I mean as a separate class?—No, I did not; that is the first.

16265. Have you, since this 15th October 1832, kept marriage as a separate class?—I have.

16266. And was that in consequence of the Reform Bill?—Yes.

16267. Because you conceive that the Reform Bill gave a title to vote to persons admitted by marriage?—I do.

16268. And it was on that account that you entered it here?—Yes.

16269. The

Mr. Timothy Allen.

5 June 1837.

16269. The entry is, "Robert Law, being married to the daughter of Hans Hamilton; Doctor Robert Collins, married to the daughter of Doctor Joseph Clarke;" was Charles Palmer Archer a member of your guild?—He was.

16270. I see you admitted by grace especial two sons of his?—Yes; out of compliment to the father.

16271. Show me the draft of the return I asked for.—[The Witness did so.]

16272. You have very much increased the number of persons admitted latterly?—There has been an increase, but then there was a decrease also; for there was a long period, as you may see by that return, in which no person was admitted.

16273. What about was that period?—About the agitation of the Reform Bill.

16274. Does this show how many you have admitted since 1832 by marriage?—Certainly; it is expressed there, I think.

16275. Can you make a return by itself out of this book of the numbers and dates of those by marriage?—For how long back?

16276. Beginning from 1832?—Certainly.

16277. When you first made the class of marriage?—They are expressed here, I believe, in the return.

16278. No; that is before 1831. I perceive that on the 12th of January, 1835, there were admitted under the class, "Marriage" 17?—Yes; there were.

16279. Sir Harcourt Lees is a member of your corporation, I suppose?—Yes.

16280. Any man who is admitted by grace especial you admit his son-in-law as in right of marriage?—Every freeman's daughter's husband is looked upon as entitled to his freedom.

16281. By marriage?—By marriage, of course.

16282. Although the daughter might be born before her father was free?—They do not investigate that; I must say they do not; the daughter's freedom is not looked upon as a birth inheritance; and her husband is not put upon proof to show his wife was born subsequent to her father's freedom.

16283. So that if you admit a man who has a number of daughters married, then you would admit all his sons-in-law the next quarter?—Not so soon, I think; it is not usual.

16284. Is there any fixed time?—No, there is not.

16285. Do you see any objection to admitting them the next quarter?—I do not know whether there is any legal objection or not.

16286. But you know of none?—It is not the practice to investigate that so particularly; it is a compliment.

16287. Then you consider the freedom by marriage a compliment?—It may assist the young ladies to get husbands.

16288. It is rather an encouragement to the young gentlemen to get wives?—The inducement is reciprocal, of course.

16289. You do not investigate at what time the daughters were born, whether they were born before their father's freedom or not?—It has not been the custom to do so.

16290. And that must be because you considered it in its nature complimentary?—I have said so already; I think so indeed.

16291. Have you not made more than 100 since the year 1832?—They are all there; I have not reckoned them; I do not think there was half the number. What you have read there is the largest number of marriages we allowed at one time.

16292. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Prior to the time when you made a separate class of those who were admitted in right of marriage, was there any inquiry then made as to the period at which the father of the young lady had become a freeman; whether he was free or not, at the time of her birth?—I never knew that inquiry made at any period.

16293. As regards this class of persons claiming as sons-in-law, either before they were made a special class or after, you never knew that inquiry made?—I did not.

16294. It was not the course of the corporation to make inquiry?—Not the practice.

16295. If

Mr. Timothy Allen.

5 June 1837.

16295. If it had always been the course of the corporation, as far as you remember, to inquire into the ground of the claim in respect of birth, you would have known it?—Certainly; and the books are always searched to ascertain that the father was upwards of 21 years free on claims by birth.

16296. You spoke of the council of the house, who are they, or of how many do they consist?—There were 31 of the brethren, and those who have served the office of master, and the master and wardens at present in office; all those who have passed through the office of master, and 31 of the brethren; they are the council of the house.

16297. Is it their business as council of the house to investigate the matters of fact out of which the claim of right results?—It certainly is; and they examine perhaps into the character and propriety of admitting those persons, whether they are eligible to their freedom.

16298. First of all, do they examine into the fact whether the father was free in the case of birth?—That is referred to me, because I have the books.

16299. That is referred to you by the council of the house?—Exactly.

16300. Do you then examine in each case whether or not the father is on the roll of freemen?—In almost every case. If I know from my own knowledge, or if the council know from their knowledge, that the father-in-law is a very old freeman, they do not take the trouble of searching the books.

16301. But if you are not aware of the fact from your own knowledge, from intimacy with the individual, or if the council are not aware of it from their knowledge, then you make a reference in every case to the books?—Certainly.

16302. With a view to ascertain whether, in point of fact, the father was a freeman?—Yes.

16303. And do you, in that case, investigate the fact whether or not the father was a freeman at the time of the birth of the party claiming by birth?—They frequently discuss that point among themselves: "Is this young man of that age that he must have been born subsequent to his father's freedom?" They always do that; but then this thing must be vouched by one of the members who knows the parties; and then every brother is considered on his oath to give true counsel; and if there is no objection, and they see they are right, they are passed.

16304. Is it your opinion, as an officer of long standing in the corporation, that they do regard themselves as a body of men on their oaths to investigate justly and truly?—It is my decided opinion that they do look upon themselves as such, and in cases of service there is a jury sworn always.

16305. In the case of an individual coming forward to claim in right of apprenticeship, you say there is always a jury sworn?—That is subsequently, in the city; the guild of merchants have not a jury sworn on persons by service, but they have an enrolment book of apprentices, which would show it at one view.

16306. Do they require to have the indentures of apprenticeship enrolled in cases of all apprentices members of their guild?—That is the rule of the guild.

16307. At what period do they require that enrolment?—It ought to be done within six months; the oath of the freeman is, that he will enrol his apprentice within the first year after he is indentured.

16308. And is that uniformly done?—I do not think it is observed.

16309. At any period of your service, or knowledge of the corporation, has that been invariably observed as to enrolling within the first year?—I do not think it has.

16310. Nor has not been during any period of your service?—I think every freeman who is attentive to his oath ought to do it.

16311. But in point of fact has that been observed?—It has not as it should have been.

16312. Mr. O'Connell.] Though they are sworn to do it?—It is in the oath, as an oath of office.

16313. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] The oath is a long one, and contains a great many particulars?—It does, a great many clauses.

16314. Every man swears that he will keep a musket, carbine or fusee in his house, in good, clean and sufficient order?—Yes.

16315-16. And turn out at a moment's warning?—

(Mr. O'Connell.) No, there is nothing about turning out.

16317. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Now, has it come within your knowledge that indentures

Mr. Timothy Allen.

5 June 1837.

indentures have been enrolled in the last year of the apprenticeship?—Indeed I have heard of such things being done.

16318. Mr. O'Connell.] Would you allow it to be done?—I would not enrol it under a wrong date; I should put down the day it was handed to me, let the day be what it would.

16319. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] But you have known cases in which that strictness has not been observed?—I have known in many cases freemen passed who were not able to produce their indentures.

16320. In those cases did you strictly investigate the fact of the servitude?—The jury I suppose did.

16321. I am speaking of your particular guild of merchants; do the council, in cases of applications for admission to the freedom of the guild by virtue of servitude, examine into the fact of the servitude?—They do, but then they very often take the voucher of a brother of the guild.

16322. They consider a brother speaks on his honour?—No, I consider he is giving counsel on his oath; I always conceived it in that way.

16323. The voucher of that brother, then, when appealed to, is as to the fact of the servitude?—Yes.

16324. That the individual claiming to be admitted free in respect of service had, in fact, served his seven years' apprenticeship to a freeman of the guild?—Yes, but they always consider this, we may admit him, perhaps, without a very close investigation, because he has afterwards to go through an examination before a jury in the city upon oath.

16325. Well now, according to your experience as an officer of very long standing in the guild, is there a jealousy on the part of the members and of the council who were the body to investigate these claims; is there a jealousy with respect to persons being fit and proper persons and proper characters to be admitted free?—Yes, certainly; I have always known them to be very particular as to the proper conduct or character of the persons applying, in all cases.

16326. That is an ingredient always inquired into?—Certainly I conceive it to be so, and that it ought to be so.

16327. You consider that that is a very necessary ingredient to entitle a man to admission into the corporation?—I do.

16328. Then you think it a salutary regulation that there should rest in the corporation the right of rejecting in cases where they are not satisfied as to character?—Certainly I do, or a postponing for further consideration.

16329. A postponing, if they have not sufficient information, or rejecting, if they are satisfied of the bad character?—Yes.

16330. Do you think the corporation would degenerate very much, if there were not residing somewhere that power?—Certainly it must, because persons of inferior and unfit character might get in.

16331. Have you in your experience known persons rejected on the score of bad character?—Yes, I have known persons applying that would not be admitted, and were rejected merely on that ground.

16332. Mr. O'Connell.] But you are asked whether you knew anybody actually rejected?—In the guild?

16333. Or the corporation at large; in either?—I have.

16334. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] But I dare say that in some cases, instead of going the ungracious length of a formal rejection, it might be intimated to an individual that he had better withdraw his application than put it to the vote, when at last that result would follow?—That is frequently the case, and, as I mentioned, the list of applications for freedom is made out and put in the summons of the council of the house, and then if they are not eligible they may get a hint from some of the members; sometimes they will go about asking for votes to get them in, and they tell them they will give them a bit of advice—to withdraw.

16335. Is that considered a more kind and considerate mode of dealing with a man, than putting the stigma on him by a formal mode of rejection?—I think it is, and then the friends of that man withdraws his name.

16336. Has that often occurred?—Very often.

16337. And you have even known where a man would not take a hint of that kind and pressed on his claim, you have known him at the guild of merchants rejected?—I think I have, but I am not certain.

16338. That

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

Mr. Timothy Allen

5 June 1837.

16338. That is your recollection?—I think I have known some instances of that.

16339. And you certainly have in the corporation at large?—That is done by the board of aldermen; in the first instance they canvass the claims of freemen in their own room, and they reject numbers.

16340. Now you do not attend there?—No.

16341. Mr. O'Connell.] Then how do you know it?—I know it from experience, because I attended the board for 20 years myself when my uncle was town-clerk; I was 20 years his assistant, and used to attend the board.

16342. Then you know of your own knowledge that they do that?—I do.

16343. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Do these council of the house report to the guild at large the result of their investigation upon these cases?—They do not make a formal report, but the list, as I mentioned, that is in the summons, is marked off according to their decision, and that is laid before the hall.

16344. When you say the hall, you mean the board at large?—Yes, the guild on quarter day.

16345. Does the hall then follow that species of report?—Almost in every instance, it is very seldom varied from, hardly ever, but once I think it was.

16346. And I am to understand you that that is not a mere idle ceremony, but you consider it is done in the way of business, and bonâ fide and conscientiously done, that investigation?—Certainly, because in a committee a claim can be much better investigated than in an open hall.

16347. Mr. Lefroy.] Although in a claim founded upon marriage, the time of the daughter's marriage, in reference to the father's freedom, is not very strictly examined, yet is the fact of the father being a freeman examined with less strictness in the case of a right founded on marriage than in the case of a right founded on birth or apprenticeship?—No, certainly, they require as much proof of the father being a freeman to allow his son-in-law to become free as they do his son to become free by birth.

16348. Then in that respect, although a right founded on a claim of marriage has been passed under the head of grace especial, the right itself is examined into with as much strictness as a right founded on birth or apprenticeship?—So far as regards what I have mentioned, that the father must have been a freeman.

16349. Mr. O'Connell.] Or be?—If he is living he must be.

16350. Mr. Lefroy.] Now at the time that, in point of practice, a right founded upon marriage was passed, under the head of grace especial, was the right then less strictly examined than it is now, or less strictly examined now than it was then?—I think just the same.

16351. So that no alteration in that respect has occurred since the Reform Bill?—No.

16352. Well, I collected from you, that since the Reform Bill you had entered admissions under the right of marriage differently from what you had done before?—Yes.

16353. Was that with a view to give a new right, or only to mark more distinctly the difference between the pre-existing rights?—It was to make the classes more distinct; because the Reform Act recognizes marriage as a claim as strong, in my humble judgment, as birth or service, for it reserves their rights to elective franchise.

16354. But does not admit a right by grace especial?—No, certainly not.

16356. When you say they were formerly ranged with grace especial, do you mean by that to say, the right by marriage was of the same nature as the right by grace especial?—I think formerly it was only a compliment. We looked upon admission by marriage as a favour; but since the Legislature has made a separate class, we look upon it now as a strong right, and have made that a separate class.

16357. Do you mean to say, formerly no person had a claim founded on a right

Mr. Timothy Allen.

5 June 1837.

right of marriage?—He had a claim, and it was in every case almost allowed, where he was a proper man.

16358. He had, then, a claim formerly?—Yes, certainly.

16359. Then your ranging it differently did not give him a new right?—We think it has.

16360. Do you mean to say, it has given him a new right in the guild?—Yes; we looked upon it formerly as a mere matter of favour; we look upon marriage as a right now equal with birth or service.

16361. What is the difference between now and formerly?—Because the Legislature has preserved the right by marriage.

16362. That is your reasoning upon it; but I want to know respecting the rights in the guild; what is the difference between the right founded on marriage now and formerly?—None in practice, except the entry.

16363. None but the difference of the entry?—That is all.

16364. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] And the difference of entry was, that you might form your entries with the distinction taken in the Reform Act?—We so conceived.

16365. Mr. Lefroy.] Do you conceive that that entry gives a new original right, or that it is only a different classification of a pre-existing right?—I think it is the classification of a pre-existing right, confirmed by the Legislature.

16366. You said, when you had that book put into your hands by the Member for Kilkenny, that there was the first entry you had made?—Yes.

16367. And you said something respecting an entry in a former book?—That was an entry by the person who was clerk of the guild at that time.

16368. Have you the book?—I have; I can send for it if you wish to see it.

16369. Is it in London?—It is.

16370. Can you now tell us anything about what was the nature of that entry?—I believe there are several such entries in the book, a list by birth, a list by service, a list by marriage; two or three by marriage.

16371. Mr. O'Connell.] Now, for the first time on the 10th October 1831, you made a change in your entries during your time?—1831; yes, that is the first, I believe.

16372. Now at page 373 the following persons were admitted free, "Birth," Arthur King, son of Stuart King, esq.; George Latouche, son of Colonel David Latouche; August is F. Pemberton, son of Alderman Joseph Pemberton; Ernest Augustus Crofton, son of Richard Crofton; Joseph Handcock Scott, son of George Bradshaw Scott; Edward Worth Newenham, son of Edward Worth Newenham; Edward Worth Newenham, junior, grandson of Edward Worth Newenham; Henry Hood Newenham, son of Edward Worth Newenham; John Sutton, son of George Sutton. "Service," Robert Hanna, by service to Robert Hanna. "Marriage," Robert Law, being married to the daughter of Hans Hamilton; Doctor Robert Collins, married to the daughter of Doctor Joseph Clarke. "Grace especial," Charles Palmer Archer, junior; Thomas Meredith Archer, gratis, being sons of the Right Hon. Charles Palmer Archer, now lord mayor; Joseph Parley, for his attachment to the King and Constitution, gratis. Then for the first time you made four distinct classes?—Yes.

16373. Before that you used to make but three?—Three.

16374. Now they ran thus; for example, taking the 15th July 1822, the following persons admitted free, "Birth," Andrew Newton Oulton, son of Richard Oulton, and grandson of Plato Oulton. Now Richard Oulton mentioned in that must have been free himself?—He was.

16375. Then calling him the grandson was only an additional reason for his being made free?—I think so.

16376. "Service," Samuel Brenan, by service to Thomas Thompson; Richard Frazer, by service to Joseph Lamfrey. "Grace especial," Benjamin Colby, esq., being nephew of Captain Woodward, a free brother?—That was a compliment.

16377. "John Anderson, being married to the daughter of Alderman John Exshaw," was that a compliment also?—It was, but on the claim of marriage.

16378. And Benjamin Colby, esq., being nephew, that was the claim he made?—Yes.

16379. Now there are three heads also on the 14th October 1822, birth, service and grace especial?—Yes.

16380. Now,

Mr. Timothy Allen

5 June 1837.

16380. Now, "Grace especial," William Gustavus Adamson, esq., at request of the late lord mayor?—That was the usual compliment.

16381. Then John Whelan, at request of Sir Thomas Whelan, late high sheriff; Richard Ring, for his services as a loyal yeoman, that was his claim?—Yes, all the claim he had.

16382. James Freke, being married to the daughter of the Rev. Mr. Sandys; that was his claim?—Yes.

16383. The Rev. Prince Crawford, for his attachment to the King and Constitution; that was his claim; was it not?—Yes.

16384. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Do not you think it a very good one?—Sometimes it is very proper.

16385. Mr. O'Connell.] William Espinasse, for his services as a loyal yeoman; was that the barrister?—No; that is the attorney.

16386. John Barry, for his polite attention in auditor-general's office; all in the same class with the husband and the lady?—Yes, grace especial.

16387. Patrick Warren, as a long-resident, respectable fellow-citizen?—Yes.

16388. John Carmichael, for his attachment to the King and Constitution?—Yes.

16389. Sir William Cusack Smith, bart., as a humane and upright judge; that was his claim?—It was.

16390. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] He used to be thought so, I believe, at one time?—He was always esteemed as such.

16391. Mr. O'Connell.] So, in the other entries, on the 7th of April, 1823, you have birth, service and grace especial?—Yes.

16392. The grace especial consists of two classes. Now there is "Birth," Henry Darley, son of alderman Frederick Darley; Hulton Pettigrew, Abraham Pettigrew, sons of Henry Pettigrew; George Campbell, son of James Campbell. "Service," Charles Hamilton, by service to James and John Hamilton. "Grace especial," Henry Jellico, esq., being married to the daughter of Sir A. B. King, bart.; Anthony Dijoncourt, Stephen Dijoncourt, jun., for their attachment to the King and Constitution?—Yes.

16393. To those that were admitted by grace especial you always put some reason?—Yes; either being merchants or traders, which is the corporation claim, or as having some other claim.

16394. Now, on the 12th January 1824, there are these entries: "Birth," Edwin Lorenzo Moore, son of Rev. John Moore. Service, John Dalton, by service to Sir Edward Stanley; and you have 18 by grace especial?—Yes; including some by marriage.

16395. As, for example, William Walshe, esq., being married to the daughter of William Shannon, and Lieutenant John Heazen being married to the daughter of James King, and Julius Cæsar Besnard for his services as a loyal yeoman?—Yes.

16396. Now, I ask you, the fact mentioned here is apprenticeship, and you always understood it to be an apprenticeship under indenture, by being bound?—That is the most regular way.

16397. Would you not so understand it in your guild, that a man was actually bound?—I think the more regular way of taking an apprentice is, that it should be by indenture.

16398. Now, is any man bound to another unless he has some written contract by indenture; is not that the way of binding?—That is the regular way, and the proper way.

16399. Now, do the corporation admit people to be bound by word of mouth?—I never knew it.

16400. You never knew a verbal binding?—No, I never did.

16401. Then it was a written binding; you know nothing else can be enrolled but a writing?—Certainly.

16402. Does not that oath mean distinctly a written instrument of binding?—I think so, I have no doubt of it.

16403. "You shall take no apprentice, but if he be free-born, that is to say, no bondsman's son, and for no less term than for seven years; within the first year you shall cause him to be enrolled"?—That is, that the indentures should be brought to the proper office and enrolled, and a certificate of the enrolment written upon them.

Mr. Timothy Allen.

5 June 1837.

16404. And of course you would not conceive any man to be a regular apprentice but a man that was apprenticed under an indenture, a written instrument of indenture fit to be enrolled?—I would not consider it was done in the legal form without an indenture; but I have known instances to the contrary. When persons brought before a jury have been asked for their indenture, and they have given a good account of its having been lost, they might prove on oath the existence of such a thing, but that it had been lost.

16405. That would be a reason why it should not be produced?—But the master would be called for to prove the service.

16406. And sworn, I believe?—The jury have the power to swear him, because my lord mayor is generally present to swear in the jury and the witnesses that are in attendance.

16407. But in your passing a man by service in your own guild would not you, as a conscientious officer, require to be satisfied that he had served by indenture or written binding?—I believe I mentioned before that they require some satisfactory evidence, and they examine frequently the master and the apprentice. The master's voucher, or a certificate from the master, that such a man served his time to him.

16408. By serving his time, meaning that he served under an indenture capable of being enrolled?—Yes, that is the regular meaning of it certainly; but if the jury choose to be satisfied upon the voucher of the master, and upon the apprentice being sworn before the lord mayor that seven years were served bonâ fide without an indenture, they have admitted a man under such circumstances.

16409. I confine you to your guild; is any man entitled to be admitted by service in your guild (you being asked for your opinion by the council) who did not serve under a written contract or indenture?—It is always my duty to give a legal opinion as far as I am capable, which is very little indeed; but I tell them always, if asked, there ought to be an indenture. It is the regular course.

16410. And that is your opinion?—Certainly.

16411. I am not speaking of what the jury may do capriciously wrong, but I am speaking of your duty as an officer of your guild; would you allow a man to pass who admitted he had no indenture?—If I were asked by the council, I should say, "Gentlemen, you should have an indenture produced."

16412. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Has it never occurred to your knowledge that your council have acted otherwise, and that they have been satisfied on the ascertainment of the fact of service?—Frequently.

16413. Then the council are not in the habit of considering the fact of the production of the indenture indispensable?—No, they are not; the indentures in strictness ought to be handed to me, and properly enrolled within a year, and then I would have a certain fee upon them; but I never cared much about that.

16414. And your having a certain fee upon them, without any impeachment at all upon you, may be a very good reason why you should hold the indenture a very regular and a very proper thing?—I am not so very strict after my fees as that.

16415. I know you are not; however, you have said, in your evidence, you consider the strictly regular mode is by indenture?—Certainly.

16416. And you have, as the officer of the guild, a regular fee on that process of producing and certifying the enrolment of the indenture?—Yes.

16417. And although you have stated to your council that, in your judgment, that is the strictly regular and technical mode, nevertheless the council have informed themselves of the fact of the servitude for seven years by other evidence, and have dispensed with the necessity of the existence of an indenture?—Certainly.

16418. Has that often occurred?—It has, very often.

16419. Has it often occurred from the time of the commencement of your services as an officer of the corporation?—It has.

16420. And you had a knowledge of the course of proceeding of the corporation before you became its officer?—I had, because I conducted the business for several years for Mr. Taylor, who was town-clerk and also clerk of the guild of merchants: he was an old gentleman, not capable of taking care of the books, or anything, and I used to do the business for him; and it came to my knowledge during that time.

16421. Then

Mr. Timothy Allen.

5 June 1837.

16421. Then I may say, you have had a knowledge of the course of proceeding of the corporation for more than half a century?—I have.

16422. And during that whole period of time I am to understand, that the council have been in the habit of satisfying themselves of the fact of the servitude of seven years by other means than by the existence of an indenture of apprenticeship?—They have.

16423. And have acted upon that, and admitted the claim of servitude without any indenture existing?—They have.

16424. And that, you say, frequently?—Frequently.

16425. And throughout the whole period of half a century?—Exactly so.

16426. Then it is no novelty, no new invention?—By no means; an old practice, I may say.

16427. Mr. O'Connell.] Then, in that case, no indenture at all was produced?—Of course, when they took a person's word, or his oath, who could not produce the indenture, none has been produced.

16428. What is it you certify; suppose a man is admitted free of your guild by service, what do you certify to the common council, or to the board of aldermen, to get his admission?—There is a certificate drawn out by the clerk, and it is in these words: such an assembly, We the master and wardens of the guild of merchants, do certify, that such a person, of such a street, was admitted to the freedom of the guild of merchants, by birth, service or grace especial, or marriage, as the case may be. Then that is signed by one master and one warden, and lodged in the town-clerk's office, with Mr. Archer.

16429. Have you any here of those certificates?—No, but I could copy one for you.

16430. Then of course the certificate by marriage has only been since the Reform Act?—Yes, it was done before by grace especial.

16431. But you formerly put grace especial into the certificate, if the reason should be marriage?—Yes; or the rather, having married the daughter of such a person, being a freeman.

16432. You formerly put the reason for each grace especial in the same way?—By marriage; the marriage grace especial was put in that way, "the rather" being married.

16433. And, I suppose, being nephew to such a man?—Yes.

16434. And a man who was admitted for his services as a yeoman, that was added?—Yes.

16435. So that wherever you put the grace especial, you added the reason, whatever it was?—Yes, in order that the corporation might know the claim.

16436. And even the man who was so civil as the auditor, you put that, I suppose?—Yes, everything is put down.

16437. Have you your enrolment-book here of indentures?—No, I have not.

16438. Do you certify for persons whose indentures are not enrolled?—Certainly, if the guild pass them, I am bound to certify.

16439. Chairman.] But after you have certified, the individual claimant is to go before another tribunal, is he not, to establish his claim?—Yes.

16440. He has to go before the city at large?—Yes, to become free of the city he must do it, to gain the elective franchise.

16441. Mr. Hamilton.] Were not the indentures formerly stamped; was there not, on the admission of a freeman, a stamp affixed on the enrolled indentures formerly?—There were certain stamps always on indentures; is it the admission stamp you mean?

16442. The stamp of admission was not that formerly affixed on the indentures?—No, it was placed on the petition of the person applying for freedom; the stamp duty payable on admission was affixed to the petition of the person applying for freedom.

16443. Chairman.] Who is responsible to the Stamp Office for the payment of the stamps on the admission of freemen?—In the guild of merchants I am; there is a penalty upon me if I omitted those stamps.

16444. You are responsible that the parties claiming their freedom and admitted to their freedom in the guild of merchants, pay what is requisite as the stamp duty?—What is required by the schedule of stamps.

16445. Is there any investigation instituted by the Stamp Office, or by their officer, into the correctness of the return you make of that stamp duty?—Frequently.

Mr. Timothy Allen.

5 June 1837.

16446. Was there such an investigation previous to the year 1832?—Several times; I have some of them noted down.

16447. Did they ever query the propriety of your reducing the stamp duty on this class of honorary freemen, namely, those by marriage, to 1 l. instead of 3 l.?—No, how could they when the Stamp Act did it?

16448. Therefore the Stamp Office officers recognised the propriety of that distinction?—They did certainly.

16449. Between the years 1815 and 1816, and the year 1832?—Yes, always.

16450. Were they rigorous in exacting the 3 l. stamp duty on all other cases of honorary freemen, excepting those by the claim of marriage?—They were.

16451. How often were your accounts with the Stamp Office subject to scrutiny?—I have some of the years down here when the stamp inspector examined all stamps in the guild of merchants, in the years 1808, 1815, 1820, 1825 and 1828.

16452. Now, upon all those occasions were queries put to you as to your having returned to the Stamp Office the different sums correctly?—Certainly; the way the inspector did, it was to take this journal, go through all the names and make me produce the stamps.

16453. And therefore the officer of the Stamp Office did by that investigation make himself acquainted with the number of parties who were admitted under that right, as well as the number of parties that were admitted under the strictly honorary right?—He did.

16454. And never queried the propriety of this right?—No, they never did, not to my knowledge or recollection.

16455. If this right was one not legally defensible in your guild, was it not his duty to call upon you for the larger amount of stamp duty?—That is the use of the inspector, to see the proper duty is paid.

16456. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] You are considered the officer as responsible under the Act to see the proper rate of duty, according to the particular nature of the admission, has been paid by the party?—Certainly.

16457. And you are accountable, and made to answer to the Stamp Office?—I am, and there is a severe penalty on me for any omission.

16458. Chairman.] What penalty would there be supposing you did not return the proper person to the Stamp Office with the proper duty affixed?—A penalty of 10 l. on each, and I believe a deprivation of office.

16459. Was there any distinction between the rigour with which the Stamp Office looked into the accounts previous to the year 1832 and the present time?—No; I must say they have not been so regular in their visits as they ought to be, because here is a great lapse of time since the last inspection.

16460. Mr. O'Connell.] Is it your opinion that the Stamp Office decided any question about rights?—They must go by their own schedule; such a man coming in so and so must pay so and so; they go by their schedule; I have the stamps here; I have brought with me the stamps for all freemen admitted in the guild of merchants from the year 1796, when I became clerk, to the present day; they are all in London; and the present book is here, with all the stamps in it.

16461. Chairman.] My question was, whether the Stamp Office officers were just as rigorous before the year 1832 as they have been since, in the investigation of your stamp accounts?—Yes, they have.

16462. Mr. O'Connell.] What investigation did they make but to cast up what you returned?—They went over the journal, and saw all the entries, and then they said, show me the stamp for each one by one, seriatim all through, and I showed them every stamp.

16463. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Do they examine whether it is a claim of freedom on right, or a freedom on grace especial?—Certainly; it is 3 l. on grace especial.

16464. But do they examine that fact?—They do; here is the journal to show them.

16465. They check it by the journal?—Exactly.

16466. Mr. O'Connell.] And they did that at the time you did not make a separate class for marriage; they allowed those to pass then, as well as they have since?—They did, since 1815 and 1816.

16467. Though they found it in the class of grace especial, they allowed it to pass?—They did, on the reduced stamp.

16468. Mr.

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

Mr. Timothy Allen

5 June 1837.

16468. Mr. Lefroy.] But the entry showed that it was upon the claim of marriage?—Yes, it did.

16469. Mr. O'Connell.] And they made no difference between the period when you had the class of grace especial, marriage being mentioned as the reason, and when you had the class of marriage by itself?—They have not inspected it since I made the difference.

16470. When did they last examine?—One thousand eight hundred and twenty-eight; they certainly are rather remiss.

16471. Chairman.] Then latterly they have been much more remiss than they were formerly; do you mean that?—Indeed I mean so; I may say I could mention that I have been above 40 years clerk, and there have been only five examinations during that period.

16472. Were those five examinations between the year 1815 and the year 1832?—No, from 1796 to 1828.

16473. How many examinations were there from the year 1815 to the year 1832?—There were three.

16474. Have there been any since 1832?—No.

16476. Now let me have the order for the nephew of the alderman at the same time?—

16477. Mr. O'Connell.] It is Midsummer quarter, 15th July 1822, Benjamin Coleby, esq., being nephew of Captain Woodward, a free brother?—Benjamin Coleby, Midsummer 1822, 3 l. stamp, not being marriage.

16478. Chairman.] Being the nephew of a brother, he was admitted by grace especial?—Merely grace especial under that claim, and he had to pay 3 l.

16479. Mr. O'Connell.] And then they made a distinction between grace especial; when the reason was by marriage they charged but 1 l.?—£1.

16480. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] At no period was such an entry as that of the party being the nephew of a brother considered as conferring a right at all?—No, this was all considered a mere compliment; merely an inducement.

16481. And as strictly honorary freemen?—Yes.

16482. And always so dealt with by the Stamp Office?—Yes, a mere compliment, but they made them all pay 3 l.

16483. But they did not make the man on whom the entry was, that he was married to the daughter of a freeman, pay 3 l.?—No, 1 l.

16484. Chairman.] How soon after that entry was there an inspection?—One thousand eight hundred and twenty-five was the next; 1828 was the last.

16485. Mr. O'Connell.] Will you be so good as look to a person of the name of George Mason as a freeman in your guild?—His name is here.

16486. Show me his admission in your other book.—[The Witness did so.]

16487. By service in your guild, to what trade do you mean, or what business must the service be?—It ought to be a freeman of the guild.

16488. But the guild is the guild of merchants?—Yes, merchants and traders.

16489. Now, may a man be a carpenter, for example, who is free of your guild; would the service to him as a carpenter be aservice so as to give a claim to freedom in your guild?—

16490. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Supposing him to be a freeman of the guild?—

16491. Mr. O'Connell.] Supposing a man to be free of your guild, and to be by trade a carpenter and a trader, as such, if a person served an apprenticeship to him as a carpenter, regularly under indenture, would that give him a claim to be admitted by service in your guild?—It would.

16492. Then, if I understand you, any man who is free of the guild of merchants, no matter what trade he belongs to, an apprenticeship to him gives the claim of freedom by service?—Such service and such claims have been allowed.

16493. Have they been rightly allowed?—That is a legal opinion you will excuse me attempting to give.

16494. What opinion would you give if you were to be asked by the guild?—I think if the master can be made out to be a trader, that it is a good claim; because Lucas's Act explains when it says, that the representatives for the guild of merchants may be merchants or traders.

16495. Well, now, for example, George Mason appears to have been admitted Michaelmas quarter, 10th October 1836?—Yes.

16496. He

16496. He appears to have been entered, "Service to George Brown"?—Very good.

16497. Now, what is George Brown?—I believe this is George Brown the jeweller and silversmith, in Fownes-street; I believe that is the man.

16498. Do you know what George Mason is?—No, I have no knowledge whatever of the man, nor what he is.

16499. Are you aware that he is a writing clerk?—No, I never heard.

16500. Where does that George Brown reside?—In Fownes-street, if it be the same person I mean.

16501. A silversmith and jeweller?—Yes.

16502. See whether he passed any body else on the 10th October 1836, by service?—It will appear in that book.

16503. See whether he also passed a person of the name of Bewley Brown; is there any other George Mason?—I do not think there is; I will search. [The Witness did so.]

16504. You know nothing of this George Mason yourself?—Not personally; I know nothing of him.

16505. He has been admitted to register the 16th February 1837 as a freeman; now, you have a person of that name, and answering that description, as having served Mr. George Brown, the jeweller and silversmith?—It is on that book you read it; it is so.

16506. You have not any other George Mason in your alphabet?—No; I searched 30 years back, and found no other.

Mr. William Jordan Lambert, called in; and Examined.

Mr. W. J. Lambert.

16507. Chairman.] ARE you a professional person?—No.

16508. Are you clerk to one of the guilds of freemen of the city of Dublin?—Clerk to the guild of smiths.

16509. How long have you been so?—About five years.

16510. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you the original books belonging to that guild here?—I brought the books that were in my custody.

16511. What are these?—Two of the transaction books and the book of enrolment.

16512. What date do the transaction books commence?—One of them in 1811, I think, and the other is only kept in succession after that. It goes to 1834; 1835 and 1836 I think is the second; I have them both; I can send for them now.

16513. But the second of them brings down the transactions to the present period?—To the present period.

16514. Where are the books of the transactions prior to 1811?—In the chest of the corporation itself.

16515. In whose custody?—In the custody of the master and wardens, each of the officers holds a key; there are three keys to the chest, and it is usual for the master to give one to each of the wardens, and also to keep a key himself.

16516. Could not you have brought the prior ones?—I could, if I had thought of it, I dare say; but I did not apply for them.

16517. Is this your return?—Yes.

16518. Sign it?—I did.

16519. Chairman.] Is that a correct return?—It is.

16520. To the best of your knowledge?—To the best of my knowledge: it is made out since I came here, and I signed it as clerk to the guild.

16521. Mr. O'Connell.] You have signed the indorsement, but sign the close of it.—[The Witness signed his name at the close of it.]

16522. I see you mention here people whose claims were by birth, marriage and service?—Yes, and grace especial, and the general ordinary admissions, in compliance with what you directed.

16523. Is this a transcript of your book?—If I understand you rightly by the word transcript, wherever I met an admission I always took it down in the list, and gave it to you. It is every admission that appears in the books.

16524. And inserted in this?—And inserted in that.

16525. You have the books here?—I have the books out of which I took that.

16526. Mr. O'Connell.]

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

Mr. W. J. Lambert.

5 June 1837.

16526. Mr. O'Connell.] You must bring them the next day. Now, under the head "claims, whether by birth," &c., I see "Thomas Carlile, service"?—Yes.

16527. To William Truelock?—Yes.

16528. By service, you mean service as a smith, do you?—No, not generally, in our guild; if a professional gentleman takes an apprentice, and he serves a lawful apprenticeship to him, we consider that as a good service, though he did not belong to any of the crafts.

16529. Chairman.] Which crafts belong to your guild especially, then?—The smiths, glaziers, embroiderers, patten-makers, trunk-makers, pewterers, braziers, founders, ironmongers, wireworkers and drawers and girdlers.

16530. Including pin-makers?—Yes, they are deemed wireworkers.

16531. Now, if you make a person free of the guild of smiths by grace especial, and the person who is admitted be an attorney, will you admit by service that attorney's apprentice?—I would say so, provided that the grace especial admission was seven years clear to the coming of the indentures; that he was a free smith to all intents at the period of taking the apprentice.

16532. Mr. Serjant Ball.] Supposing he was admitted by grace especial since the Reform Bill, would you still admit his apprentice in right of servitude?—I cannot say particularly as to that, for there never was an instance of the kind occurred to my knowledge.

16533. Mr. O'Connell.] But if there was a person admitted by grace especial since the Reform Bill, would you admit his son to freedom by birth?—I could not say as to that; the admission does not lie with me.

16534. But would the corporation of your guild?—I could not say, because the admission in our guild is very particular; the mode of admitting, I mean.

16535. What is the mode of admitting?—It is this: prior to any claimant coming forward he presents a petition, (I have some of the copies that I can show you,) saying, the petition of such a one, praying an admission into your honourable guild by service, having served his apprenticeship to such a man; then he sets forth the name of the person, and then claims through that right; the council of the house are then summoned to attend previous to the petition going out to the guild at large; the council then examine it, and at the foot there are the names of the brethren who certify the truth of this petition; that may be signed by one or more of the brethren of the guild as to the truth of the petition; the council of the house only then examine him as to the right of admission, and also as to the truth of it; and when they are satisfied that the petition has come fairly before them it is handed to me, and I read it out at length to the guild, and the guild either pass it or reject it.

16536. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] Can you state whether, in point of fact, since the Reform Bill, any person has been admitted to the freedom of your guild in right of servitude to an honorary freeman created first of all?—No, I can say no such instance has occurred.

16537. Mr. O'Connell.] What apprenticeship do you call service?—It must be seven years, if I recollect the Reform Bill rightly.

16538. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] But can you say there has been no admission in right of birth since the Reform Bill?—Several.

16539. Listen to my question: by any person claiming as the son of an honorary freeman created since the Reform Bill?—It is an impossibility, it could not be; the father must be alive at the period.

16539*. I am not asking what is possible or even probable, but I am asking you what is the fact?—It has never occurred.

16541. Do you conceive if such a thing did occur your guild would admit that person to his freedom, claiming in right of marriage, as having married the daughter of an honorary freeman created since the Reform Bill?—I am convinced they would not at this stage; I do not know what they would do, nor will I undertake to say what they will do in 15 years' time, which is the proper time for the application.

16542. Do you mean, claiming in right of marriage?—Yes, in 15 years' time I will not undertake to say what they will do.

16543. But the proposition is at the present day in your guild, no man entitled titled to his freedom as having married the daughter of an honorary freeman, created such since the Reform Bill; do you consider your guild would admit to his freedom a man claiming in right of having married the daughter of an honorary freeman, who has been made such since the Reform Bill?—My own private consideration is, that they would not.

16544. But you are a public man; what is your public consideration?—What I mean by my private consideration is, I do not mean to speak as an officer of the body, lest it might be considered I was speaking the sense of the body.

16544*. That is what I wish you to do?—That I cannot do.

16545. Mr. Hamilton.] Are you authorized to speak as an officer of the body?—No, by no means.

16546. Chairman.] Have you ever taken the opinion of the body on that point?—The case never arose.

16547. And you have had no opinion expressed by the body, have you?—Never.

16548. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] When you say you cannot speak as an officer of the body, what do you mean?—I did not say I could not speak as an officer of the body; I can speak as an officer of the body; I am speaking as an officer of the body; but I say I would not like it to go forward that I was speaking the sense of the body.

16549. I am asking you your own impression as to what the body would do in a given case; you are competent to tell me that?—Yes.

16550. What is your impression as to what your guild would do in that given case?—In the case of marriage to the daughter of a freeman coming in by grace especial since the Reform Bill?

16551. Yes; what would they do in that case?—My own impression is, that they would not.

16552. And that they ought not?—And if they referred to me I would, as the officer, advise them not to do so.

16553. Then accordingly your impression is, that a person so claiming has no right to his freedom?—Why, that is my individual opinion.

16554. I am asking you your individual opinion?—Not at this stage; I think in time to come it will be a good claim.

16555. Then are you of opinion, that provided the daughter was born after the father obtained his freedom by grace especial, that it would be a good claim for a person who married that daughter to insist on his freedom?—I am, if she were born subsequently to the father obtaining the franchise.

16556. And do you include, in what you are now saying, the fact that the father obtains his franchise after the Reform Bill, by grace especial?—After that, if such a case hereafter should arise, I think they would do so.

16557. Mr. O'Connell.] Then you conceive no daughter's husband can have a claim to freedom unless the father be free at the time of her birth?—I would not think it a valid claim.

16558. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] Then, will it not come to this, from what you have just said, that although if you are aware, by the provisions of the Reform Bill, the father would have no right to register as a voter—you are aware of that—an honorary freeman, created since the Reform Bill?—I am aware of that.

16559. Although the father could have no right to register, yet you think that it is in the spirit of the Reform Bill that the son of that father, or rather, that the son-in-law of that father, should acquire a right to register?—Decidedly so; and at the period the Reform Bill was passing, every gentleman who surrounds me knew that such was understood.

16560. By whom?—In the debates as to it they said the cutting off the grace especial freemen did not cut off the hereditary right derived from them.

16561. After the Reform Bill?—At the time of the discussion.

16562. Who stated that?—I cannot recollect particularly the individual's name; I know that there was such a discussion.

16563. What debates do you allude to?—The debates in the House of Commons, which I frequently have reported as connected with the press.

16564. Mr. O'Connell.] You have under this column, I see, put four different claims, have you not; birth, service, marriage or grace?—Birth, service, marriage or grace; yes.

16565. Do you put, besides that, honorary freemen?—Yes, I did; that is the same as grace, but I did it merely to show that it was by what we call presentation; that it was a mere ordinary admission out of compliment.

MEMBERS PRESENT.

Sir Robert Ferguson.	Mr. O'Connell.
Mr. Hamilton.	Lord Granville Somerset.
Mr. Lefroy.

LORD GRANVILLE SOMERSET, IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. William Jordan Lambert, called in; and further Examined.

Mr. W. J. Lambert.

8 June 1837.

16566. Mr. O'Connell.] WAS the greater number of those admitted before the Reform Bill by grace especial?—A vast number; I do not think there were the majority, but there were a vast number admitted by grace especial previous to the Reform Bill.

16567. Do you recollect any reason why you admitted any great number in the year 1825?—No, I could not say; I was not a freeman of the guild at that time.

16568. Have you the books here from which you took this list which you have given in to the Committee?—Yes, I have.

16569. Will you produce the book containing the entry of 1825, in the month of October?—Here is the entry of 13th October 1825.

[The Witness produced the same.]

16570. Is there any other admission of freemen in the month of October 1825?—No other, except the day they were sworn and signed the book.

16571. Have you the book containing the entry of 6th October 1825?—I have it. [The Witness produced the same.]

16572. Who kept this book in 1825?—The clerk's name is signed at the bottom; John Joseph Byrne.

16573. Do you see any difference in the ink, between one of those entries in this page and another?—No, I do not.

16574. Is Mr. Byrne alive?—No.

16575. When did he die?—I could not say exactly; about three years ago.

16576. He did not die till after the Reform Bill?—No; I do not think he did.

16577. Chairman.] Had he any access to those books subsequently to the Reform Bill?—I do not think he had; he resigned his clerkship.

16578. When did you become clerk?—I was elected clerk of the guild on 9th February 1832.

16579. Mr. O'Connell.] Can you say whether the former clerk had any access to those books since that time?—I can; decidedly he had not.

16580. Are there beseeches or petitions sent to your guild for freedom?—Yes.

16581. Have you any of those?—I have.

16582. Have you any before the Reform Bill?—No; I have not before the time of my appointment.

16583. Are there none remaining?—Previous to my appointment I think it was merely a written document.

16584. At what time did you begin to print the petitions?—I cannot say exactly, but somewhere between two and three years ago.

16585. Will you produce the form?—This is the petition, setting forth the claim of the party.

16586. Have you the beseech founded upon that?—Upon that passing the guild. There is then a certificate to this effect:—"Certificate of Admission to the Honourable the Corporation of the City of Dublin:—We, the master and wardens of the corporation of smiths, or guild of St. Loy, Dublin, do certify, that at a full hall this day assembled," such a person, of such a street, "was unanimously admitted free of said corporation, by," setting forth the same, birth, service or marriage, marriage, as the son of such a person, or as having married the daughter of such a person, or as having served his apprenticeship to such a person. "We therefore beseech that," such a person, "may be admitted to the freedom of the Honourable the Corporation of Dublin as a free smith, as aforesaid. Given at our common hall," on such a day. Signed by the master, wardens and clerk of the guild.

16587. Chairman.] You used the word "unanimously?"—If there was an objection I would run my pen across that word.

16588. Then it is not necessary that the election should be unanimous?—It is not necessary; it may be by ballot if it is called for, but it is very rarely called for.

16589. Mr. O'Connell.] Then there is a ballot taken whenever it is required upon the admission of any freeman?—If, upon a petition coming forward, any member should stand forth and dispute the admission of the party, he would then say, addressing the master of the guild, "I move that this petition be rejected." If that be seconded, the master puts the question upon the petition, and that is taken as the decision of the guild upon the admission.

16590. How is the majority ascertained?—By the balloting-box; the black beans and the white beans.

16591. If there be a majority against him he is rejected?—He is.

16592. Every man votes exactly as he pleases?—Yes; and no one knows how he votes; he votes by the balloting-box.

16593. He gives no reason except his bean?—No other reason. It is usual upon making the motion, for the individual who moves the resolution to state to the master the grounds. He will say, "I do not think this is a fair petition," upon such and such grounds.

16594. Mr. Hamilton.] The petition states the name, residence and right of the person who signs it?—Yes, and the right derivable.

16595. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you any beseeches filled up complete that have passed your guild?—I have not.

16596. Can you get them?—I could by sending to Ireland for them.

The witness was directed to send for some petitions and beseeches which occurred in the year 1825, and for some in the year 1836.

16597. Have you beseeches in your guild?—Yes.

16598. When you are asked about beseeches, do you mean beseeches to the guild of smiths?—No, I do not call that a beseech at all.

16599. How is the documentary part of the admission of freemen conducted in your guild?—In the first instance, there is a petition handed to the clerk; he then comes and states what his claim is; I ask him how derivable, and he states it; if by birth, as the son of such an individual who was made free of your guild about such a time; I then turn over the book, a check book that we have, and I ascertain if it appears upon the book that the father was a free smith; if I find that it appears that he was a free smith, I then say, "Very well, as the son of" so and so; then the quarter day comes, and then the council of the house usually meet some time previous to the guild at large; I then submit the petition to the council of the house, and the council of the house investigate the rights of the party; they ascertain if it so appears upon the books, and if it is found to corroborate the statement of the petition; the council of the house then passes the petition, and I take it up to the guild at large, and I read the petition; I say, "The council of the house have sent forward for the approbation of the guild the following petitions," and I then read them out; I say the petition of such a party, of such a street, claiming admission by such a right, so and so derivable. I then hand it up to the master, and he puts the question upon the petition, that the petition be allowed. He usually marks upon the outside, "allowed," with his own initials; and he then hands it to me; the party then comes to me for the beseech; the beseech is a document coming from the guild, not from the party.

16600-1. To Mr. Archer.] Have you such a document?—It is a certificate and not a beseech.

16603. If a person wishes to become a member of the general corporation, he brings a certificate from a minor corporation, which you embody into the form of a beseech, beseech, and that beseech is the document upon which the corporation at large determines the propriety of the admission of the person?—Yes.

Mr. W. J. Lambert.

8 June 1837.

16604. Therefore, so far as the guild is concerned, they have nothing to do with the beseech?—Mr. Lambert.] When once it goes into the hands of the town clerk we have nothing to do with it.

16605. But that document is a certificate and not a beseech?—It is synonymous with a beseech.

16606. Upon that the documents which have been handed in to the Committee are framed?—Mr. Archer.] Yes.

16607. To Mr. Lambert.] Can you show some of the certificates?—I can show some that were filled up that have not been paid for, that I did not forward.

16608. Mr. O'Connell.] Being paid for is in your opinion essential?—It is very essential to me, as clerk of the guild.

16609. How much do you get?—Fifteen shillings.

16610. Is your evidence this, that a person desirous of becoming free of the guild of smiths comes to you as clerk of the guild, and states the nature of his claim to such freedom?—Decidedly so, himself or relative, or some friend of his.

16611. If he comes to ask it as grace especial, he states some claim he has upon you by loyalty, or something else?—He would come to me and state that he was a respectable ironmonger, or some of the crafts.

16612. Or he would state that he was the son of some free brother?—Yes, in the case of a birth admission.

16613. Or that he has served his time to a free brother; or that he was married to a daughter of a free brother?—Yes.

16614. Then you turn that into the shape of a petition?—Yes.

16615. Was it the habit to draw those up in writing previously to the Reform Act?—I rather think so; but I cannot speak positively.

16616. If such was the habit before the Reform Act, the records are in your possession?—They are with the other records of the corporation of smiths, in the box in Dublin.

16617. Have any been drawn up in writing since the Reform Bill?—Yes, some of them have; it does not follow of necessity that it would be in this printed form; if these words were in writing it would do as well.

16618. May the petition be either verbal or written?—Not verbal; it must be committed to paper.

16619. When did you first adopt a printed form for that purpose?—I think about two or three years ago.

16620. The claim being thus put in writing, the next step is to submit that to the council of the house, and that is done by you?—It is.

16621. They discuss the claim, and decide either for it or against it?—Yes.

16622. If they decide against it, it is put aside?—The power would then exist with any of the brethren to bring it before the guild at large, and so question the decision.

16623. But in general it does not go further than the decision of the council of the house?—The council of the house generally governs the decision of the guild at large. They have confidence in the council of the house.

16624. Then if the council decide against a man, he may get a friend to bring his case before the guild at large?—If there is an individual who at the bottom guarantees the truth of the petition, or two individuals, they are sent for into the council-room, and asked upon what grounds they say that that petition is a fair one. They set that forth, and it would be competent for that party to bring the question before the guild at large, if the claim were negatived.

16625. If the council agree to the claim, it becomes your duty to bring the man before the guild at large?—Yes, to read out his petition.

16626. And to state that the council recommend it?—Yes.

16627. And then the question is put upon it in the guild at large?—Yes; the master then puts the question upon his admission.

6628. And the guild either admit him, or reject him, as they please?—Precisely.

16629. And the mode in which the majority is ascertained is by a ballot?—If demanded.

16630. There is a kind of show of hands in the first instance?—The master will say, "So many as are of opinion that the petition will pass will say, Aye; the contrary, No." If there are a few noes, and no ballot demanded, he will declare that the ayes have it; and if a ballot be not demanded, it is decided in that manner.

Mr. W. J. Lambert.

8 June 1837.

16631. But a single person that says that may demand a ballot?—Not unless seconded.

16632. May two demand a ballot?—Yes; if two demanded a ballot, the master ordered a ballot.

16633. As matter of necessity?—Yes.

16634. If there is a majority of beans against him, you hear no more of him for the present?—Yes; he is competent to be brought forward the next quarter.

16635. And to go through the same process?—Yes.

16636. If there be a majority in his favour, he is then admitted?—Yes; and he gets from me this certificate of admission.

16637. This process of ballot takes place whether the application be by grace especial or by birth, or by service or by marriage?—In every case in which it is demanded.

16638. There is no difference between the nature of the claims, if a ballot be demanded by two persons?—No; that is the general rule on all questions in the guild.

16639. Mr. Lefroy.] It appears, in the form of the petition, that the word "right" occurs; how is that part of the petition filled up. What do you understand by claim of right?—I understand by that, birth, service or marriage.

16640. Not grace especial?—Not grace especial; if it were grace especial, I would, of course, omit the word "right," since the Reform Bill.

16641. Was grace especial, at any time within your experience, or from what you can collect from the document, ever considered as a right?—Never, but just as a matter of favour.

16642. And in that respect distinguished from the other grounds of claim?—Precisely.

16643. Are the same fees charged for admission by right, that is, by birth, marriage or servitude, as are charged for admission by grace especial?—The fees are different.

16644. What are they in each?—By birth, service or marriage, the city fees are 18 s.; stamp duty, 1 l.; guild fees, 18 s. 6 d.; clerk's fees, 15 s.; beadle's fees, 3 s. 6 d. That is, by birth, service or marriage.

16645. What are the fees paid upon admission by grace especial?—Stamp duty, 3 l.; guild fees, 2 l. 2 s.; clerk, one guinea; beadle, 5 s. I am informed by Mr. Archer that the city fees are the same, 18 s.

16646. Then not only the fees are higher upon admission by grace especial, but the stamp duty is higher?—The stamp duty is three times as much.

16647. Mr. O'Connell to Mr. Archer.] Your fees in the corporation at large are the same in each of the four courts?—They are so stated.

16648. Chairman to Mr. Lambert.] Are you answerable for the stamp duty to the Stamp-office?—Yes, the Act makes me answerable for every freeman sworn.

16649. Mr. Lefroy.] Have you accounted to the Stamp-office for these duties?—Since I came in; there were very few sworn into the court since I became clerk.

16650. Mr. O'Connell.] You do not swear them into the court before you send them to the city at large?—They must produce to me a certificate similar to this before I swear them in: "Memorandum, that at Easter assembly, 1827, William Jordan Lambert, smith, was admitted into the liberties and franchises of the city of Dublin by birth, and, on the 11th day of June instant, took the usual oaths, and was enrolled. In testimony whereof, the said is signed by the town clerks, this 20th day of June 1827. Allen and Greene, town clerks."

16651. Then you do not swear in any man in your guild, but a man that has passed the city at large?—No.

16652. And that admission is not an admission of right of freedom in your guild, but is an admission to prosecute the freedom of the city at large?—An admission to prosecute the freedom of the city at large.

16653. And no person is sworn in at your guild but a person who has already been sworn in at the city at large?—Either sworn in as a free smith, or free of some of the other guilds; if we saw a certificate of his freedom as a free merchant, or a free saddler, or a free tailor, by ascertaining that he had passed the city, we would then swear him into our guild; but we would ascertain that he had been admitted into the general corporation first.

16654. Chairman.] Can freemen of the guild exercise any rights belonging to the guild, before they belong to the general corporation?—No, decidedly not.

16655. They must become one of the freemen at large before they can exercise any any rights in your guild?—They must be in some way admitted into the general corporation of the city.

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

16656. Before they can vote for any of your officers?—Yes.

16657. Mr. O'Connell.] So that the mere passing in your guild confers no right in itself?—Nothing more than acknowledging that the claim is a good one; it confers no right till the oath has been administered.

16658. What is the oath you administer to a person who has passed the corporation of the city at large?—It is here.

16659. Have you any book previous to 1815, but this book which you produce now?—Yes.

16660. Will you make out a return, previous to the year 1815, of the modes in which persons had been admitted prior to that time?—The book was not in my custody.

16661. What book have you previous to 1811?—I have the regular transaction book of the guild, and I can send for it.

The witness was directed to procure the transaction book of the guild prior to 1811.

16662. Chairman.] In this respect, of their freedom having no peculiar privileges before they become free at large, do you differ from other guilds?—I understand that there is a difference. I understand that in the merchants, which is the largest corporation, it does not follow as a matter of necessity that they must first be sworn into the city; they will swear them in prior to their going to the city; they act as an independent guild.

16663. Mr. O'Connell.] Do you know how old this freeman's oath is?—I do not.

16664. What is the first date of the admission of members in the book you have produced containing the oath; is it not 1761?—Yes; that was transcribed from the others.

16665. When was this book first kept?—In 1817.

16666. It was transcribed from prior books?—It was; and it sets forth that it was for the benefit of having them correct that they did so.

16667. This is the oath that, as long as you know anything of the guild, the freemen of that guild take?—The last ten years.

16668. They must also take the oath of the freemen of the city at large?—Yes.

16669. This oath of yours contains this passage: "You shall not take an apprentice but of the Protestant religion, and for no less term than for seven years; the same to be bound or enrolled by the clerk of the guild for the time being?"—Yes.

16670. "You shall not keep, teach or instruct any apprentice but what you shall cause to be enrolled in the said corporation book." That is part of the oath?—Yes.

16671. Do you know what the date of the institution of your guild is?—The first charter that I know of is the charter of Edward I., the 26th of March, and in the 14th year of his reign.

16672. This oath could not have been existing so long as that?—No, because "you shall not take an apprentice but of the Protestant religion," could not have been the oath then.

16673. You are aware, that in the city at large each person is bound to swear before the town clerk "You shall take no apprentice but if he be free-born, that is to say, no bondsman's son and for no less term than seven years; within the first year you shall cause him to be enrolled, and at his term's end you shall make him free of this city, if he have well and truly served you." Now, you perceive that, by your oath in your guild and the oath in the city, the apprentice must serve by indenture or deed, or writing, to be enrolled?—That is set forth in the oath.

16674. And your oath means the same thing when it says, "The same to be bound or enrolled by the clerk of the guild for the time being?"—I should think they are tantamount.

16675. And yours is stronger, for you swear that "You shall not keep, teach or instruct any apprentice but what you shall cause to be enrolled in the said corporation book?"—Yes.

16676. Do you, after taking this oath, pass any man for service who has no indenture?—The rule is departed from.

16677. The oath is departed from?—Yes, it is; persons who do not cause them to to be enrolled by the clerks of the guild have frequently had their apprentices admitted.

16678. Have persons been passed as apprentices who are not even bound by any indenture or writing?—I have never known an instance of that; it is usual to bring the indentures to the council of the house.

16679. Here is an admission to the city at large, in which you perceive that it is made part of the terms of the allowance by you, "provided it be by indenture"?—Yes.

16680. Do you allow any persons to be admitted by service, notwithstanding these oaths and this qualification by the city at large, who have not an indenture at all?—I have not known an instance, since I became clerk, of an individual being admitted by service who had not an indenture.

16681. By indenture you mean a regular indenture?—I mean a regular indenture; they have left them with me to be produced to the council.

16682. In all cases?—No, in most cases.

16683. And of course, after this oath, you must be of opinion that that ought to be done; that the indenture should be produced, or legal evidence be given of its having been lost?—I would say in every instance an oath should be adhered to.

16684. But you perceive that in cases where they admit by service, without such an instrument as is capable of being enrolled, they do depart from the oath?—They do; they frequently do not enrol them.

16685. As the officer of the guild, you are occasionally asked what the law and practice of the corporation is?—Frequently, as by my oath I am sworn to give them advice.

16686. Are you a professional man?—I am not.

16687. If you were asked to advise whether they should pass a man who had no indentures at all during his seven years, what advice would you give them?—In that instance, I would advise them to examine the party as to whether the indenture did de facto exist; and if it did, what had become of the indenture, so that it could be accounted for.

16688. But if it was admitted that it had not de facto existed, what would your advice be then?—If no indenture existed, my advice to them would be, not to admit him.

16689. Mr. Hamilton.] How many years have you been free of the guild?—I was admitted in Easter 1827; that is 10 years free.

16690. The words of the oath are, "Bound or enrolled," with the disjunctive particle?—"Bound or enrolled;" either would answer.

16691. The subsequent part of the oath requires that he shall be enrolled in the same corporation book; what does that mean?—This indenture being enrolled, the master of any individual will bring his indenture to me, and say, "Mr. Lambert, here is the indenture of my apprenticeship; you will have the kindness to enrol it in the apprentice-book." And, upon paying 6*s.*, I enrol it; and I make a memorandum, "Such an indenture produced this day; such a party bound to such a party."

16692. But the words of the oath do not expressly state that it is the indenture that is to be enrolled, but the apprentice that is to be enrolled?—I would say the indenture.

16693. Mr. O'Connell.] You have no form of enrolling an apprentice, except by enrolling his indenture?—No.

16694. Have you the book of enrolment here?—No.

16695. You keep a special book of enrolment?—Yes.

16696. What you call the enrolment-book?—Yes.

16697. Containing enrolments of all the indentures that are duly brought to you?—Yes, in every instance where the application is brought to me.

16698. And that book is a book consecutive to a similar book that your predecessor kept?—It is the same book.

16699. Mr. Lefroy.] The guild have acted upon that term in the oath, and admitted persons who have been bound, though their indentures have not been enrolled?—Yes, that has been departed from.

16700. Or rather the practice has been, to construe the oath as not requiring the enrolment of indentures in every case?—The oath has always been in that respect construed favourably to the franchise; it has not been acted upon rigorously.

Mr. W. J. Lambert.

8 June 1837.

16701. Do the council examine as to the precise time of the execution of the indenture previous to their admitting upon a claim of service?—Yes.

16702. Will you state the nature of the inquiry in the case of service which the council makes?—In the case of service, the master would be called. The petition of the person applying to be admitted by service would be then before the council, and they would ask, "Do you know this individual?" He would say, "Yes." "Was he an apprentice of yours?" "Yes." "Were you free at the time you took him an apprentice?" "Yes." And then, if there was no objection as to character, it would be considered as a good apprenticeship, provided it was seven years.

16703. Then they do not put the question as to the fact of the indentures being executed?—I cannot call to mind an instance in which the party had not an indenture executed. My own impression is, that if the indenture were not produced, if an affidavit of the master were given of the existence of the indenture, it would be held good.

16704. Is an affidavit always produced of the existence of the indenture?—No; if there was a doubt, the party would be called.

16705. Mr. O'Connell.] If the indenture itself is produced, of course there is no affidavit?—No; unless there is a doubt as to the validity of the document.

16706. Mr. Lefroy.] If the indenture is produced, is there any inquiry as to the precise time of its execution?—In many instances they ask, "Did this individual serve the period mentioned in this indenture to you?"

16707. Is it the habit to ask as to the precise time of the execution of the indenture?—By no means; I mentioned that before.

16708. Then it is not the habit to put any question as to the precise time of the execution of the indenture, though it is the habit always to put the question as to the fact of the apprentice having served the requisite time?—Yes; there is a practice in Dublin, which is this: it often occurs that the apprentice will be with a master for some time before the indenture is executed, and then he is allowed to have put into the indenture the time that he served prior to the indenture.

16709. That is a practice prevailing in Dublin with all trades?—Yes; to take an apprentice for some time, and not to have an indenture over him at first, but to allow the time so served in the seven years.

16710. Then the practice in all the trades is to receive an apprentice for some time before the indenture is executed?—There is a practice of that description.

16711. Is there any precise limit as to the time?—I have never known of any.

16712. Chairman.] Would you draw any distinction between the validity of an indenture of an apprentice which was completed during his seven years' service, and an indenture which was not completed until a few days after the seven years' service had expired?—I would, decidedly.

16713. Mr. O'Connell.] You would require it to be executed during the service?—If I was asked individually, I would recommend that I would put more faith in an indenture executed prior to the expiration of seven years than subsequent.

16714. Is not it a mockery to execute the indenture after all the covenants of it have passed by in point of time, and nobody is bound by it?—I have stated that I would not place much faith in it.

16715. Have not you good sense enough to see that it would be a mockery?—It certainly would; it would give no binding.

16716. Would it not open a door for the grossest frauds? For example, suppose a man did not serve a day more than a year?—In the admission there could be no fraud practised of that description, because we would take care to examine the master as to whether it was a valid document, or a fictitious one got for the purpose of obtaining the franchise.

16717. Would it not afford an opportunity of their telling you a lie about the service, as the indenture would be upon the face of it a lie?—It would be always open to a question as to the indenture.

16718. Did you ever know an instance of any one producing an indenture which he admitted was not executed during the seven years at all?—Never an instance.

16719. Did you ever hear of such an indenture being set up in your guild?—Never.

16720. Your own opinion would be decidedly against such an indenture?—Yes; I think it would look suspicious; and unless the party accounted for it very satisfactorily, I would recommend the party not to be admitted.

16721. Mr. Lefroy.] But in point of fact there may have been admissions under indentures executed after the time of the apprenticeship expired?—Such a case might have arisen without my knowledge.

16722. Mr. O'Connell.] But you would stop it, if you knew it?—If my opinion were asked, I would certainly desire that the admission should be looked upon with a great deal of care, and that the party should be examined.

16723. Examined as to the fact of the apprenticeship having been bonâ fide served?—Precisely.

16724. But if the apprenticeship were bonâ fide served, and all the requisites which the written indenture required had been fulfilled, would you consider it then a fraud?—No, by no means; I would recommend the admission of the party, conceiving that he had fulfilled what was required; in fact, though the indenture did not exist.

16725. Then, in such a case, could the freeman comply with this oath, "You shall take no apprentice, but if he be free-born, for no less term than seven years, and within the first year you shall cause him to be enrolled." Could that oath, in such case, be kept by an indenture made after the seven years were over?—No; I think the strict meaning of that oath is as it was expressed just now.

16726. Chairman.] Do you mean to say, that it is intended that there should be a written document under that oath?—Yes.

16727. And that that written document should be enrolled with you as clerk?—It would be acting up to the spirit of the oath to do so, but it is a practice that has been deviated from.

16728. Mr. O'Connell.] Would it not be acting also up to the letter of the oath?—Decidedly.

16729. Mr. Hamilton.] Is there a word about indentures in the oath?—I do not think the word "indentures" occurs.

16730. Mr. O'Connell.] Is not some contract capable of being enrolled necessarily implied in the very words of the oath?—Yes.

16731. Mr. Lefroy.] Does the word "contract" occur in the oath?—No.

16732. Mr. O'Connell.] Can you enrol a verbal agreement?—I might. It says, "You shall not take an apprentice but of the Protestant religion, and for no less term than seven years, the same to be bound or enrolled by the clerk of the said guild for the time being."

16733. Does not it go on, "You shall not teach, keep or instruct any apprentice but what you shall cause to be enrolled in the said corporation?"—Decidedly.

16734. Do they enrol every one?—No.

16735. Then they violate that oath?—Parties that take apprentices that they do not enrol do so.

16736. Who have taken this oath?—Who have taken this oath? I cannot state positively, but I have no doubt there were such cases.

16737. You do not enter any man free of your guild but who has taken the oath?—I would consider no man a free smith who did not take the oath.

16738. Would you consider any man capable of taking an apprentice so as to recommend him for his freedom if he was not a free smith, and had not taken the oath?—No, I would not; not an apprentice that would have a claim upon the franchise.

16739. Mr. Lefroy.] Your answer, that the oath has been departed from, depends upon your construction of the term "enrolled" being an accurate construction of the oath?—Exactly.

16740. But you do not mean to say, if you are mistaken in that, that you persevere in saying that the oath has been departed from?—The construction put upon that part of the oath of late years, and within my recollection, has been as to its not being necessary to be enrolled.

16741. Then others have construed the oath differently from the way in which you have construed it?—Yes.

16742. Have those been persons of experience in the corporation?—Persons of experience in the corporation have taken apprentices and have not enrolled them.

16743. They have construed it differently from your view of the interpretation of it?—Yes.

16744. Mr. O'Connell.] After having been sworn by the city at large, that within the first year of the apprenticeship they shall cause them to be enrolled, if a man does not enrol them with anybody does he keep that oath?—I think the oath indefinite; indefinite; I would not know what construction to put upon it when it does not say by whom the apprentice is to be enrolled.

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

16745. Suppose he is not enrolled by anybody?—If he is not enrolled by anybody, I do not think that is acting up to the oath.

16746. Mr. Hamilton.] Does it say where he is to be enrolled?—No, to me it is most indefinite; Mr. Archer can explain it.

16747. Mr. O'Connell.] Does not it say, that he is to be enrolled by somebody somewhere, and if the man is not enrolled anywhere, nor by anybody, is not that a violation of the oath?—I would deem it such.

16748. Mr. Lefroy.] If you could understand the oath, you would say it was a violation of it?—I cannot understand that oath fully.

16749. That is the oath upon which you are now questioned?—Yes.

16750. Mr. Hamilton.] The oath is so very indefinite, that it is difficult to say in what case it is violated and in what case it is not?—Yes.

16751. Mr. O'Connell.] Is not it clear, that it is not violated if the person be enrolled?—I say this, that by that oath, if I were a person in business, I would not know where to get my apprentice enrolled.

16752. If a man came to you with an indenture, if he was a free smith, would not you enrol him at once?—I would, but that is in compliance with the guild of smiths' oath; that is definite.

16753. If you did not know any other place to go to, to get him enrolled, would not that be keeping your oath?—It would, as it regards the oath to the guild, but not to the city.

16754. Would it not be also keeping your oath which you took to the city at large?—I conceive a distinction must be made, that a freeman who had taken the oath to the city at large upon his admission might not belong to a guild at all; I do conceive that oath perfectly indefinite.

16755. Do not you conceive it would be performed if you were a free smith, and enrolled a man within the first twelve months of his apprenticeship within your own guild; do not you think you would in that case have complied with this oath?—I would not think it; I think the oath contemplates something besides the guild.

16756. As you have taken the oath, will you state what it was the oath contemplated?—I only presume so.

16757. When you swore that what did you mean?—When I swore this I cannot exactly say what I meant, for I knew I would have no occasion, not being in trade, to take an apprentice. But I would say this, that I do not know what the meaning of that oath is as to the word "enrolled;" that is to say, I do not know before whom I should go myself if I wanted to enrol an apprentice under it.

16758. Did you take that oath?—I did.

16759. Would you take it again, to-morrow, if necessary?—I would, knowing that I would have no occasion to exercise it in that respect.

16760. Suppose you were a blacksmith and made free of the guild of smiths, and took that oath, how would you understand it?—By applying to the town clerk for information upon the subject.

16761. Would you take it to-morrow?—I would.

16762. When you took it, did you know the meaning of that passage?—When I took it I knew I would have no occasion for any meaning in it.

16763. Had you a meaning?—My impression is, that not ever intending to have an apprentice, I passed the matter over without any particular meaning.

16764. You said you would take the oath to-morrow, if necessary?—If in business.

16765. If you were made a freeman for the first time to-morrow, you would take that oath?—I would.

16766. What would be your meaning in it?—My meaning in taking it would be precisely as it states; knowing that I never would have any occasion to regard that passage.

16767. That is, that if you ever had an apprentice you would enrol him?—I would know that I would never have an apprentice.

16768. The meaning would be, that if you had an apprentice you would enrol him?—I would apply to the town clerk for information upon that passage, to know whether it meant that he should be enrolled.

16769. And if he agreed with you that it meant in the guild of smiths, you would enrol him there?—Yes.

16770. And if he told you that it was at any other place, you would do it?—If he he told me of any other place, and I found that it was the previous practice, I would act upon it.

16771. And you would comply to the oath by enrolling him accordingly?—Yes, I would act according to the practice, whatever it was.

16772. If the clerk of the corporation told you there was a public enrolment office in the corporation at large, and that was the meaning of the oath, would you make the enrolment in the manner he said, whatever the practice of others might be?—I would act according to his explanation.

16773. And not by the practice of others?—If I found that the practice had been departed from, it would serve to depreciate my value of it being necessary.

16774. Though you swore to it?—I would go upon what I knew to be the construction.

16775. Is there any mental reservation in it?—I would adhere to it, if there is a known definite expression which I can comply with.

16776. Do not you know what enrolment is?—I understand the language perfectly; enrolling a deed or document.

16777. Then, if you swore to enrol a deed or a document, whatever the practice of others was in violating that oath, would you violate it?—I would not conceive it violating it.

16778. You having sworn to enrol it, if others did not enrol it, would you follow their practice?—No, I would not; I would enrol it.

16779. Are there any rules and regulations, triennial or otherwise, belonging to your guild?—Yes.

16780. Have you those?—No, the master has them.

16781. Have you a copy of them?—I think I have a printed copy.

16782. Chairman.] Do you not also, in the freeman's oath, swear, "You shall know no foreigner to buy or sell any merchandizes with any other foreigner of this city or franchises thereof, but you shall warn the mayor thereof"?—Yes.

16783. Do you believe that all the freemen think they break their oath, unless they go constantly to the mayor with that sort of information?—I do not, for they do not act up to that at all.

16784. You are aware, also, that the oath says, "You shall know no gatherings, conventicles, nor conspiracies made against His Majesty's peace, but shall warn the mayor thereof." Do you think that part of the oath is regularly observed?—I think that part of the oath is very indefinite.

16785. Do not you also swear that you shall always, "while you are able and in your power, keep a good musket, carabine or fusee, in good, clean and sufficient order?"—Yes, that is another part of the oath.

16786. Do you believe that all the freemen of the city of Dublin, who have the power of having such a musket, carabine or fusee, do keep a musket, carabine or fusee, in good, clean and sufficient order?—They do not keep one at all.

16787. Then, do you infer that parties swearing these various things, and not observing them, are all guilty of a breach of that oath?—No, I distinguish as to what is the practice.

16788. Then there are certain parts of that oath which, by practice, have become of non-usage, and therefore, though the parties do still take this oath in compliance with usage, they do not observe it in those various points?—In various points they do not observe it.

16789. Mr. O'Connell.] The usage is not to do what you swear to do?—The usage has not been to keep that part of the oath.

16790. Are not you able to keep a carabine?—Indeed, I am.

16791. Do you keep it?—Indeed, I do not.

16792. But you have sworn to keep it if it was in your power?—Yes.

16793. And because other freemen do not keep the oath, you consider yourself at liberty not to keep it?—No, I do not conceive that part of the oath means anything but for the protection of the city in case of danger.

16794. Is not the oath positive, with the single qualification of it being in your power, and you say it is in your power, to keep it?—It is.

16795. You have sworn that you shall always, whilst you are able, and it is in your power, keep a good musket, carabine or fusee, in good, clean and sufficient order; you have no carabine?—No.

16796. You have no musket?—No.

16797. You have no fusee?—No.

16798. Then of course you have none in good, clean and sufficient order, though you

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

you are able, and have always been able, to keep one if you pleased?—Yes; I could have kept one since I became a freeman if I chose it, and if I conceived any danger to the city I would keep one, I dare say.

16799. Mr. Hamilton.] You regard it as an ancient oath, taken to a certain extent more for form's sake, than as an oath more solemnly administered?—Yes.

16800. Mr. O'Connell.] The oath ends thus: "All these points and articles you shall well and truly keep, according to the laws and customs of this city, to your power, so God you help, and by the holy contents of this book;" and upon that you kissed the Word of God?—Yes; according to the laws and customs; and I look upon it that the laws and customs of the city now are, that there is no necessity for my having one.

16801. Though you swear to do it?—The last sentence is evidently placed there to define the nature of the oath.

16802. Do you mean the words, "according to the laws and customs of this city?"—I do; the "laws and customs;" the word "custom" must be interpreted the same as the word "right."

16803. Then is what you mean this, that if it has been the custom to violate an oath, you may violate it?—No; but if the mode of acting up to the oath had been defined by the custom, I would have acted upon it.

16804. When the words are explicit, why do you want further definition?—The oath gives a definition.

16805. It says, "You shall always keep a good musket, carabine, or fusee"?—Then the conclusion explains it.

16806. Do you understand the word "customs" there to mean, that if it be the custom not to do a thing that you swear by your oath you will do, that you do not violate the oath by not doing it?—I construe the oath in compliance with the last clause, which sums up and defines the whole. It says, "All these points and articles you shall well and truly keep." Then it sets forth how you shall keep them, namely, "according to the laws and customs of this city." It certainly by that does not mean the laws and customs observed when that oath was first made, but according to the laws and customs of the city subsequent to the period of their framing the oath as they think proper.

16807. Do you understand by that phrase "according to the laws and customs," that if the custom has been not to keep a musket, carabine, or fusee, which you swear that you will always keep, that that custom excuses you from not doing that which you have sworn to do?—I do. I think by the words "according to," it thereby gives the excuse.

16808. Chairman.] You do not admit that you have sworn to do it, if the custom is contrary to the words in the former part of the oath?—I have taken the oath as it is here stated; but then, what I mean to state is this, that I took it with this meaning, that I would act up to it according to what the custom would be. The Committee will see this plainly in this manner. The oath says, "that I shall know no gatherings, conventicles, nor conspiracies made against His Majesty's peace, but shall warn the mayor thereof." I would also view that in the same way as indefinite.

16809. What you mean to say is, that you construe the particular enactments of the oath by what you conceive to be the existing custom?—Precisely so.

16810. And therefore if those particular customs do not require you to pursue precisely what is there laid down, you do not conceive that you have sworn falsely, or violated the oath you have taken?—Decidedly so.

16811. Mr. O'Connell.] Do you think that that phrase was ever binding upon anybody, that you shall always keep a musket, carabine, or fusee?—I should think it was binding in times of rebellion.

16812. Was it binding in the words at any time?—No, I think not. I do not think the party taking that oath would immediately purchase a fusee or a carabine.

16813. Do you think he was bound to have one if in his power?—No, except in the way just mentioned.

16814. When the oath was first introduced, of course no custom adverse to the oath could exist?—If no custom adverse to the oath existed, I think he should have acted up to the spirit of it.

16815. When the oath was first introduced, a man whotoo k the oath was bound to keep a musket?—Yes; that would be my impression.

16816. Then the man who first began the violation of that was guilty of breaking his oath?—I cannot give an answer to that.

 16817. What

Mr. W. J. Lambert.

8 June 1837.

16817. What is your judgment upon that?—My own impression as regards that oath is, that the change of times brought it into disuse, that part of it.

16818. The change of times must have been commenced by somebody?—It must.

16819. The first man who, though able to keep a musket, or fusee, or carabine, did not keep it, was not he guilty of a violation of the oath?—I could not say upon what ground or judgment he came to that conclusion.

16820. In your judgment was not he guilty of a violation of the oath?—The first person that violated the oath knowingly, was guilty of a violation.

16821. But a man that violates it now is not guilty of a violation?—I do not conceive that a man violates it now; within the last ten years such has not been the law or custom of the city.

16822. But the oath is continued to be administered?—I cannot say; I never heard a person sworn to it since I was sworn, and it is ten years ago since I was sworn.

16823. Chairman.] Do you know the date of the oath?—No.

16824. Do you know the date of your guild oath?—No.

16825. Mr. O'Connell.] Can you ascertain the date of your guild oath?—I think I should be able by inquiry.

16826. Do you admit persons to their freedom who are under age?—No, we do not.

16827. You require that the person should be twenty-one at least?—We would decidedly, before he would exercise the franchise.

16828. Do you admit him under twenty-one?—No, we do not; such a thing may exist, but we would not do it if we knew it.

16829. Can you now accurately state what the trades are that belong to your guild?—Yes, accurately; smiths, glaziers, pewterers, braziers, founders, embroiderers, trunk-makers, tin-plate-workers, patten-makers, wiredrawers and workers, ironmongers and girdlers.

16830. Chairman.] What do you mean by girdlers?—That is unexplained; I think it is the persons that formerly made the belt or girdle that went round the waist. I think about the 17th century and long before, it was the habit and custom to use a belt.

16831. Then upon that you find some difficulty in answering positively?—There has been a difference of opinion as to what a girdle was; some say it alludes to a part of the saddle.

16832. Mr. O'Connell.] Do you enrol as an apprentice in that book of enrolment any person that does not belong to one or other of those trades?—Yes; I would do so if it were presented to me.

16833. Supposing an attorney was a free smith?—Supposing a shoemaker came into the guild of smiths by birth, and he took an apprentice, I would enrol him decidedly.

16834. And that would be as good a service in your guild as the patten-makers or trunk-makers?—I would conceive it as good.

16835. Mr. Hamilton.] Can you state anything with respect to the mandamus which was applied for by Messrs. Adcocks, in reference to your corporation?—Yes, and Henderson.

16836. Their admission was first by mandamus?—It was; we were obliged to admit them.

16837. Mr. O'Connell.] Did you resist it?—I cannot say; I was not in the guild at the time; I do not think they did.

16838. Sir Robert Ferguson.] Does it appear by the proceedings that they took the opinion of counsel?—They took the opinion of counsel, as it appears upon the face of the books. The entry is "Tuesday, 13th November 1824. In consequence of notices of writs of mandamus being served on the following brethren, viz. Mr. John Woods, master; Mr. James Scarlet, Mr. Henry Brierly, wardens; Mr. John Pattison, Mr. Wm. Mallet, representatives; Mr. Charles Smyth, P. M.; Mr. John Joseph Byrne, clk. gld., a meeting of the council of the house were assembled to take into consideration the propriety of laying the case of Messrs. Adcocks and Henderson before counsel, when it was unanimously agreed to lay said case before counsellor Perrin. Thursday, 18th, another meeting of the council of the house, which meeting assembled pursuant to notice, to take into consideration the propriety of accepting Mr. Ford's (the attorney for Messrs. Adcocks and Henderson) proposal to Mr. Collett, the attorney for the corporation, to waive all claim to costs on on the condition that the mandamus should go without opposition. Mr. Mark Flower moved that Mr. Brierly (the master's warden) should proceed to Mr. Ford, to notify to him the consent of the corporation to accept of his proposal which motion being seconded by Mr. Joseph Smyth, same was carried."

16839. Mr. O'Connell.] Is there any other entry in this book touching that subject?—No other, except the swearing in the parties.

16840. Are there any documents that show anything else upon the subject?—Yes; I have two drafts of the opinion of counsel upon the subject.

16841. Have you the cases also?—I have the opinions, not the cases; they came to the opinion that, by our bye-laws, we could not resist the mandamus, and that we had better admit them.

16842. Has Mr. Collett the cases?—I cannot say.

16843. Is he alive?—Yes.

16844. Where are the original opinions?—We have not them in the chest, but I dare say the attorney for the guild has them.

16845. Chairman.] This came on before you were a member of the guild?—Before I was a member.

16846. Does that oath for excluding Roman Catholics from apprenticeship continue to be administered to the present day?—It does.

16847. Has there ever been an application made to the guild to alter that oath?—I do not think there has been an application, but I have upon my mind Mr. Mark Flower remonstrating against its continuance.

16848. What is he?—He is a very extensive pin-manufacturer; a highly respectable man.

16849. But his remonstrance was unsuccessful?—He carried it no further; he was an advocate for the admission of Roman Catholics generally into the guild.

16850. But nothing was done in consequence?—No.

16851. Was he much supported in the guild?—In the guild of smiths there is a difference of opinion as to that subject.

16852. Were you ever called upon to assist in any way in your official capacity at the Registry Association?—Yes.

16853. By whom?—By Mr. Collison.

16854. Did you go to the association?—I never went so far as that. He just called upon me and mentioned to me that "Such a person is anxious to get free of his guild; will you draw up his petition?" I asked, "Has he a claim?"

16855. Did he speak to you about the association?—Never; I never was there but twice in my life.

16856. Where was that?—At College-street; I had occasion twice or three times to go there.

16857. What occasion had you to go there?—I think I went there about the admission of a person of the name of Carlile; he was not paying the fees at once, and I went to ask Mr. Collison to endeavour to urge him on to pay what the fees were, and when I called upon him subsequently he paid me.

16858. Had you any suspicion that Mr. Collison might have the means of enabling him to pay?—Yes, I think he has the means if he wished to do so, from his circumstances in life.

16859. From any association or any body?—I could not say positively.

16860. What is your opinion?—My opinion is that he acts for some association or some committee.

16861. What is that committee called?—I cannot say exactly, but I think it is the Protestant Registration Committee or Association.

16862. It does not meet at the Corn Exchange?—I am convinced of that.

16863. Where does this Protestant Registration Committee meet?—At No. 3, College-street, at Coleman's the confectioner's.

16864. Chairman.] Are you in the confidence of that association?—Not at all.

16865. Nor a member of it?—Nor a member of it.

16866. Have any advertisements been put into the paper about it?—Frequently.

16867. Stating its existence and its objects?—Yes.

16868. Mr. O'Connell.] You recognise the claim by marriage in the manner you have specified. Do you recognise a claim by the husbands of all the daughters?—Yes, I would say so, if the daughters were born at the time of the father being free. That has been departed from in a few cases; it was looked upon as a compliment to the father to grant it till the Reform Bill, and it was then recognised as a right.

Mr. Timothy Allen, called in; and further Examined.

Mr. Timothy Allen.

8 June 1837.

16869. Mr. O'Connell.] IS this return, put in by you in consequence of a requisition upon the last day, signed by you?—It is.

[The same was delivered in.]

16870. Do you ever in the guild of merchants, in case of a dispute about admitting a person, ballot upon the question?—It is not generally the course, but such a thing has taken place.

16871. If a person be negatived or admitted, and the question is put, is there not a right in any two members of the guild to have the question decided by a ballot?—Certainly; every question may have a ballot demanded upon it.

16872. And with respect to the admission of persons to their freedom, whatever claim they may make to their freedom, that right exists in case two members of the guild choose to exercise it?—Though it be decided by acclamation in the first instance, a ballot may be afterwards demanded.

16873. And that whatever the nature of the claim may be, whether it be birth, or marriage, or servitude, or grace especial?—Certainly.

16874. Then, if a ballot be required, you proceed in the usual way to ascertain the majority by black beans and white beans?—That is generally the course; or a division may take place of the members upon either side of the house; the "ayes" to the right, and the "noes" to the left.

16875. You say, that if a ballot is demanded, it is conceded?—A ballot, being demanded and seconded, must be had.

16876. And then the question is decided by secret ballot?—Yes; the beans are put in secretly into the balloting-box, and collected by the tellers.

16877. And nobody knows how another person votes?—I suppose that is the meaning of the ballot.

16878. Each person has an opportunity of voting as he pleases, without signifying the way he votes, and without assigning any reason?—Certainly.

16879. Therefore in your corporation no man can have his freedom, no matter how plain the claim of right may be, in point of fact, without undergoing a ballot, if two members choose?—If it is demanded; but it is very rarely the case.

16880. Mr. Lefroy.] That is the mode of exercising the judgment which the corporation have a right to exercise upon the claim of any person to admission to his freedom?—Certainly. When there is a difference of opinion, the only ultimate way of deciding it is by a ballot, if demanded and seconded.

16881. Do the members of the corporation consider themselves as exercising less a judgment upon the claim, because that is expressed by ballot, than if it was expressed in any other way?—It is the only way of ultimately deciding a contrariety of opinion.

16882. It is only a mode of expressing the different judgments of the members?—It is a decided mode of finishing a difference of opinion upon the point.

16883. Mr. O'Connell.] It expresses the opinion of the majority; but nobody knows who the majority are?—They ought not to know it.

16884. And nobody can know what reason induces any particular member to vote as he does?—No.

16885. Do you enrol indentures in the guild of merchants?—Indentures of apprenticeship have been enrolled.

16886. You are aware that the condition is, where the admission is by service, that "if it shall appear by indenture"?—Always.

16887. Then, according to the rule of the corporation of the common council, the indenture is always mentioned in the admission as a condition of the admission?—Yes.

16888. Has the common council any place for enrolling indentures?—The guilds have. There is no enrolment office of the city.

16889. You are aware of the freeman's oath?—Perfectly.

16890. Then, when a freeman swears that he will cause his apprentice to be enrolled within the first year, he means enrolled in his own guild?—I should think so, because I never knew an enrolment in the city.

16891. You never knew an enrolment anywhere but in the guild?—No.

16892. And of course an enrolment in the guild would be a compliance with the oath?—It would.

16893. The oath is express that the person shall, within the first year, cause the apprentice to be enrolled?—It is.

16894. It

Mr. Timothy Allen.

8 June 1837.

16894. It appears that, in point of fact, that is not done in many instances?—In many instances it is not; it has been very much relaxed of late.

16895. But the oath continues the same?—It does.

16896. It is more relaxed of late than it was formerly?—It certainly has for many years been relaxed; in my own guild formerly we would have from ten to twenty enrolled in a year, and of late years I do not think upon the average there have been two. Upon the average I do not think there have been three per annum the last twenty years.

16897. The admissions by service have increased very much, particularly since the Reform Bill?—The entire body of admissions have increased, and the services of course.

16898. Have the grace especials increased since the Reform Act?—No, quite the contrary; because the Reform Act gives them no encouragement.

16899. Then when you said that the entire body had been increased, you did not mean to include the grace especials?—No, there have been a few grace especials, but not many.

16900. In the common council, if there be a difference of opinion as to an admission, is the question put upon the admission?—Yes, put upon each.

16901. There is a right in the common council to demand that the person shall be balloted for?—Certainly.

16902. May one member in the common council call for a ballot?—He must be seconded.

16903. Then if any two require that the question shall be decided by ballot, it must be decided by ballot?—Yes; but that has not been the practice.

16904. But the right exists?—Yes, because it is the rule of the house.

16905. So that no man can compel the common council to admit him without the ordeal of a ballot, if any two choose to demand it?—If it is demanded, he must go through it before he can be admitted.

16906. And that ballot is the same in the common council as it is in the guild of merchants, a secret ballot?—It is conducted in the same way, by beans and a balloting-box.

16907. And with a perfect power to each individual to conceal his vote?—Yes, but it is not the practice to do it on beseeches, nor in the guild either.

16908. Is not the probable reason why it is not usual, that, as the question is first put publicly, there is a tolerably distinct judgment formed of how the majority is, and people do not like to go through the trouble?—That may be one reason; a ballot would not be demanded unless the party had an idea that they would carry a majority upon the ballot.

16909. If they thought that people who voted publicly one way might privately another way?—That might be the supposition, but I would not conceive that a man could do such a thing; I think that a man ought to tell his honest sentiment out.

16910. Chairman.] You are not an admirer of the ballot system?—It is a way of deciding questions, but I think it is more manly to speak out.

16911. Mr. O'Connell.] Does not the corporation of Dublin in all its branches recognise the ballot upon every question upon which any two members choose to demand it?—Yes, but that is not the common practice; perhaps at an assembly there will not be above two or three ballots in the course of a day.

16912. But you do decide questions by ballot constantly?—Yes.

16913. And at almost every assembly there is a call for a ballot?—Yes.

16914. Are not the sheriffs nominated by the common council by ballot?—They are chosen, but that is done by lists of names given in. Lucas's Act requires the ballot upon that.

16915. There is nowhere where the right to ballot is more extensive than in the corporation of Dublin?—Certainly.

16916. Chairman.] Is it well known who votes either way?—No. Attempts have been afterwards made to make out lists, but I believe they are never correct.

16917. Mr. O'Connell.] In voting for sheriffs, if a person endeavoured to find out how each individual voted, he would be apt to be foiled?—Yes; that is very true.

16918. Chairman.] How long has the custom of enrolling apprentices been disused to a large extent?—It is not disused; but for twenty years back enrolments have not been attended to, and have not been made in the books of the guild of merchants as they were formerly.

16919. Then

Mr. Timothy Allen.

8 June 1837.

16919. Then for the last twenty years that part of the oath has not been very strictly observed in the guild of merchants?—It has not.

16920. Mr. O'Connell.] But the oath has been always administered?—Yes; to every freeman.

16921. As that practice is only diminishing, and is not quite extinct, do not you think that any man who swears that within the first year he will cause his apprentice to be enrolled, and does not enrol him, violates the oath?—As much as oaths of that kind are attended to, it certainly is improper.

16922. You have taken the oath?—I have.

16923. If you had an apprentice would not you feel yourself bound by that oath?—I think I should. On the last day the oath about the musket, carabine and fusee was mentioned; that is not observed.

16924. Have you the oath of the guild of merchants?—I have. [Producing the same.]

16926. And that oath, though it is taken by every member, is not observed?—Not strictly.

16927. You keep an enrolment book?—I do.

16928. And you are always ready to enrol according to this oath?—I am; and it is my duty.

16929. You have a fee upon it?—I have.

16930. So that it is both your duty and your interest?—Certainly.

16931. And accordingly a book is kept to this day?—It is.

16932. And there are enrolments made in it till the present period?—Very seldom; but there are some.

16933. What is the date of the last?—I think that for the last twenty years there have not been three a year.

16934. Were there any last year?—I think not one.

16935. Or the year before?—I think not.

16936. Have you a book of bye-laws and regulations?—We have an ancient book of bye-laws, but the journals contain the bye laws. There is no entry in this ancient book for a long period.

16937. Do you print your bye-laws?—No.

16938. Is there any other oath taken but the oath which you have shown?—Not in the guild; not by the freemen.

16939. Can you state when you last enrolled anybody?—I think about three years back.

16940. The meaning of swearing to enrol is to enrol in the particular guild?—Of course it is.

16941. There is no other place?—There is no enrolment in the city at large that I ever heard of.

Mr. Lewis Henry De Zouche, called in; and Examined.

Mr. L. H. De Zouche.

16942. Chairman.] WHAT are you?—Clerk of the Corporation of Tailors, in the city of Dublin.

16943. How long have you been so?—Since the 28th of May 1835.

16944. Who was clerk of that corporation before you?—William Jackson, an old man; he was clerk for nineteen years.

16945. Had you assisted him in the transacting of the business, previous to your appointment?—Never.

16946. Your first acquaintance with the business of the corporation was from the date of your appointment?—Yes, officially.

16947. How long have you been a freeman of the corporation?—Since July 1825.

16948. Did you attend at all to the general business of the corporation previously to your appointment?—Very much.

16949. Are you a professional man?—No; I am an upholsterer.

16950. What was your ground of admission?—Birth.

16951. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you possession of the books?—Yes, I have.

16952. Have you made a return of the number of persons admitted from 1831?—Yes, I have. I also made a return of the number of persons admitted from July 1821 to July 1831, separate from the other.

16953. Have you the books here?—I have them in London.

16954. And

Mr. L. H. De Zouche.

8 June 1837.

16954. And you can produce them when wanted?—I can.

16955. Have you the oath taken by the corporation of tailors upon the admission of freemen?—I have.

16956. Have you made any alteration in your mode of proceeding since the Reform Bill?—None.

16957. How do persons become free of your guild?—They are admissible by birth, service and marriage; we conceive them admissible also by grace especial.

16958. What steps does a person take in order to get admission?—The person, or another for him, puts forward a beseech to the guild.

16959. A beseech or a petition?—It is the same; we call it a beseech in our guild.

16960. Chairman.] That is a different document from that which he afterwards produces to the general corporation?—There is a certificate from the guild to the corporation of the city; there is, first, a beseech to the guild, and then, if he is admitted to the guild, there is a certificate forwarded to the town clerk's office and through the town clerk to the corporation of the city.

16961. And then upon that certificate the guild draws up a beseech to the corporation of the city?—This is answered correctly to the preceding question, as it is to the town clerk our certificates are sent, and by them to the city.

16962. Mr. O'Connell.] There is first a beseech to your own guild; have you any of those beseeches here?—No, I have not; they never were preserved, to my knowledge.

16963. Have you a council of the guild?—We have.

16964. When that beseech is presented, what is done with it?—It is first laid before the council, and if it passes there, it is sent down to the lower house of the junior brethren, and then may either pass or be negatived there, and in the event of its being passed it is forwarded to the town clerk's.

16965. The council first deliberate upon it, and either agree to it or disagree?—Yes.

16966. They are free to do either one or the other?—A good deal depends upon the character of the individual.

16967. They are free to reject him or to receive him?—I rather think they are not free to reject a legal claimant.

16968. Is not there a vote upon it?—There is, but it is rather determined by the man's character. I will instance a case: there was a person brought forward some time ago; he was wishing to prosecute his claim by marriage; his father-in-law was a person who was not of good character; in fact, he was a drunkard; and the son-in-law coming in under his auspices, he was looked upon as a doubtful character and his beseech was postponed. till a person, separate from his family, gave him a good character, and then he was passed.

16969. If a man be a bad character, you do not admit him?—I do not recollect an instance but the one I have mentioned.

16970. In your opinion, can you reject him for being a man of bad character?—I think he would be rejected. I only give it as my private opinion. I cannot instance any other case in which the guild have rejected a man.

16971. If a man has served his apprenticeship to a free tailor, and is a man of good character, you are likely to admit him?—Yes.

16972. Mr. Lefroy.] You conceive that in that case he has a right to be admitted?—I conceive he has.

16973. Mr. O'Connell.] Do you know Mr. Jeremiah M'Carthy?—Yes, by character.

16974. Is not he a man of good character?—He is esteemed such.

16975. Did not he serve his apprenticeship to Mr. M'Gill, the master of the guild of tailors?—I do not know that.

16976. Being a man of good character, and supposing the fact established to you, that he had served a regular apprenticeship with great credit to one of the most respectable men in the guild, Mr. M'Gill, would or would not he be admitted?—It would be against one of our bye-laws; he is not a Protestant.

16977. He is a Roman Catholic?—I believe he is.

16978. You have a bye-law, excluding all but Protestants?—I recollect now that I think the charter confirms us in that law.

16979. Have you the charter here?—I have a copy of the charter.

16980. What is the date of that charter?—It is King William's charter, confirming our other charters. I think we have a charter from John.

16981. There is no Protestant mentioned in the charter of John?—No, I think there is not.

LORD GRANVILLE SOMERSET, IN THE CHAIR.

William Knight Dehany, Esq., called in; and Examined.

W. K. Dehany, Esq.

9 June 1837.

16982. Chairman.] YOU are Solicitor to the Excise?—I am.

16983. You are a barrister as well?—I am.

16984. How long have you been solicitor to the excise?—I have been the solicitor of excise in England since the year 1829; I was previously in the same office in Scotland, and in Ireland also.

16985. How long were you solicitor to the excise in Ireland?—From the year 1827 to the year 1829; about two years; rather better than two years.

16986. Would you state to the Committee generally, as far as the excise revenue is concerned, what is the law with regard to the granting of licences to sell spirits by retail in Ireland?—Does your Lordship mean the rate of licence?

16987. What I want to know is, whether or no there is any scale of duty?—There is; the scale of duty will be found in the licensing Act, the 6th of Geo. 4, c. 81.

16988. Will you have the goodness to take the Act, and state to the Committee how the scale of duty is arranged under the Act?—The scale of duty to retailers of spirits is rated according to the value of the house; if the dwelling-house in which the retailer shall reside or retail such spirits, at the time of taking out the licence, shall not, together with the offices, courts, yards and gardens therewith occupied, be rated, under the authority of any Act of Parliament for granting duties on inhabited houses, at the rent of 10 l. per annum or upwards, or shall not be rented or valued at such rent or annual value or upwards, the licence duty is two guineas. If at 10 l. and under 20 l., four guineas; at 20 l. and under 25 l., six guineas; 25 l. and under 30 l., seven guineas; 40 l. and under 50 l., nine guineas; and any amount above that, ten guineas.

16989. Would you state to the Committee in what way the excise officers are directed to ascertain the value, for the purpose of stating what duty each person licensed shall pay?—Previously to the repeal of the duties on inhabited houses in Great Britain the assessment for the house-duty was taken, and was bound to be under this the assessment upon which the rate of licence was ascertained.

16990. What year was that duty repealed?—That was repealed two or three years ago; but I should add, that that did not apply to Ireland. The Committee are aware, of course, that the inhabited house-duty was not in force in Ireland, and therefore the Act of Parliament the 6th Geo. 4, c. 81, by the 5th section, directs that where there were not those means of ascertaining the rate, not having the house assessment, that the party applying for the licence is to produce a certificate, signed by himself and the owner or landlord of the house, stating the true rent for which the premises are let, or if the full rent has not been reserved in consequence of any fine having been paid at the commencement, or any improvement by the tenant, but a lower rent is reserved, then the true annual value. If the officers of the excise should be dissatisfied with that certificate, they are authorized to take other means of valuation, which are either upon their own judgment ment at times, or, where there is any difference between the excise officer and the applicant, a surveyor is resorted to.

16991. Supposing the excise officer to be dissatisfied with the value stated by the applicant for a licence, what means has he of ascertaining the true value?—He may call in a surveyor. The Board authorizes him to call in a surveyor and have it valued; but unless he shall see ground for being dissatisfied, the usual course is to be contented with the certificate of the rent signed by the landlord and by himself.

16992. Is the judgment of the excise officer in any degree regulated by the rate of assessment under local Acts?—They have at times referred to them, but the Board has seldom, indeed never authorized them to go by those; they have looked at those by way of forming for themselves some judgment of whether they should be satisfied with the rent certified by the landlord and the tenant, or should make a further representation for additional inquiry.

16993. You are aware of the Act of the 9th of Geo. 4, c. 82, by which local commissioners may be established in Ireland for the purpose of rating the inhabitants for certain local purposes?—I never looked into that Act.

16994. Supposing the excise officer to be dissatisfied with the value stated by the applicant, would he be justified in apportioning a higher class of duty, and leaving the applicant to disprove the estimate of the excise officer?—It would be a circuitous proceeding for the applicant to do that; it must be either by his refusing to take out the licence at the rate at which the officer insists on his doing so, and then being prosecuted for not having a licence; he may make his defence before the magistrates on that ground, so as to be exempted from fine, or if in strictness fined, to get exonerated from the fine imposed; or he might take out a licence at the rate at which the officer would state, and then proceed before the magistrates as for an over-payment, his licence being higher than he was himself of opinion he ought to have taken out, and so try the question of value.

16995. Would the natural course of proceeding be, for the excise officer to grant the licence at a lower rate than what he believes the value of the house to be, and then to prosecute the parties for selling spirituous liquors without a proper licence?—We have hardly had a case of that sort arise, because the officer does not do it merely of his own authority; if there is any dispute about the valuation, it is reported to the Board, and the Board directs him what measures to take, which is usually by the employment of a surveyor, and that has put an end to the dispute, or not exacting to the highest amount; if there is a doubt upon it, it is always given in favour of the party asking for the licence.

16996. I presume, by not exacting the highest amount, you mean a matter of 10*s.* one way?—Precisely; supposing it was a measuring cast, whether it came within 20*l.* or 25*l.*, one of the points on which the licence differs, it is a considerable importance to the individual, and in a case of that sort the Board would take the lower rate.

16997. They would allow an individual whose house was worth ten guineas, to take out a licence for 10*l.*?—Ten pounds is the sum, if under 10*l.*; if above 10*l.* we should call upon him to take out the licence at the rate of 10*l.*

16998. That would be a higher class than if under 10*l.*?—Yes, each individual case must depend upon its own circumstances.

16999. Is it the duty of your officers to take care that persons do take out the licence according to the proper class?—Certainly.

17000. Is it not just as much their duty to see to that, as to see to the proper discharge of any other duty under the direction of the excise?—Certainly it is; and we have accordingly from time to time reports of that description, that they are not satisfied with the certificates presented.

17001. Can you state to the Committee whether, in your opinion, the licences of persons holding houses for the retail of spirituous liquors are, generally speaking, properly assessed in Ireland?—I believe they are; but I speak upon the impression that the officers do their duty as they ought to do; that the certificates of rental are produced, and that they see that those are such as they should be satisfied with, or at least should have no cause of dissatisfaction.

17002. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] You are not the solicitor of excise for Ireland?—No.

17003. There is another gentlemen who acts as solicitor of the excise in Ireland?—Yes.

17004. You act here?—I act here; we have cases referred from Ireland; if there there is any doubt on the mind either of that gentleman himself, or of the Board on his opinion, it is referred to me ultimately.

17005. When questions arise?—Yes.

17006. But as to the ordinary routine, that is not within your province?—No; the ordinary routine can hardly be said to be within my province, except that every case may come before me.

17007. Those are the extraordinary cases that come before you?—Yes.

17008. Chairman.] By extraordinary cases, you mean cases involving some peculiar difficulties?—Yes, or some particular principle.

17009. But I believe you are at the head of the whole of the law department of the excise?—Yes.

17010. And that, therefore, the gentleman who acts in Ireland is subject to your general control?—He is; I do not, by my own immediate direction, interfere with him, but he would be bound to act by my opinion, communicated to the Board. I have an instance of that in these papers on the subject of licences, which I have brought with me, where upon the mode of rating he had taken, in my opinion, an erroneous view of it. He thought that the part of the premises which was occupied for the sale of spirits was alone to be taken into consideration in the rating, under the Act of Parliament; I was of opinion it ought not to be that; that you must take the whole of the premises which are occupied, according to the terms of the Act.

17011. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] That is, when your opinion is adopted by the Board, the solicitor in Ireland is bound by it?—Is bound to act upon it.

17012. But if your opinion should not be adopted by the Board, I take it the solicitor in Ireland is not obliged to follow your directions?—No, he would follow the directions of the Board.

17013. So that whenever the Board adopts your opinion, then the solicitor in Ireland is bound to adopt the order of the Board?—Certainly; I know no case in which, if we have differed, the Board has not either adopted my opinion, or if they had a doubt upon it, submitted it to the Attorney-general.

17014. But still it is the order of the Board that he is bound to follow, and not your opinion?—Yes.

17015. Chairman.] That is the case with regard to law matters in England?—Yes.

17016. That you act under the authority of the Board in all those concerns?—Yes. I will just read to you the description of order which is made in a case of the kind. I just now mentioned I was of opinion the solicitor of excise in Ireland had taken an erroneous view of the Act, and I differed with him, and the order of the Board upon it is, "Report against and communicate Mr. Dehany's opinion to Mr. Saurin, and acquaint him, that the licence duty has invariably been imposed in this country and in Scotland, since the passing of the 6th of Geo. 4, c. 8, on the principle there laid down."

77017. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] Give us the date of that?—26th January 1835.

17018. Have you any reason to know, or suppose, or believe that, prior to the date of that order or minute of the Board, Mr. Saurin's opinion had been acted upon with respect to the mode of laying the duty?—No, I think not; I think it was the first time the question was brought before him.

17019. But have you any reason to suppose that the practice may have gone on without notice?—No, I should apprehend the contrary; that many of the collectors, that is, the principal officers, having been in England and in Great Britain, where the contrary was the practice, that they would have gone on what was the usual practice.

17020. But you have no reason for that other than conjecture?—No; my impression certainly would be, that the practice would have been contrary to that which Mr. Saurin reported it ought to have been.

17021. Do you happen to know how the question came to be raised in that particular instance?—The question came to be raised in that instance upon an application that was made from several parties who had been registered as voters under the Register Act in Ireland for the 10 l., and who made an application to show their rents did not amount to so much. And the collector upon that reported and gave a description of each of the premises, and it appeared, on taking the whole premises together, that they were worth, in each instance, I think it was 10 l.; but Mr. Saurin supposed that they ought not to be rated at that, because cause the part that was merely used for the purpose of retailing of spirits would be, taken by itself, of less value.

17022. Chairman.] Will you state to the Committee, referring to the 2d & 3d Will. 4, c. 88, s. 7, namely, the Reform Act for Ireland, whether you conceive that the way in which parties are to be considered as holding a tenement worth 10 l. under that Act is the way in which, under the Excise Act, they ought to be considered as holding a tenement worth 10 l.?—[The Witness referred to the Act.]

17023. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] Have you ever read that Act before?—No, I never have.

17024. You never have considered it?—I have not.

17025. You are a gentleman at the bar?—Yes. This would not apply to our excise licences, because other lands or tenements may be jointly taken in with the house in which the party carries on his business, and which would give him the 10 l. franchise, at the same time that would not be the rate by which we should assess him. We have had cases of that description.

17026. I was going to ask you whether or no you, in any manner, consider the registry of voters for Members of Parliament for boroughs a criterion of value?—I will state shortly what has occurred upon the subject, on reference to some papers. In October 1834, the collector of Mallow collection reported that his attention had been drawn to the subject of several persons in his collection and district being registered as 10 l. voters who were paying their licence duty at a less rate, and that in consequence of that he had had a revaluation of their premises, and it raised the licences in many instances; no question occurred there as to whether he was to be bound by the registry or not; the circumstance suggested it to him to take a closer view of their premises, and he ascertained then that they ought to pay, according to the value of them, a higher rate of duty.

17027. What was the result?—It was opposed, but the most of them paid the higher rate of duty; it was proved the tenements were of greater value; the circumstance of their having registered only brought it to the collector's notice.

17028. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] Then the value they put on the premises when they came to register turns out to have been the true value?—Yes.

17029. And the value they put upon them for the purpose of the excise turns out an undervalue?—Yes.

17030. Chairman.] That was in the year 1834?—Yes.

17031. What part of the year 1834?—22d of October is the date of the collector's report.

17032. In consequence of that case, was the opinion taken of Mr. Saurin?—Not on that case.

17033. Was the attention of the Board drawn generally to this particular class of cases in Ireland?—No, not particularly, the attention of some of the officers was; and in November 1834, the collector at Sligo, I think it was, raised the rates of duty upon several of them.

17034. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] At Londonderry do you recollect any instance?—I have some other instances. Upon their being raised they applied to the Treasury, and there was a report, the collector's report, gave a description of the premises according to his opinion of them, as relative to the excise in each instance where the party had been raised.

17035. Does the principle that occurred there apply to other cases?—Upon this the parties in only two instances were relieved, but some of them afterwards did get relief again, upon this occasion they paid their higher licence duty, but the question being by some of them agitated again in the second year, they had not so high a rate of duty. The question was considered in a legal point about December 1834. There was a case from Londonderry; it was the case of a person of the name of Morrough.

17036. Chairman.] Are there any principles laid down in that case applicable to the ascertainment of value?—It was upon this that the opinion was given, that we could not be guided by the register, because it was stated that he was registered as a household qualification, taking in the value of his trade, and his licence was calculated according to the value of the house alone; we were decidedly of opinion that the licences ought not to exceed four guineas; that was the lower licence.

17037. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] Whose opinion is that?—The solicitor's opinion on on the collector's report, stating that which also the party states in his petition to the Treasury, that the principle upon which he was allowed to register, as decided by the registering barrister, was that, no matter what rent he paid under 10 l., if he derived from his business the clear yearly value of 10 l. over and above the rent.

17038. Mr. Lefroy.] Is that the statement of the petitioner?—It is.

17039. Which also is repeated by the collector in his report?—Yes.

17040. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] That is from Londonderry?—Yes.

17041. Do you happen to know who the registering barrister was there?—No further than from the petition itself, Counsellor Hamilton; no further than that, because my information does not go beyond this document.

17042. Chairman.] In consequence of that petition was any inquiry made by the excise department into the principles by which the registering barrister was guided in ascertaining the value in cases of applicants for the elective franchise of the borough?—No inquiry was made; we assumed, as it was stated in the petition, and also repeated by the collector in his report, that principles of that description had been adopted in the registry, and we thought them inapplicable to our course of ascertaining the value; we were only to go upon the value of the premises, and according to that statement other circumstances than that of mere value had been taken into consideration.

17043. Do you conceive that it is your duty to ascertain the value upon houses for the purpose of excise licences, by ascertaining also the clear yearly value of the house and premises?—We take the value of the house and premises; we take the certified rent in the first instance, and if we have no reason to be dissatisfied with that, no further inquiry is made.

17044. Mr. Lefroy.] Then, primâ facie, you take the rent as the value?—Yes.

17045. Chairman.] Do you believe, taking the rent as the value, that, generally speaking, the revenue is collected upon proper principles?—I believe it is.

17046. And in conformity with the intention of the Act of Parliament?—I believe so.

17047. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] I think you stated that the principles on which you estimate the value, and the principles on which it is estimated under the Reform Act, are not the same; did I understand you to say that?—No.

17048. Chairman.] Your answer to a former question of mine, as to the comparison between the Reform Act and the Excise Act, was to this effect, I believe, namely, that there were various other matters which might be cumulative of the value of a house and premises in the case of the Reform Act, which were not to be admitted in the case of the Excise Act?—I stated, and the answer occurs to me again, that according to the Reform Act, which your Lordship showed me, there were other premises or land or tenements which might be taken, in conjunction with the premises which were occupied for the purpose of the sale of spirits, and that, therefore, that would not be applicable to our mode of rating, which takes only the premises on which the trade is carried on.

17049. By the premises on which the trade is to be carried on, do you include all the premises within what may be termed the house and curtilage?—Yes.

17050. Therefore you would take in everything that was fairly attached to the house as the value of the premises?—Yes, the garden and so on, according to the terms of the Act of Parliament.

17051. Gardens, outhouses and sheds, provided they were all within?—All within and used as part of the same premises.

17052. But you would not take into account premises actually distinct from the premises to be licensed, although they belonged to the same occupier?—No.

17053. That is the distinction?—Yes, that is the distinction we have made in reference to the Register Act, as to our mode of assessing. There have been cases where the licence has shown the party registered at a higher rate of duty than his premises were rated at, and then we endeavoured to raise his rent; and, upon inquiry, it turned out that there were some other premises or land which, for the purposes of the registry, had been reckoned in for his 10 l., but which it would not have been proper or legal for us to have taken in.

17054. I believe the principles on which you reckon value are the great distinctions in the way in which you come to the proper rate of persons, as contradistinguished to the elective franchise as allowed by registering barristers?—We have not inquired into the mode of determining who should be registered, because that circumstance we considered not at all applicable to us; when we saw that there were other premises that could be taken in, and that conjointly they would would amount to 10 l., it would give a perfectly legal franchise, at the same time the party's rate of licence would be different from our not taking in the same amount of property.

17055. But you do not reckon in the value, for the purpose of taxation, anything beyond what may be termed the fair marketable price of the premises, supposing on the one hand a person wishes to let them, and on the other a person wishes to take them?—The rent we consider the great criterion; the bonâ fide rent or annual value. The rent, if a rack-rent. If there is to be a fine, or there have been improvements in consideration of which the tenant has it at a lesser rent, then the annual value.

17056. Mr. Lefroy.] You do not take into consideration then the use that may be made of the premises, as rendering them more or less productive?—No, we do not. That we consider would come into consideration in the rent.

17057. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] Then should you consider this a fair test of value, namely, what a bonâ fide solvent tenant would be willing to give for the premises?—Yes.

17058. Be so good as look to that fifth section, and look to the words after "rent"?—Yes; "or if the true rent by reason of the payment of any premium, or performance of any condition, or otherwise."

17059. Now do you observe the words "or otherwise"?—Yes.

17060. Do not those terms import that the Legislature contemplated a case in which the rent should not be the true value, not only where there was a premium or a fine paid, not only where there were conditions to be performed, but also on some other ground not explained, such as improvement; the term "or otherwise" may embrace that?—It may embrace a great deal, certainly. So far it has been taken into consideration here; because the brewer is rated in the same way in proportion to the amount; and in some instances where a brewer has let premises at a less rent upon a condition that the party takes all his beer of him, then we go to the higher value.

17061. Chairman.] But I understand in England as well as Ireland your criterion of value is that which the owner on the one hand and a taker on the other, supposing the premises were in the market, would be willing to give and take?—Yes.

17062. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] Do you take situation into account; it is not the mere value of the brick and mortar and materials that you take into account?—No, I always conceived that the landlord would take that into consideration; that the rent would be guided by that.

17063. Generally speaking, the rent is the test of true value; is it not?—It is.

17064. But where it happens not to be, would you take into account, in fixing the true value, the situation of the premises?—I apprehend a surveyor would consider that in his valuation, but I should always conclude myself, unless there were some very strong reason to the contrary, that the situation would guide the amount of the rent.

17065. Chairman.] At all events it would guide the marketable value?—Yes.

17066. And the marketable value is that which you think ought to be the criterion on which to assess the licence?—Yes.

17068. But supposing the lease still subsisted, would not that be a case in which, by reason of the neighbourhood having improved, the premises might be worth considerably more than the rent at which they were estimated when the lease was made?—I have not known a case of that sort arise.

17069. In that case the rent would be anything but the true value?—Yes.

17070. Considerably under?—Yes; on a case of that description arising, if it were brought before us, we might call on the party to pay a higher rate.

17071. Chairman.] And I suppose the converse of the proposition also, that if an old lease seemed to exact more rent than the premises were positively worth, that the applicant in that case would not be obliged to pay the higher rate?—I am

W. K. Dehany, Esq.

9 June 1837.

I am afraid, under the Act of Parliament, there would be rather a difficulty in that, because the rent is fixed; and if we are dissatisfied, it rather tends to show that we may raise, but we can hardly lower.

17072. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] You cannot go below the rent, although you may go above it?—Yes.

17073. Then am I to understand it is quite imperative on the excise officer, whenever he knows the rent is of a certain amount, to insist on being paid up to that amount the duty?—Yes. The party is called upon, in the first instance, for his certificate of the rent.

17074. So that in every case where the rent is 10*l.*, of course the man must be assessed 10*l.* licence duty?—Yes; he would be called upon for a 10*l.* licence, or at least a licence proportionate to that rate.

17075. Mr. Lefroy.] A question was put to you upon the effect of the words "or otherwise." I will read the context, in which those words stand, "or if the true rent, by reason of payment of any premium or performance of any condition or otherwise, shall not be received and payable to the owner or landlord by the tenant or occupier of such house or premises, then and in such case stating the estimated rent or true annual value of such house or premises, and the rate of duty payable by such tenant or occupier for such licence, shall be paid, taken and received according to the rent or value so certified." Be so good as look at that context. Now, taking those words in the context, does it appear to you possible to suppose the Legislature meant by the words "or otherwise," that you should take into consideration the use that might be made of the premises; is there any thing to lead to that conclusion?—Not the use of them, because there is only one use to which they apply them when they come for the licence, which is that they are for the sale of spirits.

17076. And therefore it does not appear to you that you would be justified in any way in taking into account the use that the person applying for the licence would apply the premises to, save only for the purpose for which he is desirous of having them licensed, in estimating the value?—Do I understand the honourable Member to ask, whether we should take into consideration that the premises were used for any other purpose? For instance, if converted into a butcher's shop it would then be a greater value.

17077. Precisely so?—We should certainly not take that into consideration.

17078. You would not feel that the word "otherwise," justified you in having regard to such circumstances in estimating the true value of the premises?—Certainly not; because at the time that the party is applying for his licence, it is only occupied for that particular purpose, and therefore whilst so occupied it cannot be of greater value, though by converting it into something else it might become so.

17079. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] And it would be the value to the applicant for the licence that you would take into account, and not the value to a third person?—Certainly; not what a third person might make of it for other purposes.

17080. You would not take that into account?—Certainly not.

17081. But you would consider what would be the value of the premises to the applicant for the licence; suppose the premises had never been occupied before as a place for the retail of spirits, would you not consider that the value in all probability to the person who applies for the licence,—that comes in for the first time to convert that into a place for the sale of spirits that had not been a place for the sale of spirits before?—I do not think that would enter into our consideration.

17082. In estimating the value of the house, would you not consider that the circumstance of its being a place of standing for the retail of spirits, and a well-known place, that that ought to be taken into account?—That would be taken into account, I should consider, in the rent.

17083. But I am taking the case in which, for any reason, you did not consider the rent as the true standard of value; but supposing you to get at the value from other circumstances, would you not take that into account in estimating the value?—In a case of that description we should employ a surveyor.

17084. Have you any doubt, for instance, suppose it to be your case, supposing you were looking for a house to set up a place for the retail of spirits, would you not be more likely to give a higher rent for a place that had already been a spirit shop than for one that had not?—Certainly.

17085. And accordingly that collateral circumstance should be taken into account in estimating the value?—But, as I before said, I should consider that to be taken into consideration by the landlord in his rent.

17086. But

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

W. K. Dehany, Esq.

17086. But assuming for a moment that the rent, for any reason, is not, in the particular case I put, the true test of value, and that you are to look for the true value, to ascertain it from other circumstances, would not that be one of the circumstances to be taken into account?—It would, according to situation. It would be in the same way with situation.

17087. And according to the former occupation of the premises; in what way they had been before occupied?—I should certainly consider it would be a circumstance which, if they were in the market for the purpose of being let, would operate upon the rent that would be asked and given, and so far it comes round to your question.

17088. And so far it would be a test of value in your mind?—Yes.

17089. Mr. Lefroy.] But if the rent were given, the circumstance that the premises might be in the most possible advantageous standing for carrying on the spirit trade, would not your estimate be considered as increasing or affecting the value of the rent, being once a given quantity?—Do I understand the question to be, that supposing the party to have taken a house at a fixed rent, without reference to the trade to be carried on, his subsequently applying to carry on the trade of a publican in it, which might be a successful one, would make it more valuable to him?

17090. Yes?—Whether we should consider that as a house of an increased value in consequence?

17091. Precisely so?—We should not, because we should say it was a speculative point arising out of his business; what he would have made of his business would be nothing.

17092. You would not make that in any kind of way a criterion of value?—No. The rent, and the rent which could be obtained, would be all that we should look to.

17093. Chairman.] There has been a return made by the excise department of the names and residences of all persons who received excise licences for the sale of spirits in premises under the value of 10*l.* since the 1st of October 1832?—I am aware such a return has been made.

17094. I need not ask you whether you believe it to be correct?—I take for granted it is; it does not fall to my department to check it, or in any way to make it out. That is from the accountant.

17095. It is signed by Mr. Cottrell, the general accountant?—It is.

17096. And therefore it is officially correct?—It is an official document, and as such presumed to be correct, I apprehend, unless there are any reasons for impeaching it.

17097. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] I think you stated that in some cases, (you specified Mallow, I believe), in consequence of a statement from the excise officers of the district, that there were publicans who had registered as 10*l.* householders, whose licences were below the 10*l.* standard, but in consequence of a statement to that effect to the Board, the officers received directions to raise the licences?—The officers gave an intimation to the parties that they should raise their licences, and reported to the Board upon it, who approved of it.

17098. And the licences were raised accordingly?—And the licences were raised accordingly.

17099. Did that occur in other cases besides Mallow?—In several cases it occurred, where the officers seeing that parties had been registered gave intimation to them to raise their licences; in some of them they were raised, but in others I believe almost the majority of the licences were not raised.

17100. Was there any general direction given by the Board for what I may term a review of the licences, throughout Ireland, in consequence of this statement from the officers in Ireland?—None that I recollect.

17101. Then there has been no general inquiry as to whether the licences are not upon too low a scale?—No, there has not; I am not aware of any.

17102. And accordingly it is only in those cases in which the attention of the Board has been called to the fact by the officer on the spot, that the licences have been raised?—Only in those cases.

17103. And of course there may be other instances in which the licences are too low in reference to the value?—There may be.

17104. In which a party is ranged as a 10*l.* householder, and in which he ought to pay a 10*l.* licence; there may be other cases to which the attention of the Board has not been called?—There may be cases of that sort; the Board has given given directions that the rent is all the criterion; which we give the officers to go by, unless there is some cogent reason to be dissatisfied with that.

17105. But as there have been cases in which the Board, at the instance of the officer on the spot, has raised the licence, there may be other cases in which the same objection holds to which the attention of the Board has not been called?—There may be. As I before said, the rent is with us the criterion.

17106. Chairman.] And by rent, you mean the marketable value?—The rent as certified by the landlord under the Act of Parliament; that is required by the Act of Parliament, and taken as conclusive.

17107. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] Have you ever heard of cases of collusion between landlord and tenant, to represent the rent lower than it really is?—Yes, I have.

17108. Many cases?—Cases that we have acted upon as such, and have put the parties to proof. I have very little doubt of it.

17109. And you ascertained it, and had no doubt of it?—I will not say we ascertained it by any actual decision, or taking steps upon it.

17110. But you have no doubt of the fact?—I have known a case of this sort which we could not get over, where the 20 l. is the range, and the party has let at 19 l. 19 s. only; we could not say, though we had no doubt it was for the very purpose of evading, by the shilling, the increased rate of duty upon it; we could not possibly say, the subject of it being liable to that increase would prevent a tenant perhaps giving the 20 l., though he would go as near to it as he could. That is quasi collusion, though we could not say fraudulent.

17111. Now, may there not be other cases in which there is actual fraud, in which both parties concur in a misrepresentation of the rent?—Certainly, we have had cases of that sort.

17112. You observe the Act does not direct the certificate to be verified by oath, merely a statement?—No; a mere statement, the production of the certificate itself.

17113. Chairman.] Do you think there is much fraud?—The question has not been raised in such a way as to make us inquire into it, but I do not apprehend there is.

17114. You think the activity of your officers is such as to prevent anything very extensive in that very collusive mode of proceeding?—I think it is. It is a difficult subject for them to form a judgment upon.

17115. But where it comes to a shilling or half-a-crown, or anything of that sort, it is more difficult than where there is a discrepancy of 10 s. or 12 s. or 20 s.?—Clearly.

17116. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] There is such a thing as misconduct among your officers sometimes, I suppose?—I am sorry to say there is.

17117. Bribery occasionally?—Yes.

17118. And you have known instances of that sort not easily detected; but you have a very strong persuasion that it exists?—There is no doubt that it exists; but I do not think in cases of this description so much, it is generally on a larger scale.

17119. They do the thing in the wholesale, not the retail?—Licences are not of so much value.

17121. And the collector, generally speaking, is a higher class of officer, and a person you would more trust than the lower class of officers?—Yes.

17122. And you do not suppose that the collectors, generally speaking, are not trustworthy, do you?—No, certainly not.

17123. Mr. Serjeant Ball.] But it is not the course for the collector to take any very considerable pains to go into the details of the value of houses when licences are applied for?—No, that is with the supervisors; but I should say, upon the whole, that the disposition of the officers was rather to increase the amount of licence duty than decrease it.

17124. They do not go much out of their way to investigate the thing, unless the fact is very glaring?—We have frequently reports of their suggesting that that the licence duty of parties should be raised, on the ground of their premises being of higher value than they put them.

W. K. Dehany, Esq.

9 June 1837.

17124*. Then it is rather a common thing for parties to represent the value of their premises to be lower than it really is?—It is not an uncommon subject of representation, the difference of opinion between the officers and the parties as to their value; in some instances they have objected to produce their certificates, to throw them upon a different value. In others the certificates themselves have been objected to by the officers as not being sufficient.

LORD GRANVILLE SOMERSET, IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Archer, again called in; and further Examined.

G. Archer, Esq.

12 June 1837.

17125. Chairman.] DO you wish to substitute another return for one of those that you handed in on the 1st of June last?—I do.

17125*. What is the difference between the return you then handed in and the return you would wish to substitute for it?—In the return of numbers in the year 1825, in the former return, the numbers for that year were 238, and I now find it ought to have been 274.

17126. This last return also distinguishes the different years and the different classes?—Yes.

17127. To that extent, therefore, it is more accurate than the other?—It is.

Mr. Lewis Henry De Zouche, called in; and further Examined.

Mr. L. H. De Zouche.

17128. Mr. O'Connell.] IS this your signature?—It is.

17129. Do you give in this return as the one required of freemen made in the corporation of tailors since the 20th of July 1831?—I do.

17130. Have you got the oath taken by the incorporation of tailors upon admission?—Yes, I have.

17131. Is this it?—It is.

17132. "You shall swear to be true to our Sovereign Lord King George the Third, his heirs and successors, of Great Britain, France and Ireland:" do you continue that style?—Yes, it is continued; but as regards France, it is considered as a dead letter.

17133. "To be good and true unto the tailors of the fraternity of St. John the Baptist, within the city of Dublin, whereunto you are now admitted. You shall not withstand or disobey the summons of the master and wardens of the said mystery for the time being, by their officer appointed for that purpose, but to the said master and wardens you shall be obedient and obeisant at all times, without you have a reasonable excuse. You shall not discover the lawful counsel of this fraternity or mystery that you shall have a knowledge of, which should be sacred within yourself. You shall not take an apprentice for no less term or time than seven years; and at the beginning of your apprentices' term, or before, you shall bring them to the master and wardens for the time being to be regularly bound, and the indentures duly enrolled, according to the custom and laws of the said fraternity. You shall not refuse any office you are able to take and is put upon you by the master, wardens and brethren of the aforesaid fraternity. You shall not entice or withdraw any man's apprentice or covenant servant until reasonable departure between them, the master and servant. This and all other good rules and ordinances made, and to be made, not repealed or reversed, you shall obey, keep and maintain, as nearly as God shall give you grace:" that is the oath?—Yes.

17134. Then this oath requires that at the beginning of the apprenticeship term, or before, the apprentice shall be brought before the master and wardens to be regularly bound; do you perceive that?—I do.

17135. Is that done?—It is not done; it is not the custom at present.

Mr. L. H. De Zouche.

12 June 1837.

17136. Then is it the custom not to comply with that part of the oath?—The custom is——

17137. Answer the question, and add anything you please afterwards. Is it the custom not to comply with that part of the oath?—It is the custom not to comply with that; so far the custom has been dispensed with for, I believe, many years: I never knew it to be acted upon according to that oath.

17138. But do you know the oath has been taken?—I do.

17139. By every man who is admitted free of your corporation?—Yes.

17140. And you have never known it complied with?—I never knew it complied with so far. I believe the construction put upon the oath is according to the custom of the city, whatever the custom may be; it certainly is not the custom now, as far as I can ascertain, and to my knowledge it is not the custom to have them enrolled.

17141. "You shall not take an apprentice for no less term or time than seven years"?—Yes.

17142. You swear that?—I swear that.

17143. "And at the beginning of your apprentices' term, or before, you shall bring them to the master and wardens for the time being to be regularly bound"?—That is not complied with.

17144. "And the indentures duly enrolled, according to the customs and laws of the said fraternity"?—That is not complied with.

17145. Have you any book of enrolment of indentures?—I have not, nor never saw one.

17146. Then you do not enrol at all?—Never; that is, as far as my knowledge goes. It was the custom at the time that law was made.

17147. Mr. Lefroy.] How do you know that?—I presume it to be so; I do not know it myself, I am only speaking on my belief.

17148. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] How long does your knowledge and experience go back?—Since July 1825.

17149. Did you know anything of the corporation before you became a member of it?—I did not.

17150. Mr. Lefroy.] Have you collected, from your search into the records of it, anything as to its previous practice?—No, not beyond this old transaction book.

17151. How far does that book go back?—To 1791.

17152. Then as far as that old transaction book goes, that is 1791, you are enabled to speak to this matter, respecting the custom of the corporation?—I did not look over every page of it, but I believe the custom was then what the custom is at present.

17153. And you have not been able to ascertain that there ever, at any time, was a different custom?—Indeed I have not been able to ascertain it.

17154. Mr. O'Connell.] That is, you do not find this oath was complied with by any entry?—I do not find that it is.

17155. That it was ever complied with?—I had no access to any book, but merely the books I have here, and they are the only books I have in my possession.

17156. You have no doubt it is constantly taken?—I have no doubt it is constantly taken; but in that sense, according to the custom of the city of Dublin.

17157. Mr. Lefroy.] Is not the oath according to the laws and customs of the corporation?—That is the oath.

17158. Mr. O'Connell.] "And the indentures duly enrolled according to the custom"?—

17159. Mr. Lefroy.] Just so, according to the custom; then do you mean to say, if there was no custom for the enrolment of the indentures, the oath would have been violated?—If it was the custom to enrol the indentures, and it was not complied with, I consider it would be a violation; but because it is not the custom, I do not consider it a violation.

17160. Mr. O'Connell.] Let me just understand you, "You shall not take an apprentice for no less term or time than seven years;" is that complied with?—I believe it is, as far as my knowledge goes.

17161. "And at the beginning of your apprentices' term, or before, you shall bring them to the master and wardens for the time being to be bound." That is not complied with?—It is not.

17162. That is violated in every instance?—I rather think it is the change of custom that produces that.

17163. But in point of fact it is not complied with?—In point of fact it is not complied with.

17164. Then

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

Mr. L. H. De Zouche.

12 June 1837.

17164. Then there is a custom to violate it?—I do not consider it a violation; that is my opinion, and I believe it is the opinion of others.

17165. You do not think then a man who swears, that at the beginning of his apprentices' term, or before, he shall bring them to the master and wardens for the time being to be regularly bound, that he does not violate his oath who does not bring him at all?—I really think there is a reservation in the words, according to the custom.

17166. A mental reservation?—No, I cannot call it a mental reservation.

17167. The custom is only introduced thus, "And the indentures duly enrolled, according to the custom and laws of the said fraternity," and they are not enrolled?—They are not enrolled.

17168. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Are you sure, "According to the custom of the city," is not confined to that last clause, and does not run back and pervade the whole?—I declare I think it is according to the general custom.

17169. Mr. O'Connell.] You know the oath of the freemen of the city of Dublin?—I do.

17170. "You shall take no apprentice but if he be free-born, that is to say, no bondsman's son, and for no less term than for seven years; within the first year you shall cause him to be enrolled;" is that complied with in your guild?—It is not.

17171. "And at his term's end you shall make him free of this city, if he has well and truly served you;" now is this complied with: "and shall always whilst you are able, and in your power, keep a good musket, carabine or fusee in good, clean and sufficient order"?—I believe that related to some centuries back, so that it has no connexion at all with the present times; and that it was decidedly according to the usages and customs of the then days, when it made it necessary for the magistrates to arm the citizens.

17172. You take that oath; do not you?—Yes, I take it.

17173. You are able to keep a musket?—I consider I am.

17174. Do you keep it?—I do not.

17175. Do you keep a carabine?—I do not.

17176. Or fusee?—None.

17177. And you have not kept them at any time since you took the oath?—I never kept them, because I considered it was not according to the present usages of the city of Dublin.

17178. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Do you observe, at the closing of this oath, these words: "All these points and articles you shall well and truly keep, according to the laws and customs of this city;" do you consider that that clause qualifies the oath to this extent, that the persons taking it are bound to observe the particulars therein contained, so long as they are upheld by the laws and customs of the city?—Precisely; that is the view I take of it.

17179. And you consider that this qualification does not extend merely to the clause immediately preceding the qualification, but to all the particulars contained throughout the oath, modifying them all according to the laws and customs of the city?—Precisely so; that is the view I take of it.

17180. You do not advocate anything of mental reservation?—Indeed I do not.

17181. Mr. O'Connell.] The question is, what you do advocate, so that although you swear positively to do one thing, you do not do it?—I certainly think there is a very great doubt in the construction of the oath as applied to the present day. I must admit that, and I would wish to acknowledge it; but I do decidedly think that the latter clause does modify the preceding part with which that is to be taken.

17182. "And all these points and articles you shall well and truly keep;" but you do not keep them all?—According to the customs of the city.

17183. According to the laws and customs of the city. Then you think it is a law and custom of the city not to keep a former part of the oath; do you not now; come, do you; do you think it is either a law or custom of the city to swear an oath, and not to keep it?—I really think that there is not a violation of the oath.

17184. Answer my question; add as you please afterwards?—I am giving my opinion.

17185. Do you think it a law and custom of the city not to keep the oath that you have sworn to?—I can only repeat the same answer.

17186. You can tell me whether you think it a law and custom or not?—No; I do

Mr. L. H. De Zouche.

12 June 1837.

I do not think it is a law and custom to break an oath, for I really do not think the oath is broken according to the custom of the city of Dublin.

17187. That is enough. Now you told me you would not admit respectable persons, such as Mr. M'Carthy, though he had served his apprenticeship to a master of the guild, because he was a Roman Catholic?—I then referred to a charter. I did not then recollect there had been Roman Catholics admitted: I only gave my own private opinion upon that occasion; I did not give it as to how the guild might act in case Mr. M'Carthy might come forward.

17188. Have you any charter prohibiting your admitting Roman Catholics?—I will show you what I alluded to; it is in that book.

17189. Have you any printed book of the laws?—None. Now the passage in the charter I referred to, I will read for you; "And further, whensoever any of the said art will accept any for an apprentice, to come before the master and wardens aforesaid, and the clerk of the said fraternity or guild aforesaid for the time being, who shall view directly whether such apprentice be of free condition, English nation, and good conversation." Now the law that I referred to, was the law on the admission of an apprentice, and I presume is an explanation of that; it is the 9th page.

17190. That clause in the charter is the one you alluded to as excluding Roman Catholics?—Yes; and I consider this an explanation of it. They order, "That no brother shall take or receive any apprentice into his house but such as are of good conversation, and of the Protestant religion, upon pain and forfeiture of 20 s. sterling; and to discharge and put away the same apprentice upon command of the master for the time being." That was what I referred to.

17191. You are not aware that every bye-law keeping Roman Catholics out of the freedom of corporations has been declared void since the year 1793?—Yes; for we admitted Roman Catholics in 1793, several.

17192. You admitted them into your guild?—Yes.

17193. Chairman.] When was that bye-law made?—In 1789.

17194. Mr. O'Connell.] When do you swear in to your guild; before the person has passed the city at large?—No.

17195. Then you have never sworn in to your guild any Roman Catholic?—No; I only mean in reference to my own knowledge. I find by reference to the transactions, that they were sworn upon that occasion.

17196. Without passing the city at large?—They were sworn, certainly.

17197. Without passing the city at large?—Yes.

17198. You are aware that no Roman Catholic has ever passed the city at large?—I heard so, but it was a departure from the custom to have sworn them into our guild.

17199. It was soon after 1793, was it not?—In 1793.

17200. Show me the record of their admission?—

[The Witness did so.]

17201. "The petition of Daniel Doyle, of Fishamble-street, tailor, (Roman Catholic,) praying to be admitted free of this corporation by grace especial, agreeable to an Act of Parliament passed in the present session, for the further relief of His Majesty's Roman Catholic subjects, for such fine as the corporation think fit. The petition of John Milliea, of Ross-lane, tailor, (Roman Catholic,) praying the like. The petition of John Walsh, of Castle-street, tailor, (Roman Catholic,) praying the like. The petition of Roger Sweeney, of Jervis-street, tailor, (Roman Catholic,) praying the like. The petition of John Lyons, of Abbey-street, tailor, (Roman Catholic,) praying the like. The petition of Thomas Boyle, of Abbey-street, tailor, (Roman Catholic,) praying the like. On reading the above report, the corporation in full hall assembled resolved unanimously, That the above persons be admitted free of this guild for the separate fines annexed to their names," (and there is no sum annexed to their names here), "agreeable to the laws of this house, and pursuant to an Act passed this present session for the relief of our Roman Catholic brethren." Oh! here are the fines. Do you find any admission since that of a Roman Catholic?—No; I think there were not any.

17202. You have no doubt there were none since?—Indeed, I have no doubt; there was a post hall called for the express purpose of swearing them in.

17203. Mr. Lefroy.] On admissions by grace especial, it would appear, from that entry, as if it were in the power of the corporation to impose such fine on that sort of admission as they thought fit?—There was a fine on the admission of each each formerly, but a greater fine on those applying by grace especial, than on any other. There was no fine, I believe, by birth.

Mr. L. H. De Zouche.

12 June 1837.

17204. Chairman.] Since when has that fine been modified?—Since my admission into the corporation there has not been any fine at all payable; I mean payable into the guild.

17205. Mr. Lefroy.] But formerly there was a fine in all cases; but a higher fine on admission by grace especial?—A higher fine on admission by grace especial.

17206. Were there any limits, that you are aware of, to the extent of that fine on admission by grace especial?—I think the highest amount was 5 l.; it might have been reduced in some cases, but I cannot state positively. I think it was reduced.

17207. And what was the fine when it did subsist; what was the highest fine on the admission, under the rights of birth, marriage, or apprenticeship?—I think that by service it was 2 l.; I cannot state positively; but I could, I dare say, by reference to some of the admissions, state what the usual fines were on the other admissions.

17208. Mr. O'Connell.] What is the date of the entry you showed me?—1793.

17209. Mr. Lefroy.] Have you any reason to think that the fine on admissions upon marriage and birth was higher than upon service?—It was less; that is my impression; but I would, rather than give my impression, refer to the book.

17211. And, under date, Monday, 7th October 1793, I find an entry, "We, the Committee of Œconomy, are of opinion that the freedom be granted to Andrew Walker of Patrick-street, tailor, by service, he having served his apprenticeship to Mr. James Walker, who is free of this guild. On reading the above report, it was resolved that Andrew Walker be, and is hereby admitted for the fine of 40 s.?"—Yes. Well, that was by service.

17212. Now, can you show me any fine by marriage?—I think I can; I think it was 30 s., if I mistake not. I recollect one instance in this book where the fine was 30 s. on marriage.

17213. Mr. Lefroy.] Now, can you tell us, as to birth, how much it was?—£. 1.; sometimes it was remitted.

17214. Then you have got the rights of admission by birth, marriage, and apprenticeship?—The fines respectively, were 1 l., 30 s., and 40 s.; and 5 l., grace especial.

17215. Mr. O'Connell.] Can you say whether the corporation might not have exacted larger fines if they pleased?—I do not think they could; but they certainly did not, as far as my knowledge goes.

17216. When a man is proposed in your corporation, what does he do in the first instance?—He sends forward a beseech to the guild.

17217. Have you any of those beseeches?—I have not; in fact, those are documents that are not preserved.

17218. When his beseech comes before the corporation, what is done then; how does it come before the corporation in the first instance?—The beseech is brought before the council, seven of whom constitute a quorum; and they try the claim; and if it is found to be a good claim, it is then sent down to the junior brethren to the lower house, and it is then put and passed.

17219. Have those seven a right, as you conceive, to reject, if they do not think fit to admit the man?—They have not.

17220. They have only a right of advising?—A right of advising, but no right to reject.

17221. Then, when their advice comes to the corporation below, they may either reject or admit?—I can only answer so far as the vote goes, because the question is put regularly from the chair in the lower house.

17222. I am speaking now of those seven; they have a right to advise either to admit or reject?—They may advise.

17223. But when it comes down to the corporation below, the question is put from the chair?—Yes, it is.

17224. And the corporation below have the right to reject or to admit, if they think fit?—I think that is the right that they have, because the question is put regularly; and and I would presume that a question could not be put, if they had not the right to reject.

17225. Have you the ballot in your corporation?—No, except in cases of election for common council.

17226. Suppose two of your corporation are not satisfied with the question when it is put, the decision upon it by votes or by division, have they a right to call for a ballot on that proposition?—I never knew it,

17227. Do you know whether the right exists or not?—I do not; but I know by reading this book that they formerly admitted those who were proposed for grace especial admission, by ballot, but they have not in my memory.

17228. Does it appear by that book, whether they admitted any other by ballot except grace especial?—No, it does not.

17229. Have you any resolution or rule, touching the ballot?—None.

17230. Are you sure there is none?—I am quite certain. We have never adopted the ballot since I have been a member, except merely in cases of representation for the guild, those that go into the common council.

17231. Then no man, according to you, is free of your guild at present; no man is sworn in, as you have no instance of swearing in, except those six Roman Catholics in 1793; you do not consider him a full brother of your guild, until he shall have passed the city at large?—No, I do not consider him so; he is not admitted to the franchise; he is presumed to be not entirely admitted until he is sworn into the guild; he is merely admitted in the first instance until he passes the city.

17232. Now those six Roman Catholics they could not have voted for your representatives in the corporation at large?—They did vote; I perceive they did vote.

17233. And would you allow anybody else to do that now?—It was considered right then; it was agreed, and there was the opinion of counsel taken on it.

17234. Chairman.] When was it argued?—Counsellor Huband's opinion was taken, and it was decided that they had a right to vote for the common council in the guild, after they had been sworn.

17235. And that advice has never been corrected or altered since, has it?—It was acted upon in their case and their votes admitted.

17236. But that advice has never been renewed since?—No.

17237. But the custom has been never to admit any parties since those six Roman Catholics, until they should have been admitted in the corporation at large?—I think it was the custom even at that day, but it was not acted upon in their cases.

17238. Then this was a special exception in their favour, which exception has never been made since that period, up to the present?—I think it was not made in favour of any one else.

17239. Mr. Hamilton.] That custom depends on the obeying, or not obeying of an ancient mandate of the corporation at large; are you aware of that?—Not exactly.

17240. The practice is different in different corporations?—I should suppose it is; but I really know nothing of any other.

17241. Mr. O'Connell.] Do you admit any body into your corporation who is a minor?—I cannot say; there is no rule for it, and I am not aware that any were admitted.

17242. You appear to have very few rules in your corporation?—Very few indeed.

17243. You are quite convinced you would not admit a Roman Catholic now?—I can only give my own opinion upon that.

17244. Well now, what is your opinion?—It is my opinion they would not be, but how far they would be justified in refusing, is another matter; I think they would not be justified in refusing.

17245. Mr. Hamilton.] Has a mandamus ever been applied for by a Roman Catholic?—Never; in fact there has not been any opportunity to seek for a mandamus, because I think there has not been any application from a Roman Catholic since those six were admitted.

17246. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] You do not remember any beseech sent in on behalf of any Roman Catholic?—I do not, not to my knowledge; I do not recollect one.

17247. Mr. Hogg.] None since the Irish Reform Bill?—I do not recollect one.

17248. Mr. Hamilton.] Do you find in the books of the corporation the copy of any

Mr. L. H. De Zouche.

12 June 1837.

any mandate issued by the corporation at large, respecting the swearing in of freemen?—I do not recollect any such document.

17249. Chairman.] Nor are you aware of the existence of any such mandate in other guilds?—Yes, I heard of a case in the smiths' corporation.

17250. Mr. O'Connell.] Do you mean an admission of that kind?—No, a mandate for nonswearing.

17251. Mr. Hamilton.] You stated the oath appeared to you in some respects objectionable; have the corporation any power of altering that?—I think they have not the power of altering the oath; I think the oath was prescribed by the Legislature.

17252. And although detached sentences of that oath be taken, and it is your opinion that the terms of those detached sentences are not complied with, yet, if you take the whole oath, in your opinion it is complied with, at least not violated?—Entirely so; that is my opinion.

17253. Mr. O'Connell.] You tell me distinctly, you never knew of an enrolment of any apprentice in your guild?—I never knew of such in our guild.

17254. Of course there is no old book of enrolments among your books?—Indeed I do not know; I cannot say, indeed.

17255. If you should find such a one when you go home, would you promise to inform his lordship, by letter, you have found it?—I will communicate at once with his lordship if I can find it.

17256. Chairman.] Has your guild any property?—Yes.

17257. To what amount?—I think it amounts to about 86 l. a year at present.

17258. From what does it arise?—They have houses in Back-lane, fronting their guild hall; they have also some tenements in the town of Wicklow; then there is a place called the Baskin, and they derive also some rent from a place in Oxmantown-green.

17259. There are also fees on the admission of brothers, are there not?—At present there is not.

17260. No fees at all except those you receive as clerk of the guild?—Yes; the beadle receives a fee from each new brother.

17261. But none that goes to the guild purse?—None at all.

17262. What do they do with this money?—There are the particulars in one of the books.

17263. I only want to know in what way the money is disposed of?—I receive an income, and also the beadle.

17264. I want to know how it is spent?—I shall be better able to tell your lordship if you will allow me to refer to the book.

17265. Well, refer to the book; then how do they dispose of it?—In the year 1797, the Corporation Hall having fell into ruin, there was borrowed, on mortgage of property, number 5, called Loughboy, the sum of 300 l. Irish, to put the hall in proper repair; of this, there is at present due to the mortgage the sum of 200 l. Then we dispose of it in the following way: Interest on mortgage of 200 l., 12 l. a year; clerk's salary, 20 l.; beadle's salary, 12 l. 12 s.; coals, candles, &c. 2 l. 13 s. 4 d. repairs, on an average, 23 l. 6 s. 8 d.; printing and stationery, 5 l. 13 s. 9 d.; master's allowance for serving office, 11 l. 11 s.; quit rent, 14 s. 11 d., that is for the guild-hall; insurance, 1 l. 1 s.; precept for Lord Mayor for election, 1 l. 1 s.; interment of poor brothers, 1 l. 1 s.; that is the average; then for annual charity sermons, 3 l. 3 s.

17266. Then do you subscribe to the interment of your poor brethren?—Yes.

17267. That is the habit of the corporation, is it?—It is.

17268. Mr. O'Connell.] Do you know by what title you have the lands or tenements in Wicklow?—They were granted to us by charter, and King William confirms it.

17269. Your corporation, about the year 1793, was a liberal one?—It was.

17270. They granted their Tailors' Hall to the Catholic convention?—Yes.

17271. They granted their Tailors' Hall to open a society of United Irishmen?—I believe they did.

17272. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] I should hope they would not do so now?—No, they would not.

17273. Mr. O'Connell.] You would not grant it to the Catholics now?—I think not.

17274. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] My question is as to the United Irishmen; you are quite sure they would not grant it to them now?—No, because, first of all, the freedom was voted to Archibald Hamilton Rowan, and afterwards he was disfranchised.

Mr. L. H. De Zouche.

12 June 1837.

17275. Mr. O'Connell.] Are you aware that that society was not a secret society?—It was conceived not to be so.

17276. Mr. Hamilton.] It held its meetings publicly?—Yes, it did.

Mr. John Allen, called in; and Examined.

Mr. John Allen.

17277. Chairman.] YOU are son of the clerk of the guild of merchants?—I am joint clerk with him.

17278. Are you a professional gentlemen?—I am a solicitor.

17279. Are you also a freeman of the guild of merchants?—I am.

17280. And of the city of Dublin also?—Yes.

17281. How long have you been so?—Since the year 1813 I have been free; since 1815 I have been clerk of the guild.

17282. Mr. O'Connell.] You have the book containing the oath of the free brethren, that every member of the guild of merchants takes?—That is a copy of it; I have not the oath itself, but that is an exact copy of it.

17283. You have an exact copy of it in this book?—I have.

17284. "Oath of free brethren: You shall swear to be true and faithful unto our Sovereign Lord the King, and to the fraternity or guild of merchants of the city of Dublin, and it you shall support and maintain to your power in all right; also you shall be true to the brethren that be merchants thereof, and them you shall maintain and support in their right against all others. Also you shall be true to the rules and ordinances ordained, or that shall be ordained by the authority of the masters, wardens and brethren, for the benefit of the said brotherhood. You shall take no apprentice for less term than for seven years, and within the first year you shall cause him to be enrolled; you shall answer to all due summons, and duly pay your quarterages; you shall not adhere to any other guild to the hindrance and wrong of this guild; also you shall not merchandize with any non-freeman's goods, nor be broker for any alien to the wrong of the brotherhood. These, and all other things belonging to the said brotherhood and guild, you shall support and maintain to the best of your power, so help you God." That is the oath which the free brethren take?—Yes, it is.

17285. Have you here the book of enrolment of indentures of apprenticeship?—No, I have not.

17286. But there is such a book?—There is such a book, but it is very seldom used.

17287. Now no man can be free of your guild who does not take that oath?—Certainly.

17288. And in that oath you perceive that, without any qualification, he swears he will have no apprentice for any less term than seven years, and within the first year he shall cause him to be enrolled; that is not done in general?—Very seldom.

17289. So that a number of people take this oath, and do not perform it?—I believe so, indeed.

17290. Now there has been a great many made free by apprenticeship, particularly since the Reform Bill?—There has been a good many; in 1835 there were a good many.

17291. And do you know that in any instance of them, or that in more than two or three instances at most, the indentures were not enrolled?—Very seldom enrolled.

17292. What proportion of those who were admitted as apprentices by service in your guild, were the indentures enrolled for, do you think?—I do not suppose more than, perhaps, two or three, or four or five in the year.

17293. And about how many in the year do you make?—That varies very much.

17294. Not above one in twenty enrolled?—I dare say not.

17295. Mr. Hamilton.] Is it not the habit of your corporation to swear in freemen, previous to their being admitted in the corporation at large? No, it is not; they are sworn in the first time they attend, the first hall day they attend in our guild, but they must be sworn in the city before they are sworn in our guild.

17296. Mr. O'Connell.] And may be sworn in your guild before they are sworn in the city?—Yes.

17297. Mr. Hamilton.] Do you find in the books of your corporation any mention of a mandate by the corporation at large, issued in the year 1775, in reference to swearing in freemen of minor corporations?—There was by the lord mayor at that time.

17298. Your

Mr. John Allen.

12 June 1837.

17298. Your corporation do not feel themselves bound to obey that mandate? —We do not.

Mr. William Clinton, called in; and Examined.

Mr. W. Clinton.

17299. Chairman.] WHAT are you?—I hold a situation in the Registry of Deeds Office.

17300. Are you clerk to any guild in Dublin?—I am clerk to the corporation of barbers and surgeons.

17301. How long have you been clerk to that guild?—Since May or June 1829; May 1829.

17302. Were you a freeman of that guild before?—I was.

17303. How long?—October 1824.

17304. That was your first admission to the guild, was it?—It was.

17305. Are you a freeman of the corporation at large?—I am.

17306. Were you sworn in to the guild of barbers and surgeons before or after your admission into the corporation at large?—Subsequent to my admission.

17307. Mr. O'Connell.] How long have you been in the registrar's office?—I have been in the register of deeds office since December 1832.

17308. Appointed, of course, by Mr. Moore?—By Mr. Moore.

17309. Have you made a return of the number of persons who have been admitted in your corporation, from the year 1820 to the year 1831?—I have. I made it from 1831 to the present, and you told me to go back ten years, which I did.

17310. How does a person get into your guild: I mean the form of proceeding for admission into your guild?—On the quarterly day of meeting, a member stands up and moves that A. B. be granted his freedom by birth, service or marriage, as the case may be.

17311. Or grace especial?—No; there is no grace especial since the Reform Bill.

17312. Well, but before the Reform Bill?—By grace especial, we admitted before the Reform Bill.

17313. And was any reason, before the Reform Bill, given for the grace especial?—The candidate was presumed to be a man of sound constitutional principles, and a man of unblemished character, and as such he was proposed by a member of the guild, and seconded.

17314. And the question put upon it?—And the question put upon it.

17315. And they rejected him or admitted him as they thought fit?—As they thought fit.

17316. If the party is not satisfied with the rejection by open vote, is there in your guild a right for the person to demand a ballot?—Yes, there is.

17317. How many persons must concur in demanding that ballot?—The mover and seconder; if the demand for the ballot be seconded, it is always conceded.

17318. As a matter of right?—It has always been done so; I should think so.

17319. And your opinion is, that they have it as a right; that it is a right that should be conceded?—That might be a legal opinion, and I am no lawyer.

17320. But if you were asked, as the clerk of the guild, whether they were bound to allow it, what would you say?—I would say that it ought to be conceded.

17321. You are bound probably by oath to give them advice?—Yes, to the best of my judgment.

17322. And then, upon that oath, acting upon your judgment, the judgment you would give would be that it ought to be conceded?—That it ought to be conceded.

17323. And then of course they would vote by secret ballot?—We have black beans and white beans.

17324. And every man conceals his vote if he chooses?—If he chooses he may.

17325. Of course no man is called upon for any reason why he votes?—No.

17326. Do you admit minors to the freedom?—Persons under twenty-one years of age, you mean.

17327. Mr. O'Connell.] Yes?—I cannot say that we do.

17328. Is it your judgment that you ought not?—I think we ought not.

17329. That is your judgment?—Yes, that is my judgment. It would be useless, useless, because they could not have the franchise in the city until they were twenty-one, because they are sworn to it before the registering barrister.

Mr. W. Clinton.

12 June 1837.

17330. But I am speaking before the Reform Bill (that is quite another question); but now, when a man is made free of your guild, do you swear him before he passes the city at large?—No.

17331. Then the admission to your guild is inoperative, unless he passes the city at large?—It is.

17332. Have you any specific form for swearing him into your guild after he has passed the city at large?—Yes.

17333. Have you that form here?—I have. He must first, not only pass the city or guild, but must bring a certificate, signed by Mr. Archer and Mr. Long, the town clerk, that he is not only passed, but sworn in. After the oath of allegiance he takes that oath.

17333*. Have you an enrolment book of indentures?—No.

17334. Do not you enrol at all?—No. I believe it has been the practice; but it has never been in my time.

17335. Then, can you say that there is no enrolment book in your guild at all?—None in my custody; nor none, that I know of, in the custody of the guild.

17336. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] If there is any such enrolment book, ought it to be in your custody as the officer of the guild?—It ought not; because they are so very jealous of their rights, that there are three locks and keys; the master holds one, and the two wardens one each; and I never can get a book but with their approbation. I must get the keys from them.

17337. Have you ever examined the contents of that chest?—I have.

17338. Are you able to say whether or not among the books there is any book for the enrolment of indentures?—I have brought every book belonging to the corporation with me, and there is no such thing.

17339. Have you brought the whole contents of that locked chest?—I have; I brought all.

17340. And did the master and two wardens intrust you with their respective keys?—They did.

17341. And you have examined all the books, and there is no enrolment book among them?—No, none.

17342. Chairman.] How far back do those books go?—Here is the oldest; this is dated 1698; and that is the oldest transaction book.

17343. Are you aware of any appearance of an enrolment book from that period up to the present moment?—I am not aware of any enrolment book.

17344. Then, from 1698 to what period does that go?—The 17th January 1757 is the last date I see here.

17345. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you a book of bye-laws?—They are in that book.

17346. Do you print any quarterly statement of bye-laws?—No. Here are the bye-laws, I believe, from the very earliest commencement.

17347. You do not admit any Roman Catholics?—We have not done so.

17348. You have never admitted any, have you?—No, I never knew of one.

17349. And of course you would not do so now; the corporation would not?—I could not take on me to answer for the body.

17350. But what is your opinion? You can form an opinion?—I think there would be an objection.

17351. By objection, do you mean they would not be admitted?—I do not think they would.

17352. I believe you have no doubt upon that head?—If they had a legal claim, I could not take on me to say how they would act; it would be rather presumptuous of me to answer that question.

17353. Cannot you reject without assigning a reason, by ballot?—The majority of votes has in every instance decided the person's claim, 17354. And decided it as they chose themselves?—Yes.

17355. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Has there been any beseech sent in to your guild?—No.

17356. There are no beseeches in your guild?—No.

17357. Has there been any application made on the part of Roman Catholics for admission since you have been an officer of the corporation?—No.

17358. Therefore there has been no trial made of what would be the decision of the guild, on a demand by Roman Catholics?—No.

17359. Mr.

Mr. W. Clinton.

12 June 1837.

17359. Mr. O'Connell.] Do you entertain the least doubt that they would be admitted?—I do not think they would be admitted.

17360. Are they likely to believe the same?—It is more than probable they do.

17361. Mr. French.] Do not you think that is the reason why you have had no application from them?—I could not take on me to answer that question; I do not know what may have prevented persons from applying.

17362. I only ask your opinion?—I should think it would prevent their applying.

17363. Mr. O'Connell.] Was not the corporation in the habit of petitioning against emancipation?—Yes.

17364. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Have you known persons admitted in your guild on the claim of right as apprentices?—Yes.

17365. Do you require in your guild, that the indenture shall have been enrolled in order to admit them?—No.

17366. Do you require that they should produce their indentures at all?—Not before the guild; that is done before the jury of freemen, after they have passed.

17367. Then in order to pass your guild, on a claim of right as an apprentice, is not necessary to produce any indenture?—No.

17368. Have you known any cases where apprentices were passed that had not served, in fact, by indenture at all?—I do not know any case.

17369. Do you make inquiry in your guild of whether there is in fact an indenture or not?—The person proposing and the person seconding, are always presumed to be responsible that the party did serve his time, and that his claim is unquestioned and unquestionable.

17370. That he did serve seven years?—Yes.

17371. To a freeman?—Yes; and that at the time of his first going as an apprentice the master was a freeman.

17372. These are the essential points you look to, and you hold the proposer and the seconder responsible upon those points?—And if it be not matter of notoriety that the master was a freeman at the time, there is a reference made to the books to see when he was admitted a freeman; and the same remark applies to those applying in right of birth.

17373. Then when you ascertain the master was in fact a freeman, and that the individual is stated to have served seven years to that freeman, you then pass him through your corporation?—Yes.

17374. And you allow the corporation at large to take its own measures afterwards, as to indentures or any thing else they may think fit?—Yes.

17375. Mr. O'Connell.] Was not your guild one of those that were most actively hostile to the Roman Catholic claims?—I do not know whether superlatively so.

17376. Were you a great deal so?—I have known several petitions to emanate from the barbers corporation against the Roman Catholic claims.

17377. Were you not in the habit of calling on the other guilds to join you?—No; I never knew of any application of the sort.

17378. Did you ever see this resolution of the year 1828: "That this meeting do recommend the various corporations of this city, at their next quarterly day, to petition His Majesty and the Legislature against granting any further political privileges to the Roman Catholics of the British Empire, and also to petition for the repeal of so much of the 33d of the late King, as granted power to papists to vote at elections?"—I forget it; I do not recollect it even now.

17379. Is not this your handwriting?—No.

17380. Whose handwriting is it?—A man of the name of Gillespie.

17381. You were not at the meeting of the 27th of September 1828?—No.

17382. Chairman.] I think you did not come into office until 1829, did you?—Not till 1829.

17383. Are there any other trades besides that of barber belonging to your guild?—Barbers, surgeons, apothecaries, and periwig-makers.

17384. What is the date of your first charter; do you know?—I think it is one of the Henrys, but I am not positive; the charter upon which we principally act, is one of Elizabeth.

17385. Mr. O'Connell.] These are the returns you have given in?—Yes.

17386. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Of how many does your corporation now consist?—I think at present, honorary members and all included, there are about 110.

17387. You have passed no honorary freemen since the Reform Bill, have you?—I believe Lord Winchelsea got his freedom, and I believe Mr. Long, of Mary-street. I gave Mr. O'Connell a list of every single person.

Mr. W. Clinton.

12 June 1837.

17388. Mr. O'Connell.] For the period of ten years, from the 20th July 1821 to the 19th July 1831, it appears you have admitted forty-seven persons, according to this return?—There must be more than that; and I do not suppose one-sixth of those ever prosecuted their freedom.

17389. Just count these, so that you may be able to say how many are in that return?—126 I reckon.

17390. Now among these 126 there is but one entry by marriage, James Mills; is that so?—No, here is one here, Thomas Egerton; that is the only one.

17391. And this is the entry of it; whose handwriting is that?—Gillespie's.

17392. "That Thomas Egerton, of blank, be admitted to the freedom of this guild by birth, he being married to the daughter of James Mills, an old and respectable freeman of this guild." You see that is an admission by birth?—Yes; he never came forward to be sworn. I do not know the man; I never saw him.

17393. Chairman.] What is the date of that?—11th of October 1824.

17394. M. O'Connell.] Now is not that the only entry by marriage previous to the passing of the Reform Bill?—Up to that time it is.

17395. And you tell me that man even never came forward to be sworn?—No, nor never prosecuted his freedom.

17396. Then for the period mentioned in this, from the 20th of July 1821 to the 19th of July 1831, there was not a single admission by marriage in your guild, if that be not one?—That is the only one. I made a faithful transcript of the books; searched them diligently.

17397. Now since 1831 you have several admissions by marriage?—Yes.

17398. Do they admit by marriage to any daughter?—Being married to any daughter of a freeman.

17399. Most of the admissions in your guild were complimentary or grace especial, before the passing of the Reform Bill?—The return will show that better than I can from memory: I would be afraid to say from memory.

17400. Look at it. [The Witness did so.]—Those two classes are the most, complimentary and grace especial.

17401. And you say you have continued to admit some persons by complimentary and grace especial since?—No, not grace especial, only complimentary, and I believe there are but two instances.

17402. There are five persons?—Five, are there? I did not know there were so many.

17403. Mr. O'Connell.] There are six persons, in three instances. Then you have substituted marriage in this, for grace especial in the former one?—No; they are two distinct claims.

17404. Then you have nobody by grace especial since the Reform Bill?—No; there has not been a single application made since the passing of the Reform Bill for a freedom by grace especial; and those persons who receive a complimentary freedom, do not derive their franchise from that freedom.

17405. Mr. Hamilton.] What is the difference between complimentary freedom, and that by grace especial?—Complimentary freedom is a freedom that merely gives the party admitted to the privilege of the guild, the right to vote for masters and wardens, for any question under discussion in the corporation; but he cannot vote for Members of Parliament, nor for members of the common council; he can only vote for members of the common council from the guild of which he was an original member, out of which he was originally admitted.

17406. Mr. O'Connell.] Then complimentary is for somebody who was a member of another guild before?—Yes; that is it.

17407. So that no man in fact is free of your guild, who has not passed the corporation of the city?—No, in point of fact he is not.

17408. Now you know there has been a registry association, for the purpose of increasing the number of persons to be registered in Dublin?—There has been a registry association formed, but whether that is its exclusive object, I will not take on me to say.

17409. That is one of its objects?—The object would be to bring forward as many persons who have claims as possible, I should think so.

17410. Had they any communication with you?—No.

17411. Nor you with them?—Nor I with them. I have been in the room frequently.

17412. What is the name of that association?—I think it is called the Central Protestant Registration Society, or Committee; I do not know which name it is.

17413. It

Mr. W. Clinton.

12 June 1837.

17413. It is called the Protestant Association?—Yes, or Conservative; either Protestant or Conservative, I am not sure which.

17414. And who did you see acting as the chairman there?—I never was at a meeting of the body.

17415. Who did you see acting there?—The only persons I saw in the room were Mr. Collison, Mr. Hyndman, a Mr. Baxter, and a clerk, I think his name is Ryan.

17416. Did you go there about money?—No.

17417. Did you get any money from them?—I got money from Mr. Collison, that had been given to him by two persons that had been admitted into our guild.

17418. Did you get money from Mr. Collison but once?—I got money at that time from him.

17419. Did you get money from him but once?—I will tell you, but I wish to be cautious what I am saying; I got money from him for two persons of the name of Waller (James and Richard) and Mr. Lestrange, which money he received from the parties.

17420. Did you see him receive it from the parties?—No, I did not, but it was through him I got the money. He got it from them, of course.

17421. Chairman.] What year was that in?—It is not more than six months ago, I think.

17422. Mr. O'Connell.] April and July 1836?—They were admitted then, but they did not come forward until, I think, about six months ago.

17423. Mr. Hamilton.] Are you aware there is a society also to prevent the registration of freemen?—I have heard there was such a society.

17424. You have been there, I suppose?—Never.

17425. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Are you aware that there is an association in Dublin, one of the branches of whose occupation in business is to assist in the registration on the other side?—Yes.

17426. Are you aware whether or no they are making very great exertions to bring forward candidates for registration?—Judging from the Dublin papers, and the placards that I see posting through the streets, I should say they are making every exertion.

17427. Mr. O'Connell.] Are not there three of them?—I believe one is defunct. The house is shut up.

17428. Which one is that that is shut up?—It is called the Central Independent Club. The only knowledge I have of it is seeing a brass plate on the door.

17429. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Do not you think it a necessary thing to have some effort made on the other side to stem this torrent that has been made?—Indeed I do.

17430. Mr. O'Connell.] Then the mode in which you ascertain the facts respecting any man is by the statement of the person who proposes him?—That and a reference to the books, if it should be necessary; unless it is a matter of notoriety that the party through whom the individual claims his admission has been a freeman, there is always a reference to the books.

17431. Have you found any entry purporting at all to be connected with marriage, prior to this of Thomas Egerton's?—Not within that time, or of course it would have been included in the return.

17432. Did you search before that?—I did not.

17433. Will you be so good as to show me the entry of the 27th of April 1829?

[The Witness did so.]

17434. Whose handwriting is that?—That is my own handwriting.

17435. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Do you ever attend the registration court at all in Dublin?—Unless from curiosity, never.

17435*. Have you attended it often from curiosity?—I have gone in there frequently, but have never remained there very long. It is near my own office, and I sometimes slip in there for ten or fifteen minutes, if I have so much time to spare; but I am not in any way connected with it, nor never was.

17436. Has there been, in point of fact, a number of persons of a very inferior order, poor persons brought forward to register: have you seen them?—I have seen persons whose appearance was questionable, but I can say no further.

17437. Had they the appearance of being very poor persons?—They had the appearance of being a very low grade.

17437*. Mr. O'Connell.] You register yourself, I suppose?—Yes.

17438. Your office does not disqualify you from voting?—No.

17439. Now be so good as to show me the entry of the 16th October 1836.

[The Witness did so.]

17440. John Baseggio was a foreigner?—He was.

17441. Either an Italian or a Swiss?—He was.

17442. He was a Protestant?—He was; he said so, at least.

17443. He professed the Protestant religion? You are aware that by professing the Protestant religion he became naturalized, and entitled to all the rights of a native citizen in Ireland?—I do not know that that would entitle him; but before he was considered a Protestant I heard a person in his employment say he had letters of naturalization when Sir Robert Peel was Secretary. I did not see the letters.

17444. Chairman.] Has your corporation any property?—No.

17445. None at all?—None.

17446. Are any fees paid to the corporation on the admission of members?—Yes; to the corporation and to me, both.

17447. Will you state what the fees are, paid to the corporation?—10 s.

17448. Is it the same with regard to every claim?—The same with regard to every claim.

17449. What are the stamp duties that are paid?—£. 1.

17450. Is that upon every claim the same?—Upon every claim now the same.

17451. What were the stamp duties that were paid previous to the passing of the Reform Bill?—£. 3. by grace especial, and 1 l. otherwise.

17452. Mr. O'Connell.] When you say "otherwise," you mean by birth and service?—Yes.

17453. You never knew a fee paid on a claim of right by marriage?—No, I never did.

17454. In your book can you point out an entry,—I think you told me you could not,—of a claim by marriage prior to these returns?—I could not, for I did not look; probably I might if I went back; I only went back to the time you required me.

17455. Chairman.] Are you responsible to the Stamp Office, as the clerk of the guild, for the due payment of the stamp duty, on the admission of freemen to your guild?—I do not know what the law may be; I suppose I am the officer who should see it paid.

17456. Do you, in point of fact, pay the duty to the Stamp Office?—I get the money from the persons claiming admission, and pay it over to the Stamp Office.

17457. Do they investigate your accounts in any way, so as to see you pay accurately what is paid?—The guild see that the parties have their stamps.

17458. But I want to know, whether or no the Stamp Office look to see that you pay on account of persons who are admitted the proper stamps?—They have investigated, but not since I was appointed.

17459. How often do you pay over the money that is received?—Whenever I receive it.

17460. Forthwith?—Forthwith.

17461. Are there any queries made of you, as to upon whose account you pay these monies?—No.

17462. Do they give you any acquittance?—Nothing but the stamp.

17463. What office do you pay it into?—I go into one office, I think it is called the comptroller's, or the receiver's office.

17464. It is the head office in Dublin?—Yes; I pay the money there, I get a small card, and I bring the card with the book I am to get stamped, and give it to the clerk, and return again in half an hour.

17465. Then it is the book that is stamped?—Yes.

17466. Does the Stamp Office officer look at the book before he stamps it?—I do not know whether he does or not; I give it into the officer's hands.

17467. Is it stamped in your presence?—No.

17468. It passes through the office; it is in the possession of the office, and out of your possession for a certain time?—It is.

17469. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you that book?—I have.

17470. Mr. Lefroy.] Does it appear upon the face of that book, on what rights the different persons are admitted?—It is a duplicate of the certificate of admission.

17471. Chairman.] I see your last entry is Mr. George Cowan, of Wellington-Quay,

Quay, in the city of Dublin, 16th January 1837; and that he was admitted to the freedom of the said guild of barbers by marriage, being married to the daughter of William Davison, an old freeman?—Yes.

17472. And the stamp duty upon this is 1 l.?—£. 1.; there is no other stamp duty now.

17473. And this book was handed into the Stamp Office, before this particular admission was stamped?—Yes; I have sometimes left them in blank.

17474. In this case was it in blank, or not?—I rather think that was.

17475. Can you point out any one that was not in blank?—I could not indeed.

17476. But they permit you to put this in blank, do they?—Yes.

17477. Mr. O'Connell.] I suppose they know you?—No, they do not.

17478. Do not they know you belong to the Registry Office?—Indeed, they do not.

17479. Chairman.] I do not see any more blank stamps here?—No.

17480. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you any book with blank stamps?—No; I have not a single stamp but what is there.

17481. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] And is it the course of business to enter the admission first of all, and then to get it stamped?—I do not believe it is indispensibly necessary.

17482. But what is the course with you; do you generally write the admission on a stamp, or first write the admission on paper, blanked, and then get it stamped?—Sometimes I get the paper stamped, and fill it in at my leisure; and sometimes I may fill in the certificate, and get it stamped.

17483. When you say there has been no other stamp since the Reform Bill but a 1 l. stamp, do you mean because there are no honorary freemen's admissions?—No grace especial. The honorary freemen are not subject to the stamp duty.

17484. And is that the reason why there is no other class of stamps, since the Reform Bill, but the 1 l. stamp?—I should think so.

17485. Have you any other book of admission, prior to the Reform Bill?—Yes, they are all here.

17486. A stamped book?—Yes, there are some there; some with 3 l. stamps.

17487. They are impressed then on grace especial cases?—Yes.

17488. Mr. O'Connell.] Do I understand you right, that you do not call any man an honorary freeman, but a complimentary freeman, who is free of another guild?—That is what I conceive to be an honorary freeman.

17489. You do not call the grace especial man, an honorary freeman?—No, he his a bonâ fide freeman.

17490. Should you not put a 3 l. stamp on grace especial men?—There are no grace especial men since the Reform Bill.

17491. But before that?—£. 3. before, certainly.

17492. Your honorary freemen pay no stamp duty at all?—No, they are not subject to stamp duty; because some of the aldermen and sheriffs of Dublin are free of several guilds. It is usual to give the freedom to past lord mayors, and sheriffs, if they conduct themselves to the satisfaction of the minor guilds, and in that case a man would have twenty-three stamps to pay for.

17493. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Before the Reform Bill, into what classes did you consider the freemen divided, freemen who claimed of right, and those who came in by grace especial?—Grace especial, marriage, service, and birth. We considered the freemen's claims precisely similar to what they are now, with the exception of grace especial, which we conceive entirely abolished.

17494. By the Reform Bill?—That is our conception; we may be wrong, but that is my idea.

17495. Mr. Hogg.] Tell me what you call a grace-especial member of your corporation?—A grace-especial man is a man who has no legal claim, but who is admitted by the favour of the corporation.

17496. Does he come into the corporation at large at once, or is he first admitted into a minor guild?—First into a minor guild; when he is passed there he is proposed by a member and seconded; the question is then put by the master, and if carried in the affirmative, he gets a certificate signed by the master, wardens, and the clerk, in the following words: Corporation of barbers and surgeons, apothecaries and periwig-makers, or guild of St. Mary Magdalen, in the city of Dublin: We the master, wardens, and brethren of the corporation of barbers and surgeons, or guild of St. Mary Magdalen, in the city of Dublin, do hereby certify that A. B., of such and such a street (Prussia street, say), in the city of Dublin, was on on Monday the 12th day of January 1837, admitted to the freedom of the said guild by grace especial; or if by birth, by birth, he being the free born son of A. B., an old freeman of the guild; or if by marriage, he being married to the daughter of C. D., an old freeman of this guild; or if by service, he having served his apprenticeship to E. F.

17497. It is the same form of certificate?—Yes, in testimony whereof we have hereunto signed our names, so and so, and then that is lodged in the town clerk's office.

17498. Before the Reform Bill, when you admitted an honorary member to any guild, was that person a person admitted by what you call grace especial?—We have no knowledge of that, because he was free of another guild.

17499. Sometimes it is usual to admit persons as a matter of honour to the freedom of any guild or any corporation?—Yes.

17500. Now before the Reform Bill, if you wished to pay that compliment to any person who had no legal claim, and that compliment was paid, and the person was admitted upon that compliment, would you call him admitted by grace especial?—If he had not been free of any other guild previous to this, he would then be a grace especial freeman; but if he had been a freeman of another guild, and he was admitted to the freedom of the barbers, he would then be classed as an honorary freeman, or complimentary freeman of that particular guild; but if he had not been free of any other guild previous to it, he would be a grace especial freeman, and would be bonâ fide a freeman.

17501. Mr. Lefroy.] As an honorary freeman would he have either to pay fees or stamp duty?—No, as an honorary freeman certainly not; we never charge honorary freemen.

17502. Then the difference between an honorary freeman of that sort and a grace especial freeman was simply with respect to the charge of fees?—And the privileges. The privileges varied, because the grace especial freemen could vote previous to the Reform Bill for Members of Parliament, and the honorary freeman cannot; he can vote out of the guild of which he was originally a member.

17503. But could he not be admitted in the city at large, and afterwards vote as any other grace especial man?—He votes for the guild to which he originally belonged.

17504. Your guild seems to have been very angry at the passing of the Emancipation Bill?—I believe they were not very much pleased.

17505. I find this paragraph in an address to a Mr. John Stewart, in 1830: "At a period when our chartered rights, as freemen and as Protestants, were basely bartered and tamely surrendered by those whose sworn duty it was to defend and preserve them inviolate, you, sir, warmly co-operated with us in our last glorious though ineffectual struggle for the preservation of our once Protestant constitution:" you are the William Clinton who has signed that?—I am. He was a past master; he had been master of the guild.

17506. Mr. Hamilton.] The general feeling amongst the corporation of Dublin was that they were instituted for the purpose of upholding the Protestant constitution?—It has been, and, speaking of a thing of which I have no certain knowledge, I think it is their feeling still.

17507. Mr. O'Connell.] Did you not say you thought it was instituted in the reign of King John?—No, not King John; and though the charter is there, I never looked at it; Elizabeth is the one we act upon.

17508. But you have charters before Elizabeth?—We had in one of the Henrys. I really do not know which.

17509. What is the date of the first of your charters; you have a charter in the reign of Hen. 6, A. D. 1447, (that was not for the support of Protestancy); are you aware of that?—I believe Protestancy was not in vogue at that time. Elizabeth is the last charter we have. There is no other charter here.

17510. You have got your charters expressly for the praise of God and the honour of the blessed Virgin Mary?—

17511. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Are you aware the Church in Ireland was not a Roman Catholic Church till the reign of Hen. 2?—It is my opinion. But that would be bringing me into an argument I would not be competent to say anything about among so many Honourable Members.

17512. Mr. Hamilton.] Do not you know the feeling of the corporation is, that in in the reign of King James 1, it was then to uphold the Protestant constitution? —It is.

Mr. W. Clinton.

12 June 1837.

17513. Mr. Hogg.] Have you a copy of the certificate you before alluded to? —No, I have not.

17514. Is there a blank left for what you filled up, whether it was by birth, by marriage, or by service?—I generally write it on a sheet of paper; we have no printed paper.

17515. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you no book of admissions to the freedom of your guild from 1756 or 1757 till the year 1792?—No, I have not.

The Witness was directed to make out a return of freemen admitted from 1792 to July 1821.

17516. Where do you say the bye-laws are?—In this book.

17517. Is there any bye-law recognizing the right of claim by birth?—I do not know whether there is a bye-law; for the right has never yet been questioned.

17518. I find this bye-law: "That all such who are sworn brothers by service shall pay 20*s.*, and all such as become free by fine shall pay 40*s.*"?—That is grace especial.

17519. No, because grace especial was ten pounds at that time?—I never knew it was higher than forty shillings.

17520. I have two entries here of 10*l.* Is there not this bye-law of the 11th of November 1793: "Resolved, that every person hereafter claiming freedom of this corporation by grace especial, shall pay as a fine 10*l.* sterling, provided always that it shall be in the power of the corporation to reduce the said fine to any sum not under 40*s.*, and that the determination on every such petition shall be by ballot"?—I was not aware of that; 40*s.* was the usual fine by grace especial, and 20*s.* by birth, service or marriage, and the fees have been reduced to 10*s.*

17521. Do you see any entry of birth or marriage in the bye-laws?—No.

17522. Now will you be able, by the next day, to make those out?—I will.

17523. Mr. Hamilton.] Refer to that book, and see if you see any admission by birth as well as service?—Yes, I do. Here are the bye-laws: "That such persons as are admitted by birth or service shall pay 20*s.*, and all others shall pay 40*s.*; that no person shall be admitted free, by fine, for less than 40*s.* except such person has served His Majesty, or has been bred in the Blue Coat Hospital; that no person admitted to the freedom of this guild by birth, service or fine, shall obtain a certificate until he pays the fine."

17524. So that there is a recognition in that bye-law of admission by birth?—Certainly.

17525. Mr. O'Connell.] By birth as well as by service, is it not?—Yes.

17526. Chairman.] What is the date of that?—1698 the first; 1760 the second; 1761 the third.

LORD GRANVILLE SOMERSET, IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. William Clinton, called in; and further Examined.

Mr. W. Clinton

15 June 1837.

17527. Mr. O'Connell.] DO you now deliver in the return you have made, pursuant to the directions you got on Saturday?—Yes.

[The Witness delivered in the same.]

17528. That is a return of the freemen, as they appear to have been made in your guild, from 1792 to 1821?—Yes, bringing it up to the return I made upon the former occasion.

17529. Do you know when the stamp-duty was first imposed upon freemen in Ireland?—I do not.

Mr. W. Clinton.

15 June 1837.

17530. How far back have you any stamp-books?—I have no stamps but these from 1825.

17531. Are there none in your guild before 1825?—There are, but I have not them.

17532. Who has them?—I believe they are retained by the individuals.

17533. Do you know of your own knowledge anybody that has one?—I do not, but I have heard several of the freemen say that they purchased their own stamp and kept it.

17534. Can you name anybody that said that?—I heard a man of the name of Verdon say so.

17535. Is he alive?—He is.

17536. What is he?—He is an attorney; I think I heard him say it; I know that I heard a man of the name of Reddy say it, but he is dead.

17537. Verdon appears by the return to have been made a freeman on the 16th of October 1809?—Yes.

17538. By what right was he made free?—By birth.

17539. Mr. O'Connell.] Will you show to the Committee the entry of the 17th of January 1803?—[The Witness produced the same.]

17540. There are the two following entries: "William Maguire, Esq., admitted to the freedom by birth unanimously, being the free born son of Arthur Maguire, Esq., an old free brother." The next is George Giles, of Youghall, in the county of Cork, Esq., also unanimously admitted to the freedom of the corporation, on account of his being married to the daughter of the said Arthur Maguire. The first is admitted by birth, and the other is admitted on account of marriage?—Yes; this Mr. Giles was married to the sister of the gentleman that got his freedom.

17542. Mr. O'Connell.] The next entry by marriage is on the 16th of January 1804; these three entries appear: "John Roe, of Capel-street, admitted to the freedom of this corporation by service, he having served his apprenticeship to Charles Sims, an old free brother of this corporation. David Gaas, son of Mr. Joseph Gaas, was unanimously admitted to the freedom of this corporation by birth. Robert Compton, of the city of Dublin, admitted to the freedom of this corporation, he being married to the daughter of Mr. Joseph Gaas, an old freeman of this corporation"?—Those are the entries.

17543. On the 18th of April 1814, there are these entries: "The right honourable the Lord Mayor's letter to the master of this corporation being read, which requested that this guild would not swear in a freeman till he had passed the city at large, Patrick Connor, No. 1, Bedford-row, barber, was admitted to the freedom of this corporation, being married to the daughter of Anthony Gardiner, an old free brother of this guild." "16th July 1821: Francis Frederick Brierton, of ——, was admitted to the freedom of the guild, married to the daughter of John James Johnston, a freeman of this guild; and on the same day James Ball, of ——, son to Edward Ball, Esq., an old freeman of this guild, by birth"?—Those are the entries.

17544. The Committee have now all the entries by reason of marriage before the Reform Bill?—They have now, as far as I can make it out, from 1792.

17545. Chairman.] This is a return of the names of all freemen admitted into the corporation of barbers and surgeons, from the beginning of the year 1793 to July 1821?—Yes.

17546. Will you state how many persons have been admitted, according to this return, by right of service in that time?—Thirteen.

17547. Were there any admitted by right of service, according to this return, from the month of January in the year 1807 down to the year 1816?—Here is one in April and one in October.

17548. Then for upwards of nine years there was no individual admitted by right of service?—No.

17549. Mr. O'Connell.] What trade must a man be to be admitted upon a claim of service in your guild?—A barber, surgeon, apothecary or periwig-maker.

17550. Then if he be not of that actual trade, you do not admit him in your guild

Mr. W. Clinton.

15 June 1837.

guild by service?—I do not know how that point would be decided; if a professional man, for instance, got his freedom by birth, and he follows another trade, and another man served his time to him at that other trade, I do not know how his claim would be affected by it.

17551. You have not any recollection of anybody claiming by service but one of those four trades?—I have not.

17552. Then your opinion is, that these four trades are the trades upon which you would admit a claim of service?—Yes.

17553. Mr. Hamilton.] In your stamp-book in some cases there is a memorandum, with initials at the corner of the certificate above the stamp, and in other cases that memorandum is wanting; can you explain the reason of that?—Where it is wanting, the book was stamped in blank.

17554. Then where it was not wanting, it was not stamped in blank?—No, it was not; every settlement that is executed, when it is brought to the Stamp-office, the person signs it, with the date.

17555. Will you refer to the certificate of Francis Frederick Brierton, and state whether that was stamped in blank or not?—It was not stamped in blank.

17556. What was the stamp upon it?—£. 1.

17557. In what right is it stated that he was admitted?—Marriage.

17558. So that in that case the Stamp-office affixed 1*l.* stamp upon the certificate not blank?—Yes.

17559. Chairman.] What is the date of this?—In the year 1825; that is the date he was sworn into the guild.

Mr. William Jordan Lambert, called in; and further Examined.

Mr. W. J. Lambert.

17560. THE Committee understand that you wish to make some addition to your answer 16507?—I wish to say that I was editor of the Dublin Dispatch newspaper; I have all the Irish correspondence of two London papers; I am also a reporter; I have always been connected with the press, and with the London press.

17561. What salary have you had?—I had five guineas a week here; and I have 1*l.* 10*s.* from one paper, and I have 2*l.* from the other; I have in all 4*l.* 10*s.* a week in Dublin.

17562. Then the Committee are to understand that you have lost 4*l.* 10*s.* a week by your attendance here?—Yes.

17563. In your answer to question 16563, you mentioned the debates in the House of Commons; did you mean to state that you reported those debates yourself?—Yes, many of them.

17564. Mr. Hamilton.] Was an opinion ever taken by your guild in reference to the right of the guild to enforce admission into the corporation at large, though the individual himself might not possess that right?—There was no opinion taken upon the subject as to the right of the party to be admitted into the city; there was an opinion taken upon the question, whether, if the corporation of smiths applied to the city to admit any member who had been previously admitted into the guild, they could compel them to admit him.

17565. Have you that opinion?—I think I could send the opinion over.

17566. They were sworn into your corporation without being admitted into the corporation at large?—Yes; an opinion was taken upon it, that they could not be sworn into the city; but if our guild applied to compel them to be admitted into the city, it would be successful.

17567. Can you you give the Committee that opinion?—I can.

17568. Mr. O'Connell.] That was the case which the King's Bench decided?—Yes.

17569. Is not Adcock's case the case in which the court of King's Bench decided that they could not compel the corporation, by mandamus, to admit in right of birth?—In right of birth and service both.

17570. Although your corporation had admitted and sworn them in?—Yes, we were obliged to do so.

17571. Mr. Hamilton.] The Court of King's Bench decided that the minor corporation should admit them?—Yes; an opinion was taken, and then the parties consented to waive their costs, and have them sworn in, which we did.

17572. Mr. O'Connell.] The Court of King's Bench decided no question respecting respecting your guild?—Precisely so; it would appear that we were guided by Counsellor Perrin's opinion.

Mr. W. J. Lambert. 15 June 1837.

17573. Mr. Ford, the attorney for the mandamus, consented to waive all claim of costs, and you consented to admit the parties into your guild?—Yes, having previously got an opinion that we could not resist it.

17574. Then those persons admitted into your guild, two by birth and one by service, applied for a mandamus to the Court of King's Bench, to compel the corporation at large to admit them, and the King's Bench decided that they could not compel the corporation at large to admit them?—By a mandamus coming from the individuals.

17575. That was the case upon which the decision was made, that those individuals could not, by mandamus, compel the corporation at large to admit them by right of birth or by right of service?—Precisely so.

17576. Mr. Hamilton.] Had a mandamus issued to your corporation to admit those individuals?—Yes.

17577. Mr. O'Connell.] You never returned to that mandamus?—Upon the mandamus coming the council of the house met, and they came to a resolution that Counsellor Perrin's opinion be taken; and when we found we could not legally resist it, we consented, upon the proposition of waiving costs, to their being sworn in.

17578. Mr. Hamilton.] Did you take any opinion as to the right of the guild to enforce admission against the general corporation?—We took an opinion in case the corporation refused to admit one of our members upon our applying; I think that opinion is among the papers.

17579. Mr. O'Connell.] Can you state positively that you ever saw such an opinion?—No, I cannot positively state so.

17580. Mr. Hamilton.] If the opinion exists will you send it to the Committee?—I will.

17581. Do you recollect whose opinion it was that was taken?—It was before I came into the guild; the corporation refused the admission of some freemen that we were anxious to have admitted into the corporation, and that was cited, amongst the rest, to show that if we pleased to go to law with the great corporation we could enforce it; but I will look for it, and if I find it I will send it to the Committee.

Mr. Edward Carolin, called in; and Examined.

Mr. E. Carolin.

17582. Chairman.] WHAT are you?—A builder and architect living in Talbot-street, Dublin.

17583. Are you a freeman of the guild of carpenters?—I am.

17584. Mr. O'Connell.] Do you know anything of Mr. Blennerhasset Wood, clerk of your guild?—I do not.

17585-6. What is the name of the master of the guild of carpenters?—Mr. Grant.

17587. Chairman.] You do not interfere much in the business of your guild?—Very little.

17588. Mr. O'Connell.] Can you state how many you have passed in the guild as free by service within the last five years?—No, I could not.

17589. As apprentices?—The only apprentices passed as having served with the establishment with which I am connected are two.

17590. What are their names?—The one is Hall, and the other I do not recollect his name.

17591. Do you know anything of William Morrison, No. 1, James-street?—I do not.

17592. Do you know Robert Pike, junior?—I think I have seen him, but he has been but a short time a freeman.

17593. Did you ever take any part in any election of the guild of warden or master?—I have, frequently.

Mr. Henry Price, called in; and Examined.

Mr. Henry Price.

17594. Mr. O'Connell.] WHERE do you live?—I reside on Arran-quay, but my business is conducted in Lincoln-lane.

17595. What is your business?—A chemist.

17596. Are you free of any corporation in Dublin?—I am.

17597. Are you an Irishman by birth?—I am.

17598. When did you apply for your freedom?—I did not make a personal application for my freedom, but it was made for me by a friend of mine, I think about seven years ago.

17599. Who is he?—He is dead now; his name was Kincaid.

17600. When were you made free of the city of Dublin?—I think about seven years ago; it was previous to the election of Perrin and Harty for the city of Dublin.

17601. Of what guild were you made free?—Of the saddlers.

17602. Did you claim as of right, or of grace especial?—I claimed by birth.

17603. Who is the master of the saddlers at present?—I think his name is Henzell.

17604. Was your father a freeman?—Not to my knowledge.

17605. Was an uncle of yours free?—I think not.

17606. Was your grandfather free?—I understood so.

17607. You are not sure of that?—I cannot be positive, but I always heard it from rumour.

17608. Do you remember him?—I do not; I never saw him.

17609. Was it the reputation of your family that your grandfather died before you were born?—It was.

17610. And your father is dead also?—He is.

17611. About how many years before you were born did you hear in your family that your grandfather had died?—I could not say.

17612. Was it eight or ten years?—I should suppose it was.

17613. Where did your grandfather live in his lifetime?—I think Newcastle-street.

17614. Did you ever hear what business he was of?—I think I heard he was a saddler.

17615. Have you been registered under the Reform Act?—I believe I was registered lately; I have my certificates.

17616. Do you belong to the Protestant Registering Association?—No, I do not.

17617. Do you belong to any political body?—The only body I belong to is the Irish Metropolitan Conservative Society.

17618. Where did they meet?—In Dawson-street.

17619. How long have you been admitted into that society?—About six months.

17620. Is that the one that has taken the place of the old Orange lodge?—I cannot say.

17621. Do you use the Orange colour there?—I believe it is quite optional what colour.

17622. How did you become a member?—I was proposed by a gentleman, a friend of mine; that is all that I know of it.

17623. Had you belonged to the Orange Society before?—Never.

17624. Chairman.] Was not the election of Perrin and Harty previous to the passing of the Reform Act?—It was.

17625. O'Connell.] Did you vote at the election of Perrin and Harty?—I did not.

17626. You were not registered till the 16th February 1837?—Yes.

17627. You did not pass the corporation till the 31st of October 1836?—That was the day I was sworn in.

17628. Mr. Hamilton.] Do you know whether or not you had passed the corporation previously?—Yes, I had; I passed it at the time I stated.

17629. Mr. O'Connell.] In what guild?—In the saddlers'.

17630. What is the other paper you have in your hand?—This is the certificate of my register as a housekeeper, dated the 2d May 1836.

17631. You registered on the 2d May 1836, as a housekeeper; you afterwards registered on the 16th of February 1837 as a freeman?—Yes.

17632. And you produced upon that occasion the following certificate: "Memorandum, that at Michaelmas assembly 1836, Henry Price, saddler, was admitted into the liberties and franchises of the city of Dublin, by birth, and took the usual oaths, and was enrolled; in testimony whereof the same is signed by the town-clerk this 31st of October 1836;" then your admission to the corporation poration at large was not till Michaelmas assembly 1836, according to this?—That is the time I was sworn in.

17633. Is not it manifest that you were not admitted into the corporation at large till Michaelmas 1836?—I do not know that, but I know that I was admitted into the guild.

17634. Then you were admitted in 1836, by birth?—I was admitted at the time I stated, before the election of Alderman Harty.

17635. What was the Christian name of your grandfather?—I think it was Henry.

17636. Do the conservative society that you spoke of attend to the registry?—I have never attended there but twice.

17637. What is their business?—I do not know; I never attended any place but the reading-room.

17638. You never attended any meeting of the society?—I never attended in any place but the reading-room.

17639. What did you pay for that privilege?—I paid 15*s.* a year.

17640. Was your father an Irishman?—He was.

17641. Did you ever say that he was a Scotchman?—No, I do not think I ever did; he had resided for some time in Scotland.

17642. Were you born in Ireland or in Scotland?—In Ireland.

17643. Had your father married in Scotland, and had a family before he came over?—No, he was married in Dublin.

17644. What was your mother's name?—Gomme.

17645. Mr. Hamilton.] Was your father a freeman?—Yes.

17646. Was your grandfather, upon your mother's side, alive at the time of your birth?—No.

17647. Mr. O'Connell.] Is your laboratory for the purpose of bleaching salts and vitriol, or for chemistry generally?—It is for the purpose of making acids, nitric and muriatic acids.

17648. Who was it that first informed you that you would be made free of the corporation at large?—I received a note from College-street.

17649. From anybody there?—I think it is headed the "Registration Committee."

17650. Have you that note?—I have not.

17651. Who had signed it?—I do not think it was signed.

17652. Mr. Hamilton.] Was it printed?—It was a printed notice.

17653. Mr. O'Connell.] What did that note state to you?—The note merely stated, "Sir, you are requested to attend to-morrow at the Assembly-house, to be sworn in free of the city."

17654. And you went the next day, and were sworn?—I did, knowing that I had passed the previous time.

17655. Seven or eight years ago?—Seven or eight years ago; I knew what it referred to, and I went.

17656. Did you know that you had not passed the city seven years ago?—I knew, at the election of Alderman Harty, that I had not passed the city, because I wanted to vote; the Lord Mayor did not swear me, because he said I had not passed the city at large.

17657. Then you had no intimation that you would pass the city at large till you had that note?—I quite forgot the matter, because I registered as a householder.

17658. The first intimation you had of being free of the city at large, was getting that note?—The note did not mention that I was free of the city at large; it merely said, "Sir, you are requested to attend to-morrow at the Assembly-house, to be sworn in free of the city."

17659. Can you be sworn a freeman without being free of the city at large?—I know nothing connected with the freedom.

17660. You do not know who drew up your beseech?—I suppose it was Mr. Kincaid.

17661. That is seven years ago?—Yes.

17662. But last Michaelmas, you did not know who drew up your beseech at that time?—I took no part in it at that time.

17663. But that was done without any consulting with you whatever?—I heard nothing about it till I got that note.

17664. Was there any name to that note?—No.

17665. Did

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

17665. Did you never inquire who those people were that so kindly wrote to you?—No.

17666. Mr. Hamilton.] You understood that it was the Registration Committee in College-street?—Yes, it was headed so.

17667. Mr. O'Connell.] Was that the exact heading of it?—I think it was "The Protestant Registration Committee."

17668. Can you state positively what was your father's Christian name?—It was Thomas.

17669. Can you state positively what was your grandfather's Christian name?—I cannot positively, but to the best of my recollection it was Henry.

17670. Have you no book or entry at home that would tell you?—I could readily find it out if I was at home.

17671. Do you know where he was buried?—I do not.

17672. Did you ever hear where he died?—I do not know that, I think he died in Dublin.

17673. Upon what occasion did your father leave Dublin and go to Scotland?—I think it was in his youth he went; my father was born in the north of Ireland.

17674. In what part of the north had your grandfather been residing when your father was born?—I do not know.

17675. Do you know what trade or occupation your grandfather followed?—I think he was a saddler.

17676. Do you know where he followed that trade of a saddler, if he was a saddler?—I think, in Castle-street.

17677. He had left Dublin some years before his death?—No, I am not aware of that.

17678. Was it before his coming to Castle-street that your father was born?—I am speaking now of my maternal grandfather.

17679. Then your paternal grandfather was not free at all?—No.

17680. Then the way in which you were admitted by birth was by being the grandson of a freeman in the maternal line?—Yes.

17681. Your father was not free of the corporation of Dublin?—No.

17682. And your grandfather, Price, was not free of the corporation?—No.

17683. Then it was your mother's father that was free of the corporation?—

17684. Henry Hall is married to your sister?—He is.

17685. Was he married in his mother's lifetime?—No.

17686. How long has he been married to your sister?—I think about a twelve month ago this month.

17687. Is he still in Carolin's employ, till he came here?—No.

17688. Is he in any employment?—He was in Mr. Armstrong's employment.

17689. Who is Mr. Armstrong?—A builder.

17690. How long was he in Mr. Armstrong's employment?—I think, two or three months.

17691. Has not he been in any employ since he left Mr. Armstrong?—He left Mr. Armstrong to come here.

17692. Did he go from Carolin's to Armstrong?—No, he was with another person; he was conducting business for Mr. Battersby.

17693. Did he go from Carolin's to Mr. Battersby?—Yes, he did.

17694. And from Battersby to Armstrong?—Yes.

17695. Do you know when your maternal grandfather died?—I do not recollect the time.

17696. Do you recollect him at all?—No.

17697. Was he dead before you were born, according to the reputation of the family?—He was.

17698. Was he dead several years before you were born?—I dare say six or seven years.

17699. You say that from the repute of your father and mother?—Yes.

17700. Is your mother living?—She is.

17701. Did you ever hear of anybody except yourself for whom the right was claimed through his mother?—No, I did not.

17702. Mr. Hamilton.] The right in the guild in your case was admitted without any reference to your voting for a Member of Parliament?—Completely.

15 June 1837.

17703. Mr. O'Connell.] You registered as a freeman by birth?—Yes.

17704. Were you ever at the guild?—I was.

17705. Were you sworn in there?—I was.

17706. Was not that after you were sworn in, in the city at large; was not it after last October?—I think it was.

17707. Are not you convinced that it is not 12 months since you were sworn in?—It is not 12 months.

17708. Then must it not have been since October?—Yes; I attended upon a summons from the guild.

17709. And that was after the letter that you got from the Protestant Registry Association?—I think it was.

17710. You heard nothing at all of your passing the city at large till you got that notice to go and be sworn?—Nothing.

17711. Who went with you to be sworn?—I went by myself.

17712. Was Mr. Collison attending there?—I saw Mr. Collison in the room.

17713. What did you pay for being sworn?—I paid for my certificate 1 s.

17714. Did you pay anything else?—I paid the fees to the clerk of the guild; Henzell, the clerk of the guild, called upon me for the amount.

17715. How much did you pay?—I think it was 12 s. 6 d.; and the day I attended the guild to be sworn in I gave the beadle 2 s. 6 d.

George Archer, Esq., called in; and further Examined.

G. Archer, Esq.

17716. Mr. O'Connell.] HAVE you the beseeches for the Michaelmas quarter 1836?—I have.

17717. Were you rightly understood to say that being the son of a freeman was that which gave a claim by birth, provided the father had been 21 years free?—Yes.

17718. Have you introduced the right of grandsons?—Yes.

17719. When did you introduce that?—A long time; I cannot say how long.

17720. Do you mean grandsons maternally as well as paternally?—No.

17721. The grandson in the male line only?—Yes.

17722. Have you ever known an instance before the Reform Bill of anybody claiming as grandson in the female line?—No.

17723. Have you since the Reform Bill?—I have.

17724. So that there has been introduced since the Reform Bill the right of birth through the maternal line?—Yes.

17725. Will you look at the beseech of Mr. Henry Price, in Michaelmas 1836?—[The Witness referred to the same.]

17726. When was the first person who was made free under the claim of birth in right of the maternal line?—I could not say; it was subsequent to the Reform Bill.

17727. Chairman.] Can you state how many persons have been admitted as freemen since the passing of the Reform Bill under that right?—By going through all the beseeches it would be possible to find it out.

17728. Mr. O'Connell.] The entry is: "Henry Price, of ——, saddler, to be admitted by birth, being the grandson of the late Barnaby Gomme, who claimed in the Michaelmas assembly 1768, by service." Were you apprized that Henry Price was not born during the lifetime of his grandfather?—I cannot say that.

17729. Would not that make a difference?—I do not think it would.

17730. Here is another, Mr. Sherwood, of Burland, the grandson of John Curtis; that, of course, was in the maternal line?—Yes, from the alteration of name it would appear so.

17731. Do you know who it was that first suggested the making grandchildren in the maternal line free of the corporation by birth?—I do not.

17732. Who could have certified for Mr. Price if he did not look for his freedom himself?—I cannot charge my recollection now who could have certified for him; he must have entered the minor corporation under that claim, and the same proceeding must have gone forward with respect to his claim as in any other case.

17733. You were not apprized of the fact that he had not been looking for the freedom himself, but that it was done without his knowledge?—No.

17734. Chairman.]

G. Archer, Esq.

15 June 1837.

17734. Chairman.] Your simple duty was to ascertain whether he had a right to be admitted or not?—Yes.

17735. Mr. O'Connell.] Do you think that it was about two years after the Reform Bill before any claim in the maternal line was admitted?—I think it was, but the return would show that.

17736. Were you professionally called upon to express an opinion as to that right?—No, I was not.

17737. Mr. O'Connell.] Were not they endeavouring to make as many freemen as they could?—I certainly think there was that anxiety; I said so before.

17738. Mr. Hamilton.] Are you now prepared to deliver in a statement of the number of electors in the city of Dublin up to the 31st of January last?—I am.

[The Witness delivered in the same.]

Mr. Henry Price, called in; and further Examined.

Mr. Henry Price.

17739. WHAT was the Christian name of your mother's father?—I think it was Henry; I think his name was Henry Gomme.

17740. That is the name that you heard from your mother that he was called?—I think it was, but I could very easily ascertain.

17741. Would you be surprised if his name was Barnaby?—I am not certain.

17742. Did you ever hear Barnaby given as his name?—Perhaps I was confusing the name of an uncle of mine and my grandfather's, but I was under the impression that my grandfather's name was Henry.

17743. Mr. Hamilton.] Are there any of the brothers of your mother alive now?—There are.

17744. Mr. O'Connell.] What are their names?—One George and the other Thomas.

17745. What was your grandfather?—He was a saddler.

17746. Where did he live?—I think in Castle-street.

17747. Will you undertake, as soon as you return to Dublin, to ascertain from your mother and from your uncles, the Christian name of your grandfather Gomme, when he died and where he was buried, and where he lived, and what was his occupation, and transmit the same to the Chairman of the Committee?—I will.

17748. How old are you?—I am 27.

17749. Was it in Dublin you were instructed in chemistry?—It was.

17750. Did you serve your time to anybody?—I did.

17751. To whom?—To my uncle.

17752. What is his Christian name?—James Price.

17753. He is a chemist also?—Yes.

Mr. William Jordan Lambert, called in; and further Examined.

Mr. W. J. La

16 June 183

17754. Mr. O'Connell.] ARE the Committee to understand that all the entries which were read out of your books previous to the Reform Bill, giving a right by birth, are entries of the son; that is to say, the person claiming by birth claimed as the son of a free brother?—Not invariably; there are grandsons; but I cannot give the Committee good information upon that, for I was only clerk a short time previous to the Reform Bill.

17755. Were not all the admissions by birth before the Reform Act, admissions in right of the father, or paternal grandfather?—I looked accurately to that so far far as 1811, and there appear very few, if any, claiming by the grandfather; I think there are some maternal.

17756. Can you show any?—Unless I had the books, I could not lay my hand upon any: but it strikes me that there are some instances. I mentioned on the last day that there are several persons that have come in by maternal and paternal right. For instance, I perceive there are two of my father's workmen, the two Woolleys, locksmiths, and a Mr. F. Bentley. But the clerk of the guild of that day did not set forth as of what right; he merely said, "The following persons were admitted by birth," without particularizing upon the transaction book out of what right derivable, that is setting forth the name of the party from whom they claimed the right; by which means, as I mentioned the last day, there is no way of ascertaining but by the copies of the petitions, which Mr. Pattison always sets forth to the council of the house: the petition of A. B., claiming a right by birth as the son or grandson of such a person; and then in the petition, the right derivable is set forth, though I perceive it is not in the year 1825 entered in the book. The clerk of the guild was a very irregular person, and, as it appears, a very ignorant person.

17757. Are the petitions preserved that those persons presented?—I should think many of them are in the box; I have some of them.

17758. Have you those of 1825?—I think I have.

17759. Do you mean that you have them here?—No, certainly not; they were written for four days ago; I think they will be on their way, for a great part of them lie in my own house, and I desired my mother to forward them.

17760. Chairman.] With regard to the two individuals whose names you alluded to before, of the name of Woolley, can you state of your own knowledge, though not officially, under what right they derived their claim?—I could not say positively without I had the documents.

17761. Mr. O'Connell.] Ought there not to be a document showing in what way they claimed to be allowed to prosecute their freedom?—And such a document was in existence, or they never could have got their freedom at the time.

17762. And if it be in existence you will take care that the Committee shall have it?—If I have it they shall; and there is one gentleman, Mr. William Bentley, who is entered as claiming by birth. Now, I know he claimed as a grandson.

17763. Do you know whether maternal or paternal?—Maternal; for his grandfather had a remarkable christian name. His father's name was Esaias; and there are some that derive by maternal right, that I can speak to from knowing the parties. I think my father made one or two of the Woolleys free, being grandsons of a freeman, for the purpose of getting them to vote; but this is only my recollection, but I can speak positively to Bentley.

17764. Mr. Hamilton.] Can you state positively that the extraordinary name was that of the grandfather?—I can say that it was stated so; and it will appear in another entry in the book when he was sworn in, that he was sworn in as a grandson. In the return which has been delivered in to the Committee, I find these cases in 1829, on July the 29th: "William Williams, grandson of Ralph Williams; Robert Warren, grandson of Nathaniel Warren, and William Geary, grandson of Timothy Geary."

17765. Mr. Lefroy.] Had you no beseeches prior to 1811?—I think there are some that are printed and filled up.

17766. Mr. O'Connell.] The entry with respect to Williams in that bill, is under the date of the 30th of July 1830?—It is.

17767. And it runs as follows: "It is moved and seconded, that the council of the house retire to transact such business as may be necessary; which being complied with, the council of the house return to the hall and submit petitions of the following persons which have been approved of by them, to the brethren at large, for their sanction to prosecute their freedom in this guild, each petition being read and the question put separately thereon; namely, John Bennet, as the son of our late brother Thomas Bennet, passed by birth and allowed to prosecute his freedom accordingly." Is not the next person the William Williams you spoke of?—Yes.

17768. "William Williams, as the grandson of brother Ralph Williams, passed by birth and allowed to prosecute his freedom accordingly."—Yes.

17769. Then there is William Orpen, as son; Thomas Clements, as son; William Anderson, junior, as son; "Robert Warren, as grandson of the late Nathaniel

Mr. W. J. Lambert.

16 June 1837.

Nathaniel Warren, who was a brother of this guild, allowed to prosecute his freedom accordingly?"—Yes.

17770. Then there is "Thomas Paine, of Henry-street, as being married to the daughter of a free brother of this guild before his said daughter was born; passed by birth or marriage and allowed to prosecute his freedom accordingly?" —Mr. Allen can explain that. At one time there was an idea of coming in by being married to a daughter, and they put it upon birth or marriage. There is another of the same date: "William Leeper, as being married to the daughter of Richard Whittaker, who was a free brother of our guild before his said daughter was born; passed by birth or marriage and allowed to prosecute his freedom accordingly?"—Yes.

17771. Does not it contain also this entry: "The petition of Francis Dowling, glazier, as having served his apprenticeship to brother John Hodges, who was a freeman of this guild before the said Francis Dowling was bound an apprentice, passed the council of the house; and the same being submitted to the corporation at large was rejected, on the ground of its being proved in the hall that he had preferred the Roman Catholic religion to that of the Protestant, which latter he was when bound an apprentice?"—Yes. It was considered that Mr. Hodges had violated the principles of his oath by taking a Roman Catholic apprentice. There was a great desire to admit him; they said at one time, out of compliment to Mr. Hodges, that he should be admitted, and then they found afterwards that it could not be shown that he was a Protestant when he was bound.

17772. It appears that he was "rejected upon the ground of its being proved in the hall that he had preferred the Roman Catholic religion to that of the Protestant, which the latter he was when bound an apprentice;" so that, what was proved was, that he was a Protestant when bound an apprentice, and that he became a Roman Catholic afterwards?—What I have stated was the fact; I do not know how it may be entered, but I recollect the matter making a very great noise.

17773. Were you clerk of the guild at that time?—No, I was not. The present lord mayor was anxious because we were afraid, as was the fact, that he could be forced into the guild by applying to the Court of King's Bench.

17774. Mr. M. J. O'Connell.] Do you mean that he was refused rather as a censure upon Mr. Hodges, for having violated the rule of the guild, than as a censure upon the party himself?—Upon both grounds. It is not likely that a Roman Catholic would get into the guild without it had been ascertained that he could compel us.

17775. Mr. O'Connell.] But, in point of fact, you have not admitted any Roman Catholic?—The two Adcocks and Henderson were Roman Catholics, and took the oaths accordingly.

17776. Chairman.] You have no doubt that this entry was made at the time, and that it is in the handwriting of the then clerk of the guild?—Decidedly.

17777. Mr. Lefroy.] In what respect do you say it is a mistaken entry?—I recollect being in the hall; he passed the council of the house, and then some one stood up in the hall, and pointed out that he was a Roman Catholic, and objected to his admission upon those grounds. Mr. Hodges said then, that he would certainly push him, for he was a well-conducted man, and some conversation then took place as to whether Mr. Hodges had not acted incorrectly in the spirit of his oath in taking him apprentice.

17778. Mr. O'Connell.] That oath is positive, not to take a Roman Catholic apprentice?—It is, "That you shall not take an apprentice of the Roman Catholic religion."

17779. Mr. Lefroy.] In what respect is the entry in that book incorrect?—I say as the word "latter" refers to his being a Protestant when bound, I think there must be a mistake, because the feeling was, that he was a Roman Catholic when he was bound, or Mr. Hodges would not have any blame at all.

17780. Mr. O'Connell.] But the entry is directly the reverse?—It is; and I would abide by the books in giving evidence.

17781. The book says that Dowling was rejected upon the ground of its being proved in the hall, that he had "preferred the Roman Catholic religion to that of the Protestant, which latter he was when bound an apprentice." Does not the word "preferred" show clearly that he had been a Protestant at one time, and that he afterwards became a Roman Catholic?—Yes; I know that it was often often afterwards suggested to Mr. Hodges to bring him forward again if he paid the fees, upon which he would get it.

Mr. W. J. Lambert.

16 June 1837.

17782. But as he could not pass the city, it would not be worth his while?—I do not think the city would refuse him now if he passed our guild, because the feeling has changed very much since that time.

17783. Under this oath, "You shall not take an apprentice but of the Protestant religion, and for no less term than seven years; the same to be bound or enrolled by the clerk of the guild for the time being:" do you interpret the Protestant religion, to be any person that is not a Roman Catholic, no matter whether he be a Presbyterian or a member of the Established Church?—I would say so. I would say any person, who I understand in the meaning of a Protestant, not being of the church of Rome.

17784. It is not construed to be limited to a Protestant of the Established Church?—By no means; we have a great number of Presbyterians.

17785. And Protestants of all kinds?—Yes; and Baptists, and Seceders, and Methodists.

17786. And Unitarians?—I do not think we have any Unitarians.

17787. Chairman.] All you know of it is, that a person entering your guild does not profess the Roman Catholic religion?—If a Roman Catholic, or if twenty Roman Catholics came to me now, applying to come into the corporation of smiths, by birth, service or marriage, I would at once advise them to make a claim, and possibly, if it were put to vote, they would admit them, for we could not resist them.

17788. Can you discover to what particular form of the Protestant religion a person applying to you for admission to the guild belongs?—I never asked once.

17789. All that you ascertain is, that he does not belong to the Roman Catholic religion?—Not at all; this is only applicable to masters taking apprentices, not to any other claim whatever; and even though he did take an apprentice, as was seen in the case of Henderson, as it appears upon the entry in the book, we would admit him, for we know that we could not resist him.

17790. Mr. O'Connell.] Do you swear any other oath to each person admitted into the guild?—He takes the oath of abjuration.

17791. And a declaration against the mass, and the invocation of saints?—Protestants take it.

17792. Mr. Hogg.] The effect of that would be to exclude Roman Catholics from being admitted by service?—It would depend upon the way in which the master would view the taking of that oath.

17793.] A rigid adherence to that oath would exclude Roman Catholics from being admitted by service?—Not their admission; even though they were Roman Catholics, I think we would be obliged to admit them.

17794. If a master, notwithstanding that oath, took an apprentice that was a Roman Catholic, still he might be admitted?—The moral guilt would be solely thrown upon him.

17795. There would be no legal exclusion?—No.

17796. Mr. Hamilton.] Suppose a Protestant apprentice became a Roman Catholic subsequent to his apprenticeship, would there be any blame upon the master?—No blame upon the master whatever.

17797. With respect to the oath of abjuration, and the declaration against the invocation of saints, is there not a provision in the Act of 1793, exempting Roman Catholics from it?—Yes; I would not administer it to Roman Catholics.

17798. So that the oath by which Roman Catholics would be excluded was not administered?—No.

17799. Mr. O'Connell.] You have produced a book entitled, "Rules and Bye Laws of the Corporation of Smiths"?—Yes, this book was submitted, as it states, by the committee.

17800. Chairman.] What is the date of the publication of that book?—1817. The committee met, and they drew up all those rules and bye-laws, and directed them to be printed; but I understand that though they really contain the spirit of our bye-laws, they did not pass the hall in this form.

17801. Therefore that book in that form has never been sanctioned by the corporation of smiths?—Never, though it contains the spirit of the rules.

17802. Mr. Hogg.] That is the substance of the bye-laws in a convenient form form for practical use, though it has not actually received legal sanction?—I understand since I came over that it has not received their sanction.

Mr. W. J. Lambe

16 June 1837.

17803. Mr. Hamilton.] Is there any entry in the books of the corporation respecting this?—Yes. At the time that the Committee was appointed, in page 51, 9th January 1817, the following resolution was also moved and seconded: "Resolved, that the council of the House, or a committee thereof, be summoned to take into consideration the bye-laws of the corporation, and to arrange the same so as to form a more perfect code; and that the same, when sanctioned by the corporation at large, be printed for the use of the members of the guild, and that they do report to the corporation on its next sitting. The following persons were then appointed of the Committee," and it then recites the names as in the printed book.

17804. Is there any other entry subsequently?—Then "Thursday, 10th April 1817, the Committee appointed on the last quarter-day to revise the bye-laws of this guild made their report; ordered, that the same do lie upon the table until the next quarter day." Then the next quarter day comes, Wednesday, 18th June 1817. The hall was then adjourned to another day; and upon the adjourned day there is no notice taken of the rules and regulations.

LORD GRANVILLE SOMERSET, IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. George Irwin, called in; and Examined.

Mr. G. Irwin.

19 June 1836.

17805. Chairman.] WHAT are you?—I am a solicitor.

17806. Are you clerk to any guild in Dublin?—I am.

17807. Which guild?—The tanners and the weavers.

17808. Mr. O'Connell.] Then you are clerk to two guilds?—I am.

17809. Chairman.] Have you any books belonging to those guilds with you in London?—I have.

17810. What books?—I have the transaction book of the weavers, and also a stamp book of admissions.

17811. And with regard to the tanners, have you any books?—Yes; the transaction book of that body, and the list of the brethren.

17812. Have you got them with you?—They are at my lodgings in John-street.

17813. Mr. O'Connell.] Is the oath of a freeman of your guild in any of the books which you have?—Yes, I have a book of that sort.

17814. Does it contain the freeman's oath?—Yes.

[The Witness was directed to go and fetch the Books.]

17815. How long have you been clerk of the guild of tanners?—About 30 years.

17816. You were sworn into your office on the 8th of November 1808?—I was so.

17817. Were you free of the guild before that?—I was.

17818. Do you produce the transaction book beginning 5th of November 1816?—I have one before that.

17819. This book contains copies of the charters, does it not?—Yes.

17820. And it also contains copies of the oath taken by every brother of your guild?—It does.

17821. This is the oath, is it not: "You shall swear to bear faith and true allegiance to our Sovereign Lord the King (naming him), his heirs and successors, and be obedient to the master and wardens of this corporation, and to the true and just government thereof; you shall give due attendance every quarter-day and other days of attendance that you shall be thereunto warned, except sickness (or some other lawful excuse); you shall duly pay your quarterages and all other fines laid on you by said corporation; you shall not commit any manner of contempt against the said master and wardens, or give counsel so to do; the master's lawful commands you shall observe; you shall not refuse any office the house thinks you fit to serve, nor take any apprentice for less than seven years, and enrol him within the first six months of his time; and, according to your power and knowledge, shall do and perform all other acts and things that belong to a brother of this corporation, So help you God." That is the freeman's oath?—Yes.

17822. Have you an enrolment book of apprentices?—No.

17823. Has there been any such enrolment book in your time?—No, none.

17824. Then this oath for enrolling apprentices has not been observed; in your time, no apprentice has been enrolled?—I believe not; I do not believe any apprentice has been taken all that time in the guild of tanners; they got apprentices in another way, and common servants and labourers; I do not know of either a tanner or a weaver during that time.

17825. How many claims for freedom are there in your guild of tanners?—Very few.

17826. Show me the entries of freemen being admitted in the guild of tanners; have you any such?—I have.

17827. How many constitute the guild of tanners?—Twenty-four.

17828. There are only 24 in the guild of tanners?—No.

17829. How many representatives have you in the common council?—Only two.

17830. Then do you annually elect a master and wardens?—Yes.

17831. Have you any property?—No, indeed; what property there is is raised from the subscriptions and quarterages.

17832. When did you make that list of the corporation of tanners?—In 1832; I have made no list since.

17833. Now show me the earliest admission in your book of any man to the freedom?—The first I have is in the year 1733, I think.

17834. Does nothing appear of him but his name?—Nothing there.

17835. Does it anywhere else?—Yes, it does in the resolution of admission, that is the signature when they are sworn into the corporation.

17836. Now show me the resolution of the admission of that man?—What is the date?

17837. 1734, you said; the 5th November 1734?—I have not that here.

17838. Are all your guild Protestants?—They are.

17839. For how long back have you enrolments?—I have enrolments going back as far as 1743, but I have not the book here.

17840. Now I will give you one in 1743?—I have 1732 here.

17841. Well, then, if you have 1732 you must have 1734; perhaps you do not know it, but 1734 was before 1732?—I have enrolments here from 1732.

17842. Have you any book in 1744?—I have in 1744.

17843. Will you look for May 5th 1747?—"At a hall held for the corporation of tanners, Dublin, on Tuesday, the 5th of May 1747, being quarter day, present the master, wardens and several of the brethren, Mr. George Bambruck, having been formerly admitted, was this day sworn free of said corporation, and gave bond to stand to the laws of the house, and to serve offices."

17844. Now can you find out when that man was admitted?—Perhaps by referring back a day or two before that; they are generally sworn a day or two after they are admitted.

17845. Mr. Hamilton.] Has such a bond been given in your time?—No.

17846. Do you happen to know the nature of the bond?—I do; to abide by the laws of the house, and pay quarterage, and to fill any office imposed upon them.

17847. Was that a qualified or a full admission of freedom when a bond was given?—When a man gave a bond, he signed it at the same time as he was sworn in.

17848. When he became, to all intents and purposes, a freeman?—Yes.

17849. Mr. O'Connell.] Do you swear any man in before he has passed the city at large?—No, not in my time.

17850. Then can you show me any admission; I find that a Mr. Thomas Birbeck

Mr. G. Irwin.

19 June 1837.

Birbeck and Mr. Thomas White were sworn in the 13th of May 1747; now look back, and see if you find either the admission of Birbeck or White?—Those are the only two I find the actual admissions of. I got several since.

17851. Now, the first two admissions you find in this book are they not these: "At a hall held for the corporation of tanners, 7th February 1743, Mr. John Barber presented a petition, praying to be admitted a free brother of said corporation, which was left as usual to four brothers, the council of the house, who brought him in to pay 1 l. 2 s. 9 d., and a treat, left to himself, which he accepted of, and gave bond to stand to the laws of the house, and to pay 10 l. whenever he follows the tanning trade in the city of Dublin or suburbs thereunto adjoining, and was accordingly sworn a brother of said corporation." That appears to be the first entry of a freeman?—Yes, in that book.

17852. And this is the second: "At a hall held for the corporation of tanners, Dublin, on Thursday, the 18th of April 1745, present the master, wardens and several of the brothers, Mr. Isaac Dickinson, currier, petitioner to be admitted a free brother of said corporation, and was brought in to pay 1 l. 2 s. 9 d. sterling, and not to serve any office in the said corporation for the space of five years, which he accepted of; at the same time, Mr. John Andoe, distiller, was admitted to quarterage, at 7 s. 6 d. a quarter, during the pleasure of said corporation." What is the meaning of admitted to quarterage?—I should suppose, from what I heard people say, that persons who were not tanners by trade did the business, and the same thing refers to the weavers; that a person who was not in the trade of a tanner, for following the trade used to pay a quarterly sum to make him what is called a quarterly brother, entitled to use the trade.

17853. How many have you made free since the Reform Bill, do you think?—One, I believe.

17854. Only one?—Counsellor Peile, son of the surgeon.

17855. Then you have made nobody else since the Reform Bill?—Nobody.

17856. I perceive that your corporation has for many years done very little but meet to adjourn?—Scarcely anything.

17857. Excepting electing representatives to the corporation at large?—They meet on other occasions on matters of trade.

17858. Have you any salary as clerk to the tanners?—No, I have no salary.

17859. Have you any emoluments?—Some small fees.

17860. What do you estimate they amount to annually?—Under 5 l.

17861. Now is the weavers a more numerous corporation?—It is.

17862. How long have you been clerk of the guild of weavers?—Nearly the same time, rather longer of the two, I believe.

17863. Have you any enrolment book of the guild of weavers for enrolling apprentices?—No.

17864. Do you enrol apprentices in that guild at all?—There was not a second enrolled.

17865. Was there any one enrolled?—Yes, one person.

17866. Who was he?—Really I forget the name, it is many years ago.

17867. In what was he enrolled?—In a transaction book of the corporation.

17868. Can you show me that enrolment?—I cannot.

17869. Have you the book here containing it?—I have not.

17870. In the weavers you admit the claims to freedom by birth, do you not?—Yes.

17871. By service?—Yes.

17872. By marriage?—Yes.

17873. And by grace especial?—No, not since the Reform Bill.

17874. But before the Reform Bill, did you?—Before the Reform Bill we did.

17875. But since that you do not admit any by grace especial at all?—No, not any.

17876. Then when a man proposes to become a member of the guild of weavers, what does he do, suppose he claims by service?—It is done in two ways; one is this: a member of the guild presents a petition at the meeting from the party praying to be admitted free, and stating his right; that is investigated at the meeting, and if they find that it agrees with the facts mentioned in the petition, he is admitted; that is one way.

17877. Well, what is the other way?—The other way is: a member stands up and proposes such a person to become free, without its being reduced to a petition.

I propose

Mr. G. Irwin.

19 June 1837.

I propose such a one to become free, free born of such and such a person, or having served his apprenticeship, and on this being vouched by faithworthy brethren, persons who vouch for the fact that they know it, he is admitted.

17878. And if there be an opposition to him, how is it decided?—It is put to the question of ayes and noes; the master puts the question, when it is spoke to, that this person do pass, and then it is decided by the ayes and noes.

17879. If any body, if two persons desire a ballot, are they entitled to a ballot upon it?—They are, if they require it.

17880. And that ballot would be a secret ballot, would it not?—It is by beans.

17881. Nobody would know what reason induced any person to vote by ballot, or how he voted?—They are always very candid in stating their objections.

17882. And having passed your guild in that way, do you swear them in immediately?—No.

17883. What delay intervenes?—A very short time; that transaction takes place at the quarterly meeting of the guild; as soon as they pass the corporation, there is a certificate granted of it, signed by the master and wardens and clerk.

17884. As soon as they pass the guild of weavers, they get a certificate?—Yes.

17885. Well, they are not sworn in upon that certificate?—No, the certificate is to the lord mayor of the city, certifying that they have passed the guild; then they go before the lord mayor and aldermen and council at the quarterly assembly.

17886. Now, if rejected by the lord mayor and council, do they come back to you to be sworn?—No, there is an end of it if they are rejected by them.

17887. But if they are admitted, and in that case only they come back?—With a certificate and we swear them.

17888. So that the freedom of your guild depends altogether, the completion of it depends altogether on the decision of the corporation of the city at large?—It does, and most of the other corporations, I believe.

17889. Show me the oath taken in this guild of weavers. [It was handed to Mr. O'Connell.]

17890. Is the guild of weavers numerous?—Indeed they are.

17891. Have you admitted more since the Reform Bill than you did before?—I think we have; perhaps more.

17892. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Have you any idea how many persons have been admitted as of right to the freedom of the corporation of weavers since the Reform Bill?—I should not be surprised if there were 60 or more.

17893. Can you inform us how many of those may have been admitted by servitude?—Yes, I could, and by birth.

17894. Tell us how many have been admitted by service since the Reform Bill?—On the 2d of April 1832, Matthew Singleton was admitted by birth.

17895. I want to know how many were admitted by service since the Reform Bill?—J. P. Green, admitted by service, July 1832.

17896. Well, that is one?—Joseph Long, by service.

17897. Mr. O'Connell.] What are you reading from?—From the entry of their admission.

17898. The stamped entry?—Yes.

17899. Does it appear by that when they were admitted?—It does; some of these are not sworn in; some persons who were admitted on stamps were not sworn in.

17900. Who paid for the stamps if they were not sworn in?—The party himself pays it on the proposal. Matthew Lynch, by service.

17901. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Is that three?—That is three. James Shaw, by service.

17902. That is four.—William Dunn, by service.

17903. That is five.—Patrick Parnell, by service; Benjamin Wray, by service; George Henry Adins, by service: that is all.

17904. Then there have been nine now by service since the Reform Bill passed?—Yes.

17905. Were they more numerous before or since the passing of the Reform Bill, those who claim of right?—Much on an average.

17906. Do they require, when they admit in right of service, the production of the indentures in your guild?—They do; they always ask for the indentures.

17907. Are

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

17907. Are they always produced?—They are not always produced.

17908. Would it be fatal to the claim in your guild if it were not produced?—No, it would not; for after they pass our guild, and go to the corporation of the city, there is a jury empannelled to inquire into the service, and they ascertain the validity of the service by the indenture, or, by the loss of it, if it is proved before them on oath; a jury of freemen.

17909. And have you ever known any case where a party was admitted on proof of seven years' service without the production of the indentures, or the proof of the loss of the indentures?—No, never.

17910. Are you always present at the admission?—Very often, I am.

17911. Mr. O'Connell.] Then perhaps the one or the other is necessary, either to produce it, or to prove it existed, and was lost?—It is.

17912. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Do they require they should have been enrolled?—No, indeed, they do not require to be enrolled.

17913. I think you said there was only one case in your memory where they had been enrolled?—I only recollect one case; there is a small fee paid on the enrolment, and they wish to save the small fee; that is the fact.

17914. How much is that?—Five shillings and sixpence.

17915. And it has not been the usage to enrol, except upon one occasion that you mentioned?—I never recollect a second.

17916. Did you state at what period you commenced to be clerk of this guild?—About the same time as the other.

17917. And have you been acting uniformly in both the guilds since?—I have.

17918. Personally, and not by deputy?—Personally.

17919. So that you have been privy to the transactions of both guilds for that period?—I do not suppose I have been five times absent from both corporations for 30 years.

17920. Mr. O'Connell.] When were you sworn in as an attorney?—In 1796.

17921. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Is the course the same in the tanners as to admissions?—Just the same.

17922. Do the tanners require that there should be a service under indenture?—I do not know a single apprentice in the tanners; they employ people of different descriptions.

17923. Did you ever know an admission of right into the tanners at all?—By birth, several.

17924. By marriage?—And by marriage; yes, one marriage, a Mr. Atkinson, who was married to a daughter of Mr. Ord of Cork-street.

17925. How long ago is it since he was admitted?—More than 20 years ago.

17926. Is he a tanner?—He was; he is dead; his son is a tanner and master of the guild.

17927. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Would you be able to turn to the admission of that gentleman who married the daughter of Mr. Ord?—I would.

17928. Can you specify in each case the right in respect of which the party was admitted?—Yes.

17929. Mr. Hogg.] Is it the usage for tanners to take apprentices in Dublin?—I believe not; I do not know of any that have taken apprentices.

17930. Then you do not believe that in Dublin it is the usage for tanners to take apprentices like other tradesmen?—I believe not; I do not think it is.

17931. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Is the tanning a declining branch of trade in Dublin?—I think it is; there are very few of the trade in Dublin.

17932. Has it ever been in a more flourishing condition than it is now within your memory?—I cannot say, for it has been on the decline ever since I knew it.

17933. Mr. O'Connell.] Has it not increased since the taking off the excise?—I do not know, indeed.

17934. Do you not know enough of it to say that?—No, I do not.

17935. When was Atkinson admitted?—Atkinson was admitted in 1819, by marriage.

17936. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Just read the entry of his admission?—"John Mathers Atkinson, of Blessington-street, tanner, be admitted free of this guild by grace especial, being married to Martha Ord, the free-born daughter of our late much respected master, Thomas Ord, deceased."

17937. Now your entry there is by grace especial?—Yes; at that period the city of Dublin would not recognize the right of marriage, and it was mentioned to be by grace especial.

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

Mr. G. Irwin.

19 June 1837.

17938. Mr. O'Connell.] And did not recognize it till after the Reform Bill?—Yes, long before that.

17939. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] It appears this entry is made by you?—Yes.

17940. I perceive that the admission here, "admitted free by grace especial," as you read it, is "grace e" and written on an erasure?—Is it so?

17941. Have the goodness to see how that is?—"Grace especial;" no, I do not think it is on an erasure.

17942. Mr. O'Connell.] There is no fraud; it is a fair entry?—It is.

17943. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] I do not impute any fraud at all; but look at that now a little carefully, and tell me whether there was not something else written on that, and whether the colour of the ink is not different; whether it is not written on an erasure?—I do not think there is an erasure.

17944. Did you not write that yourself?—I did, just as it stands there.

17945. Will you see whether "right" did not originally stand on the same space as is now occupied by "grace e"?—I never made an entry in my life by right in those words.

17946. Are you sure of that?—I am.

17947. You say that, before the passing of the Reform Bill, they did acknowledge the right of marriage?—They did.

17948. How long before the passing of the Reform Bill?—I believe shortly after that time they admitted the right of freedom by marriage.

17949. Did you not say, in answer to a question by the learned Member for Kilkenny, that before the passing of the Reform Bill, they did acknowledge the right of marriage?—I know they made objections to it.

17950. Did you not say they acknowledged the right of marriage before the passing of the Reform Bill?—I think I may have said it.

17951. Do you say it now?—Indeed I think so; that strengthens my mind on the subject, because that was before the Reform Bill, a long time.

17952. Mr. O'Connell.] Atkinson's entry is before the Reform Bill?—Yes.

17953. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Do you not see the way it is entered; there is "grace e"?—That is grace especial.

17954. Did you not say that they acknowledged the right of marriage before the passing of the Reform Bill?—I really cannot say that; I know, at some period, they had an objection to admit persons by marriage—the corporation of the city.

17955. Did they get over that objection before 1832?—Certainly they did.

17956. And have you known persons admitted in right of marriage before 1832?—I have, long previously.

17957. Mr. O'Connell.] In the corporation at large?—Yes; for instance, I recollect a person of the name of Rounds, and a person of the name of Coyle, an attorney; he came in in right of his wife.

17958. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] And were they admitted in that right?—By marriage; yes.

17959. Mr. O'Connell.] In what corporation?—The guild of weavers.

17960. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] You have a distinct recollection of that?—I have.

17961. Of both those cases?—Of both those cases.

17962. Do you state that those are the only cases in which they were admitted in respect of that right?—No; I think there was another person, of the name of Lacy, who lived in Castle-street; he was also admitted in right of his wife, and that was a great many years before the Reform Bill.

17963. Can you give the periods at which those three persons that you have respectively named were admitted?—I cannot.

17964. Mr. O'Connell.] Are they not in your book?—That book is not here.

17965. Who has that book?—The master has it; I expect I shall have it to-morrow or the day after.

Mr. Hamilton.] Refer to the entry of Edward Singleton, of Cork-street, in January 1822, and tell me in what he was admitted.

17966. Chairman.] What book is that?—A memorandum book.

17967. Is that book correct in its entries?—Yes.

17968. Mr. O'Connell.] Is that the original book of entries?—That is a kind of blotter.

17969. Chairman.] Are those entries in your handwriting?—They are.

17970. Mr. Hamilton.] Referring to that book, tell me in what right Edward Singleton

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

Mr. G. Irwin.

19 June 1837.

Singleton was admitted?—As being married to Sarah, the free-born daughter of Isaac Harrison, late a free brother.

17971. In right of marriage?—Yes.

17972. Can you state whether he passed the corporation at large?—He did.

17973. Mr. O'Connell.] Is the book to be produced here that contains the entry taken from that blotter?—The book is here; I am going to refer to it.

17974. Now you are going to refer to a book that shows how much you received; are you going to refer to the transaction book?—I am going to refer to the stamp admissions.

17975. No, but the transaction book; have you that here?—Yes, I have that here. "1st January 1822, Edward Singleton, of Cork-street, weaver, by marriage, he being married to Sarah, the free-born daughter of Isaac Harrison, late a free brother."

17976. Mr. Hamilton.] Can you state whether he passed the corporation at large?—He did, and is a member of the corporation at this moment.

17977. Now, would you refer to an entry under the date of 1st July 1820, of the admission of Robert Hovingdon?—"Robert Hovingdon, of the Coombe, by birth, he being married to Sarah, the daughter of Isaac Harrison."

17978. Chairman.] When he is stated to be free by birth, having married the daughter of so and so, does that intend to state that his freedom is derived from his wife?—By marriage; yes.

17979. Mr. Hamilton.] His wife being entitled to her freedom by birth?—Yes; being the free-born daughter of Isaac Harrison.

17980. Now refer to the case of Joseph Sinclair Mayne, of the same date, and tell me in what right he was admitted?—"Joseph Sinclair Mayne, proposed to become free by birth, he being married to Rachel, the daughter of Joshua Lacy, a free brother."

17981. Now refer to the admission of Richard Austin of Sackville-street, the 2d of October 1820, and state in what right he was admitted?—"Richard Austin, of Sackville-street, proposed to become free, he being married to Mary, the daughter of Patrick Kirwan, a free brother by birth; admitted."

17982. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you the stamped admissions of these people?—I have.

17983. Show me them.—I will.

17984. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Are you the person accountable to the stamp department for these stamps?—No; they are paid to the master, and the master pays them into the Stamp-office; I have not the book of stamps before 1821.

17985. Mr. O'Connell.] Where is the former book of stamps before that?—That is in the corporation.

17986. Chairman.] Now, can you state whether these two persons, Mayne and Hovingdon, were admitted into your guild, and sworn in?—I have not here the transaction book of that date.

17987. But does the transaction book prove they were admitted into the corporation of the city of Dublin at large, and eventually sworn into your guild?—No, that is not an evidence of that. The roll on which the parties are sworn is signed by them when they come back to the corporation.

17988. Who has got that?—It is in the hands of the master; it will be here to-morrow, or the day after.

17989. Mr. Hamilton.] Can you state whether they were admitted into the corporation at large?—I know they are members of the corporation at this moment.

17990. Now turn to the entry under the date of 1st April 1824, and tell me in what right William Sinton, of the Corn-market, was admitted?—"William Sinton, of Corn-market, weaver, be admitted free of this corporation, he being married to Anna, the free-born daughter of Joshua Jackson, late a free brother."

17991. Chairman.] Then I perceive by that entry that in this guild they admit the rights of granddaughters?—They do.

17992. Now do you know whether that individual was admitted to the freedom of the corporation of the city at large?—He was, and is a member of the corporation, and has been a warden of it.

17993. And in that right?—And in that right.

17994. Just refer to the stamp book, and read the entry of the 1st of April 1824?—"William Sinton, of the Corn-market, weaver, be admitted free of this corporation,

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

Mr. G. Irwin.

19 June 1837.

corporation, he being married to Anna, the free-born daughter of Joshua Jackson, late a free brother."

17995. Chairman.] Is that in the stamp book?—Yes.

17996. What stamp duty did he pay?—He paid 1 l.; birth, service and marriage, pay 1 l.; grace especial, 3 l.

17997. Now look at the 1st January 1822?—"Edward Singleton, of Cork-street, be admitted a freeman, he being married to Sarah, the free-born daughter of Isaac Harris, late a free brother."

17998. What stamp duty did he pay?—£. 1.

17999. Refer to the same date to John Dunn, Sackville-street, and tell me by what right he was admitted?—"First of January 1822, John Dunn admitted by grace especial, and he had a certificate from the lord mayor, that is on a 3 l. stamp."

18000. Mr. O'Connell.] You say you know William Sinton had passed the corporation at large?—I do; and actually has been elected warden, and served the office of warden in the guild of weavers.

18001. Mr. Hamilton.] Can you refer to an entry in the book in which he was elected warden?—No; but I can prove he served; I know that he served.

18002. And he could not have served as warden without having passed the corporation at large?—Certainly not.

18003. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Do you know whether he ever voted for Members of Parliament for the city of Dublin?—I believe he did.

18004. Mr. Hamilton.] Now refer to the case of George Bingham, of the Weaver-square, 1st April 1824, and tell me in what right he was admitted?—"George Bingham, of the Weaver-square, clothier, be admitted free of this corporation by marriage, he being married to Mary Ann, the free-born daughter of Isaac Harrison, late a free brother;" that is on a 1 l. stamp.

18005. Can you state whether Bingham was admitted into the corporation at large?—He was, and is a member at present; he lives at the Coombe.

18006. Now refer to the case of John Clegg of Cork-street, 1st January 1825, I think, and state in what right he was admitted?—"That John Clegg, of Cork-street, weaver, be admitted free of this corporation by marriage, he being married to the daughter of John Singleton, a free brother," and so forth.

18007. What is the stamp?—£. 1.

18008. Now, the same date, refer to the case of Francis Bickerstaff?—Same day: "Resolved, that Francis Bickerstaff, of Warburgh-street, weaver, be admitted free by marriage, he being married to the free-born granddaughter of Edward, and daughter of William Atkinson, free brothers of this corporation." The reason why the two are mentioned in that admission, both the father and the grandfather, is, the father was not long enough free for his daughter to come in by that right, and then it was referred back to the grandfather.

18009. Mr. O'Connell.] Do you say Bickerstaff passed the city at large?—I do; and is at present a voting member of it.

18010. Did he pass before the Reform Bill, do you think?—A great many years before; he passed in 1825, along with his brother, Edward Garty; "Edward Garty, of Werburgh-street, weaver, be admitted free of this corporation by marriage, he being married to the free-born granddaughter of Edward, and the daughter of William Atkinson, free brothers of this corporation, and that a certificate be granted," and so forth.

18011. Chairman.] The same explanation applies to that as to the former case?—Exactly.

18012. Mr. O'Connell.] When was he admitted?—The 1st of June 1825.

18013. Mr. Hamilton.] Can you state whether Garty and Clegg have been admitted into the corporation at large?—Yes, both.

18014. Chairman.] Previous to the passing of the Reform Bill?—Yes, in the year 1825, and that was long previous to it.

18015. What stamps did those two gentlemen pay?—£. 1.

18016. Mr. O'Connell.] Are you quite sure Bickerstaff passed the corporation at large?—Yes, and voted for Members of Parliament on more occasions than one.

18017. Mr. Hamilton.] Now then, you have John Marshall, who was admitted the 1st October 1825?—"First of October 1825; John Marshall, of New-row, weaver, be admitted free by marriage, he being married to the free-born daughter of of Robert Thompson, late a free brother; and that a certificate be granted him," and so forth.

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

18018. State the stamp?—£. 1.

18019. Is he free of the corporation at large?—He is free of the corporation at large.

18020. There are several entries here of freemen by birth, as being the grandsons of free brothers?—Yes.

18021. Mr. O'Connell.] You do not swear in anybody until after they have passed the city at large?—No.

18022. Then you did not swear in John Marshall until after he had passed the city at large, of course?—Of course not.

18023. John Marshall appears by Mr. Archer's book to have passed the city at large as a weaver, by grace especial, at Michaelmas 1825?—That is a mistake.

18024. Chairman.] Does it ever happen that a person is admitted into the corporation at large, and then comes to your guild, or to any other guild, to be admitted there?—I think such a thing has happened before now, in the case of the son of Sir Morgan Crofton; after being in the city at large, he came then to the Weavers' guild, because if they are admitted in the city at large, they may make choice of attaching themselves to any guild that they like.

18025. Mr. Hamilton.] He was admitted as a honorary freeman, I presume?—I dare say it was the case.

18026. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you any entry of it?—No, I have not.

18027. Mr. Hamilton.] Now refer to the entry of the 2d October 1820, of Morgan Maguire, of North King-street?—Morgan Maguire became free by birth, as the grandson of Morgan Maguire, proposed and seconded and admitted.

18028. Mr. O'Connell.] Can you say whether he passed the city at lage?—Excepting from belief, I can only say.

18029. Have you no entry of his ever having been sworn in in the corporation at large?—I may have, but I cannot recollect.

18030. Have you the oath?—No, the oath is not here.

18031. His name is Morgan Maguire?—Yes, grandson of Morgan Maguire, and brother to the present Mr. Maguire, the attorney.

18032. Mr. Hamilton.] Tell me in what right Joseph Harris, of Meath-street, was admitted on the 1st of October 1824?—"Joseph Harris, of Meath-street, proposed to become free by birth, by William Harris, seconded by Patrick Kirwan; the said Joseph being the free-born grandson of Joseph Harris."

18033. Have you his stamp?—I have.

18034. State the amount?—£. 1.

18035. Was he admitted into the corporation at large?—He was, and served the office of warden.

18036. You have already stated that several have been admitted as grandsons of freemen?—Yes, a great many.

18037. Mr. O'Connell.] All those whom you have mentioned as admitted by marriage paid but a 1 l. stamp?—I believe one paid 3 l.

18038. Which is that? I will mention the names to you: Hovington, what did he pay?—Hovington was 1 l., certainly.

18039. Then all those persons that you have given down as free by marriage paid but a 1 l. stamp?—I think so, as far as I can ascertain it.

18040. Ascertain it, if you please?—I find one man paid a 3 l. stamp.

18041. Which is that; read that entry?—"William Bernard, of Arran-quay, esq., be admitted free by grace especial, he being married to the daughter of John Milliken, esq., late a free brother." That was in the year 1822.

18042. Mr. Hamilton.] What time of the year?—First July 1822.

18043. Mr. O'Connell.] Was Singleton's a 1 l. stamp?—Yes.

18044. Was Mayne's a 1 l. stamp?—That is not in this stamp book.

18045. Will the other book be here?—It will.

18046. Now, where is the entry of Lacy?—In a very old book which I have not here. That is, I think, about the year 1790 or 1791, as well as I can recollect; Lacy's is very old.

18047. Then you cannot find Lacy?—No, not in that book, because he was before my time.

18048. You do not admit any Roman-catholics in the weavers?—No.

18049. Nor in the tanners?—No. We had no application in the weavers for a great

Mr. G. Irwin.

19 June 1837.

a great many years; in the year 1793 we had, but none since, and latterly we had some in the tanners.

18050. But which were not admitted?—They were not admitted; they would not come to the test; they proposed themselves, and withdrew themselves the morning of the ballot.

18051. I suppose they did not expect you would admit them?—I believe they would have been admitted if they had not withdrawn.

18052. You could not have sworn them in unless they passed the corporation at large?—No, we could not.

18053. Mr. Hamilton.] I see an entry in January 1836, David Charles Latouche, being the free-born grandson of the late Right Honourable David Latouche; he is, I believe, a liberal Protestant?—Yes.

18054. Was he admitted into the corporation at large?—I believe he was; yes, he passed the corporation.

18055. Were you clerk of the guild at the time of the admission of William Bernard of Arran-quay?—Yes, I was; he was an attorney, living on Arran-quay.

18056. That entry is proposed to become free by grace especial, being married to the "son," it was then; that is scratched out and "daughter" put in; being married to the daughter of John Milliken; do you recollect the circumstances of his admission?—I do.

18057. The usual entry in case of admission by marriage is free from the insertion of the words "grace especial"; can you state any reason why those words were introduced in this case?—Indeed, I cannot. There seems to have been an unfavourable idea upon the subject in the city at the time; I believe it was merely to please them that it was done; the city for a long time resisted the applications, or felt an inclination to do so.

18058. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you not told me the only entry in the tanners by marriage was John Mathers Atkinson?—In my time, yes.

18059. Do you know of any before?—No, I do not recollect any; I will not say there were not; there might.

18060. Look at that entry again, and see whether it is not all in your handwriting?—Atkinson's is.

18061. Do you perceive "grace e" is written on an erasure; you had written some other word by mistake?—It must have been something of that kind.

18062. It was merely a correction of the mistake?—I should suppose so; the original beseech is in Mr. Archer's possession.

18063. But you are quite sure there is nothing unfair in that entry?—I am certain of it.

18064. You did not intend to do anybody any wrong by correcting the error?—I did not.

18065. As it stands, is it not a fair bonâ fide entry?—That is my impression.

18066. You have no doubt of that?—No.

18067. If anybody committed a fraud, it must be you?—Yes.

18068. And you certainly had no intention to commit one?—I certainly had not.

Mr. John Wiber, called in; and Examined.

Mr. John Wiber.

18069. Chairman.] WHAT are you?—I am an attorney and solicitor.

18070. Are you clerk to any guild in Dublin?—I am.

18071. To which guild?—The cooks' and vintners'.

18072. Mr. O'Connell.] It is one guild?—It is.

18073. Chairman.] How long have you been clerk to that guild?—Certainly above 20 years, perhaps 25.

18074. How long have you been a freeman of that guild?—I can show by the book; I believe it was in 1810; I was appointed clerk of the guild on the 2d of October 1812.

18075. When were you made free?—Shortly before that; I think, from recollection, it was in 1811.

18076. Was it four or five years before?—No, about a year; it might be two years, perhaps.

18077. Are you free of the corporation at large?—I passed the city; I am not what is considered free of the city at large, but I passed the city as a freeman of the

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

the cooks; it is usual that those who pass a minor guild should pass the city, and I passed the city in that way.

18078. And were you sworn in as a freeman?—I was.

18079. And also were you sworn in to the guild?—I was.

18080. Which oath did you take the first of the two?—The city.

18081. Is that the custom in the guild of cooks and vintners?—It is.

18083. Mr. O'Connell.] Do you swear anybody in to the minor guild who has not passed the city at large?—We do not; I was going to tell you why; we see that they are sworn into the city at large; we got a letter from the lord mayor's secretary, requesting we would not swear any member who passed our guild until he had been first sworn in in the city at large.

18084. Where is that letter; is it entered in the transaction book?—It is.

18085. Now turn to it.

Chairman.] 1675 is the date of it.

18086. Have you got any entry of 1675; have you any book of so old a date as 1675?—I do not think we have; and yet, on recollection, I think we have, for I remember an entry 1691 and 1692.

18087. Where is that book?—In the chest of the corporation; I did not think any such old books would be required; this book commences in 1807.

18088. The purport of that letter was to desire you not to swear into your guild persons free of the guild before they had been made free of the city of Dublin and sworn in to the city?—That was the purport of it; it was not directing, but requesting.

18089. Mr. O'Connell.] And you have acted upon it?—We did; and we were in the habit of doing so before.

18090. Chairman.] Have you acted upon it ever since?—Yes; and we acted in that manner before we got the letter.

18091. Mr. Hamilton.] It is the practice of the lord mayor to send a letter at certain intervals?—Yes; this letter that we got is not many years ago; it is about 15 years ago, perhaps.

18092. Chairman.] But, however, such is the custom?—It is.

18093. Mr. O'Connell.] Will you be able to find the letter of 15 years ago?—I will be able to find an entry of it.

18094. Have you any book for enrolling apprentices?—Yes, this is the book.

18095. Did you ever enrol an apprentice?—I did not.

18096. Have you the oath which your freemen take, in this book?—No, that is on a parchment roll.

18097. Have you that here?—I have it, but I do not know whether the corporation would be satisfied with my producing the oath out of the guild, but I brought it in case it should be required.

18098. Well, now produce it?—I have no objection to produce every paper I have, but it is not usual to produce the original.

18099. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Were you ever called upon to enrol any indenture of apprenticeship?—No.

18100. From the time you first became clerk of the guild?—No; some of the members would say, "I believe I must enrol my apprentice with you; what is your charge for enrolling him?" I said 2*s.* 6*d.* would be little enough to charge for making the entry, but they never did.

18101. But, in point of fact, you never were called upon to make an entry of enrolment?—No.

18102. And never got any fee for that service?—And never got any fee for it.

18103. You say that if any such case had occurred, you would have made an entry in that book, and you would consider that enrolling it?—I would.

18104. Is that the transaction book?—It is the book I use every day at the hall.

18105. Have you examined that book?—I have read it from beginning to end; I have written most of it myself.

18106. What date does it commence at?—One thousand eight hundred and seven, and I commenced in 1812.

18107. Do

Mr. John Wiber.

19 June 1837.

18107. Do you find any entry at all in it of the enrolment of any indenture of apprenticeship?—No, not one.

18108. Have you looked at any book of the guild prior to that?—I did.

18109. A book of the same class?—The same description of book.

18110. Did you find any entries of enrolment in them?—I recollect I did.

18111. How many?—Not many, indeed.

18112. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you those prior books here?—No, I really did not expect they would be wanted; I was told the books would not be required.

18113. And therefore you did not bring them?—No; I thought such old books as those would not be wanted.

18114. Have you any books prior to 1807 here?—Yes, from 1690, and a few years before that time.

18115. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] From King William's time?—Yes; that is the reason I remember it; I was looking at an entry in King William's and King James's.

18116. Mr. O'Connell.] You did not bring King James's?—No.

18117. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] You were not required by the order served upon you to bring over the books?—No, I was not.

18118. Are you able to say about how long ago it may have been, in point of date, that you saw any entry respecting the enrolment of an indenture?—It was in the time of the clerk who immediately preceded me; that was John Gower; he was an attorney, and he was the immediate clerk before me; during his time I saw one.

18119. Did he live in Peter-street?—No; he lived in Kennedy's-lane.

18120. How long back was it that that entry of enrolment took place?—

18121. Mr. O'Connell.] You have it here, have you?—No, I read it in the book, because I looked through the old books.

18122. Now, how long ago was that entry?—A few years before that book commences; before 1807.

18123. You saw entries, but few in number?—Very few.

18124. And did you examine the books from the commencement, from King William's time?—I looked through a great many pages, but did not read the entire books.

18125. You looked at the pages, but did not read them?—I looked at several pages of the books, but did not go through every page of the books.

18126. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Were there to be found entries in those old books in the earlier period?—I do not recollect seeing them.

18127. Mr. O'Connell.] Now is this the oath that you have administered to freemen?—Yes.

18128. Precisely as it is there?—Why there would be the difference of the reign of the King. When George the 3d died we put George the 4th, and then William the 4th.

18129. Now, when did you put William the 4th?—It is not put there; but I have always read William the 4th in William the 4th's time.

18130. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] That is the roll, in fact, which has been subscribed by freemen, and from which the oath has been administered to freemen in several successive reigns?—It is.

18131. And you have substituted the name of the reigning sovereign for the time being as you administered the oath?—Yes; George the 4th for George the 3d; as to King William the 4th, I read it King William the 4th, although I did not write the name, because I thought it would be more regular to hand a new roll in each reign.

18132. But in all other respects, merely making the necessary change of the reigning monarch, you administered the same oath in substance to all the freemen?—Exactly the same.

18133. Mr. O'Connell.] Are there many free of the corporation of cooks?—About 50 or 60 I should suppose is the number.

18134. Have you made any alteration in your entries or modes of admission since the Reform Bill?—No.

18135. Can you show me any entries upon the claim of marriage before the Reform Bill?—I can by the book.

18136. Show me the first in this.

18137. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Have the goodness to take this oath in your hand, and be good enough to state to the Committee what the tenor of the oath is you you administer; I do not mean the oath of allegiance, nor the next, but the long oath that is there; are those the only oaths you administer?—We have a corporation oath.

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

18138. Is that the guild oath?—It is.

18139. Read that to the Committee?—"You shall swear in the name and fear of God, the searcher of all hearts, that you will well and truly serve our Sovereign Lord King William the Fourth that now is, his heirs and lawful successors; and in all matters and things reasonable you shall be obedient to the master, wardens, assistants and governors of this fraternity or guild of St. James the Apostle, in Dublin, or their successors, and shall be ready and willing to come upon all their summonses, except you shall have lawful cause to be absent, .. else you shall pay all such penalties and fines as you shall forfeit, according to the ordinances of this company, being the corporation of cooks, for the breaking of the same. All the ordinances, acts and orders made or to be made for the good rule and government of this company, you shall to the best of your power observe and keep, or else pay such fines and penalties as you shall forfeit by reason of your disobedience or breaking the same. You shall not refuse any office that the major part of this corporation shall judge and vote you capable to undergo. You shall not compact or combine with any person that is not of this corporation to the defrauding of their just rights. All the lawful secrets of the trade, art and mystery of cookery you shall conceal and keep from all foreigners, and all lawful counsel and consultations, words, matters and things, which you shall at any time hear or know spoken or done at any assembly of the company at the hall, or other place, that doth concern the government of the said corporation, reformation of abuses, or regulation of refractory persons, you shall not divulge or make known to any persons whatsoever, whereby the good government, redress of abuses or regulation of disorderly persons, may be hindered, prejudiced or prevented. All this you shall faithfully and truly do and perform to the utmost of your power. So help you God."

18140. It appears by that oath that your corporation do not require any of the brethren to take their apprentices for seven years, nor to take them by indenture, nor to enrol them?—I do not know of any rule to that effect.

18141. There is nothing of that in the oath?—No, there is not.

18142. Then, besides that oath, I understand you to say you do not administer any other oaths except the oaths of allegiance, supremacy and abjuration?—Exactly so; no other.

18143. Now, with respect to apprentices, do you admit any person to the freedom of your guild in right of service as apprentices?—Certainly, we do.

18144. Do you require to see any indenture of an apprentice before you admit him?—In general, we do; but, if a member of the corporation that we can rely on will vouch for it that he has served his time, I have known them to pass him.

18145. If a member who has been confided in states to the board that the individual applicant has served an apprenticeship of seven years, you will admit him, although there should be no indenture?—Yes; but we must be assured also that the indentures are lost, or that some accident has occurred to prevent their being produced. In general, we make them produce the indenture.

18146. Do you ascertain that fact in the guild?—We do.

18147. Before you admit them to the freedom of your guild?—Yes.

18148. In every case?—In every case.

18149. Mr. O'Connell.] You insist either on the indentures being produced, or evidence given of their former existence and loss?—Exactly so; we do.

18150. Mr. Hamilton.] You look on the indentures as the best evidence of the servitude?—Certainly.

18151. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Are you sure that in every case that has occurred of the admission of a person by reason of servitude into your guild, since you became the clerk, that that fact has been in your guild inquired into?—I am positive of that.

18152. How many persons do you know to have been admitted in right of service in your time?—Indeed, I do not think above a dozen, as well as I can say; our corporation is very small.

18153. How many members does it consist of?—About 50 or 60.

18154. And how many representatives do you send to the common council?—Two; in ancient times the corporation sent more, but they lost them by not returning them in time, as I am informed by members of the guild; I do not know that myself.

Mr. John Wiber.

19 June 1837.

18155. Chairman.] What property have you as a guild?—No property as a guild; we are supported by subscriptions from the members.

18156. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] In what way does your emolument as clerk arise; is it salary?—Salary and fees on the admission of each person.

18157. What salary do they allow you?—£. 8. a year.

18158. And your fees; what do they result from?—I get fees on the swearing in of each member; I get fees on the swearing in every year of each warden and master; and on the return of the commoners every three years, the two commoners pay me 2*l.* each.

18159. That is the whole of your emoluments?—That is the whole of my emoluments; I get about 1 l., the fees on the admission of a member.

18160. Mr. O'Connell.] I want from you a return to be made of the persons admitted since you came into office, and the claim or alleged right under which they were admitted, and the page of the book in which it appears; you will be able to make out that return?—Yes, I will: by what time?

18161. By Thursday?—Certainly.

18162. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] What rights do you acknowledge in your guild besides service?—Grace especial, service (that is apprentices), marriage, a man married to the daughter of a freeman, a free-born daughter.

18163. My question was, what rights you acknowledge besides servitude?—Grace especial, service, marriage.

18164. And is not there one other, birth?—And birth.

18165. Then your guild acknowledges the rights of birth, service, marriage, and likewise grace especial?—They do four, those four rights.

18166. Are you the person responsible to the Stamp-office for the stamps on admissions?—No, but I am the person who is called upon to show that the stamps are paid; the inspector from the Stamp-office comes to me.

18167. And he inspects your books?—Yes.

18168. And checks the stamp admission book with the transaction book, I suppose?—He does.

18169. How often does he do that?—Not very often, indeed.

18170. How often may it be?—Some years between each; I suppose it may be five or six years.

18171. Have you brought your stamp admission book with you?—I have; the book I produced has the stamps on the early part of it.

18172. You have pinned into your transaction book the stamped admission of each freeman?—Yes.

18173. You do not then keep a distinct book, the same as the clerks of other guilds do?—I have the stamps in the early part of that book, but then I have a separate book; the Stamp-office officer told me it would be pleasanter to have a separate book, and then I got a new book.

18174. What stamps do you put on birth, service and marriage people?—£. 1. on each.

18175. And what do you put on grace especial?—£. 3. on each.

18176. Has that been always the case in your time?—There was more charged in the commencement of my time, because the corporation were obliged to have stamps in that way, and they were obliged to pay the same stamp duty to the town clerk; they were obliged to pay double; persons remonstrated against that, that it was not fair, or too much, and they gave it up, and now they only are required to pay into the corporation.

18177. Do you mean to say, at any period, a freeman admitted in your guild was obliged to pay stamp duty twice over?—Yes.

18178. Those people who were admitted in right of birth, service and marriage, were obliged to pay 2*l.*?—Yes, 1 l. into the corporation that they were admitted in, and 1*l.* to the town clerk's office.

18179. And the people who were admitted by grace especial were obliged to pay 6 l.?—Yes.

18180. £. 3. to you and 3 l. to the corporation?—Yes.

18181. When was that?—It is a good many years back.

18182. But except that, since you have been in office, it has been always the same rate of charge?—The same.

18183. Chairman.] Is there not a person of the name of Hugh Gamble, stated to be admitted in consequence of some right?—Yes.

18184. What is the right there stated?—By marriage.

18185. What is the date of that?—Twelfth of April 1822; there is an entry of admission admission of Hugh Gamble to the liberties and franchises of this corporation, pursuant to his admission by marriage to the free-born daughter of Hugh Galbraith.

Mr. John Wiber.

19 June 1837.

18186. What is the stamp duty paid upon that admission?—£. 1.

18187. Was that gentleman sworn in to the guild of cooks?—He was.

18188. Did he pass the corporation at large?—He did.

18189. Did he ever serve any office, either in the guild or the corporation at large?—I recollect he served the office of warden.

18190. Warden of the guild?—Warden of the guild.

18191. Mr. O'Connell.] Could he serve that without passing the corporation at large?—He could; I have stated that regulation, that they are qualified to vote in the minor corporation and to hold office, whether they are admitted of the city or not, but not entitled to vote for Members of Parliament. That is the only loss they have by not being sworn in the city.

18192. In what manner does a person apply to be made free of your guild?—They either apply to a member of the corporation, with whom they are acquainted, or to me as clerk of the guild, stating their claims.

18193. Then it is not necessary to send in any written petition or beseech?—No; I prepare that.

18194. When you are spoken to you prepare a written petition?—I do.

18195. Have you any of those written petitions here?—No, I have not.

18196. Did you prepare them before the Reform Bill?—Yes.

18197. Can you procure us some that were prepared before the Reform Bill, in each class of claims?—I can.

18198. You have then beseeches before the Reform Bill, or petitions?—I have some of them, I think.

18199. Have you any printed rolls of your bye-laws?—No.

18200. Have you bye-laws entered in any book separately by themselves?—I never saw them; nor can I find in the books a list of the bye-laws; but there are several resolutions entered in the books that state the practice in many respects—state how the corporation are to act in many respects.

18201. And have you these resolutions?—Yes, there are in this book many resolutions.

18202. Can you point out such resolutions as regard the mode of admission into your guild?—No, I do not recollect meeting with any of those; they must be very old.

18203. Have you never seen any written resolutions or directions touching the mode of admission into your guild?—No, I do not recollect ever seeing any.

18204. Well, when a person has applied to you and stated his claim, and you have put it in writing, what becomes of that claim?—There is a question put by the master to the corporation, whether that shall pass; first, as to grace especial, perhaps I had better give them, because there is so much difference in each admission; by grace especial, it is referred to the council of the house; there are a certain number of the corporation called the council of the house, elected for the purpose of investigating claims and accounts.

18205. As to grace especial, it is referred to them?—Yes, to ascertain whether the persons are qualified to be admitted.

18206. And they decide one way or the other?—They do, the next quarter-day.

18207. If they decide against it, what becomes of it; does it come before the body at large?—It is thrown out.

18208. Without more?—Without more.

18209. If they decide in favour of it, what becomes of it?—They are admitted.

18210. Without more?—Without more. The question is put from the chair.

18211. That is something more. Well, the admission is by the body at large?—Whoever are present; the majority of the meeting present.

18212. If they differ in opinion upon the subject, is there a ballot; can they call for a ballot?—No.

18213. You have no ballot at all in your guild?—We have for officers.

18214. But not for the admission of persons?—No.

18215. Do you recognise the claim of birth?—Certainly.

18216. If the claim be by birth, what do you do?—We ascertain that the party is entitled by birth.

18217. Who ascertains that?—The person making the claim must refer us to some person in the corporation who will vouch for him; or at times, we get a certificate of the birth.

 18218. From

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

Mr. John Wiber.

19 June 1837.

18218. From whom?—From the parties applying, to show that they were born within the time that their father has been admitted, if they are strangers to us; but if a member of the corporation can vouch for it, we take that.

18219. That is, if they are born after the father has been free?—Yes.

18220. How many years must he be free before you admit anybody by birth, or do you admit by birth immediately?—The father must be free at the time the person is born; he must be what we call free born.

18221. Then after you have ascertained that the person is free born, is a question put upon him; do you understand me?—I do; I am recollecting. No, he is entered.

18222. Do you ever remember anybody being admitted by birth?—Yes.

18223. Tell me one. Could you tell me any one, without looking at your book?—I could; some of my own family; James Wiber.

18224. A son of yours?—No, not a son, a nephew of mine, a son of my brother; and I know he was born free.

18225. Your brother was free?—Yes.

18226. Do you admit minors into your guild, or must they be of full age before they are admitted?—We generally require they should be of full age; but sometimes we have admitted them under age, with this notice to the parties, that it would be no use to them till they came of age, that they cannot vote for Members of Parliament; but if they wish to pass, they have a right to be admitted into the guild, and let them wait until they come of age.

18227. Then there is no question put if the birth be ascertained?—No.

18228. You put no question at all; but you yourself, as clerk of the guild, enter them, and they are admitted; is that so?—At times it is, and at times it is not. If I am satisfied, the corporation generally is satisfied; sometimes there is a question put.

18229. But if you are satisfied, the corporation generally is satisfied?—Yes.

18230. So that the moment you are satisfied, you put them down as free?—Yes; enter them in the book.

18231. And then no question is put in that case?—Just so.

18232. And that is the same by service?—By service; yes.

18233. You ascertain whether or not there be an indenture, do you not?—I do.

18234. Or if the indenture be not produced, whether it had been in existence, and was lost or destroyed by accident?—Yes. That is done openly at the hall; it is by the corporation; it is not left to me individually, the power to admit a person; it is done at the hall, and they must be looking on. If I admitted a person not right, I would be stopped.

18235. And then, if they are satisfied the fact is proved that there has been an indenture, although not produced, they pass him for service?—They do.

18236. And so of marriage, I suppose; the same with marriage?—Yes.

18237. But the habit of your guild is, not to put a question in case the facts appear distinctly?—Indeed, although it is not absolutely necessary, it is put very often.

18238. You do not know whether it is right to put it in every case?—No; if the members present are satisfied, I get directions to enter it.

18240. Then, when the question is put at the meeting, I presume it is whether or not the right has been established?—It is.

18241. When the claim is of right?—Yes; the question is put whether the corporation are satisfied that this person shall pass, and then, if the majority are ayes, they admit him.

MEMBERS PRESENT.

Mr. O'Connell.	Mr. Hogg.
Mr. M. J. O'Connell.	Mr. Lefroy.
Sir Robert Ferguson.	Lord Granville Somerset.
Mr. Hamilton.

LORD GRANVILLE SOMERSET, IN THE CHAIR.

Alexander Seton, Esq., called in; and Examined.

A. Seton, Esq.

22 June 1837.

18242. Chairman.] WHERE do you reside?—In the City of Dublin.

18243. You are a professional person?—A barrister.

18244. Have you attended the registry court in Dublin?—I attended the registry courts of the city of Dublin, from February 1835 till the conclusion of the last February sessions; I did not attend the last May sessions.

18245. Did you attend professionally?—I did.

18246. For any political party?—I was solicited to attend them on behalf of the Volunteers, as it was called at that time; it has changed its name since.

18247. What political party is that?—The liberal party.

18248. Mr. O'Connell.] You attended as counsel from the Central Club?—Latterly from the central club.

18249. You attended before Mr. Dobbs?—I did.

18250. The registry takes place before Mr. Conway Dobbs?—Mr. Conway Dobbs is the registering barrister for the city of Dublin under the Reform Act; he is appointed by Mr. Maxwell Blacker, who is the chairman for the county of Dublin.

18251. You are aware of the manner in which the freemen are registered?—I am.

18252. Mr. Dobbs rejected a freeman in order to have the opinion of a superior court upon the mode of registering freemen?—He did; he rejected two, I think.

18253. Do you recollect their names?—I think Mr. Edward Carolin and Mr. Francis Hyde; one, I think, by service, and the other by marriage.

18254. Those persons were admitted by the chief baron upon the appeal?—They were.

18255. And registered accordingly?—And registered accordingly.

18256. Since that time, does not Mr. Dobbs declare that he considers himself bound by that decision?—Yes.

18257. Does not he, in consequence, receive the certificate of the town-clerks as conclusive evidence of the right of the freemen?—He does; the only thing we can question is, the age of the individual and his description, if it is a notice irregularly served; but as to the right of the freeman himself, we cannot question that.

18258. The court rules that that is concluded by the certificate?—Yes.

18259. If the certificate be by birth, Mr. Dobbs does not allow you, in consequence of the decision, to inquire into the fact of persons being entitled by birth?—He does not let us inquire who the father was if they refuse to answer that question; I have all the questions printed in a book for examination, and those are invariably refused; suppose the title to be by birth, the only question he is allowed to answer is, when and where he was born.

18260. What other questions do you propose to ask in those cases?—I propose to ask, first, what I call two general questions, first, "Did you ever pay any, and what money, other than the sum of 1 s. to the town-clerk, upon the certificate now produced [showing him his certificate] for or in respect of your freedom or admission to the corporation of Dublin, or any guild of the corporation, or to any officer of either, or for stamp duty or otherwise?" That sum of 1 s. is paid to the town-clerk for the parchment certificate which he produces.

 18261. Chairman.]

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

A. Seton, Esq.

22 June 1837.

18261. Chairman.] Do you wish to ask the freeman whether he pays 1 s. only for all the expenses, including his stamp certificate?—We wish to ask whether he has paid more than that; we wish to know whether he has paid the stamp duty.

18262. Mr. O'Connell.] Mr. Dobbs does not think it right that you should ask the question?—We always ask it, but he does not think it right that it should be answered.

18263. He rules, that the freeman coming to be registered is not bound to answer that question?—Just so.

18264. Have any freemen answered it?—I do not recollect, there might have been an instance.

18265. In general they do not answer it?—In general they do not, almost universally.

18266. Do you ask any other question?—The second question we ask is, "Were you ever elected, admitted, or sworn a member of any, and what guild of the corporation of Dublin, and if so, state when, and before whom, you were so admitted and sworn?"

18267. Are you allowed to get an answer to that question?—We are not.

18268. What is the next question you ask?—When the claim is by birth, the next question is, "Who was or is your father or reputed father?"

18269. Does the claimant answer that question?—No; the claimant may in a hurry sometimes answer it, but not generally; I do not think there are more than one or two instances in which they have answered it.

18270. If the claimant objects to answer that question, what is the decision of the court?—That he need not answer it.

18271. Do you ask any other question to a claimant by birth?—Yes: "Was your father a member of the corporation of Dublin, or of any and what guild thereof?"

18272. Is that objected to?—Always.

18273. Is it ruled that he is not bound to answer it?—It is.

18274. And therefore it is not answered?—It is not answered.

18275. To a claimant by birth, do you ask any other question?—"When was he," meaning the father, "admitted and sworn?"

18276. And that meets with the same fate?—Yes.

18277. What is the next question?—"When and where were you" (the applicant) "born?"

18278. That he is allowed to answer?—Yes; sometimes a man objects a considerable time to that, but eventually the court holds that we are entitled to an answer to that question.

18279. Is there any other question put to a claimant by birth?—Yes: "Are you the eldest son?"

18280. Does he answer that?—He does not; and the court rules that he is not bound to answer it.

18281. Is there any other question put to a claimant by birth?—No.

18282. Mr. Lefroy.] Can you state the reason why the question "When and where were you born" is permitted to be answered?—One reason I should suppose would be to see whether the man is of age or not. For my own part I think that is the material part of the question; as to the "where," does not occur to me to be directly of any great consequence; but those questions were settled on great consideration by counsel, and of course, as acting for the body, I feel myself bound to put them as I have got them.

18283. Inasmuch as though he be truly and substantially a member of the corporation, he cannot be registered without he be of age, that inquiry is suffered to be gone into?—Yes; I am not aware that that question was ever refused by Mr. Dobbs.

18284. Mr. O'Connell.] There being another subject, quite independent of the particular document out of which he comes to register, upon which information may be obtained by answering that question, the court rules that you are entitled to an answer?—Yes.

18285. And you draw a distinction which appears in the judgment of the court between the facts which appear upon the certificate and an extrinsic fact which may make the man unfit to be registered at the time?—It appears to me so, as the year of the birth does not appear upon the face of the certificate.

18286. Suppose the claim be by service, what question do you put to him?—After

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

After the two general questions, we go on to inquire "Who was or is the person to whom you allege you served your time?"

18287. Are you allowed to get an answer to that question?—It is held that we cannot enforce an answer to it.

18288. Do you ask any other question as to service?—"Was he," that is the master, "a member of the corporation of Dublin, or of any and what guild thereof?"

18289. That is also overruled?—It is.

18290. Is any other question put?—"When was he," the master, "admitted and sworn?"

18291. That is also overruled?—It is.

18292. Any other?—"Were you bound to him by any indentures, and of what date?"

18293. That is also overruled?—Yes.

18294. Any other?—"Were they," that is, the indentures, "ever, and when enrolled with the clerk of any and what guild or corporation?"

18295. Any other?—"Where, and in what trade, and how long, from time to time, did you serve, under the said indentures?"

18296. That is also overruled?—It is.

18297. Any other?—"Where are now the said indentures?"

18298. That is also over-ruled?—That is also overruled.

18299. Any other?—None with respect to service.

18300. Mr. Hogg.] What do you mean by being "overruled;" do you mean that the court interposes, and says to the witness, "Do not answer that question," or do you mean that the witness declines to answer the question, and the court then says that he is not bound to do so?—The court says that he is not bound to do so, and the counsel always interpose, and tell him not to answer it. The court holds that we are not entitled to information upon those subjects.

18301. Mr. O'Connell.] Of course Mr. Dobbs does not interpose himself in any of those cases unless he is called upon to do so?—There is always some one upon the other side to interpose in those cases.

18302. Then if the claim be by marriage, what questions do you ask?—After the two general questions, the next question that we put is, "What was the name of the person whom you allege to be your wife, and in whose right you claim?"

18303. What becomes of that question?—It is overruled and not answered. The next question is, "When were you married?" That is overruled. The next question is, "Who was or is her father or reputed father?" That is overruled. The next question is, "Was he a member of the corporation of Dublin, or of any and what guild thereof?" That is overruled. The next is, "When was he admitted and sworn?" That is overruled. The next is, "When was your said wife born?" That is overruled. Those are all the questions upon that head.

18304. Then are the Committee to understand that Mr. Dobbs, as the revising barrister, considers that all those facts are testified to him by the certificate of the town-clerk?—I conceive that he does not allow us to get an answer to them. I suppose that he holds that the certificate under the chief baron's decision is satisfactory upon this point.

18305. He considers it so satisfactory that he does not allow the facts themselves to be examined?—Just so.

18306. Is that the opinion of the chief baron?—I suppose so; I was not present when he gave his decision.

18307. Mr. Lefroy.] Mr. Dobbs authorises the claimant to refuse answering those questions when he has produced a certificate ascertaining his right?—Yes, after we inquire from the man whether his title corresponds with that upon the face of the certificate as to the time of the admission, and so on, we put those questions, and Mr. Dobbs holds the certificate as conclusive.

18308. Has Mr. Dobbs stated the grounds upon which he so adjudicates?—He has stated that he looks upon the certificate under the chief baron's decision to be conclusive evidence of the right to register.

18309. And in deference to that decision he rules the points as you have stated?—Yes.

18310. Mr. O'Connell.] No gentleman displays better temper?—A great deal of patience and a great deal of good temper, and it is very often tried.

18311. Mr. Hamilton.] When were those questions settled by counsel?—They were

A. Seton, Esq.

22 June 1837.

were settled by counsel, I believe, some time in the spring, 1836. We did not go so minutely into the freemen before, because we did not find that they were poured upon us in such numbers.

18312. Were those questions settled subsequently or previously to the decision of the chief baron?—Subsequently.

18313. Had the barrister, previously to the decision of the chief baron, expressed any opinion as to questions of that nature?—I think not; I am not aware that they were put. We put some questions, but they were not so numerous as these, nor so well prepared.

18314. Were there any questions put previously of a similar import to any of these?—I have no other book here from which I can answer that question. We investigated the title; we called for the roll, and called for the beseeches. That was in the spring of 1835, in Carolin's case, which was decided long before those arrangements.

18315. Mr. O'Connell.] When you called for those other documents, before the chief baron's decision, were they produced?—They were.

18316. Was it uniformly the practice to produce those documents previously?—They were produced in certain cases; a rejection took place in the case of Mr. Carolin and Mr. Hyde; then the chief baron's decision was made on Saturday, the 30th of May 1835.

18317. Mr. Hamilton.] Then do you mean, that previous to that decision, those documents were produced?—They were produced.

18318. In consequence of Mr. Dobbs' decision?—He held, that they should be produced, and they were produced; and the question was argued, and there was an appeal.

18319. Was that the case in that instance only, or generally?—I think there were two appeals only; I do not think we went into any examination of that kind in Hyde's case, but that he was rejected merely to try the right by marriage, without going into that question.

18320. Was the decision of Mr. Dobbs, generally, previous to the appeal, that such documents should be produced?—They were produced in such cases, but whether in every case or not I do not recollect.

18321. What were the documents which used to be produced before the decision?—The roll, the beseech, and a book called the little book?—I have a copy of the examination of Mr. Jackson, who was the officer of the commons at the time.

18322. Mr. Lefroy.] Did they also produce the certificate?—I conceive they did; but I would not take upon myself, on recollection, to say that they did; we went into investigation as to the title, to see whether the roll was signed, and as to the stamp duty being paid, and the little book and the beseeches.

18323. Mr. O'Connell.] In general cases, before the decision of the chief baron, did the counsel for the freemen object to the production of any document beyond the certificate?—Those cases I have mentioned were some of the earliest cases, and I cannot take upon myself to recollect whether they did or not.

18324. There were very few, comparatively, produced before the chief baron's decision?—Very few.

18325. The numbers have been very great since?—Some 500 or 600.

18326. How many before the chief baron's decision?—I cannot say; probably about a dozen.

18327. Mr. Hamilton.] Have you the memorandum books which you made previous to that decision?—I have in town, but not here.

18328. Can you state, from your recollection, whether any questions similar in import to any of those, were put and objected to by counsel, and the objection over-ruled, and the decision of the barrister given, that the question should be answered, previous to that decision of the chief baron?—I would not undertake to state that upon my recollection; if it was so, there is a note of it appearing upon the face of the book.

18329. Mr. Lefroy.] The roll and the certificate differ in this respect; the roll only ascertains that the man is a member of the corporation, but in what right it does not purport to state, but the certificate does import to state the right?—The certificate states the right, whether by birth, marriage or service, or by grace especial, and the guild he belongs to, and the time he was admitted and sworn; I believe the roll is nothing more than a detail of names.

18330. It does import to state the right?—I do not know; but my recollection is that it does not.

18331. Mr.

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

18331. Mr. Hogg.] Do you believe that, before the decision of the chief baron, Mr. Dobbs ever held that the witness was compelled to answer any question, or to produce any document, where the same fact or the same document was vouched for by a certificate?—I do not think there was any decision one way or the other upon the subject.

18332. Mr. O'Connell.] You acted also in the registry of the 10*l.* householders?—I did.

18333. There is a long examination upon oath, as to the householders?—A very strict one.

18334. And a long examination?—Very often.

18335. The claimant is sworn always to make true answers to all such questions as shall be put to him touching his franchise?—He is sworn in the usual way; I believe the form of oath is, that he shall make true answer to all such questions as shall be put to him touching his application to register.

18336. Mr. Lefroy.] Then Mr. Dobbs never refused permission to ask any questions upon matters arising upon the face of the certificate, or matters subsequent to the certificate affecting the right?—The only question that would arise upon the right, subsequent to the certificate, would be the question of residence.

18337. Mr. O'Connell.] And he never prevented you from asking about that?—No, and the age of the party.

18338. And if it appeared that he was a minor he was rejected?—Yes.

18339. Did any cases of that kind ever occur?—There were some cases of minors that were refused, and the opposite party did not argue it; and there were some cases of freemen that were minors when they were admitted, but they had completed their freedom subsequently.

18340. Chairman.] In how many cases can you state that freemen claimed to register, but were not registered, on account of nonage?—I think not more than three or four.

18341. They were always strictly examined upon that point?—They were.

18342. But still you could never prove that they were under age in more than three or four cases?—No, I cannot state the number exactly.

18343. Taking every sort of persons who claimed to register as freemen, how many were not registered on account either of nonage or of nonproof?—I should think not more than half-a-dozen.

18344. When did your professional experience begin with respect to these registries?—In February 1835.

18345. When was the lord chief baron's decision upon the cases of those two claimants?—According to the printed book, it is the 30th of May.

18346. Have you any doubt that it was on the 30th of May?—No.

18347. What was the course of proceeding by the revising barrister between the 2d of February, when the sessions began, and the 30th of May, as to those questions being answered?—I think there was an understanding that freemen would not come up till this case was decided.

18348. Do you mean to state that no considerable number of freemen were registered in the year 1835, previous to the decision of the lord chief baron?—That is my impression.

18349. Do you state that as many as 50 were not registered in that period?—So I believe.

18350. Do you mean to state that there were not as many as 100 freemen registered?—So far certain of it as I can be of a thing of which I have no memorandum, but I can ascertain the number.

18351. You are quite certain that there were not 150 registered?—I believe there were not.

18352. Do you believe there were 20 registered?—My impression is, that there was an understanding that the freemen would not be brought up till the point was settled by the chief baron; but I cannot speak to the numbers without referring to the documents; but the Committee have the numbers before them in the printed return. [A printed return was shown to the Witness.]

18353. Will you state what that purports to be?—It is a return of the freemen registered since the year 1835 under the Reform Act. I was in the county of Kildare in the year 1832, at the time of the registry, and I knew nothing whatever of what was done in 1832.

18354. Do you see in that return the part relating to the year 1835?—

18355. Will you state how many freemen appear by that printed return to have been

A. Seton, Esq.

22 June 1837.

been registered in the year 1835, previous to the 30th of May?—I think, previous to the 30th of May, there were 158.

18356. Among those 158 persons so admitted, were there any that refused to answer the various queries which you have stated were put to them, and which were not answered subsequent to the decision of the chief baron, upon the 30th of May?—I will not take upon me to state how many questions were put to every individual during that time.

18357. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you any entries that will show you what occurred?—I have, but they are not here at present; they are in town.

18358. Chairman.] Were questions put by you or other persons belonging to your party, as to the validity of the claim of those individuals?—I would not undertake to state, upon recollection, one way or the other.

18359. You will not undertake to state that any of those 158 individuals answered questions of a similar nature to those which were subsequently overruled by Mr. Dobbs, in accordance with the decision of the chief baron?—The books are in town, and I can refer to them, but I cannot state without.

18360. Have you not already stated circumstances relative to the appeal which was afterwards made to the chief baron?—I have.

18361. Did you read from a memorandum book what you have stated upon that subject?—Not to-day, I did not.

18362. You have made a statement without your books, touching certain circumstances?—That was a particular case; and it impressed itself particularly upon my mind, because it was a matter of great importance, and therefore it made more impression upon my mind than a number of things that occurred.

18363. Do you mean to say that it was a matter of no importance whether 158 individuals were admitted without answering those questions or with answering those questions?—The probability is that a great many of them were old freemen, and of course we did not put the same questions to old freemen as to newly admitted freemen.

18364. Do you mean to state that you put those questions which you have read, subsequent to the 30th of May, to any individuals that were old freemen?—If their certificate showed that they were admitted previous to the Reform Bill, we did not, unless where the admission might have been previous to the Reform Bill, and the swearing subsequent; there were very few cases of that kind occurred.

18365. How many cases of those 158 do you state to have been cases of old freemen?—It is almost impossible that I could say.

18366. How many cases subsequent to the 30th of May were cases of old freemen?—I could not state on recollection.

18367. Could you state by any document in your possession?—I think I could; my recollection is, if an old freeman came up, I marked "old freeman" against his name.

18368. And you think there were more of those before the 30th of May than afterwards?—I should think there must have been more newly made freemen came up after the 30th of May than before.

18369. Will you state whether or no Mr. Dobbs did or did not permit those questions to be enforced, with regard to those 158 freemen admitted in the year 1835, previous to the decision of the chief baron?—He did not, for those questions were not digested at that time.

18370. Were questions of anything of that description or import?—Not near so close and so accurate.

18371. Were any questions asked touching the right of freedom, after the production of the certificate, permitted to be answered, previous to the decision of the chief baron?—I have no recollection; but I have them all marked.

18372. You cannot state what decision the revising barrister came to upon that point previous to the decision of the chief baron?—I would not undertake to do it at present.

18373. When it was agreed, with reference to the two parties you have mentioned, that the opinion of a judge should be taken, what was the way in which the arrangement was made?—An individual was examined, and he was rejected; and then an appeal was of course lodged.

18374. You were present in court at that time?—I was.

18375. You were present in court when it was arranged that these two parties should be rejected by the revising barrister for the purpose of taking the opinion of

of a judge?—I was present in court when they were rejected by the revising barrister.

18376. Were you present when the arrangement was made that those two parties should be rejected for the purpose of appeal?—I think I have it recorded upon my book that those stood for an appeal.

18377. What was the understanding between the parties, for and against the freemen, upon that occasion?—I presume it was that they would have the opinion of the superior court.

18378. Was there any conversation as to what tribunal the appeal should be made to?—Very likely there was.

18379. Was there or was there not?—I think there was.

18380. Was any person particularly mentioned as the judge to whom the appeal should be made?—My recollection is that it was mentioned to be made to the Court of Exchequer.

18381. As a body?—To the court generally; that is, to the judge at Nisi Prius.

18382. What do you mean by the Court of Exchequer?—To the judge presiding in the court at Nisi Prius.

18383. Was any individual judge mentioned?—The chief baron is the presiding judge. He usually presides at Nisi Prius; but it might be some of the other judges, if he was unwell; they can also preside at Nisi Prius.

18384. Did any conversation take place on the part of your friends, as to desiring that the appeal should be made to any other judge?—There was a great deal of conversation upon the subject, with respect to the feeling of the judges; but I did not take any part in it, nor did I wish to pay any attention to it.

18385. Mr. O'Connell.] By feeling, you mean political bias?—Yes; but I did not take a part in it.

18386. Chairman.] Can you state what passed upon that occasion?—I would not undertake to state what passed upon that occasion; there are many things pass that I am very willing to discharge my memory of altogether.

18387. Do you recollect what passed?—No, I do not recollect; I would not go into the particular detail of what passed.

18388. Was there anything so striking as to cause you to remark what passed?—There seemed to be a question as to what the choice of the court should be, between the gentlemen on opposite sides, and I certainly did not take any part in it.

18389. Can you state that anything so remarkable passed as to enable you now to state it to the Committee?—I would not take upon me to state particularly what passed upon the subject.

18390. Because your recollection does not serve you?—Because my recollection does not serve me.

18391. Mr. O'Connell.] Do you recollect that something was said respecting the political bias of the judge?—Certainly.

18392. Chairman.] Can you state by whom this was said?—There were some half-dozen people talking at the same time upon both sides, and which individual used the expression I could not say. There was a great deal of noise and altercation in the court, when four or five people were talking at the same time.

18393. Did anybody say on either side that they were sure of a decision in favour of the freemen from the chief baron?—There was something of the kind said.

18394. By whom?—There were three or four people on each side talking at the same time, and I could not say who the individual was that made use of the expression; my recollection is that I took no part in the altercation, and I did not wish to have anything to do with it.

18395. Mr. Hamilton.] Can you state who the individuals were who were present?—There was Mr. Hyndman present; Mr. Collison and Mr. Ryan I think were present; and Mr. Gale, I think.

18396. Who were present on your side?—Mr. Martin, Mr. Curran and Mr. Hudson, I think.

18397. Mr. O'Connell.] Were there any more of the Trades' Union?—I dare say there were a great many.

18398. Mr. Hamilton.] Your recollection does enable you to state that, among those parties, there was something said respecting the polititical bias of the chief baron?—Yes.

18399. Chairman.] Was anything said as to your side being anxious that Mr.

Crampton might be the person to whom the appeal might be made?—I dare say there was.

18400. Upon what ground?—I dare say upon the ground that he was more liberal.

18401. Mr. O'Connell.] Are you aware who the law officers of the Crown were when the Reform Act passed?—I believe one of them was Mr. Crampton.

18402. Chairman.] Do you know how many freemen were admitted in the years previous to 1835?—I did not attend the registries in the years 1833 and 1834; after the election of 1835, we thought it necessary on both sides to look more to the registry, and immediately after the February sessions we began to attend.

18403. Mr. Hogg.] Is the appeal to which you have now adverted the only one that has taken place?—No; there had been appeals on the household franchise.

18404. To whom were those appeals made?—To the Court of King's Bench, and Mr. Crampton has generally presided.

18405. Mr. O'Connell.] And all the other appeals have been made to the King's Bench?—They have, on both sides.

18406. Mr. Hogg.] The right of appeal is given generally to any judge of any of the courts?—To any judge of any of the three superior courts.

18407. Chairman.] Are you aware that, during the year 1832, there were 1,900 freemen admitted upon the registry of voters for the city of Dublin?—I did not attend any part of the registry for the year 1832, for I was attending a registry in the county of Kildare.

18408. Are you aware that, in the year 1832, so many as 1,900 freemen were admitted on the registry?—If it is upon record, I have no doubt it is the fact.

18409. There was a very small number in 1833 and 1834?—I think altogether they were under 140.

18410. Mr. O'Connell.] Those in 1832 were not registered before Mr. Dobbs?—No; there were eight or ten barristers registering at the same time.

18411. Mr. Hamilton.] You stated that certain appeals on both sides had been made to the Court of King's Bench; can you state how many there have been generally?—Perhaps 25 or 30.

18412. Can you state how many on each side?—Not on recollection; I think there were eight or ten appeals upon the conservative side, but the individuals never came forward; we did go forward with our appeals, and succeeded in some and were defeated in others.

18413. Then those cases were not practically appealed to the Court of King's Bench?—The appeal was lodged, but the individual did not come forward; why, I cannot say.

18414. Were the appeals on the other side brought into court?—Yes.

18415. Were they all before Mr. Justice Crampton?—I believe he happened to be the judge presiding at Nisi Prius.

18416. Mr. O'Connell.] He has generally sat at Nisi Prius?—He has.

18417. Mr. Hamilton.] Is it not the rule that the chief justice of the Court of King's Bench or the chief baron sits at Nisi Prius?—No, it is not; because, suppose one of the chiefs is unwell, or suppose he is in delicate health, as Chief Justice Bush is, Mr. Crampton has sat for him.

18418. Mr. O'Connell.] It is the duty of the chief justice to sit at Nisi Prius, but if he has a reasonable excuse, and can get one of his brethren to sit, he does so?—Yes.

18419. Do not you believe that Mr. Justice Crampton has almost invariably tried at Nisi Prius in the King's Bench?—I think so.

18420. Mr. Hamilton.] Then it did not follow necessarily that the appeal to the Court of Exchequer would be tried by the chief baron?—No; Judge Pennefather might have tried it, or Judge Foster.

18421. You say there was an understanding that this appeal should be made between the parties, and that there was an objection by some parties on account of the political bias of the chief baron; can you state whether that objection was made known to the registering barrister?—I do not know whether he overheard the conversation or not; besides, with respect to appeal, the registering barrister had no right to interfere.

18422. If the appeal was upon an understanding between the parties, does it appear to you that it was natural that there should be a discussion as to the court to which it should be made, if there was an objection on the part of one of the parties?—

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

parties?—I do not see that the registering barrister could interfere in the business. The appellant party has a right to choose his court.

18423. The barrister rejected by consent of both parties?—The individual was rejected that the appeal might be brought.

18424. With the consent of the party that were the appellants?—We would not have consented to it if we could have established our right to reject him without it.

18425. Mr. O'Connell.] You pressed for the rejection, and every man that is rejected has a right of appeal, which you could not take away?—Yes.

18426. Mr. Hogg.] In point of fact, the proceeding was managed by the consent of parties, for the purpose of obtaining a decision upon the point that was disputed?—We insisted that the man ought to be rejected.

18427. There are two ways of deciding a case upon which an appeal may arise; there is a way in which it is solemnly decided by the barrister, and another way in which it is decided by the barrister in a particular manner, in order to have an appeal; was it decided in the latter way?—It was decided in support of the arguments adduced by us, in order that the question might be settled by a superior court.

18428. Was it a proceeding understood to be with consent of parties, or was it not?—We were anxious to have the rejection.

18429. Then is it to be understood that this was or was not by consent of parties?—In the professional part of it, counsel being specially brought down, I did not interfere.

18430. Were you present?—I think I was.

18431. Are you or are you not able to state whether it was or was not with consent of parties?—I will not undertake to do so.

18432. Mr. O'Connell.] Upon your side no consent was necessary?—Upon our side no consent was necessary.

18433. The consent could be only upon the part of the person claiming?—Yes.

18434. Did the person claiming or his counsel consent that the barrister should give his opinion only formally against the claimant, in order that the claimant might have an opportunity to appeal?—I think it was so.

18435. If the claimant had pressed for a decision, is not it likely that the decision would have been in his favour?—I think it would; but Mr. Dobbs is much better able to answer what his decision would have been than I am.

18436. Does not it follow that, though it was not by consent of both parties, it was by consent of the party that made the appeal?—That is my conception of it.

18437. Mr. Lefroy.] If it could not have been without the consent of the appealing party, and he did consent, and as you have said that you assented to that consent, can you have any hesitation in saying that it was an appeal by consent of both parties?—I do not see that any consent of ours was necessary to it; he had a right to appeal.

18438. Chairman.] Was not it of advantage to your party to have a decision upon the appeal which might be in your favour, though it might be against you?—Yes; I always looked upon it as advantageous to have a decision, even if it was against us, to put an end to unnecessary arguments.

18439. Had not Mr. Dobbs always ruled against your right to put questions of the character you have described?—The only questions which were put were with respect to inquiry as to signing the roll, and paying the stamp duty and as to the book.

18440. Had he not ruled those questions against you?—On some occasions he admitted them.

18441. What was the point of the appeal?—The point of the appeal was, what evidence was necessary to establish the right of a freeman to register.

18442. Had he not ruled that point adversely to your opinions?—I think he must have done so.

18443. Were not Mr. Pigott and Mr. Hudson brought specially to argue the point on behalf of your party?—They were.

18444. Were they present when that understanding was come to?—They were; I take it for granted, that the arrangement was made when the argument on both sides was concluded.

18445. Did

18445. Did they make any observation as to the judge before whom the appeal should be made?—I have no recollection.

18446. Are you quite sure that no conversation as to the political bias of the judge took place upon that occasion?—There was some conversation by the parties; whether they used the words "political bias," I cannot say.

18447. You are quite sure that there was some conversation of that kind at the time?—I am.

18448. You are not mistaking that time for any other?—No.

18449. Mr. Hamilton.] Can you be more precise as to the nature of the conversation?—No, I cannot.

18450. Chairman.] Was it possible for the revising barrister to have been aware of it?—We were at the table, and the revising barrister was there also.

18451. The revising barrister heard it?—He might or might not.

18452. Do you believe that he did hear it?—I can form no opinion upon the subject.

18453. Was it in such a tone of voice that he must necessarily have heard it?—It was neither in a very loud voice nor a low whisper; he might have heard it, but I cannot say.

18454. Mr. O'Connell.] Were there many talking at the same time?—A great many; perhaps eight or ten talking at the same time.

18455. Mr. Hamilton.] You have described even the tones of voice of the conversation; cannot you give the substance of it?—It was neither very high nor very low; I can give no more of the substance of it than what I have mentioned; if I could give it I would do it with the greatest possible pleasure.

18456. Mr. Lefroy.] Do you think there was any foundation for an imputation, such as was insinuated by that conversation?—I must beg not to be called upon to give an opinion upon the character of any judge.

18457. You decline giving an opinion whether the chief baron would be swayed by political motives in administering justice?—If I am pressed for an opinion I must give it; but I think it is a delicate question for a barrister to give an opinion upon.

18458. Mr. O'Connell.] You have an opinion upon it?—I have a decided one.

18459. And if you are pressed you will give it?—Yes, but I do not think it delicate for a barrister to give an opinion upon such a subject; I am warm in my politics, and my opinion might be erroneous, or, more correctly speaking, might be biassed.

18460. Mr. Lefroy.] Will you state the point of the appeal; was there more than one point in the appeal?—My idea is, that it was the evidence that was necessary to establish the right of a freeman to register, which was the substance of the appeal; I was not present when it was argued, and I have never read the argument.

18461. Were you present when the points were argued upon which the appeal was founded?—Yes, I was.

18462. Will you state what were the points?—I have them in writing, but I would not state them on recollection.

18463. Though a professional gentleman?—Though a professional gentleman, I would not.

18464. If you cannot take upon you to state, from your recollection, the points of the case that were argued, how is it that your recollection enables you to pledge yourself to anything that passed at the time?—There is a great difference between stating the points of the argument and stating generally what occurred.

18465. Do not you conceive that what a lawyer recollects most is the very point of his argument in a case?—If he has argued it, but I took no part in the argument.

18466. Were not you present at the argument?—I was, and I think I have a short note of it.

18467. But you cannot state what the point was on recollection?—I cannot upon recollection.

18468. Did you take any note in writing of the conversation to which you have alluded?—I did not; it is a much easier matter to have a general recollection that such a conversation occurred, than to have a perfect recollection of two or three points of law.

18469. Mr. Hogg.] Do you believe that there was any difference of opinion between the professional gentlemen concerned as to the judge to whom the appeal should should be made?—I do not know that there was; I am not aware that the professional gentlemen upon our side said anything upon the subject.

18470. Then your recollection does not serve you to state that there was any difference of opinion expressed in your hearing between the professional gentlemen concerned on both sides as to the judge to whom the appeal should be made?—I am not aware that there was; I am only aware that the conversation generally took place.

18471. If there had been any distinct difference of opinion upon that subject, being a matter of importance, it would probably have impressed itself upon your memory?—It possibly might; it is possible that it might have taken place; but I will not charge my memory with stating more than that there was that general conversation.

Conway Edward Dobbs, Esq., called in; and Examined.

C. E. Dobbs, Esq.

18472. Chairman.] ARE you a barrister residing in Dublin?—I am.

18473. And you are registering barrister for the city of Dublin?—I am.

18474. How long have you held that situation?—Since January 1833.

18475. Mr. O'Connell.] You are appointed by Mr. Maxwell Blaker, who was chairman for the county of Dublin?—Yes, with the approbation of the Lord Lieutenant for the time being.

18476. Chairman.] How many sessions do you hold in a year?—Four.

18477. Do they last any considerable time?—It depends upon the number of notices; some of them have lasted a very short time, and some a very long time. The first two years after I was appointed, viz. the years 1833 and 1834, I scarcely sat more than one day each time; there were very few claimants came forward.

18478. Were there very few claimants under other rights as well as under the rights of freemen?—Very few under all rights; perhaps not more than 12 to 20 of all classes put together at a sessions.

18479. Was there any opposition made to the class of freemen being admitted at the beginning of the year 1835?—None: there were no professional men attended the sessions, if I recollect right, during the years 1833 and 1834.

18480. Immediately after the general election of 1834 and 1835, opposition was organized on the one hand, and support was organized on the other?—Exactly so.

18481. What was the course of proceeding on the part of the opponents of persons claiming to be registered under the right of freemen, in the first instance; did they wish to examine into any particulars, and what were those particulars?—The first time the matter was particularly pressed before me was at the sessions of February 1835; and, to the best of my recollection, the points then urged were principally these: first, that subsequent to the Reform Bill all the freemen of the city of Dublin were honorary, and not entitled to be registered; that upon the registry I should go into the question, and ascertain the right and title of each freeman previous to his admission, the grounds upon which the corporation has admitted him, in fact, and also that the only proper evidence of a freeman's admission was upon a stamped entry.

18482. In what way did you decide those points?—I admitted the freemen; I overruled those objections.

18483. Did you overrule the necessity of the investigation?—I did; I refused to go into it. I thought I was bound to take the admission of the corporation, and not to go into the previous title of the claimant.

18484. That was your judicial decision?—It was.

18485. Mr. Lefroy.] Upon the production of what evidence did you feel yourself bound not to go into the previous inquiry?—The question as to the nature of the evidence almost grew incidentally to what it did latterly. At first they gave different evidence in different cases. In some cases they produced the roll of freemen, which is a roll signed by each freeman, and upon that roll it does not appear whether the freeman was admitted by grace especial, by birth, by marriage or by service; consequently, that was not sufficient, inasmuch as it was necessary, in my opinion, to show whether they were admitted by reason of birth, marriage or service. They supplied that evidence, in some cases, by producing a book, which was called afterwards the "small book," a book kept by the town-clerk, Mr. Archer, or persons in his office; in which book it appeared that such a person was admitted by birth or by service, or whatever the right was.

 18486. That

C. E. Dobbs, Esq.

22 June 1837.

18486. That book showed the nature of the right?—It did.

18487. Chairman.] You considered the book conclusive as to the individual being a freeman?—I considered that that was sufficient evidence; and at first, I do not think the certificate of the town-clerk was usually produced; that little book and the roll were ruled in some cases to be sufficient.

18488. Mr. Hamilton.] Did you consider the evidence sufficient to throw the onus of impeaching the title upon the person objecting to it?—Yes; one great object of the persons upon the other side was, to require the beseeches to be produced, and in one or two cases the freemen did produce the beseeches, and they afterwards refused to produce them.

18489. Chairman.] Then what you ruled was, that if they refused to go into evidence of their right to the freedom, you did not compel them to do so?—Certainly.

18490. Mr. Lefroy.] You did not require further evidence than what arose from the roll and that book?—No; I was of opinion that the claimant was not bound to show his title to be admitted into the corporation in the same way as he would do in a court of law upon a quo warranto.

18491. Chairman.] You did not enforce replies to the questions put tending to test the right to the freedom?—Certainly.

18492. But supposing evidence was brought by the opposing party to show that they had not that right to freedom, you would have permitted that to be tendered?—I would; but there was no evidence of the kind that I recollect tendered to me.

18493. You never did decide, therefore, that such evidence should not be admitted?—No.

18494. But you did decide that the parties need not be subject to an examination tending to disprove their franchise?—Those objections that have been given in evidence were not embodied till long subsequent to the time I am speaking of; it was in the year 1836 that those objections were brought forward in the form in which they now appear, and upon the occasion of Mr. Hudson coming to attend the court.

18495. Mr. Lefroy.] Did you, at the time you speak of, prior to 1835, prevent the parties being sifted, as to their right, by questions?—I conceived that I was not to go into the question of title.

18496. Was it the habit to put those questions at the time?—No, it was not.

18497. And you were not at the time called upon to consider how far the parties were or were not bound to answer those questions?—At the time, I have no recollection of that line of examination being pressed; I think it depended more upon the sort of questions I have stated with respect to the stamped entry, and that they were all honorary freemen.

18498. Chairman.] The questions resolve themselves into two classes, one as to the right itself, and the other as to the manner in which the right should be ascertained; and as to the latter, you say that you would admit the necessity of parties answering questions tending to invalidate their right upon several grounds; you say that you would not insist upon their answering questions as to their apprenticeship, as to their birth, or as to their marriage, but you would insist upon their showing the fact of their admission properly into the corporation by the corporation records?—Exactly so.

18499. And that you considered sufficient?—And that I considered sufficient.

18500. Those questions were argued before you in a more solemn manner upon a particular occasion?—They were argued at different times by different counsel.

18501. There was a particular occasion upon which Mr. Piggott and Mr. Hudson came and argued the case before you solemnly?—There was.

18502. What was the date of that?—I cannot exactly state the date, but Mr. Piggott and Mr. Hudson came before me at a later period than what I think has been alluded to; the counsel that came before me and argued the question at the time of those appeals of Carolin and Hyde, to the best of my recollection, were the present Solicitor-general of Ireland, Mr. Brady, and some other gentleman also of rather high rank in the profession.

18503. Can you state at what period the claims of Carolin and Hyde were brought before you?—It appears that Carolin came before me on the 5th of May, and the appeal to the chief baron was decided upon the 30th of the same month.

18504. Mr. O'Connell.] Was he rejected according to your judgment or by consent of the parties?—There was no formal consent of the parties; and upon the question

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

tion coming before me the second time, my attention was then called more particularly to the nature of the evidence that should be received of the admission to the freedom, not the general questions that had been disposed of before, but what was sufficient evidence of the admission; and upon that occasion, having some little difficulty about what was the proper evidence, I wished that the case should go before one of the judges of a superior court; I conceived that was the best course in a case of that kind, in which I had any serious doubt about what was the proper evidence; I said, therefore, that I would reject the claimant, they saying at once "We will appeal."

18505. Chairman.] Then it was to satisfy your doubts that this appeal took place?—Yes; to settle the point.

18506. You feeling that it would be more satisfactory to you to have the decision of an appellant judge?—Precisely so.

18507. Mr. Lefroy.] Had you anything to do as to the court to which the appeal was made?—Not at all.

18508. Did you suggest or know to what court the appeal was to be made?—No, I did not even know it.

18509. Chairman.] Did you hear any discussion upon that subject?—Not upon that occasion; there was nothing of the kind upon that occasion.

18510. Were you so close to the parties that might have been expressing opinions, as to be able to negative the assertion that has been made, that there was a good deal of excitement and a good deal of observation made, as to who the judge should be to whom the appeal should be made?—Certainly.

18511. Therefore, you can take upon yourself to negative any assertion of the sort?—I can; I think it arises from confusion of dates, because I can state what did take place afterwards, long subsequent to that.

18512. Will you state what occurred and what was the date of that occurrence?—Long subsequent to that, I should say about a year afterwards, a freeman came up upon Mr. Seton's side, and claimed. It was rather an unusual occurrence; he was asked the usual routine questions by his own side; on the other side they refused to cross-examine him, they said "We will not object to him."

18513. Did he reply to those questions?—He answered the usual questions, such as, where he resided, and all those forms, to show that the notice of registry was right, and produced his certificate.

18514. Did the liberal side put any questions to him to ascertain under what right he claimed to be a freeman?—I cannot say whether they went into the usual routine questions or not, but after the man had been examined, I was called upon by the gentlemen upon that side, to reject him. Mr. Hyndman, the counsel upon the opposite side, immediately said, "What good will that do you; are not you sure of the decision of the chief baron?" alluding to the decision which had been made nearly a year before.

18515. And which was publicly known and talked of?—Yes.

18516. He alluded to the judicial decision which the chief baron had given after solemn argument, some time previously?—He did.

18517. Did Mr. Hyndman, or any gentleman of that side, to your knowle de or belief, express any opinion of the sort previous to the decision of the chief baron?—Certainly not.

18518. Did the party on the opposite side express any opinion of the sort, previous to the decision of the chief baron?—Certainly not.

18519. Mr. Lefroy.] What standing have you at the bar?—Forty years.

18520. You have been a very regular attendant in the hall during that time?—I have.

18521. And you know the opinions of the profession generally?—I believe I do.

18522. Did you ever hear the slightest insinuation against the integrity of the chief baron, or as to the possibility of his judgment being influenced by political motives since he has been upon the bench?—I never did.

18523. Do you believe that it is an opinion entertained by the profession?—Unquestionably not, in my opinion.

18524. Do not you conceive the contrary?—I do.

18525. Who were the counsel that attended the argument of the case of Carolin and Hyde?—The present Solicitor-general, Mr. Brady, and I believe the present Master of the Rolls; he did not argue the question, but my recollection is, that he came there, and being called away by some other business there was no person argued it but Mr. Brady; but I have no distinct recollection upon the subject.

18526. Mr. O'Connell.] You have not a sufficiently distinct recollection to state with certainty who argued the case?—No.

18527. Do you recollect whether two argued it or only one?—I think only one.

18528. Mr. Lefroy.] Was Mr. Piggott one?—Mr. Piggott did not come before me upon any question, I think, till subsequent to that.

18529. Mr. O'Connell.] You may be mistaken in thinking there was only one?—I may.

18530. Mr. Hudson may have argued it before you?—He may; he did attend at a subsequent time; and it was in consequence of Mr. Hudson's argument that the particular questions now in point were made.

18531. You, of course, for the appeal, according to the statute, pronounced your reasons for the rejection?—I did.

18532. Those reasons were reduced into writing?—They were.

18533. Have you those?—I have not. I will mention how it was: the attorney upon the conservative side asked me for a particular certificate, and to sign my name to it, to carry it to the Court of Exchequer; when I saw him lately, I endeavoured to obtain it, and was not able to obtain it, in consequence of the death of the attorney in whose hands it had been. The entry I have myself is a very short one. When they asked me for it, to carry to the Court of Exchequer, I gave it them more at length.

18534. Mr. Lefroy.] Then you furnished them with a statement of your reasons?—I stated that I rejected them, inasmuch as they had not given legal evidence of their having been admitted by birth, or service, or marriage, whichever the case was.

18535. Can you state what the nature of the evidence was which they did give?—In the two cases, they gave different evidence: Mr. Hyde contented himself with producing simply his certificate; in Mr. Carolin's case they produced also the book called the "little book."

18536. But in both cases they produced a certificate?—They did. The entry I have with reference to another person, a freeman also, is that it appeared by the certificate of admission that he was admitted to his freedom at Christmas last, by reason of marriage; but it did not appear to me in a satisfactory manner that he was not admitted by grace especial.

18537. Did you reject that person?—His case stood over, to abide the fate of Carolin and Hyde. The party had a right to take the appeal in which case he pleased, and he preferred taking it in Carolin and Hyde.

18538. What is the name of that party?—It was Belton.

18539. Has he been subsequently admitted?—Yes, he was admitted in consequence of the decision in Carolin and Hyde.

18540. Were there any circumstances in the case of Belton which induced you to suppose that he was not properly admitted upon the freeman's roll?—No.

18541. And therefore you only rejected him till the technical point was determined?—The truth is, that he was the first of the three; but they had a right to take the appeal in which case they pleased, and they preferred taking it in the cases of Carolin and Hyde.

18542. Mr. O'Connell.] You consulted the "little book" in that case?—It was the practice at that time, and I presume it was done in that case.

18543. Are you aware that, till after the Reform Bill, persons that passed by marriage the minor guilds were all entered by grace especial in the corporation at large?—I do not know that; I have heard it.

18544. Of course, any person that came before you admitted by grace especial since the Reform Bill you would reject?—Yes.

18545. The admission that comes before you is merely that of the corporation at large?—Yes.

18546. It could not at any time be a question before you, how the man passed the minor guild?—No; I conceive I had no right to go into that.

18547. Before you would give him a right to vote?—No.

18548. Had you been apprised, before you came here, that up to the time of the Reform Bill, all persons that passed the minor guilds by marriage, passed the city at large by grace especial?—I knew nothing of that except from common hearsay; I heard so, but I do not know anything of the fact.

18549. Are

18549. Are you free of the corporation yourself?—I am not; I am free of no corporation but Carrickfergus, where I have the honour of being recorder.

18550. You have spoken of the chief baron; now, I do not mean to say or to insinuate that your decisions are in the slightest degree affected by your political opinions, but your own political opinions, when you are off the bench, are of the class called conservative?—If I am to define them, they are so.

18551. And your associations at the bar are principally of that class?—They are, inasmuch as I think the majority of the bar are of those sentiments; but I am intimate with gentlemen of the bar of other sentiments.

18552. Have you never heard it said that those who differ from you and the chief baron, in political opinions, have sometimes talked of his bias?—I cannot say that I ever heard any one impute political bias to the chief baron when on the bench.

18553. Have you heard that other people have imputed a political bias to him, even on the bench?—If I am to judge from statements in the public press, I have seen allegations of that kind against him, and against every person that differed from the sentiments of the newspaper.

18554. What we call the liberal press, in Ireland, does impute matters of that kind?—I think I have seen that press impute things of that kind to him, and to many others.

18555. Of course you have nothing to do with the selection of the judge to whom the appeal goes?—Nothing whatever; a claimant rejected may carry his appeal to the judge sitting at Nisi Prius, in any of the three courts.

18556. Naturally, an appeal to the judge sitting at Nisi Prius, means the chief justice?—Yes, he generally sits at Nisi Prius.

18557. But it may be to any other judge who happens to sit when the appeal comes to be heard?—Yes.

18558. There is occasionally a good deal of controversy and confusion in your court?—There is some little sometimes; two or three gentlemen speaking at the same time.

18559. And necessarily they are more apt to be animated in your court, being a political court?—Yes; but making due allowance for the kind of court it is, I have no reason to complain of the conduct of the persons before me upon either side.

18560. Mr. Hamilton.] Who were present at the time when that rejection took place; and when it is alleged that the conversation with regard to the political bias of the chief baron took place?—The gentlemen who usually attend the court.

18561. Mr. Counsellor Dolling, was he there?—He was a young gentleman that occasionally came in; I do not know whether he was there, but Mr. Hudman was the regular counsel upon that side, and Mr. Curran and Mr. Seton upon the other side.

18562. Chairman.] Was Mr. Stokes there?—I cannot say.

18563. Was Mr. Daly there?—I cannot say; they were only there occasionally.

18564. Was Mr. Collison there?—I presume he was; he attends the court pretty regularly.

18565. Mr. Ryan you have already stated?—He is one of the clerks that attend, and I presume he was there.

18566. Mr. O'Connell.] Has it not been admitted or proved before you that the corporation of Dublin exercise an ultimate right to reject persons claiming the freedom if they please?—That has been argued before me.

18567. And the fact has not been controverted?—I believe not.

18568. Mr. Lefroy.] Your intercourse with the bar is not confined to those merely of conservative opinions?—Certainly not.

18569. You have an equal opportunity of ascertaining the opinions of those of liberal principles?—I am intimate with some gentlemen that I believe are not considered of conservative principles.

18570. Have you ever heard amongst them the slightest insinuation that the chief baron would be influenced by political bias in his judicial determinations?—Certainly not.

18571. Mr. Hamilton.] Notwithstanding its being argued before you that the corporation of Dublin have the ultimate power of rejecting a claimant for the freedom freedom, you felt yourself authorised to admit him upon the certificate of the town-clerk?—I did; Adcock's case was urged before me.

18572. And your judgment went that way previous to the decision of the chief baron?—Yes.

18573. You stated that an objection was made, arising out of the circumstance of the freemen being honorary freemen, and in your judgment you did not think that a valid objection?—No, I do not.

18574. Mr. O'Connell.] Would it not be desirable to have an appeal both ways?—It would, in my opinion, be much more satisfactory.

18575. And then to have the registry made conclusive?—That is rather for the Legislature, not for me.

18576. You are bound, upon every person that comes before you, to pronounce a judicial determination for his admission or rejection?—I conceive I am.

18577. You act judicially in deciding?—I conceive so.

18578. What is the oath put to each individual that claims to register?—The oath is according to the nature of his claim.

18579. You examine the individual upon oath?—Yes.

18580. Is he sworn to give evidence generally, or to answer questions?—He is sworn to make true answers to all such questions as shall be asked of him touching his claim to register.

18581. And the examination goes in some cases to a very considerable length?—It does.

18582. In all cases the oath is put?—Yes; the course is, that he gets his affidavit prepared by one of the clerks, on either side, and that is handed up to me; the man then comes up to be sworn, and he is asked a few preliminary questions by the party bringing him forward, and then he is cross-examined by the opposite party to any reasonable length that they desire.

18583. And you decide judicially upon the propriety of the questions put to him?—I do.

18584. Chairman.] What other rights of voting are admitted in the city of Dublin besides the right arising from freedom of the city?—Freeholders, leaseholders, householders, and rent-chargers.

18585. Is there much investigation instituted with regard to the householders, as to the value?—Very great.

18586. What is the principle of ascertaining the value which you have laid down with regard to householders?—If they are of the value of 10 l.

18587. In what way do you consider the value should be ascertained?—With regard to householders, the payment of the rent I consider to be primâ facie evidence of the value.

18588. A rent of 10 l. clear, and upwards?—Yes; with regard to freeholders and leaseholders, the criterion I have gone by is what it would let for to a solvent tenant over and above the rent the man paid.

18589. With regard to householders, do you consider the proper criterion of value to be that which one party would give, and the other would take, supposing the premises were for letting?—Yes.

18590. You do not admit, as part of the value, any imaginative value which the party may attach to the particular premises?—No, I would investigate, and if I were not satisfied as to the value, I would ask him to produce some other evidence to satisfy me, and give the other party an opportunity of producing contrary evidence if they wished it.

18591. Supposing a party wished to register for a 10 l. house, and it was shown to you that the rent was 8 l., would you allow him to increase the value up to 10 l. by stating that it was worth to him individually 10 l. a year?—I would not consider that sufficient, but if he gave me satisfactory evidence that from a family connexion, or something of that sort, he got a house for 8 l. that was worth 12 l., I would, if I was satisfied of that, admit him.

18592. That you would not consider a fanciful value, but a bonâ fide value?—Certainly.

18593. But you would not admit a man to register upon his swearing that the house was worth to him more than either he gave for it or than another person would give for it in similar circumstances?—I would not.

18594. Were there many claimants under that franchise brought forward whom you thought it your duty to reject?—I have rejected some; not a great many.

18595. Have

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

18595. Have any appeals been tried in those cases?—There have not upon the value.

18596. Then in no case in which you have rejected a person claiming under that franchise, has an appeal been entered against your decision?—None for undervalue.

18597. To that extent, therefore, your view of the law has been acquiesced in?—It has.

18598. Although there is great animation on the subject of registration before you?—Certainly there is.

18599. Gentlemen of high professional talent are employed on both sides of the question?—Gentlemen of high professional talent have occasionally come before me, and gentlemen of the profession regularly attend.

18600. Mr. O'Connell.] In general your decisions upon the value have given satisfaction to all?—I perhaps flatter myself they have.

18601. You take all the circumstances into your consideration in deciding upon the value?—I do.

18602. If there be a tailor in the house, and if it be a house fitted up for his trade, you consider that an ingredient in the value?—If I had any evidence that it would let to another tailor for 10 l. a year, and there was no objection to the evidence, I would admit him.

18603. Is the situation of the house one ingredient in the value?—I think it must be.

18604. In deciding the question, you are ready to hear evidence both ways upon it?—I am.

18605. Facilities for trade is another topic that is urged before you?—It is.

18606. For example, a man having a smith's forge as a tenement by itself, if he is able to prove, so that you are satisfied with the proof, that that would let to another smith for 10 l., 11 l. or 12 l. you would admit him?—If he were a householder; but I have never admitted a smith's forge under shop franchise.

18607. If it constituted his dwelling?—Yes. If a person has a tenement that is so situated as that it would let to any person for 10 l., of course I admit him.

18608. Mr. Hamilton.] Then ultimately it resolves itself into the question of marketable value?—Yes.

18609. Chairman.] Supposing a party takes a house, which he lets out in lodgings, would you consider that he should add what he acquires for the lodgings to the rent which he gives for the house?—I would not consider that that should be the criterion; but if he swore that the house was worth 10 l., and that he paid 10 l. for it, I would be satisfied if there was no objection to the evidence.

18610. Supposing a man takes a house, for which he pays 5 l. a year rent, and lets it out in lodgings, by which he makes another 5 l. a year, would you consider that sufficient?—No, I would not, unless it were proved that the house was really worth 10 l. a year.

18611. You would not allow him to increase the value of the house by the sum of money that he might make by letting lodgings in it?—No.

18612. Mr. O'Connell.] But you would consider it a criterion of value if his lodgers paid him 8 l. a year, and he occupied himself a part of it, which was proved to you to be worth 40 s. a year?—I would not register him, unless he gave me evidence that the house would let for 10 l. a year.

18613. Whether in lodgings or otherwise?—In any way that it would let to a good solvent tenant.

18614. A man may make his house productive by letting rooms by the week, and if he, by letting it to weekly tenants, produced an income of 10 l. a year, and also occupied part of it himself, so that he would have 10 l. a year in rent out of part of it, would you allow him to be registered?—I would not, unless I was satisfied that the house was worth 10 l. a year.

18615. Would not the rent it produced be the strongest evidence of its being worth that?—Mere letting in lodgings is not a criterion of value.

18616. Suppose he showed you that he had let three rooms in it by the year at 10 l. a year, and had been regularly paid, and that his tenants were solvent, and occupied the remainder of it himself, would not you consider that a case in which the house was plainly shown to be a house fit to be registered?—If he would take upon him to swear that the house was worth 10 l. I would register him if he was not contradicted.

18617. His own oath, in addition to those facts, you would consider sufficient, unless unless there was some contradiction?—Unless there was something to discredit him; whenever questions nice as to value came before me, I generally asked them on both sides if they will on one side produce corroborating evidence, or if they will produce evidence on the opposite side to contradict it.

18618. And you decide accordingly upon the balance of evidence?—I do.

18619. Some of those cases have taken a good deal of time?—They have.

18620. If, upon the whole, you form your own opinion judicially that the house is worth 10*l.* a year, you register the man?—I do.

18621. And if, upon the contrary, you are not satisfied that the house is worth 10*l.* a year, you reject him?—I do, and leave him to his appeal.

18622. Chairman.] Have you any document in your possession, or can you recollect the circumstances attending the admission of a freeman of the name of James Connor, upon the 17th of November last?—I have no particular entry; he was admitted; I do not enter any special circumstances when a man is admitted.

18623. You are acquainted with Mr. James Martin, who is agent for the liberal association?—I am.

18624. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you a recollection of this case, except finding it in that book?—Not now.

18625. Chairman.] Mr. Martin states, in answer to Question 14501, that this entry was in this book, namely, "James Connor, Upper Temple-street, gentleman, carpenter, freeman by birth, examined by Mr. Curran; sworn 4th of November 1836; has resided at Delgany, in lodgings;" and he then proceeds to say, "They argued that Delgany is more than seven miles from the city of Dublin;" and Mr. Martin proceeds, in a subsequent answer, to state that it is more than 10 miles; do you recollect that?—I do remember some discussion with reference to a person that came forward to be registered, and the objection made to him was to his notice, that his residence was not properly described in his notice, and they wanted to show that the man was resident in Delgany.

18626. Is Delgany more than seven miles?—I apprehend it is.

18627. Did it appear that he slept more frequently in Dublin than in Delgany?—I cannot recollect the circumstance, but I am sure I did not admit him unless I was satisfied that the man was a bonâ fide resident the last six months in the city of Dublin, although he might have been occasionally absent at Delgany with some of his family.

18628. Mr. Martin goes on to state that "We argued that he could not be of age at the time he put his notice upon the list; it was self-evident that he was not. Would not swear he was born before the 19th of November 1815; refused to answer.—Is there any record kept in the family of his age? Never saw any; his mother always told him that was his age. Mr. Seton made objections from book, and that he was a minor. Mr. Curran made objections from book—freemen's objections, Nos. 1, 2. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 9½, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17; and also that at the time of his admission and swearing in, and of his giving notice, of his being a minor, and also a minor at the commencement of the registering sessions. He was admitted. According to his own showing, he said he was born the 14th of November 1815. Now he was sworn upon the 4th of November; that was certainly, according to his own showing, 10 days before he was of age." Do you recollect any circumstances of that nature being stated before you?—I do not recollect the circumstances sufficiently to state what was the evidence given by the man, but if I was satisfied that he was of age when he came before me to register, I think I should admit him.

18629. It is further stated: "He was registered upon the 19th of November, and he swore that he was born upon the 14th of November 1815, so that he could not be 21 years of age on the 4th, which was the day he was sworn; it wanted 10 days;" do you think, under those circumstances, that would be a good vote; namely, that being born upon the 14th of November 1815, he was registered upon the 19th of November 1836, but that he gave his notice for claiming on the 4th?—I am not prepared to say that I should reject a man if he appeared to me to be of age when he came before me to register, although he might not have been of age when he gave his notice.

18630. Mr. Hamilton.] Or when he was admitted a freeman?—Or when he was admitted a freeman. I am not aware of any decision which says that a corporation may not admit a minor to the franchise.

18631. Chairman.] You consider it your duty to ascertain that he is of age when

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

when he is placed upon the register, but you do not consider it your duty to ascertain that he was of age when he was admitted a freeman?—The inclination of my mind is, that under those circumstances I would admit the man.

18632. Has this point been raised and argued before you, as to the nonage, at the period of the person's admission to the freedom, though of full age at the period when he claimed to be upon the register?—I have no recollection of a particular case, but it may have been urged before me in some case.

18633. But your opinion is, that, under those circumstances, you ought to admit him?—Yes.

18634. Mr. O'Connell.] Supposing the man to have been of age on the 15th of November 1836, you would register him as a freeman on the 17th of that month, he being then 21 and two days, although he admitted that his admission as a freeman was some six or eight months before?—I think I should.

18635. You only inquire into his being of age at the period at which he comes to register?—I think so.

18636. And leave the question as to minority at the time of his being made a freeman between him and the corporation?—Yes.

18637. You have seen Mr. James Martin attending the registry?—Yes.

18638. He has always had a book in which he makes entries?—Yes; I have seen him make entries.

18639. And probably occasionally stop the answer till he has time to take it down?—Yes, I have seen gentlemen saying to the other side, "Give me time till I take down the evidence."

18640. They have had books on both sides?—They have.

18641. And in latter times they always make the objections on both sides, so as to preserve evidence of them?—They have been a vast deal more particular in the last three or four sessions than they were before, in consequence of which I have had more trouble in the registry.

18642. Chairman.] How long would you say, upon the average, each vote takes?—I cannot exactly say that; but I made a memorandum of the numbers registered at all the sessions in the years 1835 and 1836, and the first two sessions of the present year. In February 1835 I registered 303; the average on each day was 34.

18643. Did that include 50*l.* registries?—That included all. In the subsequent May the average was as high as 40 a day; the next sessions the average was about 25; the next registry, I think, the average is about 21; in February 1836, I think, they averaged about 26 each day.

18644. How many hours a day do you sit?—Regularly from half-past ten in the morning till four.

18645. That is five hours and a half a day?—In the last November sessions I did not go into any new case after half-past three, it being generally dark.

18646. That is about five hours a day?—Yes.

18647. Then you would not state that it was correct that each vote generally takes nearly 25 minutes?—That must be a mistake, for I find by this memorandum that I registered some days as many as 50 or 60 persons; latterly, I could not register so many, for the line of examination on both sides is much more protracted, and the objections are much more numerous.

18648. Mr. O'Connell.] The 50*l.* voters do not take much time?—They take only a minute or two.

18649. And the 10*l.* voters take very little time?—If it be a leaseholder there are sometimes objections made.

18650. But generally speaking, as a class, the 20*l.* rentchargers are not likely to take time?—There are not many rentchargers before me.

18651. The 20*l.* franchise, in general, is not likely to take time?—I do not know; parties inquire into that as much as any other.

18652. Have you any recollection of any one of that class taking time?—Not particularly; but there may be objections in the case of a 20*l.* leaseholder that require examination as much as in any other case.

18653. Mr. Hamilton.] They produce their leases?—They do.

18654. There is an inquiry with respect to the amount of the stamp, as well as with regard to the value of the property?—Yes.

18655. Mr. O'Connell.] Will you state the number in each of those sessions?—In the first sessions in 1835 there were 303 cases disposed of, either admitted or rejected.

18656. Chairman.] It has been stated by Mr. Martin, in answer to this question,

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

C. E. Dobbs, Esq.

22 June 1837.

tion, "If they take an average of 25 minutes, is not that an extended examination?—No, the writing it down takes a great deal of time." Do you suppose that it is fair to infer that each of the cases brought before you takes upon the average 25 minutes?—That must be a mistake, because I could not register half the number that I have registered, if they took 25 minutes.

18657. And therefore of course if it applies only to cases of persons actually registered, it must be still more inaccurate?—It is a protracted case that takes 25 minutes; there must be a very long examination to occupy such a time as that.

18658. This answer is also given by Mr. Martin to this question: "Do you mean to state that the discussion upon those two questions only, generally took 25 minutes in each case?—Yes, and sometimes a great deal longer; when we want to ask a question, sometimes there is an hour's argument whether it will be admitted." Is that a circumstance which often occurs?—No, I think decidedly not.

18659. You would consider an hour's argument a long time with regard to asking the questions?—Indeed I would; I very seldom have long arguments before me.

18660. How long did the case in which Mr. Carolin and Mr. Hyde were rejected take in argument?—I cannot recollect.

18661. An hour or two hours?—I think probably an hour or an hour and a half.

18662. It did not take the whole day?—Certainly not.

18663. You do not mean to say that it was half a day, but that it was an hour or two hours?—It occupied a good deal of time, because it was considered a very important question, and of course the counsel were at liberty to speak.

18664. But after the decision of the chief baron, did the counsel try to impugn that decision before you, and argue upon the propriety of putting such questions as that decision overruled?—Yes; that case in which Mr. Hudson came and argued and prepared those questions was long subsequent to the decision; for some time after the decision in Carolin and Hyde's case, the cases took very little time; the thing seemed to be acquiesced in by the gentlemen for some time; then the question was again urged upon me, and pressed upon me more than once.

18665. What was the date of that argument?—I do not exactly know the date of it.

18666. Was it last November?—I think it was at the November sessions.

18667. Taking the last February sessions and the last May sessions, did you find that the counsel argued at great length upon the propriety of putting those questions?—Not then; because they were in the habit of regularly putting those questions, and I as regularly of refusing them to be answered.

18668. Then do you suppose that 25 minutes was by any means the average of time consumed in the admission of freemen at the last sessions?—I think that is much beyond it.

18669. Was the admission of the freemen generally a matter of more celerity than any other class of voters?—Till those objections and this examination that Mr. Seton spoke of took place, the freemen took a very short time. Under the present system, it takes a good deal of time, as there are those questions all to be put, and they are objected to on the other side; and then they appeal to me, "Is the claimant bound to answer them?"

18670. Does it take a quarter of an hour for each case?—I think they take from 10 to 15 minutes.

18671. Sir Robert Ferguson.] What was the number of cases disposed of in the last November and the last February sessions?—In February 1837, they averaged about 19 in a day; in the preceding sessions, in November, it was about 23.

18672. What was the highest and the lowest number in each day upon those sessions?—In the November sessions, I have 39 in one day; and there is one day that I have as few as nine; but that must have been owing to some particular circumstance, such as the absence of the town-clerk, or something of that sort. In last February, I see the greatest number registered in a day was 33, and on the day I closed there were only four registered.

18673. Can you say how many hours you sat upon the day on which you registered 33?—I cannot particularly say; but I sat at all events from half past ten till half past three, perhaps four o'clock.

18674. Chairman.]

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

18674. Chairman.] That would be about ten minutes for each case, upon the average?—About that.

18675. Mr. O'Connell.] And would give, perhaps, about 20 minutes for battled votes?—Some would not take five.

18676. Mr. Hamilton.] Did you ever see Mr. Martin's book in which he entered the proceedings?—I never saw it, except seeing it before him in court.

18677. Did the circumstances of the court admit of the entries being regularly made?—I never took any notice of the entries on either side.

18678. From the state of the court, was it possible that the entries could be regularly and fairly made?—That I cannot pretend to say; a great deal depends upon the party's being a competent person to take notes.

18679. Mr. O'Connell.] A competent person in court could generally take down an abstract of the proceedings?—Certainly.

18680. Chairman.] Do you take down any evidence in writing yourself?—I do not; it would render the registry very tedious.

18681. Do you take any memoranda of the names?—I enter in this book a short memorandum of the rejections, but not of the admissions; I enter the rejections in case the parties think proper to appeal; if there is anything in the case which makes a chance of appealing, I am more particular in making the entry; if I have a doubt about it I often press them to take an appeal in a particular case, but I take no note of the evidence when an admission takes place.

18682. Mr. Hamilton.] You have stated that you thought you would admit a man to register, though he had been admitted to his freedom previous to his being of age, provided he was of age at the time he registered; now, supposing a notice, not in the case of a freeman, but in the case of a leaseholder or freeholder, or householder, given previous to the claimant being of age, should you admit him, provided he was of age at the time he came to register?—I would act upon the same principle in the one case as in the other.

18683. Supposing a lease devolving upon a person not of age, and that he gave notice to register before he was of age, would you admit him if he was of age at the time of the registration?—I think I would, if he had given notice of his intention to register.

18684. You consider the cases analogous?—The impression upon my mind is, that it is sufficient if the qualification is complete at the time the man comes for registry; I think, before me, there is often confusion, both in the answers of witnesses and in the questions put by the parties, confounding admission and swearing; but the moment it is explained it then appears that the claimant is alluding to the day of his being sworn, and he talks of it as his admission; and perhaps the question has been put in that way till it is explained; and then it comes out that the day of swearing is what is meant.

18685. Mr. O'Connell.] Did you register persons who had neither been admitted nor sworn at the time the notices were served?—I cannot say that; but I certainly admitted persons who were sworn after they had served notice.

18686. If a man be admitted in 1835 and serves his notice in 1836, and is not sworn in till the day before the registry, would you admit that man?—I would; I do not recollect the thing occurring in any individual case, but I dare say, it has.

18687. Supposing the notice served before the man was admitted, but that, pending his notice, he was admitted and sworn in?—I am not prepared to say that the man should be registered.

18688. Is it your impression that you would reject him?—It is.

18689. If your attention had been brought to that point, of the real admission being before he served his notice, you would reject him?—I am inclined to think I would.

18690. Your opinion is, that he would not be entitled to be registered?—That is my impression at this moment.

Mr. O'Connell.	Mr. Serjeant Jackson.
Mr. Morgan John O'Connell.	Mr. Lefroy.
Sir Robert Ferguson.	Lord Granville Somerset.
Mr. Hamilton.

LORD GRANVILLE SOMERSET, IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. William Jordan Lambert called in; and further Examined.

Mr. W. J. Lambert.
23 June 1837.

18691. Chairman.] THIS is a document called the impeachment of Mr. John Woods, late master of the corporation of smiths, of the city of Dublin; in what year was this document drawn up?—In 1825.

18692. Do you know in whose handwriting it is?—I think it is in a Mr. Edward Cook's handwriting, an attorney.

18693. Mr. O'Connell.] Is he living or dead?—Living.

18694. Where is his residence?—No. 1, Batchelor's-walk, is his residence.

18695. What makes you think it is his handwriting?—Being conversant with his handwriting.

18696. Knowing it?—Knowing it: he was one of the committee appointed upon that occasion.

18697. And, from your knowledge of the handwriting, you believe it to be his?—I believe it to be his.

18698. Chairman.] I only want to know if you can state, from that document, whether or no that master was not charged with improper conduct in not answering a mandamus which was issued for the admission of certain members into your guild?—

18699. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you read it?—No, I never read this document. If your Lordship would allow me, I would wish to refer to the transaction book that recites those charges.

18700. Chairman.] Look to September 1824 in your transaction book.

[The Witness did so.]

18701. Can you state, from the transaction book, whether or no two persons of the name of Adcocks, and a person of the name of Henderson, presented petitions for admission to your guild?—Yes, they did.

18702. What were the proceedings upon those petitions?—They applied to the Court of King's Bench.

18703. What were the proceedings in your guild upon those petitions?

18704. Mr. O'Connell.] Do any appear upon your book?—Yes, that upon laying the case before counsel——

18705. Refer to the book.

18706. Chairman.] I want to know what were the proceedings in the guild, as they appear in the transaction book?—In the month of September 1824, it appears that two persons of the name of Adcocks, and a person of the name of Henderson, presented their petitions to Mr. John Woods, the then master of this guild, claiming their freedom in the guild, the two former by birth and the latter by service; it is charged; it then goes on and recites the charges.

18707. What I want to know is what took place in the guild upon their admission?—I stated to your Lordship exactly what I know of it; they applied for a writ of mandamus.

18708. But they did not apply for a writ of mandamus in the first instance; they applied to the guild first?—In the first place, they applied to the guild.

18709. Were they admitted or rejected?—Their petitions were rejected.

18710. Then did they have recourse to any legal process?—They applied to the Court of King's Bench for a conditional order for a writ of mandamus.

18711. Did

Mr. W. J. Lambert.

23 June 1837.

18711. Did they obtain that order?—They obtained a conditional order.

18712. Did Henderson, as well as the Adcocks, both?—The three.

18713. Were they, in consequence of that, admitted?—They were.

18714. And sworn in?—They were, as appears by the book.

18715. Now was it by right of service that Henderson claimed?—Yes.

18716. Was his indenture ever enrolled?—Never.

18717. Was it not an object, on the part of the guild, to resist the entry of Henderson into their guild?—Considered a paramount object.

18718. Was the objection on the subject, the non-enrolment of the indenture of Henderson, ever brought forward in opposition to his claim?—It does not appear that it ever was; I was not in the guild at that time.

18719. Mr. O'Connell.] Was he not admitted upon compromise, Mr. Ford, the plaintiff's attorney, giving up the costs?—Exactly so; that is what I stated in my last examination.

18720. Did you not state that they took some opinion on the subject?—Yes.

18721. Have you that opinion?—I have not.

18722. Had you any property to go to law with the individuals?—Yes, funds.

18723. What property have you?—We have none now, but at that period we had, and until lately we had.

18724. What property had you?—The sum of 20 l. is paid by each common-councilman upon his election, upon the trying of the election, that makes 80 l., and that was lodged in the treasurer's hands.

18725. Mr. Hamilton.] Would you take this return into your hand; this is the report of the Municipal Corporation Commissioners for the City of Dublin; and tell me what they state in the year 1835 to be the amount of property belonging to your guild?—This is a return I made myself, I see.

18726. What is the amount of property stated in that return as belonging to the guild?—£. 340; in the Bank of Ireland, about 127 l.; in the hands of Mr. James Scarlett, 90 l.; in the hands of Mr. Patterson, of Prussia-street, 20 l.; in Mr. Joseph Smith's hands, with interest, 103 l.

18727. Mr. O'Connell.] What became of that property?—Mr. Joseph Smith's; it was in his hands, but he became a bankrupt. Mr. Patterson, the present master, has 20 l.; Mr. James Scarlett has in his hands 90 l.

18728. By being in his hands you mean he owes?—Decidedly; he holds it for the guild since he was master.

18729. Is he able to pay?—I would say not.

18730. You mean he owes it, in short?—I do: he holds it to the credit of the corporation.

18731. Do you think they will ever get a penny of that?—I do not think they ever will.

18732. Mr. Hamilton.] Was he solvent at the time that mandamus was applied for?—Yes, considered so.

18733. Mr. O'Connell.] There were several charges brought against the master, John Woods, were there not?—Yes, there were.

18734. In whose handwriting is this part of the book, 1824?—William Roe, clerk, pro tempore.

18735. He was acting as clerk at the time?—He was acting as clerk at the time.

18736. The charge brought against him is that these persons, the Adcocks and Henderson, in claiming, the former by birth and the latter by service, that they obtained a conditional order for a mandamus; it is then charged that he was applied to to call a post-hall, for the purpose of taking that matter into consideration, and to employ a proper and qualified person to act as attorney; that he declined to do so, and that he appointed a person of the name of Brierly to act for the corporate guild, who employed a person of the name of Collett to resist the mandamus, and that he took no effectual or proper means to show cause against the conditional order. It is in these words: "And it is further charged that no effectual or proper measures had been adopted by Mr. Woods, the then master, acting with this guild at large, to show any cause against the conditional order which had been granted by the Court of King's Bench, by reason whereof the conditional order so granted for a mandamus was made absolute, without any cause having been shown or any attempt having been made to show cause against same. It is further charged that when said persons above named had succeeded in procuring a mandamus as aforesaid, and had presented themselves to this guild-hall hall to be sworn as freemen of this guild, that Mr. Woods, the then master, acting in his place and capacity of master of this guild, did, without any pretext, exception or objection, permit said persons to be admitted and sworn as freemen of this guild, knowing that they had not been sworn and previously admitted in the corporation of the City of Dublin and the liberties thereof, contrary to the charter of this guild, and the well-known usage and custom thereof."

18737. Have you made out a list of the persons admitted into your guild by marriage?—I have not.

18738. Mr. Hamilton.] Can you tell me whether any subsequent proceedings appear in your book in reference to those charges?—Yes; at a subsequent hall it was moved that these charges against Mr. Woods be expunged off the book.

18739. Mr. O'Connell.] Find that, if you please: that could not have been carried, because they remain on the book. There are various other charges, are there not, of misconduct against Mr. Woods, contained in the same book?—Various others. "That the charges purporting to be against Mr. John Woods, late master, be expunged, being moved by George Gunn, seconded by Michael Stevenson, carried by a majority."

18740. That is upon the 30th of March 1836?—Yes.

18741. "It was moved and seconded that the charge preferred against the clerk of the guild be buried in oblivion. William Binns." Does it not appear what they did with that?—That was Mr. Burne, the clerk.

18742. Not Brierly?—No, Brierley was a warden; he was what is called master's warden in Mr. Woods' time.

18743. Mr. Hamilton.] When those charges were made against the master, of course the guild was rather indignant at the mandamus being allowed to be obtained?—They were indignant at what was considered a job of his, to employ his warden, Mr. Brierly, to try and get another attorney; his conduct all through looked more for interest than for the concern of the guild, and they were anxious to impeach him by all means.

18744. They were anxious also to impeach, I presume, the franchise of Henderson and the Adcocks?—Yes, to resist it to the utmost.

18745. Now Henderson's indenture not being enrolled, as I understood you to state, if the non-enrolment had been considered by the corporation a good point, they would have been glad enough to have availed themselves of it, I presume?—Very glad indeed.

18746. Mr. O'Connell.] They did not do anything at all in the King's Bench?—No, they did not: it would appear, from the opinion of Mr. Justice Burne, that he induced them to take no proceedings to resist the mandamus.

18747. Have you got that opinion?—No, I have not; you will have it by the next day; I hope so; I do not think I have altogether had time to get it yet.

Conway Edward Dobbs, Esq., called in; and further Examined.

C. E. Dobbs, Esq.

18748. Mr. Hamilton.] I AM anxious to know on what principle you decide the question of occupation; what you consider under the Reform Bill a good occupation?—What cases do you allude to; is it leasehold, freehold or household?

18749. Household; do you consider an occupation by workmen an occupation within the meaning of the Act?—No, I should not; but I have admitted cases where the person occupied by servants, without his having, perhaps, at the moment entered into the occupation himself.

18750. Mr. O'Connell.] Is it your meaning, that if a man resided in a house and left it in order to have it put into repair, and had workmen there repairing it, that that would be an interruption of his occupation?—No, I should not say that; I allude in my answer to an original occupation.

18751. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] You would consider that a different case from the case of a person who had not hitherto gone into the occupation of the house personally, but was merely employing workmen who had to repair it for him?—Yes.

18752. And if a man had been previously resident in the house, and employed workmen for the purpose of fitting it up, you would not consider that a suspension of his franchise?—I would not.

18753. Mr. O'Connell.] Now, suppose a man was in the occupation of a house by himself and his family, and it went out of repair, and suppose that he was a month month out of the occupation of it while it was under repair; that he left the house, and employed workmen of his own, whom he paid, to put it in repair, and then came back into the actual possession of it again by his own family, you would consider that as warranting him to register in respect of that house?—The truth is, I do not recollect any case of the kind actually occurring before me; but at present my impression is, that I would not consider a temporary circumstance of that kind as suspending the occupation; but I do not recollect any case of the kind having occurred.

18754. Then suppose a man took a house, and sent his servant into it, and afterwards came to reside himself actually in it, would you consider his occupation of that house to have commenced from the time that he took possession of it by his servant?—Yes, I would; but that kind of case, I think, would very much depend on the circumstances of each individual case. If I were satisfied of the bonâ fide occupation in that way, I would consider it sufficient.

18755. The bonâ fide ownership and occupation?—Yes: nothing of the kind, as I recollect, occurred before me, except perhaps where the person did not actually go to sleep in the house, may be one or two days less than six months, but had taken the house, and had occupied it by servants for two or three days, so as to bring him within the six months.

18756. Now, if he occupied it for those two or three days, not by servants hired by the month or six months, but by carpenters and bricklayers repairing it for his actual occupation, do you think that that would make any difference in your decision?—I do think it would; I think my practice has been to consider it necessary that there should be some person in the capacity of a servant, either the man himself, or some person in the capacity of a servant occupying.

18757. Would you consider a person employed and paid by the owner, for example, a carpenter being in the house, and working in it for two or three days, would you consider there would be a difference between that and the servant?—I really think, if he were merely employed as a carpenter, and did not sleep in the house, that I would make the distinction. So far as any case of the kind has ever occurred before me, I think I have acted upon that principle; but it must be a person occupying it himself, some of his family, or a person in the situation of a servant.

18758. As contradistinguished from a mere workman?—From a person merely going in the day-time to work; but I really had very few cases of the kind ever occur, and I am not sure that there was any one in which I was called upon for my decision.

18759. You have no recollection of deciding such a point at all?—I cannot say I have; but I will not at all say that I did not, because it strikes my mind at this moment, that is the impression I have now.

18760. Mr. Lefroy.] You distinguish the case of the workman from the servant, because the workman does not occupy, nor is he employed to occupy, nor does he represent his employer in respect of the occupation at all?—That is the distinction; that is the ground certainly of the distinction upon which I would decide, be it right or wrong.

18761. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Is it your opinion that there are many persons who are really not qualified to vote, remain on the registry for want of an annual purification of the registry?—Why really that is a question I cannot well answer; I should suppose that the greater number that would be in that situation, would be persons who had changed their residence; of that I can have no knowledge in the world.

18762. Do you think that the want of an annual revision of the registry, must not naturally leave upon the registry for a considerable time persons who ought to be removed from it?—Certainly, I say that I should suppose so; but I have no means in my situation of knowing the fact.

18763. No; but your conclusion as a man conversant with the subject, must be, I should think, that that would be the consequence?—Yes.

18764. Do you consider that the constant occurrence, every quarter, of registration tends to keep up an excitement amongst the constituency or the inhabitants of towns?—I think it must, naturally.

18765. Would you consider it a beneficial change to have an annual registry and an annual revision of the registry, instead of having the thing done quarterly, as it is now?—I think it would.

18766. That is your opinion?—It is.

18767. How

C. E. Dobbs, Esq.

23 June 1837.

18767. How long have you been acting as registering barrister?—From the time of the passing of the Reform Act, from January 1833.

18768. Mr. O'Connell.] That is, from immediately after the first registry?—Yes; no other person was appointed to register alone for the city of Dublin previously to myself.

18769. Chairman.] But the very first registry was conducted by many barristers?—Yes; about eight, I think.

18770. Mr. O'Connell.] Were you one of the registering barristers in the first instance?—Not in Dublin; I went down for three weeks as an assistant to Mr. Molineaux, in the county of Mayo, he not being able to complete the registry. There were several barristers sent down to different counties, and I was sent down to Mayo for three weeks.

18771. You are recorder of Carrickfergus?—I am.

18772. You have nothing to do with the registry of that county?—Nothing.

18773. Are the rights admitted in Carrickfergus by birth, service and marriage?—They are.

18774. And have been always?—Have been for a good number of years.

18775. At least they were before the Reform Bill?—Yes.

18776. Mr. Serjeant Jackson.] Are you of opinion that it impedes the full ascertainment of the right of persons who are candidates to register, that you have not any power to compel the attendance of witnesses on the registry court?—I cannot say that it strikes me so.

18777. What is your opinion on the subject; would you think it advantageous that the registry court should be armed with power to compel the attendance of witnesses upon that court?—It would protract the business greatly; I cannot say I have found much inconvenience from not having the power.

18778. Have you found any inconvenience; you say you have not found much; have you found any?—I cannot say that I have found any.

18779. Have you formed any opinion, one way or the other, whether it would be advantageous or otherwise to have the law in that respect changed?—With regard to value, the manner in which the registry has been carried on by me, perhaps, is somewhat different from what it is in counties: in this respect, that when a nice case of value has occurred to me, I have, with the consent of both parties, allowed it to stand over till the next day, allowing both parties to bring forward witnesses, if they think proper, one in support and the other in opposition to it.

18780. Then the parties can only bring forward such witnesses as will come forward?—None other.

18781. Suppose the witnesses that are competent to give evidence will not come forward, have you any power of compelling them to come forward?—No.

18782. Is not that a disadvantage?—Yes, I think it is a disadvantage.

18783. Must it not always, in the administration of any branch of public justice, be a disadvantage?—I only mean to say, the parties have not complained to me of their want of power to bring forward witnesses.

18784. But do not you think it must necessarily be disadvantageous to any jurisdiction that is not armed with that authority?—I think, to every court, unquestionably it would be an advantage to have power to bring forward witnesses, as a general principle, undoubtedly.

18785. Are you able to say whether or not any intimidation is used for the purpose of bringing forward persons to register?—No, I have seen nothing of the kind before me.

18786. On any side of the question?—On any side.

18787. Chairman.] I suppose the eagerness of party spirit in Dublin is such, that on either side there is a great readiness to come forward to register, and a great readiness to come forward to support or to oppose the registering of individuals?—I think there is a great readiness in getting people to give evidence generally.

18788. Mr. O'Connell.] There is a considerable organization, it must appear even to you, on both sides?—Certainly.

18789. Great warmth on both sides?—Certainly.

18790. I believe they conduct themselves rather civilly to each other, after all, when they come before you?—Considering the nature of the business done in my court, I cannot complain of the conduct of anybody there: of course there is sometimes a little warmth for a few minutes, and may be, a little violence for a short time; but, considering the nature of the court, I cannot complain of them.

18791. Making

C. E. Dobbs, Esq.

23 June 1837.

18791. Making due allowance for that, there is nothing to be seriously complained of; though occasionally, of course, there is a little warmth?—Occasionally there is a little warmth and a little violence.

18792. Mr. Hamilton.] Is it a correct description of your court, that it is very frequently a bear-garden?—No, I would not say so.

18793. Do you happen to know whether the corporation of Carrickfergus exercises the power of rejecting claimants under the several rights you state?—Their mode of proceeding is totally different there, and I think is not very well defined in practice.

18794. Do they, in point of fact, reject a claimant under the right of marriage, or birth, or servitude?—Generally speaking, they admit them; I will not say they have not rejected them, but generally speaking they admit; but the admissions do take place there in a very loose way; they take place before the mayor, with the assembly of the whole constituency of freemen; the whole body of freemen are in the practice of attending upon the court when freemen are admitted.

18795. Is the question put with respect to the admission of a claimant, whether he should be admitted or not?—Yes, I have seen mayors do it repeatedly.

18796. Then in point of fact, it is put to the meeting to admit or not?—In point of fact, it is generally put to the meeting whether they will admit or not.

18797. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you ever known a case in which the right was admitted, and the person rejected, notwithstanding?—I think I have, but very rarely.

18798. You cannot state any particular case?—No, I cannot; my knowledge relates to many years back: latterly, I have been resident in Dublin exclusively.

Mr. Hamilton.	Mr. O'Connell.
Lord Granville Somerset.	Mr. Morgan John O'Connell.

LORD GRANVILLE SOMERSET, IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. William Seton, called in; and Examined.

Mr. William Seton.

30 June 1837.

18799. Chairman.] WHAT are you; are you a professional person?—No, I am not.

18800. Have you any professional occupation?—No, I have not.

18801. Mr. O'Connell.] Were you employed by any body of persons to attend the registry in Dublin?—I was.

18802. By what body?—The Central Independent Club.

18803. How long did you attend?—I attended for it five sessions, and I had attended three sessions before that.

18804. As assisting your father?—Yes.

18805. On five sessions you attended, as engaged by the Central Club?—Yes.

18806. Did you make notes?—I did for those five sessions.

18807. Have you preserved those notes?—I have; they are now in the possession of Mr. Finn, who is the treasurer.

18808. You took down objections to voters?—Yes.

18809. You examined voters?—I did not examine them.

18810. But you were present at the examination?—I took down the examination.

18811. Made abstracts of the evidence?—Made abstracts.

18812. Then you, from those notes, will be able to state, in case you are called upon, the various objections taken to the voters?—Certainly, on both sides.

18813. You particularly attended to the registry of the freemen?—My father more particularly attended to that.

Mr. William Seton.

30 June 1837.

18814. You are able to tell the Committee that, since the Chief Baron's decision, they were not allowed to examine into anything that was stated in the certificate given by the town-clerks?—No; Mr. Dobbs thought himself bound by the decision of the Chief Baron.

18815. As making that certificate conclusive of all the facts stated in it?—Precisely.

18816. Chairman.] Did Mr. Dobbs decide differently, as to the questions which freemen applying to be registered should answer, previous to the Chief Baron's decision, to what he did afterwards?—I think they more particularly examined before that; and he rejected two men on purpose to let it go to an appeal, Mr. Hyde and Mr. Carolin, that it might go to an appeal; and after that he considered that the production of the certificate was quite sufficient.

18817. Previous to the rejection of those two individuals for the purpose of appeal, did he, or did he not, permit the freemen who were applying to be admitted upon the register of voters to answer any questions which he afterwards decided they should not answer?—I declare I do not think I can fairly answer that question. At that time, the 1st of February, the registry in 1835, I was brought there by my father, and I was merely acting in filling affidavits and certificates and things of that sort; I did not attend to the examination very particularly; and in May 1835, I was engaged by a party in Dublin, by one parish, to attend to them, but I had nothing to do with that. I do not think I could answer that question.

18818. Who were the counsel that came down to argue the cases when those two persons were rejected?—I think Mr. Serjeant Jackson was one, and Mr. Hatchett the other.

18819. Who came down to argue the case on your side?—At that time I believe Mr. O'Connell was one of the gentlemen.

18820. When did Mr. Piggott and Mr. Hudson come down to argue any case on the part of the liberal party?—Mr. Piggott came down last August to argue a case.

18821. Was that the first time that they appeared?—That was the first time Mr. Piggott ever appeared in court; I think it was in August.

18822. Then if this statement has been made, it is not correct according to your recollection: the question asked is, "By whom was the appeal made?—By the conservative party; he rejected (meaning the barrister rejected) them for the purpose of appealing; he had admitted twenty upon that sessions, before Mr. Piggott and Mr. Hudson came down to argue it, and then it was agreed that two should be rejected, on the understanding that the opposite party would appeal and try the question." Does that agree with your recollection of those facts?—I really do not recollect Mr. Piggott there at that time.

18823. That does not agree with your recollection of the facts of the appeal cases?—It may have been so; I do not recollect it.

18824. Does it agree with your recollection?—There was an argument, I know.

18825. Was that argument conducted by Mr. Piggott and Mr. Hudson?—I really cannot answer that.

18826. What took place in court at the time that that appeal was decided upon; was there any conversation as to what court or to what persons the appeal should be made?—Upon my word I cannot answer that.

18827. Were you in court upon the occasion?—Not to take down any evidence, or anything of that kind, I was not.

18828. Were you present upon that occasion?—I was present part, and part not.

18829. But you were not constantly in court?—During that session I was not constantly in court; that was in May 1835.

18830. Then you have no recollection of what took place?—I could not say, indeed.

18831. You can give no evidence on the subject, one way or the other?—Certainly not.

18832. Can you give any evidence on anything that took place subsequently to that?—In February 1836 I was employed, and I had to keep a regular book of every one that came.

18833. You have not got that here?—I have not.

Mr.

George Archer, Esq., called in; and further Examined.

18834. Mr. O'Connell.] YOU have the books of the corporation here?—Yes.

18835. You are apprised that this is a return made by Mr. Lambert, of persons admitted in right of marriage to the guild of smiths, previous to the passing of the Reform Bill?—Yes.

18836. Now be so good as to look at this person; the entry is this: "25th June 1777, Thomas Bookey, smith, married to the daughter of Thomas Truelock;" does that Thomas Bookey, smith, appear to have passed the city?—Yes; by grace especial.

18837. Now look to June the 6th 1791, the entry in the smiths' is Walter Nangle, as married to the daughter of George Sall; have you got that?—No, I have not.

18838. He could not have passed the city before 1791?—No.

18839. How far does that book go down to?—This goes down to 1820.

18840. Do you find him?—No; he does not appear to have passed.

18841. That Walter Nangle does not appear to have passed the city at large at all?—No.

18842. Now look to John Harris, January 1802; the entry is, married to the daughter of John Gill?—I do not find John Harris.

18843. John Harris, then, has not passed the city?—No.

18844. Well, the same date, the guild of smiths, 14th January 1802, Richardson Turkington?—Richardson Turkington, Christmas 1831.

18845. Grace especial?—Grace especial.

18846. Now, Joseph Bromlow, January 1802, in the smiths', married to the daughter of Jonathan Binns?—I think he was a freeman; but I do not find that name.

18847. He does not appear to have passed?—No.

18848. Now look to those that passed the smiths', 22d April 1802; James Buchanan, as married to the daughter of James Clarke?—Yes, I find him.

18849. When did he pass the city?—Easter 1802.

18850. What is the entry?—Grace especial.

18851. The next is 10th April 1817; George Ponder, married to the daughter of Randal Booth?—Yes; Midsummer 1817, George Ponder, smith, by grace especial.

18852. 8th January 1818, in the smiths', Louis Grabham, married to the daughter of George Collis?—Yes.

18853. Read the entry?—Easter, 1818, George Louis Grabham, smith, birth.

18854. That cannot be the same; it is Louis Grabham?—This is George Louis Grabham.

18855. That cannot be the same; have you any Louis Grabham?—No, I have not.

18856. There is no such man?—No.

18857. Louis Grabham does not appear?—No.

18858. Then, have the goodness to look for Thomas Barnes, who, under date 14th January 1819, passed the smiths', as married to the daughter of Richard Smith?—There is Thomas Barnes, Easter 1819; Thomas Barnes, smith, birth.

18859. Then that could not be as married to the daughter of Richard Smith?—Certainly not, according to the practice.

18861. Look to John Moorehead, who was admitted by marriage in the smiths', 6th October 1825?—I find, Christmas 1827, John Moorehead, smith, by grace especial.

18862. Look to an entry in the smiths', 9th October 1828, Thomas Dockrell, married to the daughter of Josias Phillips?—That person did not pass the city of Dublin.

18863. Hugh M'Intyre, entered in the smiths' 23d April 1829, as married to the daughter of William F. Bentley?—I find him.

18864. When did he pass?—Christmas 1830, smith, by grace especial.

18865. The next entry is July 20, 1830, Thomas Payne, as married to the daughter of George Payne; when did he pass the city?—Midsummer 1830, Thomas Payne, smith, grace especial.

18866. Be so good as to look at William Leeper, who, upon the same date, passed passed the smiths', as married to the daughter of Richard Whiteker?—No, I have not him.

George Archer, Esq.

18867. Has he passed?—No.

18868. Have you ascertained, since you were here last, the precise date of the introduction into the books of the corporation at large of the claim by marriage?—No, I have not; I did not understand I was obliged to do that.

18869. Do you remember that you said, in answer to a question of mine, it was about two years after the Reform Bill?—By looking at the beseeches, I think I could find that, if you wish it.

18870. Have you those beseeches here?—I have.

18871. Will you take the trouble to ascertain when first the corporation at large entered the claim of admission by right of marriage?—In Michaelmas assembly, 1832.

18872. That was the first time when the corporation at large entered in its books admissions by right of marriage?—Yes.

18873. And that, you told us, was in consequence of the Reform Bill?—That, coupled with the prior claim of right growing out of marriage, by grace especial.

18874. Before that, all those who passed minor guilds by claim of marriage passed the corporation at large by grace especial?—As far as I know.

18875. You do not know of any entry otherwise?—I do not know before my own period of office, and that was in 1830 when I commenced.

18876. But from examining the books that appears to be so, does not it?—The examination I have made to-day would rather lead to some confusion upon that subject, because I see "birth."

18877. Might not that be by marriage?—No, not by marriage; but finding that the beseeches from the minor corporations come to the great corporation upon claim by marriage, and seeing it here by birth rather confuses me.

18878. As far as you have examined the books of the corporation at large, do you find any entry by right of marriage till after the Reform Bill, in the corporation at large?—No.

18879. Mr. Lefroy.] Did it not appear to you that the beseeches very often were in the alternative when they were founded upon a claim of marriage, either to be admitted by marriage or by grace especial?—I never looked to the beseeches with that view.

18880. I mean in the case of the minor guilds?—I am not aware of how that fact is.

18881. Mr. O'Connell.] You are not aware of the practice of the minor guilds?—No.

18882. Mr. Lefroy.] In cases where the claim to be admitted in right of marriage required that a freeman should have been such at the time of the birth of the daughter, might it not, in such cases, where the marriage was to a daughter born before he was a freeman; might not that have been a ground of admission by grace especial, and yet the circumstance of being married to the daughter of a freeman have been inserted?—I think it might.

18883. If that were so, that would go to account for many cases where an admission was by grace especial, though the beseech might have been founded upon a title by marriage?—It would.

18884. Mr. Hamilton.] Can you state whether the petition upon which the beseech is grounded recited in any case the claim of marriage?—Yes; I have beseeches, both coming from the minor guilds, and our beseeches, containing the words "the rather being married to the daughter of such a person, a free brother."

18885. Mr. O'Connell.] Can you produce any of those?—No, I cannot.

18886. Mr. Hamilton.] So that at least, if not the alternative, the addition of marriage is stated in the beseech?—Yes.

18887. Mr. O'Connell.] Not in all?—No, not in all; not in all grace especial; but those coming under that class, as far as I understand, were.

18888. Chairman.] Are you aware, when the freemen come forward to ask for a certificate, upon which they are to apply to be registered, what their politics are?—Not at all, never.

18889. Mr. O'Connell.] That is, you yourself are not?—No.

18890. Chairman.] You are the person who grants the certificates, are you not?—Yes.

18891. And you cannot state whether freemen come to be admitted on both sides

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

sides of the question?—Yes, I can; I am quite satisfied they have, from the votes that I have seen given by freemen after their admission.

18892. They have been admitted on both sides subsequent to the Reform Bill?—I am told they have.

18893. As far as your general knowledge goes?—Yes.

18894. But at the moment of granting the certificate you are not aware of their politics, except by private acquaintance or some circumstances?—That is all.

18895. Are you aware of the existence of associations, both on the one side and the other, of politics for the purpose of registry?—Yes, I know such associations do exist.

18896. Are applications made by such associations to you, as the town-clerk, for certificates?—No.

18897. Then from that source of information you do not ascertain at all the politics of the parties applying for the certificates?—I do not. In some instances, Mr. Collison, who I know to have been of one side, has got certificates from me, and in that way I take for granted that the persons who entrusted him to get their certificates may have a party feeling.

18898. That is the only information you have?—That is all; mere observation.

18899. Mr. O'Connell.] You do not mean to say that any Catholic has been admitted?—No, I do not.

18900. There have been some of what are called liberal Protestants?—Yes.

18901. I believe a near relation of Lord Plunket was the principal person?—Yes.

18902. Have you a recollection of any other in that line of politics?—No; because that gentleman's station makes me recollect him; I am quite satisfied there were others.

18903. But the general rule is otherwise, I believe?—Yes, it is.

18904. And at all events you are free to reject if you choose?—Yes.

18905. As to your signing the articles, that is merely ministerial?—That is all.

18906. You are bound to sign the articles, if you are paid the ordinary fees, if the man has passed the corporation at large?—Yes.

18907. Now be so good as to take the book and look for Wills Hill Macready; he passed the guild of merchants on the 15th April 1822. I believe you know he is a respectable solicitor?—I do.

18908. He passed the guild of merchants by marriage, having married the daughter of Richard M. Sanges?—I have it, Easter 1822, Wills Hill Macready, merchant, grace especial.

18909. Look for James Peel, who passed the guild of merchants the same day, whether he passed the city, and how?—At Easter 1822, James Peel, merchant, grace especial.

18910. Look, if you please, to the same 15th July 1822, to John Anderson, who passed the guild of merchants the same 15th July 1822 by marriage, as married to the daughter of Alderman Etshaw?—I have John Anderson, Midsummer 1822, merchant, grace especial.

18911. The next is 14th October 1822, James Freke passed the guild of merchants, as married to the daughter of the Rev. M. Sandys?—I have, at Michaelmas 1822, James Freke, merchant, grace especial.

18912. Henry Jellico passed the guild of merchants 7th April 1823, as married to the daughter of Sir Abraham Bradley King?—I find, Midsummer 1823, Henry Jellico, as having been admitted by grace especial, merchant.

18913. Godhead Blantyre Hassett, married to the daughter of Sir Abraham Bradley King, 18th October 1823, passed the guild of merchants?—Yes; merchant, by grace especial; he passed in Midsummer 1830.

18914. William Jones, 12th January 1824, passed the merchants by right of marriage, as married to the daughter of John Maiben?—Christmas 1824, William Jones, merchant, grace especial.

18915. Same date, Joshua Porter, as married to the daughter of James Jesson?—I do not find him.

18916. He does not appear to have passed the city at large?—No: as to that very Joshua Porter, that in all probability, I think, was a complimentary freedom by the guild of merchants.

 18917. No,

George Archer, Esq.

30 June 1837.

18917. No, it is returned by marriage?—But still it may pass that way; but I think Porter is a freeman in another right; I have Porter in another right; I should think that very Porter. I do not find him at that time; he might have been free long before.

18918. James Walshe, married to the daughter of John C. Twyford; he passed the guild of merchants 12th January 1824?—I have James Walshe, Midsummer 1830, grace especial, merchant.

18919. Same date, Robert Jameson, married to the daughter of Francis Fox? I have it, in 1822, Robert Jameson, merchant, grace especial.

18920. You have no other Robert Jameson?—No, I have not.

18921. Look for, if you please, Thomas F. Uniacke, who passed the guild of merchants 17th January 1825, by marriage, as married to the daughter of G. H. Rochfort?—I have him, Michaelmas 1828, merchant, grace especial.

18922. William North, upon the same day, by marriage to the daughter of Richard Homan?—I have William North, a cutler.

18923. No, a merchant?—No, I do not find him.

18924. 11th April 1825, guild of merchants, John Waters, as married to the daughter of John Jones?—John Waters, merchant, grace especial, Midsummer 1825.

18925. 16th January 1826, guild of merchants, Henry R. Paine, as married to the daughter of William Taylor?—Henry R. Paine, Christmas 1826, merchant, grace especial.

18926. Same date, John Talbot, married to the daughter of alderman Sweettenham?—John Talbot, Michaelmas 1825, merchant, grace especial.

18927. Robert Smith, same date, guild of merchants, married to the daughter of John ——— ?—Christmas 1826, merchant, grace especial.

18928. 16th October 1826, George Hatchell, by marriage to the daughter of David Melvill?—George Hatchell, Midsummer 1826, merchant, grace especial.

18929. October 1827, John Finemore, married to the daughter of Samuel Ashworth?—John Finemore, Midsummer 1830, merchant, grace especial.

18930. 14th January 1828, Edward J. Smith, by marriage to the daughter of alderman Montgomery?—Edward J. Smith, merchant, under date Midsummer 1828, by grace especial.

18931. James Bailie, April 1828, married to the daughter of Peter Kirwater?—James Bailie, under date Michaelmas 1828, grace especial.

18932. 13th October 1828, John Allen, married to the daughter of Michael Coates?—John Allen, Midsummer 1830, grace especial.

18933. William Swan, same date, married to the daughter of alderman Reed?—Michaelmas 1828, William Swan, merchant, grace especial.

18934. January 1829, Alfred Taylor, by marriage to the daughter of William Tenant?—Christmas 1829, Alfred Taylor, merchant, grace especial.

18935. 13th July 1829, Thomas Wright, by marriage to the daughter of Robert Ball?—Thomas Wright, Easter 1831, merchant, grace especial.

18936. Mr. Hamilton.] The claimant of freedom is a party to the petition to the minor guild; he signs it, I believe?—Yes, I believe, it is always the custom.

18937. Mr. O'Connell.] Do you know the practice?—No, I am not aware of how the practice is.

18938. Mr. Hamilton.] Does he sign the petition which comes on to your office, and on which the beseech is grounded?—No, he does not.

18939. Now, if a petition, for example, alleging the claim of marriage, goes up to your office, and it is converted there into the beseech, setting forth the claim as of special grace, is the claimant aware of that change being made; is he a party to the change?—We do not change it to special grace; it goes forward as of marriage upon the certificate. The admission is by marriage, and we then see that it is accordingly stated.

18940. A petition, stating the claim of marriage coming up to your office, and a beseech, founded upon that, is it not your practice to alter the claim into that of grace especial?—No.

18941. Then, in your beseech, do you recite the claim as of marriage?—As of marriage, yes.

18942. Mr. O'Connell.] I find, in the corporation of tailors, that, on the 11th June 1825, Nathaniel Prestidge was admitted by marriage, as married to the daughter of John Shore?—Yes, I find Nathaniel Prestidge, Michaelmas 1824, tailor, grace especial.

18943. I find,

18943. I find, in April 1825, William Carey, as married to the daughter of John M'Laine?—I do not find that.

18944. He does not appear to have passed the city at large?—No.

18945. Same date, I find William Wright, by marriage to the daughter of James Millington?—William Wright, Michaelmas 1828, tailor, grace especial.

18946. Same date, Robert Majoribanks, marriage to another daughter of the same James Millington?—Michaelmas 1828, Robert Majoribanks, tailor, grace especial.

18947. July 1825, Charles Warren, by marriage to the daughter of Andrew Lee?—Michaelmas 1825, Charles Warren, tailor, grace especial.

18948. October 1825, Allan Ellison, by marriage to the daughter of Humphrey Jones?—Christmas 1826, Allan Ellison, tailor, grace especial.

18949. January 1828, William Rogerson, marriage to the daughter of Thomas M'Gill?—I do not find William Rogerson.

18950. William Richardson, same date, April 1828, by marriage to the daughter of William ———?—Christmas 1828, William Richardson, tailor, grace especial.

18951. Curtis M'Farland, October 1828, marriage to the daughter of Henry Meares?—Yes, I find him under head Michaelmas 1830, tailor, grace especial.

18952. 11th January 1830, Charles Brien, marriage to the daughter of John White?—Charles Brien, tailor, grace especial, under head Midsummer 1830.

18953. Same date, Benjamin Mason, to the daughter of Samuel M'Comas?—Benjamin Mason, under head Midsummer 1830, by grace especial, tailor.

18954. Thomas Lefroy, honorary tailor, serjeant?—That would not be here.

18955. John Chiswell, April 1830, marriage to the daughter of Peter Robinson?—John Chiswell, Midsummer 1830, tailor, grace especial.

18956. July 1830, Richard Higginson, marriage to the daughter of James Walker?—I have got that; Midsummer 1830, tailor, grace especial.

18957. Thomas Egerton, October 1824, corporation of barbers and surgeons, marriage to the daughter of James Mills?—That person did not pass the corporation of Dublin.

18958. Chairman.] Can you state why he did not pass?—I can give no reason; for as it very often happens that they may belong to other corporations, it is matter of favour, just as the Committee has heard in the case of Mr. Lefroy. The parties do not think it worth while to proceed.

18959. It is not worth while for persons to proceed to the corporation at large when from a particular guild they may have already passed the corporation at large from another guild?—No.

18960. There are some expenses attached to it, are there not?—Yes.

18961. What are the expenses?—Eighteen shillings.

18962. Must they have another stamp?—No.

18963. Mr. Lefroy.] In all those instances in which persons were admitted, apparently as of grace especial, who came from the minor guilds, as upon a claim of marriage, were they charged the same fees as persons who in strictness were admitted by grace especial?—They were.

18964. Did they pay the same stamp duties?—They did.

18965. You are sure of that?—I am.

18966. Mr. O'Connell.] You have nothing to do with the receipt stamps at all?—No, I have nothing to do with the receipt stamp duty: I considered you meant our fees; it is the stamp alone you alluded to at that time, in your question to me; I understood it was the fees generally.

18967. Mr. Lefroy.] Your corporation fees?—Yes.

18968. Mr. O'Connell.] They are the same in every case, are they not?—Yes.

18969. Mr. Lefroy.] In your corporation do you make any distinction between fees as claims of right and grace especial?—No; we do not make any difference, no distinction.

18970. Nor is there any distinction as to the stamp duty in your corporation?—No, not in ours. They do not pay the stamp duty in ours.

18971. But in the minor guilds the distinction is made that I have adverted to?—Yes, I understand so.

18972. Mr. O'Connell.] October 1827, corporation of carpenters, Thomas Browne, by marriage?—Easter 1829, Thomas Browne, carpenter, grace especial.

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

George Archer, Esq.

30 June 1837.

18973. Mr. Hamilton.] These several claimants preferring their claims as of marriage, those claims are converted in the town-clerk's office into a claim as of grace especial, and they are passed as of grace especial; is not that the case? —Prior to the Reform Bill it was the case.

18974. And that without their concurrence or knowledge?—Of course they had no knowledge.

18975. You have stated in several instances that the individuals named have not passed the corporation at large; are you able to state positively, from the means you have of knowing now, that they may not have passed either in some other right, or might appear in some other book?—They may have passed before; but I have only examined from the period when Mr. O'Connell calls my attention to the time they passed the minor guilds, and I instance the case of Mr. Porter.

18976. Chairman.] State the case of Mr. Porter's admission to freedom?—I have, in Easter, 1813, Joshua Porter, stationer, by birth.

18977. He was admitted to the freedom of the corporation at large, by birth, in 1813?—Yes.

18978. Well, now, has he been admitted since?—Not in our corporation.

18979. He has not been admitted in the corporation at large since?—No.

18980. But he has been admitted in another guild?—So it appears, by marriage.

18981. Mr. O'Connell.] Having been once admitted in the corporation at large, he has no occasion to be entered in the corporation at large again?—No; and the object of that admission in the merchants', by marriage, was to qualify Mr. Porter to become a representative for that corporation, to the corporation of Dublin, and he has been returned as one of the representatives of that body.

18982. Chairman.] You are a member of the guild of merchants?—I am.

18983. And therefore you can state to the Committee whether or no that guild is in the habit of taking proper means to prevent the introduction into it of improper persons, or persons who have no right?—They certainly are not in the habit of admitting improper persons.

18984. They take pains to exclude improper persons, do they?—They do.

18986. Do you think there are several persons in that same condition?—I think, a great many.

18987. Mr. Lefroy.] Notwithstanding the practice of admitting persons having a claim from the minor guilds on the ground of birth, admitting them into your corporation as by grace especial, did you consider those as honorary freemen, or were they considered as merely honorary freemen in your guild? —They came under the term "grace especial," and that was distinguishable from honorary freemen, because what we call honorary freemen are freemen of the city at large, not coming from any of the minor guilds.

18988. Then you distinguish those persons from honorary freemen?—Yes.

18989. You did not consider them merely honorary freemen?—I did not.

18990. Nor were they so considered in your corporation, by the members of it?—No, I think not.

18991. Mr. O'Connell.] But the persons admitted by grace especial, you deem them honorary freemen now; any man who is admitted by grace especial, under the Reform Act?—We do.

18992. Mr. Lefroy.] Because now you do not include under the term "grace especial" those who before you did include under that term, though being a right founded upon marriage, as recognised by the minor guilds?—Yes.

18993. Mr. O'Connell.] So that there is one class, since the Reform Bill, that you insert by marriage, that you, before the Reform Bill, always inserted by grace especial?—They form part of the grace especial.

18994. Mr. Lefroy.] But before the Reform Bill that class was not considered as honorary freemen?—No.

18995. You distinguished between honorary freemen and that class before the Reform Bill?—We did not.

18996. Mr. O'Connell.] Did you not distinguish, before the Reform Bill, between between honorary freemen and freemen admitted by grace especial?—What we considered honorary freemen prior to the Reform Bill, were persons admitted to the city at large only, not coming forward with a claim from any of the minor corporations.

30 June 1837.

18997. So that no man who was admitted in a minor corporation by grace especial purely, and then came to be admitted to the corporation at large, was in the class of what you called honorary freemen before the Reform Bill?—I think not.

18998. Mr. Hamilton.] In the case of the mandamus that was applied for by Messrs. Adcocks, their return to that, I believe, was that the corporation had the power of rejection, and that return was held good; can you state whether the Adcocks might have contravened that return, and brought the matter up to legal trial, by denying that that capricious power of rejecting existed?—Of course, I take for granted they might have proceeded.

18999. And their proceeding in that way, denying the validity of the return, would have brought the matter up to a judicial adjudication?—It would.

19000. Mr. O'Connell.] But it would not have been wise to traverse a fact which would be found against the party?—I should say not.

19001. Mr. Hamilton.] Can you say it would have been found against the party?—I cannot.

19002. Can you state whether, if a minor guild applied for a mandamus in the instance of the admission of a claimant to your guild, it would have been held good?—I cannot say that; that is a matter of law.

19003. Has such a case ever arisen?—I think I heard some case of that kind here.

19004. But a mandamus has not been applied for by a minor guild, to force the admission of one of its members into the corporation at large?—I am not aware of any.

Mr. William Jordan Lambert, again called in; and Examined.

Mr. W. J. Lambert.

19005. Mr. O'Connell.] THE first of those entries, Mr. Lambert, in your book of 1777, appears thus: "that Mr. Thomas Bookey be admitted to his freedom of this corporation by birth, he being married to Jane Truelock, daughter of Thomas Truelock, esq., who is now, and was free of the guild before the birth of his said daughter; he, the said Bookey, paying the usual fine and fees as persons who are admitted by birth"?—Yes.

19006. And that person appears, by the book produced by Mr. Archer, to have been admitted as of Midsummer 1777, to the corporation at large; Thomas Bookey, smith, by grace especial?—Yes.

19007. Mr. Hamilton.] Would you turn to the entry of Jane Southwell, in 1662, and state in what right she was admitted?—

19008. Mr. O'Connell.] A woman admitted?—The charter gives us the power of admitting sisters also.

19009. Have they ever in your recollection admitted a sister?—Not in the smiths', but in the merchants' they have. They admitted Miss Nugent, Sir Edward Nugent's daughter, to my recollection, but not in the smiths'.

19010. Mr. Hamilton.] Read the entry of Jane Southwell's admission in 1662?—"James Southwell, son of John Southwell, a brother of this corporation, and Mary Southwell, his daughter, the 1st of October, A.D. 1662, were enrolled."

19011. Is that the book in which the entries of admissions have been made?—Yes.

19012. That, then, is the entry of the admission of those persons?—It is.

19013. Now look further down, and you will find an entry with regard to Elizabeth Ergert?—His daughter, the same day, was also enrolled.

19014. Now look further down, to Mary Garton; read the entry respecting Mary Garton?—"Mary Garton, daughter of Joseph Garton, enrolled the 5th day of October, A.D. 1662."

19015. Read the entry with respect to Jonathan and Martha Lee?—"Jonathan and Martha Lee, son and daughter of William Lee, brother of this corporation, the 23d day of January, A.D. 1662, were enrolled."

19016. Now, then, turn on to the case of Hester Seawell?—Yes, that appears, Hester Seawell, daughter of Mr. John Seawell, of Dublin, brazier, an ancient brother of this guild, enrolled January, A.D. 1669.

Mr. W. J. Lambert.

30 June 1837.

19017. Now, in 1670, turn to the entry of Ann Friends?—Ann Friends, daughter of Richard Friends, enrolled 14th day of April 1670.

19018. So that it appears that at a very ancient period the right of females to be admitted was recognised in your corporation?—It appears by the charter that they may be admitted, that is, brothers and sisters.

19019. Mr. O'Connell.] Do those women appear to have been sworn in by any entry?—No, they do not.

19020. Can you point out the clause in your charter authorising you to have sisters?—It says brothers and sisters.

19021. Show me that clause in the charter.—[The witness did so.]

19022. Mr. Hamilton.] Read that part of the charter.

19023. Mr. O'Connell.] This is the translation; these are the words in the charter of Edward I.: "To find, perform, accomplish and make a certain fraternity or guild of themselves and other persons, as well of men as of women, in the art of smiths, of the City of Dublin, the same for ever to be called the fraternity or guild of St. Lay." This passage appears in the charter, does it not?—It does.

19024. "And further, whenever any of the same art will take them an apprentice, they shall first cause him who shall be made an apprentice to come before the master and wardens and clerk of that fraternity or guild that for the time shall be, who shall discreetly weigh and consider whether he that is so bound an apprentice be free, of English nation, and honest conversation; who, if they do so find, shall be taken as an apprentice to serve for the term of seven years, and that his indentures thereof made shall be brought before the master and wardens within one year then next ensuing, and then by the clerk enrolled; and whenever any of that art do or shall take an apprentice, otherwise than as aforesaid, that taking shall be adjudged as void and utterly frustrate, and he that taketh such an apprentice shall pay half a mark to the use of the fraternity or guild aforesaid." I think you have told us that that part of the charter is almost entirely neglected?—Almost entirely; but in some instances there are some persons who attend to it yet.

19025. Mr. Hamilton.] Have you read the printed report of what was stated by Chief Baron Joy in the cases of Carolin and Hyde?—Yes, I have.

19026. Is that substantially correct?—It is.

[The same was handed in and read, a copy of which is as follows:]

"Upon the first point, the Chief Baron, during the argument, observed, 'I am decidedly of opinion that these freemen are not honorary, in the sense of the Act of Parliament. The ninth section of the Reform Act distinguishes those who have been admitted by birth, marriage or servitude from those who have been admitted as honorary freemen. Can I say that they are all in the same situation? I consider that the construction contended for would work the greatest injustice. I am called upon to give it that construction, without any reason to satisfy my mind that such was the intention of the Legislature, and contrary, as it appears to me, to the very words of the Act. I admit that the words of the Act are imperative upon me, that I must put the necessary construction upon them; but the construction contended for is founded upon a special pleading, in taking the words of the Act in a sense different from their ordinary meaning.'" Joy, C.B.—"It is difficult, upon looking at the 113th section of the 56 Geo. 3, c. 56, to come to any other than the one opinion. The Act requires the corporation, previous to the admission of any person into the corporation, to demand and receive for the use of his Majesty, from the person so to be admitted, the stamp duty payable upon the entry of admission of such person into the corporation. That having been done, what is to be done afterwards? Nothing by the person applying to be admitted: he is only bound to pay the duty to the officer of the corporation, and the officer is bound to demand and receive it before he suffers him to be admitted. The applicant is not even directed to procure the stamp; he is only to pay the duty to the officer, and having done that, which may not appear upon any document which he gets as the muniment of his title, he has done all that he is required to do by the Stamp Act. The rest is to be performed by the officer, who is required, within one month after the admission, to make an entry of such admission upon the proper stamp, on some book, roll or record of the corporation; that is, the officer is to procure the stamp, and to make the entry upon it; and this part of the statute is directory rectory upon the officer. But the free man does not incur any forfeiture of his franchise, if the officer of the corporation does not make the entry upon the stamp. It would be contrary to every legal principle to hold such a doctrine. The party deriving under the act of the corporation does not forfeit his rights, if the public officer of the corporation does not do his duty; but that officer incurs a penalty of 10*l.* if he neglects to make such an entry upon the proper stamp within the month, and the corporation is liable for the stamp duty, whether they have received it or not. It is impossible to give any other construction to the Act than that I now give it. If the party applying to be registered cannot himself procure the stamp, which he cannot, if he can only pay the stamp duty to the officer (and having done that, he has nothing more to do), I see no objection in his coming forward with the muniments of his title without a stamp upon them. It is said that this construction will have the effect of destroying this branch of the revenue. In my mind it is protected in a much more effectual manner; for the corporation are required to demand and receive the stamp duty previous to admitting the claimant; and although they may not have actually received the duty, yet, if their officer does not make an entry of the admission upon a proper stamp within one month after the admission, he forfeits the sum of 10*l.* I ground my opinion upon the clause of the Stamp Act relating to the case of admission into corporations; for although there are other clauses in the Act relating to the effect which the want of a stamp has upon an instrument required to be stamped, yet, as the Legislature has provided a peculiar sanction applicable to these cases, I must look to what they have done with regard to this portion of the stamp duty; and it appears to me that they have taken these cases out of the body of the Stamp Act. They have taken care that the stamp duty shall be paid, not by requiring the freeman to produce a stamped admission whenever he may want to prove his right, which may never happen, but by making the corporation responsible for the amount of the duty, if the party is admitted; and they impose a penalty upon the officer of the corporation if the duty is not forthcoming. For these reasons, I am of opinion that the appellants are not bound to produce any stamped instrument as the evidence of their title; and therefore, upon this part of the case, I conceive that the Chairman was right in his decision. This was the only part of the case which I thought questionable; for in Carolin's case I think there is sufficient and abundant evidence of his right. He has proved the title book, which is the only book showing the title of the party, and in what right he has been admitted. The beseech is not evidence of that; it is only evidence of what the party claimed, not of what was allowed. In the book is entered the ground upon which the party has been admitted; but by the beseech he may claim to be admitted upon three grounds, and only one of them may be allowed. The beseech would not, in that case, show the right in which the party had been admitted; but the book does state it particularly; it by itself shows the ground of the admission of the party, and it is the only book kept for that purpose. There may be other books in which entries of admissions are made upon stamps, but this book is satisfactory to my mind that he has been admitted a freeman. The entry of his name upon the roll, which is kept as the record of the corporation, and his taking the oath affixed thereto, proves the same thing. The books and records of the corporation, though not good evidence as to the rights of the corporation against third persons, have, nevertheless, been always held good evidence to show what are the rights of the parties to the corporation inter se. Therefore, I am of opinion that the roll is good evidence to prove, as against the corporation, that the appellant has been admitted a member of the corporation, and that the title book is sufficient to prove in what right the corporation has admitted him; and, therefore, that Carolin has established his right to register by sufficient evidence: for the Reform Act gives that right to every person who, by reason of birth, marriage, or servitude, shall at any time after the passing of that Act be admitted to his freedom; and, therefore, all that is necessary to establish is, that, as against the corporation, the applicant has been admitted to his freedom in one of those rights. And as to Hyde's case, I think that the certificate given by the public officer of the corporation, who is employed for the purpose of giving authenticity to their acts, is good evidence against the corporation, to show that, as against them, he has been admitted to his freedom in the right stated in his certificate. As against third persons, it may not be evidence, but as to the individual rights of the corporation, and the freemen, inter se, I think that it is evidence. Therefore, I am of opinion that the Chairman was mistaken when he rejected the claims of the appellants to be registered, and that they must be both admitted."

Mr. William Patrickson Pike, called in; and Examined.

Mr. Wm. Patrickson Pike.

19027. Chairman.] ARE you an attorney?—I am an attorney about 14 years.

19028. Have you been acting as clerk of the guild of carpenters?—For about two years past I have taken down the proceedings, the clerk being absent.

19029. When did you receive a summons to attend this Committee?—I received a summons last Friday, I think.

19030. Were you aware that your attendance was desired previous to that time?—No; there was a summons came directed to "Robert Pike, junior," which is exactly my brother's name. A letter came directed to him, and my brother was in county Meath, and he was expecting a letter from my Lord Clare; he had been in India; and I did not open the letter, but I put it under a tea tray, on the side-board, and it remained there until Sunday the 17th, and then Mr. Carolin called upon me with another letter, which was directed to Robert Pike, solicitor; and when I saw Robert Pike, solicitor, it struck me that the other letter might be intended for me, for my brother was not a solicitor. I then, on Sunday the 17th, about 11 o'clock in the morning, opened your Lordship's letter, and it contained a summons for Robert Pike; and I immediately wrote off to your Lordship.

19031. And therefore the first regular intimation you had of your presence being necessary here was, when?—The first regular intimation I got was on Sunday morning last.

19032. What did you do with that letter and the enclosures that were directed to your brother?—I have brought both of them over with me.

19033. Mr. O'Connell.] Do you hold any office under the corporation?—Not at present, except as council of the house.

19034. Are you a member of the corporation at large?—No, I am a member of the corporation of carpenters, and a member of the corporation of shoemakers.

19035. But not the city at large?—But not the city at large.

19036. Mr. Hamilton.] Do you find in the minute-book of your corporation any entries of admissions by marriage?—Yes.

19037. Mr. O'Connell.] Have you made any return?—I have brought the books with me. I caused the clerk of the guild to make a return to the Lord Mayor.

19038. Mr. Hamilton.] Were you present at the trial of the appeal in the cases of Carolin and Hyde?—I was.

19039. In the Court of Exchequer?—I was. Mr. Hyde is my brother-in-law.

19040. Have you read the printed report of those cases?—No, I have not.

19041. Chairman.] Did you make any report of it yourself, or take any notes of it?—I did.

19042. Have those ever been printed?—No.

James Mackie Hyndman, Esq., called in; and Examined.

James Mackie Hyndman, Esq.

19043. Chairman.] ARE you a barrister-at-law?—I am.

19044. How long have you been here?—I was summoned for the 30th May, and I arrived here on that day.

19045. And have been here ever since?—Ever since.

Mr. Daniel Marcus Collison, called in; and Examined

Mr. Daniel Marcus Collison.

19046. ARE you a professional person?—No, a retired public officer.

19047. Are you in the receipt of any salary for any particular business?—No, I am not.

19048. Mr. Hamilton.] You are very active in promoting the registration of the conservatives in the city of Dublin?—I have been, to the utmost of my power.

19049. You act in connexion with the conservative committee?—Yes.

19050. Your exertions are entirely gratuitous?—Entirely.

19051. Mr. O'Connell.] What do they call that committee?—The Central Protestant Registration Committee.

Mr. Thomas Francis Gale.

19052. Mr. O'Connell.] WHAT are you?—I am a medical student.
19053. Who summoned you here?—You did.
19054. Are you free of any guild?—I am not.
19055. Nor of the corporation at large?—No.
19056. Did you take notes, on the conservative side, of the proceedings before the registering barrister?—I did.
19057. Did you volunteer, or were you paid by any body?—I was always paid.
19058. Who paid you?—Mr. Collison, usually.
19059. Out of the funds of the Protestant Registration Society, I suppose?—I suppose so.
19060. Chairman.] Did you write short-hand?—No, I did not.
19061. Mr. O'Connell.] When did your employment cease with that society?—It has not ceased yet.
19062. Have you a regular salary from them?—I have.
19063. Is that continued to you while you are here?—No.
19064. How much a-week do you get?—I have got at the rate of 78 l. a year; about 30 s. a-week.
19065. How many weeks has that been stopped from you?—Why, since the 3d of June, the day I received the summons; I started on the following day.

LORD GRANVILLE SOMERSET, IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. William Seton, called in; and further Examined.

Mr. William Seton.

3 July 1837

19066. Mr. O'Connell.] YOU were asked upon your former examination as to the number of freemen registered within a given space?—I was.
19067. Between when?—Between February and May 1835.
19068. You were asked that?—I was.
19069. You were not apprised at that time of the exact number?—No, I had not seen the printed list.
19070. You rated it in your answer at a lower number, from general recollection, than it really turns out to be?—I did.
19071. Have you any explanation to give the Committee upon that subject?—I have; I rated it from the commencement of the February sessions until Mr. Carolin appealed (the first appeal case); he appealed on the 5th of May, which was the second day of the May sessions. The number of appearances in the February sessions was 72. The way I rated it then, on general recollection, was this: that there were not more then 20 new-made freemen registered in the time; I meant, of course, to apply myself to new-made freemen, because, as to old freemen coming in, they could not be injurious to us, for we never disputed their right to come in. It was only those new-made freemen that I meant to apply my observation to.
19072. That is, those that you considered honorary?—Yes, those that I considered honorary; on looking over the list, I found there were 158, up to the end of May.
19073. During that space?—During that space; but my observation applied to the coming up of Mr. Carolin; and for this reason, that although a great many freemen came up the day his case was argued, which was on the 30th of May, yet any new-made freemen were not actually registered until after the decision of that case. He was sworn to his affidavit; the certificates were retained, and not issued until after Mr. Carolin's case was decided.

 19074. How

3 July 1837.

19074. How many would that cut off?—According to my recollection, in the February sessions of 1835, there were 72 registered; of those 72 registered, 16 were new and 56 old freemen; of the 16 new, on examining the books, I found objections taken to 11, that is, that they were honorary, or I considered them as honorary merely. Then there came up in the May sessions 223 of them; 100 were new freemen, and 123 were old; to the 123 I took no objection, but I took the general objection of newly-admitted freemen to the 100; but of those 100, up to the 5th of May, the second day of the sessions, I do not suppose there were more than eight or nine: a great many came up afterwards; I took objections to them, but they were registered the days they came, although the certificates actually were not issued until after the 30th of May.

19075. Then that is the explanation you wish to give?—Yes, that is the explanation I wish to give in that respect.

19076. Then your object to-day is merely to show that when you spoke of that number, from 20 to 30, you did not include all the freemen who might have come up during that time, but that your attention was directed to those against whom you made objections at the period?—Precisely so.

19077. And you do not mean this day to give any opinion, any way, as to the merits of any one of those votes?—No; I have only to say, that objections were taken, and the proportions were those I have mentioned.

19078. Chairman.] What are the names of those individuals, being old freemen, to whom you referred?—I certainly have not detailed the names; but, if you wish it, I will apply myself to the papers to-day, and give the detail to-morrow.

19079. How could you state to the Committee these freemen were old freemen, as you call them, unless you had gone through their names seriatim?—Because I have marked them on my book, those that I took objections to: those that were new-made freemen I marked "newly admitted;" those that I did not take objections to, I of course took them to be old; and if your Lordship will allow me, I will explain it a little further to you. The number was 72 in the February sessions: now, on examining the clerk of the peace's list, it appears that six of those 72 were not registered in February, nor until after the 5th of May; that of course reduces the number to 66. To those 72 I put in 15 or 16; that makes up, on or previous to the 5th of May, the day Mr. Carolin's case was decided, 88. Now those are inserted in the February list as registered, whereas, in fact, they were not registered till after the 5th of May: by some mistake, perhaps of the printer, they did not put the proper date opposite them; that reduces it to 82; out of that 82 I objected to 16, as being made subsequent to the limitation in the Reform Bill. Then I examined the return made by the clerk of the peace, of freemen that passed the corporation of the city of Dublin since the 20th July 1831, and I find that of these 66 names, there are 62 which are not included in the said list, as not being objected to by me, and which I conclude must have been old freemen.

19080. Then your only reason for stating these to be old freemen is, that you have no memorandum that you objected to them in your book?—I have two reasons; the first is, that I have no memorandum, and it was my habit to object to every new-made freeman; and the other is, that those appear, by the clerk of the peace's return, to have been admitted previous to the 13th March 1831, which is the limitation in the Reform Bill.

19081. When was that return made to which you allude?—That return is signed "Archer and Long," 29th May 1837.

19082. Mr. Lefroy.] But you could not have had the benefit of that return at the time of the registry?—Certainly not; undoubtedly not; but it appeared on the certificate, when a man was admitted, at the time of the registry, admitted of such a corporation.

19083. Mr. O'Connell.] The date of admission appeared on his certificate, produced from the corporation?—Yes.

19084. Chairman.] Now can you state to me whether T. M. Archer was an old freeman or not?—I could not answer to particular names; out of 500 or 600 names it is impossible to answer without looking to the papers.

19085. Was John Arthur a new or an old freeman?—I would not take upon me to speak to particular names: there were 795 freemen, and 535 of those new; I would not take on myself to say who are new and who are old, unless by looking at the documents.

19086. Then

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

19086. Then how can you state to the Committee these were old ones, unless you have gone through every name and observed upon them?—I have gone through every name, and compared the manuscript list with the printed list of each sessions; I have gone through them and compared them.

19087. And have you done that subsequent to your former examination?—Certainly I have.

19088. What was the day on which Carolin was rejected?—He was rejected on the second day of the sessions, which was the fifth of May.

19089. How many freemen were admitted on the 4th of May?—May be, eight or ten. I cannot say; I would not be accurate to a man.

19090. You know nothing about that?—I will ascertain it for you, if you please.

19091. Mr. O'Connell.] You have documents to show it?—I have documents to show it, to a man.

19092. Chairman.] Was not this the question put to you: "18348. Do you mean to state that no considerable number of freemen were registered in the year 1835, previous to the decision of the Lord Chief Baron?" and your answer was, "That is my impression"?—It was.

19093. The next question is, "Do you state as many as 50 were not registered in that period?" Your answer is, "So I believe." Was there any qualification in your answers to those two questions?—At the time there was not; but my impression was that your Lordship calculated up to the 30th of May in that year. It appears opposite the names on the printed list what days they were registered on: from the 2d to the 30th there came up a great number, which were admitted at the time; that is, their affidavits were taken, and their certificates were withheld until the decision in Carolin's case.

19094. At that time you did not qualify your answers by the qualification you now wish to give them?—I did not at the time, certainly; I admit that.

19095. Mr. O'Connell.] But you did not make a positive assertion?—What I said was this: that, with all those circumstances I mentioned, I felt in my own mind that qualification, and to prove which requires time; but I did say, in consequence of the decision of Carolin's case, a great number of new or honorary freemen were admitted, in proportion to old freemen, whose title I did not question. I have no object in this but to state the truth exactly, for I would not allow my feelings to carry me to any other consideration; I prefer it to anything else.

19096. Is there anything else that you would wish to mention?—Yes; I stated that Mr. Piggott argued the question in May 1835; it seems, on inquiry, it was not him; on an examination of my notes, I find it was Mr. Mazara Brady that argued the question in 1835, on one side, and Mr. Jackson and Mr. Hatchell on the other. Mr. O'Connell argued in February, but this was in May.

19097. Mr. Lefroy.] That is Mr. Brady who was since confidential adviser at the Castle?—Yes.

19098. And who was at the time confidential adviser at the Castle, was he not?—He was confidential adviser at the Castle, but at what time I do not recollect.

19099. Immediately previous to Mr. Piggott?—Yes; but when that confidential communication commenced I do not recollect.

19100. But he was confidential adviser at the Castle immediately previous to Mr. Piggott, was he not?—I understood so.

19101. Sir Robert Ferguson.] Was he at the time it was argued?—In 1835? I cannot say.

19102. Mr. Lefroy.] Was he not also confidential adviser at the Castle from the time Serjeant Greene was removed?—I believe so.

19103. Do not you believe that that is above three years?—I have no recollection of when he was removed.

19104. Can you say it is two years?—I really do not know; I should think more than two years.

19105. But was not Mr. Mazara Brady the confidential adviser at the Castle, to the best of your belief, at the time he argued those questions?—I would not take upon me to say.

19106. What is the inclination of your opinion; can you form no opinion whatever upon it?—If he did succeed Mr. Serjeant Greene, and if Mr. Serjeant Greene

3 July 1837.

Greene left it in the year 1835, of course Mr. Brady, his successor, must have been confidential adviser at the time; but that is a matter that I never applied my attention to.

19107. Now I request you will apply your attention to it, and give an answer to the question, whether you do not believe that Mr. Mazara Brady was confidential adviser at the Castle at the time he argued those questions before the registering barrister?—I really, not having dates before me, can hardly form a belief upon it; but, however, be it so; perhaps it was so.

19108. I request you will form an opinion; either say, if you please, that you cannot form any opinion, or else give me the benefit of your opinion, whatever it is?—It is a matter altogether depending on dates; and I would rather say that I believe he was, lest it should be supposed I am governed by party feeling on the subject.

19109. Chairman.] Can you explain this answer, given by Mr. Martin, to this effect; the question is 14411: "Mr. Piggott and Mr. Hudson came down to argue it (that was the appeal), and then it was agreed two should be rejected," and so forth. What could be the meaning of Mr. Martin's stating that Mr. Piggott and Mr. Hudson came down to argue that appeal?—I really cannot say.

19110. Can you throw any light upon it?—I really cannot say what Mr. Martin's meaning was.

19111. Mr. O'Connell.] Do you remember Mr. Hudson came and argued one time?—Yes.

19112. Do you remember Mr. Piggott came and argued?—Yes; I have Mr. Brady's argument here; August 1836.

19113. Chairman.] But did they argue together on the occasion when the appeal was agreed upon?—I do not think either were there. Certainly Mr. Piggott was not. I have a note of Mr. Brady's argument here; and as the question has been put respecting Mr. Piggott, perhaps I might be allowed to say that, after Mr. Piggott became confidential adviser at the Castle, he declined interfering in any political argument at all. I wanted him to argue a case last February, and he then declined it.

19114. Mr. O'Connell.] Did you offer him a fee?—Yes.

Mr. Walter Bell, called in; and Examined.

Mr. Walter Bell.

19115. Chairman.] WHAT are you?—A carpet manufacturer.

19116. In the city of Dublin?—Yes.

19117. Have you any weekly salary for any particular business?—I have.

19118. What is that?—As a valuator for the central committee of the Protestant Registration Society.

19119. What is your weekly salary?—Thirty shillings.

19120. How long have you been here?—Seven weeks to-morrow.

19121. Shall you not be paid that salary?—No.

19122. Will anybody else receive it instead of you?—There is another person receiving it.

19123. Who has been acting for you?—Yes.

19124. And receiving that salary?—Yes, until I return.

19125. And you would have received that 30*s.* a week the last seven weeks, if you had been in the city of Dublin, instead of attending to the orders of the Committee here?—I would.

19126. Mr. O'Connell.] Are you a working manufacturer?—No, a master.

19127. Do you belong to any of the corporations?—I do; the smiths'.

19128. Are you free of the city at large?—Yes.

Persons admitted to Freedom of Guilds.

Cooks and Vintners

Corporation of Cooks and Vintners.

I find that though several persons have been admitted to the freedom of this Guild since 20 July 1831, only two of them have as yet come forward to be sworn in so as to make it incumbent on them to pay the Stamp duty for their freedom, and they have not as yet paid any; and as there is not any book or entry kept in this Corporation of the members registered as voters under the statute, I have not any means of making a return as to the members so registered, and who it may appear were created prior to 20 July 1831 and paid the proper amount of Stamp duty.

John Wiber, Clerk of the Guild.

Appendix, No. 10.

Persons discharged from payment of Rates in Drogheda.

A RETURN of the NAMES and RESIDENCES of the several Persons in the Town of Drogheda, who have been Discharged from Payment of Local Rates or Taxes by reason of their Tenements being of less Annual Value than 10 l., or for any other and which reasons.

— None. —

See the Observations made by the Clerk of the Peace upon the Return specifying the Annual Value of the several Houses in the Town of Drogheda, as returned by the Valuators appointed, under 5 Geo. 3, c. 22, to make the Applotment of Watch Cess, which, with the Lighting Act, are the only Local Acts in force for Assessments which are limited to the Town, and under which Assessment and Applotment there is not any Tenement, whether of the value of 10 l. or under, discharged from the Payment of Watch Cess.

The Clerk of the Peace has not any Documents within his Office to enable him to make the Return required, and he has procured the necessary information for the purpose from the Applotters and Collector of Watch Cess.

The Clerk of the Peace is not supplied with any official documents from which he could make the Return required; he has therefore applied to the parish officers and cess collectors for such information as they are respectively enabled to afford, to enable him, as far as he can, to comply with the requisites of the order.

The town of Drogheda, having a fund from the collection of tolls and customs for the paving of the streets, does not come under the provisions of the 9th Geo. 4; and the constituency for Drogheda being that of a county and town, there are several registered voters in the suburbs, which are without the walls, who are not assessed for any municipal tax. There are only two local Acts, namely, the Assessment for defraying the Expense of a Nightly Watch, under 5 Geo. 3, chap. 22, which is confined to the town within the ancient walls; and the Assessment for Lighting, under 30 Geo. 3, chap. 39, sec. 27, which is to be agreed to at vestry in the month of August, and leviable, if it should be thought fit, on the inhabitants of the parishes who reside in the town or any part of the suburbs; but the usage has hitherto confined the assessment within the walls; and the accompanying Return is made from the assessment and applotment for defraying the expense of a nightly watch.

The parish assessment for the other usual purposes is made at vestry, and extends to both town and country; and the order requiring the Return being confined to towns, this valuation could not be referred to; nor is this assessment made under any local Act.

The county cess is levied under grand jury presentment, which is subsequently applotted at an assembly held before the magistrates at sessions, under 33 Geo. 2, ch. 7, sec. 1, and is levied upon the land only, excluding the houses within the town. The hospital cess is also levied under grand jury presentment, and applotted under the before-mentioned Act, sec. 3; and its levy is confined to the houses in the town so far as the parish of St. Peter extends, excluding the land within said parish; but the proportion of the levy for St. Mary's parish is assessed upon the land only, excluding the houses within this parish.

Drogheda, 1 May 1837.

Certified by Joseph Holmes, Clerk of the Peace.

This Indenture Witnesseth That Henry Hall, of 60, Strand-street, city of Dublin, of his own free Will and Accord, and with the Consent of his Mother, doth put himself Apprentice to Edward Carolin, junior, of 13, Talbot-street, Dublin, Carpenter and Builder, to learn his Art, and with him (after the manner of an Apprentice,) to ~~dwell and~~ serve from the Fourth day of August 1828 until the full End and Term of Seven Years from thence next following, to be fully completed and ended. During which Term the said Apprentice his said Master faithfully shall serve, his secrets keep, his lawful commands everywhere gladly do. He shall do no damage to his said Master, nor see it to be done of others, but that he to his Power shall let or forthwith give warning to his said Master of the same. He shall not waste the Goods of his said Master, nor give or lend them unlawfully to any. He shall not commit Fornication, or contract Matrimony within the said Term. Hurt to his said Master he shall not do, or cause or procure to be done by others. He shall not play at Cards, Dice, Tables, or any other unlawful games, whereby his said Master may have loss with his own or others Goods during his said Term. Without Licence of his said Master, he shall neither buy nor sell. He shall not haunt or use Taverns, Alehouses, or Playhouses, nor absent himself from his said Master's Service Day or Night unlawfully, but in all Things as an honest and faithful Apprentice, he shall behave himself towards his said Master, and all his during the said Term. And the said Master his said Apprentice in the same Art which he useth, by the best way and means that he can, shall teach and instruct, or cause to be taught and instructed, with due correction, finding unto his said Apprentice four shillings every week the first year, and an increase of two shillings every week for each succeeding year, all time said Henry Hall wilfully loses not to be allowed him, ~~befitting such an Apprentice during the said Term~~, according to the Custom of the trade of Carpenter and Builder. And for the due Performance of all and every the said Covenants and Agreements either of the said Parties bindeth himself to the other by these Presents. IN WITNESS whereof, the Parties above named to these INDENTURES, have interchangeably put their Hands and Seals, the second day of August in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and twenty-eight.

☞ Indentures where no Fee is given, or where the Fee does not exceed the Sum of £9. 4s. 7½d., are free from Stamp Duty.

Signed, Sealed and Delivered, in the Presence of Philip Morris.

Mary Anne Hall.

Edw. Carolin.
Henry Hall.

[Indorsement.]

I certify that the within-named Henry Hall served me for the space of seven years faithfully, industriously and honestly, with the greatest care and attention.

Edw. Carolin, 13, Talbot-street.

Enrolled in the Corporation of Carpenters, Millers, Masons, Healers, Tinners and Plumbers of the City of Dublin.

By order,

Wm P. Pike, Master.

APPEALS:

I. Generally.

II. Against the Decision of Registering Barristers:

1. In Belfast.
2. In Dublin.

III. Against the Valuation of the Commissioners under 9th Geo. 4.

I. Generally:

The absence of an appeal, in cases of improper admissions to the register, is favourable to the creation of fictitious votes, O'Dwyer 202–205, 212–215——It would be desirable to allow appeals against the admission of votes to the register; had this been lawful, many would have been admitted whom the assistant barrister was obliged to reject, in order to have the question tried on appeal, Mayne 954–957——The appeal from the assistant barrister in registry cases is to the judges of assize, but they being desirous of securing uniformity in their decisions, generally reserve all cases which involve doubt for the consideration of the twelve judges in their chamber at Dublin, Bates 1467–1472——Are not expensive to the individual claimants, as the expense is borne by their party, Bates 2207–2218, Whiteside 2495, 2496——The power of appeal against admissions to the register would give great satisfaction, and would operate as a check on the registering barrister; the appeal should be to the judges of assize, Bates 2346–2375——An appeal is preferable to a rehearing before the barrister at another registry, Whiteside 2485–2494——The expense is borne by the parties, but the applicant loses his time, Whiteside 2495, 2496——He has no power to compel the attendance of witnesses either at the sessions or assizes, but in one case the witnesses are on the spot, and in the other at a distance, Whiteside 2497–2499——If persons are allowed to apply at successive sessions and have their cases reheard, the power of appeal is useless, Whiteside 2500.

II. Against the Decision of Registering Barristers:

1. In Belfast:

There were no appeals from the two first registrations in Belfast; on the third there were five upon the lodger point, in each of which the decree of the barrister was reversed by Mr. Justice Johnson, Darcus 694–710——On appeal from a decision of Mr. Fogarty, Mr. Justice Bush reversed the decision as to the case of John M'Connell, Darcus 710–724——Number of appeals against the decision of the registering barrister, App. p. 128.

2. In Dublin:

Those against the decision of the registering barrister in Dublin were argued before the Chief Baron; refusal of the conservatives to go before the judges of the King's Bench, Martin 14408–14465——Number of appeals lodged by the liberal and conservative servative parties against the registration of persons in Dublin, Seton 18403–18406. 18411–18420——They may be carried to the judge sitting at Nisi Prius in any of the three courts, Dobbs 18555, 18556——There were no appeals from the decisions of the revising barristers for the following places: In Fermanagh, App. i. p. 21. 136, 137—In Sligo, App. 1. p. 151—In Waterford, App. i. p. 155.

III. Against the Valuation of the Commissioners under 9th Geo. 4:

When persons resident in Clonmel complained that their houses were valued too high, they were induced not to appeal by the persuasion that their contribution would not be increased so long as the valuation was relative, Legge 4348, 4349——There were 20 or 30 appeals against the valuation of 1828, in all of which the valuation was reduced, Smith 3182–3185——There were 30 or 40 appeals against the valuation of 1828, in 15 or 20 of which the valuation was reduced, Legge 4010——Greater reduction would have been made had the Act permitted, Legge 4010–4032——But few appeals against the valuation of 1828, Butler 12153–12158. 12161–12165——Appeals were lodged against the valuations of 1828, 1831 and 1834; in some instances valuation reduced, in others they were increased, Keily 9946–9956——Several cases of appeals from the valuation of 1831 and 1834 on the ground of excessive valuation, Keily 10293.

Applotments. They are entered in the rate-books, which are not in witness's possession, Legge 4657–4672——In applotments cellars are included in estimating the value of the houses, Graham 4876–4880.——See also County Rates. Parish Cess.

Applotters. Applotters of the county charges and parish cess in Clonmel are never sworn, Butler 12133–12136——They are appointed by the vestry; they generally follow the former applotments, making such alterations only as appear necessary from altered value; some houses which have not been changed in value are applotted at the same rate as they were 15 or 20 years ago, Legge 4673–4679.

Apprentices. It is a common practice in Dublin, where no fee given with an apprentice, to antedate his indentures, Hall 15777–15779——The practice in Dublin to take apprentices some time previous to the execution of the indentures, and allow the time when they are signed, Lambert 16708–16711——Are seldom taken by tanners, Irwin 17922. 17929, 17930.——See also Admission of Freemen. Indentures of Apprenticeship. Servitude.

Archer, Charles Palmer. Two sons of his admitted to the freedom of the guild of merchants by grace special, Allen, 16269.

Archer, George. (Analysis of his Evidence.)—Town-clerk of Dublin since January 1830; other offices held by witness, 14768–14788——Number of guilds belonging to the corporation, 14791, 14792——Corporation at large can reject any person belonging to a guild who makes a claim of freedom; every freeman has to pass two ordeals before admission, 14793–14819——Form of a beseech for admission to the corporation of Dublin, 14822–14832——No Catholic admitted to the corporation; there is no law to prevent their being admitted; whether the board of aldermen would reject a person on account of religion; the common council would, 14834–14854——Further examination respecting beseeches for admission, 14857–14868——Length of time the different forms have been in use, 14869–14876——No person admitted to the corporation in right of marriage till after the Reform Bill, 14883–14888.

Greater number of freemen admitted previous to the Reform Bill were admitted by grace special, 14889–14892——Very many persons applying for admission have been rejected; grounds of rejection and examination thereon, 14903–14946——The claim to freedom by marriage was known, though not much exercised, previous to the Reform Bill, 14953–14955. 14963–14967——Date of the charter, 14973–14976——Freeman's oath; no traces of its origin in the books of the corporation, 14977–14986——Great exertions used since the Reform Bill in procuring freemen to register; by whom made, 14987–14991——Certificates of admission have been sometimes signed in blank, 14992–15000——Meetings of the assemblies held quarterly; greater number of adjournments since than previous to the Reform Bill; adjournments since the Reform Bill are principally for the purpose of admitting freemen, 15002–15025——Persons may be sworn at any time; officers that must be present at the time, 15029–15031——Very few freemen made in 1833 or 1834, 15033–15036.

The son, to entitle him to the freedom of the corporation at large, must have been born subsequent to father's freedom, 15037–15043——Whether any objections have been raised to the admission of persons in right of marriage since the passing of the Reform Bill, 15044–15051——Corporation very anxious to increase the number of freemen in their own interest, 15052–15057——Further evidence respecting the right of

ASSISTANT BARRISTERS:

1. Generally.
2. In Belfast and Dublin.
3. In Clonmel.

1. Generally:

Ought not to be connected with the registration of votes in Ireland, as they are subjected to suspicions of political partiality, Mayne 959–971——It would be desirable to separate the functions of registering barrister from those of the assistant barrister, as suspicion of political bias diminishes the respect paid to the administration of justice at quarter sessions, O'Dwyer 219–221——The present system of registration compels the assistant barrister to interfere in political matters, greatly to the prejudice of his usefulness in other respects, Bates 2336——Are becoming acquainted with the decisions of their brethren, and no change is necessary with respect to their jurisdiction except the establishment of appeals in cases of improper admissions, Whiteside 2652——They should be frequently transferred from one county to another, Whiteside 2658, 2659——Should move in rotation round the country, instead of being stationed in a particular district; evidence as to the time assistant barristers have remained in the county of Antrim, Bates 2399–2443.

2. In Belfast and Dublin:

Counsel and agents generally appear for each party at the registry: In Belfast, Bates 1052–1060; in Dublin, Martin 14307——There was no partiality shown by them in registering votes, Gilmore 470–473——All cases were heard with patience and deliberation: In Belfast, Gilmore 493–499; in Dublin, Seton 18310.

3. In Clonmel:

Each of the three assistant-barristers who have successively registered in Clonmel have admitted persons to register whose houses were not worth 10*l.*, Higgins 2965–2979, Legge 4381–4383——The counsel for Mr. Bagwell did not produce so many witnesses before them as witness desired; did not expect that further evidence would have changed the decisions of the barrister; thought it necessary it should be produced in case of petition, Smith 3770–3801——It was useless to give evidence, as the barrister adopted the oath of the claimant as a criterion of value, Smith 3802–3812——After the first day of the registry witnesses were not produced by Mr. Bagwell's party, because the registering barrister did not attach sufficient weight to their testimony, Labarte 5483–5498.

Received the evidence that was offered, but considered that claimants who stated their houses to be worth 10*l.* to them, were better judges of the value than strangers, Labarte 5499–5533——Return of the deputy-assistant barristers appointed under the authority of 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 88, s. 66; the names and dates of the appointment of all assistant-barristers appointed since the 1st January 1833, and the causes of the vacancies which may have been thus supplied; the names and dates of the removals of all the assistant-barristers who may have been removed from one county to another since the 1st January 1833; also specifying the places to which they may have been removed, App. i. p. 126.

See Appeals, 1. Dobbs, Mr. Fogarty, Mr.

Athlone Borough. Return of the several persons registered in, who have subscribed their affidavits for registry as marksmen, App. i. p. 46——Name, residence and description of each person admitted as a freeman of the corporation of Athlone since March 1831, App. i. p. 57–59——Total number of voters registered for this borough since the passing of the Irish Reform Bill, App. iii. p. 234——Return of the names and residences, specifying the streets and numbers of the houses of all individuals in this town who have made application or received excise licenses for the sale of spirits in premises under the annual value of 10*l.*, since the 1st October 1832, App. iii. p. 280, 281.

Atkinson, John Mathers. Was admitted a freeman of the Tanner's Guild in right of marriage; cause of his admission being entered as by grace especial instead of marriage, Irwin 17924–17926. 17935–17937. 18058. 18060–18068.

Atkyns, Thomas, of Ducket-street, Clonmel. He had a house worth 10*l.* a year, but was rejected for nonpayment of rent, Smith 3567–3572, Graham 4947–4966——He voted at the last election as if he occupied the whole house; he is only a lodger, Smith 3571, 3572.

Attornies. Have been admitted both by birth and service to the freedom of the guild of merchants, Archer 15286, Allen 16196. 16202; and by grace especial, Allen 16206——Instances of attornies sitting in the common council of the corporation of Dublin as representatives of the guilds to which they belong, notwithstanding provision to the contrary, Archer 15418–15423.

See also Common Council. Lucas's Act.

Auctioneers. May know the value of furniture, &c., but in Clonmel they are not generally employed to sell houses, Lonergan 12683.

Bailie, James. Passed the guild of merchants by marriage; the city at large by grace especial in 1828, Archer 18931.

Bakers, Guild of, or Guild of St. Clement and St. Anne, Dublin. No persons admitted to the freedom of this guild by grace especial since the Reform Bill, Card 15948, 15949——Number of persons composing the guild, Card 15956——Mode of proceeding to obtain admission; duties of the master of the guild, Card 15958–15970——But few persons who are actual bakers that belong to the guild; the representatives of the guild in the common council are bakers, Card 15995. 16005–16009——Not necessary that a person should carry on the business of a baker to be admitted a member of the guild, Card 15998–16004——Return of the names of all persons admitted to the freedom of the guild of bakers; right in which admitted; also the amount paid for stamp duty by each freeman for his freedom, App. iii. p. 161.

See also Admission of Freemen, III. 1, 2. Freemen, III. 2. Grace Especial Freemen. Minors.

Ball, James. Was admitted to the freedom of the guild of barbers and surgeons on 16th July 1821, in right of birth, Clinton 17543.

Ballot. Lucas's Act requires the ballot to be taken in case of disputes on the nomination of sheriffs; no place in which the right to ballot is more extensive than in the corporation of Dublin, Allen 16911–16917——Is very rarely called for; there is a ballot taken whenever it is required, in the guild of smiths, Lambert 16588, 16589, 16631–16638——It is always conceded, whenever properly demanded, in the guild of barbers and surgeons, Clinton 17316–17325——In the guild of tanners and weavers, Irwin 17879–17881——A ballot is not generally the course adopted by the guild of merchants in cases of dispute as to admission of freemen; every question may have a ballot demanded on it, Allen 16870–16884——Right possessed by the council of the house of the guild of merchants of balloting on disputed admissions, Allen 16901–16910——Witness never knew an instance of a ballot being taken on a question relative to the admission of freemen to the corporation of Dublin, Archer 14814——No ballot allowed on the refusal of the guild to admit members in the guild of cooks and vintners, Wiber 18212——Is only allowed in the election of officers in the guild of cooks and vintners, Wiber 18212–18214——The corporation of tailors formerly admitted those who were proposed for grace especial admission by ballot, De Zouche 17227——Is not allowed in the guild, except in cases of election for common council, De Zouche 17225.——See also Vote by Ballot.

Bambruck, George. Right in which he was admitted a freeman of the tanners' corporation, Irwin 17843, 17844.

Bandonbridge. The eldest sons of freemen only are admitted to the freedom of Bandonbridge, Archer 15387.

Bandonbridge Borough. Bardin, Jacob. Hopkins-lane, Clonmel; he registered out of one room; he paid only 10*d.* a week, and admitted that he was only a lodger, Smith 3892–3896——The accuracy of Mr. Smith's evidence disputed relative to the apartment out of which he registered, Glissan 7662–7674——It is not worth 10*l.*, Butler 11305.

Barlow, John Wilson. Claimed to be registered as a freeman by birth; period of obtaining his certificate of admission; objections made to his registration, Martin 14466–14471.

Barrett, Timothy. New-street, Clonmel; house occupied by him is let at 9*l.*; witness could have obtained 10*l.* for it, Butler, 12241–12247——It is not included in the valuation made by the Commissioners in 1834, Butler, 12257–12263. 12305, 12306, Keily 12315–12321.

Barristers. See Assistant Barristers. Council. Registering Barristers.

Barry, John. Admitted to the freedom of the guild of merchants for his polite attention in auditor-general's office, Allen 16386.

Barry, Patrick. Claimed to register; was rejected on the ground of insufficiency of value, after investigation by the registering barrister, Glissan 7144–7147.

Baseggio, John. Was admitted to the corporation of barbers and surgeons in 1836; he professed the Protestant religion; he is either an Italian or Swiss, Clinton 17440–17443.

Bates, Mr. John. (Analysis of his Evidence.)—A solicitor at Belfast, and agent for the conservative party; has attended every registry except that of April 1835, 979–987——number of claimants 1832–1835 registered and rejected, and on what grounds, 988–1007——Mr. O'Dwyer's decision against one vote, on the house and shop question, when assessor, would have affected many others, principally the liberal party, 1008–1018——The majority would have been in favour of Dunbar, whether these votes had been admitted or not; the resignation of Mr. R. J. Tennent was not really occasioned by Mr. O'Dwyer's decision, which was only the pretext for abandoning the contest, 1019–1051——Counsel and agents generally appear for each party at every registry, 1052–1060——Number of claimants registered and rejected 1836–1837, 1061–1062——Nature of decisions of Mr. O'Dwyer and Mr. Mayne on the length of occupation required by the Act, 1063–1066.

(Second Examination.)—Legal possession for six months was considered as occupation by Mr. Fogarty, provided the party had occupied any portion of that time previous to the registry; illustrated by report of cases from the Belfast Commercial Chronicle, 1071–1105——Mr. Fogarty refused to reject a claim of this nature for the purpose of appeal; Mr. Hannay, a Conservative, consented to have his claim rejected in order to have the question tried by the Judges, 1107–1120——A similar point has been reserved in Louth, for the opinion of the Lord Chief Justice, 1121–1136——Witness conceives that Mr. Fogarty should have entered the grounds of rejection in obedience to Sect. 21 and 25 of the Reform Act, 1137–1146——Examination as to the case of John Campbell, 1147–1149.

The admission of persons to the register who have not had actual occupation for six months, is favourable to the creation of fictitious votes, 1150–1160——Difference between tenancy and legal possession explained, 1161–1178——The occupation of a dwelling-house by the servants eating and sleeping in it for six months, is an occupation by their master, as witness conceives, even if he never entered his house during that time, 1179–1197——But he would not admit a person to register, who, although he had possession for six months, had not occupied the whole time by himself or his domestic servants, 1198–1212——A case of occupation is now submitted to the 12 judges from Dundalk; dalk; but witness does not know how much of the general question is embraced by it, 1213–1223——Examination as to the newspaper report of the cases of Robert Magee and Mr. Davison, 1224–1248.

Cases of Mr. Davison and Mr. Munce, whom Mr. Fogarty was willing to register, but who refused to take the oath required, the former as to length of actual occupation, the latter with respect to the value of his house, 1249–1328. 1886–1896——It is easier to establish legal possession by a false oath than actual occupation, 1329–1371——The affidavit is tendered to claimants to register by their own party to complete the proceedings, when the barrister has been satisfied as to their claims in other respects, 1372–1415——Mr. M'Kean's claim was rejected by Mr. O'Dwyer in 1832, and admitted by Mr. Fogarty in 1836, as permissive occupant of a house; a similar case has been decided on appeal from Dundalk, by the 12 judges, since which Mr. Fogarty has refused to register such claimants, 1416–1466——Baron Pennefather on appeal admitted non-resident freemen to register at Cork in 1832; his decision was overruled by the twelve judges, 1467–1518——Witness's construction of the oath in Schedule (C.) No. 9, of the Reform Act, 1519–1533——The franchise should be better defined, but not extended, 1534–1556.

[Third Examination.]—The claim of William Phillips, who let lodgings, was admitted on appeal; Mr. Fogarty considered the decision did not make it necessary to reject claimants, the reserved portions of whose houses were of less value than 10*l.* a year, 1557–1562——This question is still undecided, and a difference of opinion exists amongst the judges, 1563–1603——Evidence respecting the cases of Campbell and Phillips, and opinions concerning the lodger point, 1604–1700——Effects of lowering the franchise upon the conservative interest of Belfast, which Mr. Fogarty's decisions have tended to produce, 1701–1714——Discussion of cases decided by Mr. Fogarty with reference to the effect of alterations in destroying the identity of houses within the period of six months, 1715–1825, 1897–1907——Numbers registered in Belfast, conservatives and liberals, 1826–1844——Witness is secretary and agent to the Belfast Society, but declines giving their names, 1845–1879.

[Fourth Examination.]—The decision of the Lord Chief Baron in Mr. Hannay's case, requiring actual occupation, is in opposition to Mr. Fogarty's construction of the Act, 1908–1942——The means taken by Mr. O'Dwyer, Mr. Carry and Mr. Mayne for ascertaining value differed from the practice of Mr. Fogarty as evinced by the cases, Arthur Lavery, William Bloomfield, Michael Lennard and Joseph Hurtley, 1943–2031——Mr. Fogarty added the police tax to the rent in the case of Arthur Hamill; evidence and opinions concerning the propriety of such a practice, 2032–2160——Latterly he has required evidence of value, where the rent and taxes are very low; cases of Francis Campbell and Owen M'Cann, 2168–2184. 2191–2206.

In the case of Michael Kavanagh he admitted the applicant without corroborating evidence of value, 2185–2190——Also in the case of Patrick M'Guire, 2222–2230——Cases in which applicants were rejected by former barristers, and admitted by Mr. Fogarty; all which decisions tend to lower the franchise in Belfast, 2236–2270, 2298–2301.

Witness believes Mr. Fogarty to have applied his principles impartially to both parties, but was accused of a leaning towards the liberals; the cases of Lavery and Hutton; Stevenson and M'Cann, 2271–2297——Evidence respecting appeals from Mr. Fogarty's decisions, 2302–2315——concerning Belfast elections, 1832 and 1835, 2326–2335——The registration should be annual, 2336–2338——Registering barristers should be appointed by the judges, and appeals be allowed in cases of improper admissions to the register, 2339–2396——The removals of assistant barristers from one county to another have been more frequent since the Reform Act, 2397–2453.

Bedford, Duke of. Policy pursued by him when Lord Lieutenant of Ireland was not inimical to the people at large, Hackett 13726.

Bedfordshire Case. A Committee of the House of Commons decided that a freeholder could not make his freehold amount to 40*s.* a year by the taxes paid, Whiteside 2597.

Beds. See Cellars.

Beeby, Thomas, Marefield. Resided without the limits of the borough when admitted to the freedom of Clonmel, Labarte 6972–6978.

Belfast. The decisions of Mr. O'Dwyer, Mr. Curry and Mr. Mayne established a bonâ fide 10*l.* constituency in Belfast, Whiteside 2477, 2478——Number of voters registered in 1832; number of claimants who served notices, and number rejected, and on what grounds, O'Dwyer 6–13——1832–1835, Bates 988–1007——1836, Bates 1061, 1062——Number of houses in Belfast; the demand occasioned by the manufactures has raised their value, and rendered it unnecessary for the proprietors to let them at less than their real value; number of vacant houses during the last two years, Gilmore 350–365——The value of houses has increased, Gilmore 522–526——Is constantly fluctuating, Gilmore 669–679——Number of Conservatives and Liberals registered and rejected 1833–1836, Bates 1826–1841——Lists of electors registered since 6th January 1836 who were formerly

FREEMEN:

I. Generally.

II. Privileges enjoyed by Freemen of the Corporation of Dublin.

III. Increase or decrease in the Number admitted since the Reform Bill.

1. In Clonmel.
2. In Dublin.

IV. Papers laid before the Committee.

I. Generally:

Many freemen in Dublin and elsewhere are room-keepers, Archer 15387——Very few freemen sworn in court, Lambert 16649——There is no printed list of the freemen of the corporation previous to that of 1774; a manuscript list only, which remains with the assessor at elections in case of objections being made, Archer 15432–15436——Instance of a person being disfranchised by a minor guild, Archer 16127–16130——They have been occasionally disfranchised by the corporation at large, Archer 16126——There are no means by which the validity of the claim of a freeman can be investigated but by a Committee of the House of Commons, Labarte 7132-7134——It was generally understood in Clonmel that every Protestant settler had a right to claim his freedom under an Act of Charles II., Hackett 13482.

II. Privileges enjoyed by Freemen of the Corporation of Dublin:

Those belonging to the corporation at large have no particular advantages, Archer 15279–15282. 15293–15295——Further evidence in explanation of the above, Archer 16017, 16018——Privileges from which persons not members of the corporation at large were excluded previous to the Reform Act, Archer 15326–15334. 15336–15339——Persons free of a minor guild have no right to vote for members of the common council or Members of Parliament, unless they have passed the corporation at large, Archer 15405–15416, Allen 16241–16244, Clinton 17405, 17406, Wiber 18191——Difference in the privileges enjoyed by a grace-especial freeman and an honorary freeman, Clinton 17500–17502.

III. Increase or decrease in the Number admitted since the Reform Bill:

1. In Clonmel:

Before the Reform Act the corporation of Clonmel admitted as many freemen as they pleased without any qualification, Higgins 2734–2739, Labarte 7135–7137——About forty were admitted at the same time with witness in 1833, Smith 3582–3589——No freemen created for five years preceding the Reform Act; since that time eighty-three have been admitted by birth, servitude, marriage or grace special, Smith 3590–3601——Out of eighty-three admitted to the freedom of Clonmel, only one was a Roman-catholic, Smith 3602–3605——There were no freemen admitted previous to the last election who were not in the interest of Mr. Bagwell, Smith 3677–3690——Discrepancies in certain returns relative to the freemen in Clonmel, Smith 3716–3720——Names of certain persons admitted as freemen of Clonmel; right in which they claim to be admitted, Walshe 10558–10595——There are about 150 freemen in Clonmel, Labarte 5474–5478——Number of registered freemen, Walshe 9734——Names of non-resident freemen in Clonmel, Labarte 6135–6158——Number admitted since the Reform Bill, Hackett 13443–13451——Only two Roman-catholics, Hackett 13447, 13448.

raised were for the general purposes of conservatism, 11738–11749——Registration Society established by the liberals in Tipperary, 11755–11772——Objects in view from the establishment of the "justice rent;" manner it is collected; class of persons subscribing, 11780–11801.

Pacificators have been sent to Tipperary; nature of their duties; manner in which they perform them, 11802–11827——Secret committees sitting in Dublin to which none but members have been admitted, from which committees private instructions are issued to the pacificators, 11828–11875——Further evidence respecting the duties of the pacificators; violent speeches attributed to them, 11876–11880. 11898–11933——Lower class of voters are very indisposed to register, 11881–11888——Register at Tipperary is incumbered by a great number of bad votes; number will be increased by the proceedings of the pacificators, 11889–11892——Evidence respecting the character of Archdeacon Laffan, 11930–11973. 11979–11993——Vast deal of difference between the priests and the coadjutor priests, 11974–11978——Present system of pacification has a tendency to increase the crime of perjury, 11981–11983——Tenantry of Tipperary are generally willing to oblige their landlords; those above 10*l.* a year would rather oblige their landlords than their priests if they dared do it, 11994–12040——Further evidence respecting the existence of secret committees, 12041–12056.

Glengall, Earl of. On one or two occasions he had employed counsel and solicitor to oppose the registry of the liberal party in Clonmel; he attends the registry, and sits on the bench, Walshe 9838–9856——Further examination thereon, Walshe 11047–11087——Evidence respecting his attendance at the registry courts for the county of Tipperary, Earl Glengall 11616–11618, Hackett 13535–13542. 13575–13589.

See also Analysis of his Evidence, supra.

Glissan, Mr. Michael. (Analysis of his Evidence.)—Deputy clerk of the peace for the county of Tipperary; produces the book of registry for Clonmel up to 31 December 1836, 5406–5422——The list of voters published by the clerk of the peace in January is not correct, because many persons have died or changed their residence since the registry, 5423–5467.——(Witness was directed to mark the names of such persons.)

[Second Examination.]—The entire number of persons on the register of Clonmel is 866, of whom 299 have died or removed from their residences, leaving 567 now entitled to vote, of whom 16 are registered both as freemen and householders, 6159–6182.

[Third Examination.]—Many claimants were rejected by Mr. Guthrie for insufficiency of value; case of Patrick Barry, the occupant of a cellar, 7138–7147——Mr. Guthrie's principle of ascertaining value, 7148–7152. 7158–7163——Witness did not hear Mr. Guthrie state that the Reform Act was intended to create universal suffrage, 7153–7157——The tenement described out of which three persons, Prendergast, Burke and Sullivan, registered, 7164–7178. 7524–7527——The cases of Mr. Burrows Close, Rev. Sackville Burke, T. Shaughnessy, Messrs. Toole and Roche, and Joshua Moore, 7179–7217.

[Fourth Examination.]—Rent and valuation of houses occupied by Joshua Moore, Thomas Everard, 7229–7257——Evidence relative to the houses of William Hurley, John Darney, Joseph Cochrane and John Brown, 7258–7287——Of widow Riley, J. Maxey and —— Mokler, 7288–7311——Witness is in the spirit and grocery trade; in politics is a radical, 7316–7338——Witness never communicated the results of the registry to Mr. Hackett or Mr. Cahill, 7339–7355——Examination with reference to the alleged expressions of Mr. Guthrie on the object of the Irish Reform Act, 7356–7402.

[Fifth Examination.]—Valuation of the houses of John Carden and Michael Power, 7403–7410. 7419–7429——Witness's impression as to the power of the assistant barrister to revise the register, 7430–7434——Jeremy Crenin was rejected for want of value by Mr. Guthrie, on the evidence of Mr. Douglas, the agent of Mr. Bagwell, 7435–7461——The evidence of Mr. Higgins contradicted as to Mr. J. Hennesy, 7462–7465——As to the admission of lodgers to the register by Mr. Guthrie; the case of John Flanagan, 7466–7495——It is witness's general impression that it is customary for tenants of small houses in Clonmel to pay weekly a yearly rent, 7496–7523——The house of Lawrence Cashin is valued at 12*l.*, 7555–7561——Many conservatives attended the registry, 7562–7565——The Quakers were in the conservative interest; Mr. David Malcomson turned off a man in his employment because he voted for Mr. Ronayne; he has a great number of men in his employment, 7566–7579——About 40 Roman-catholics voted for Mr. Bagwell; some of them were bribed; the Quakers of Clonmel are a highly respectable class, 7580–7624——Mr. Higgins's evidence relative to Joshua Moore's house contradicted, 7625–7636——Cellars belonging to gentlemen's houses are not let; in Main-street there are about 80 let under shops, 7637–7649.

It is not the custom in Clonmel to let houses at a rack rent; witness's father prefers letting his houses at less than their value to insure solvent and respectable tenants, 7650–7661——The accuracy of Mr. W. Smith's evidence disputed, relative to the apartment out of which Jacob Bardin registered, 7662–7674——Respecting Thomas Mackie, stated to have kept a house of ill-fame, 7675–7697——Mr. Guthrie frequently expressed his readiness readiness to hear evidence in opposition to the oath of claimants to register; but he preferred the oath of the claimants to the unsworn statements of their opponents, 7698–7712.

Mr. Guthrie, in estimating value, took into account not only the rent paid, but the situation of the house and the business of the claimant; Mr. Bagwell's friends objected to this practice, 7713–7720——Many persons were examined in opposition to claims, but they afterwards refused to give evidence because Mr. Guthrie decided that the Act did not require the payment of 10*l.* rent, 7722–7727——No witnesses have been examined at the two last registry sessions, for Mr. Howley cross-examines the claimants very strictly, 7728–7741——Mr. Legge's evidence as to the great value of houses in Johnson-street contradicted, 7742–7754——Walter and William Keating registered, the one out of a house, the other out of a store, 7755–7770——The Rev. Sackville Burke and Mr. James Burke both voted for Mr. Bagwell, 7771–7776——It is usual for shopkeepers to leave the hall door for the exclusive use of the lodgers, and to use their shop door at all times; case of Burke and Prendergast, 7777–7786——Richard Moore is registered as a freeman, and is not resident within the limits of the borough, 7787–7799——The Messrs. Malcomson registered as freemen; reside within the limits of the old corporation, but not in the new boundaries of the commissioners, 7800–7819.

Godfrey, Andrew. Of Charlemont-street, Belfast; claimed to register out of a house for which he paid 10*l.* a year to his landlord, who paid the taxes, and was admitted, Bates 2086, 2087.

Going, Joseph. Was admitted to the freedom of Clonmel in right of birth; he was not the eldest son, Labarte 6128–6131, Hackett 13430–13432——He was not allowed to register as a freeman, though he produced his cocket of admission to the freedom, Labarte 6128–6134, Hackett 13462–13464.

Going, Messrs. On claiming to be admitted as freemen, produced no indentures of apprenticeship, Labarte 6474–6542.

Going, Stephen. Was refused the freedom of Clonmel, Smith 3655, 3656.

Gonne, George. Admitted to the freedom of the city of Dublin at large in 1798 in right of service, Martin 15935, 15938.

Goodwill, Value of, in Clonmel. The goodwill of the most flourishing business in Clonmel is not worth more than 5*l.*; the custom will not attach to the establishment, as in large towns, but to persons, Graham 5343–5388——Opinion of Mr. Graham is very erroneous, Walshe 10395–10479——The goodwill of a business transacted in a cellar is of proportionately less value, and should not be taken into the valuation, Graham 5389–5405——Sum paid by witness for the goodwill of his present business; sum paid by his predecessor, Walshe 10395–10479——Evidence respecting the goodwill that would be obtained for businesses in other parts of the town, Walshe 10484–10490.

Gordon, John. Of Little Patrick-street, Belfast; valued at 6*l.* in the police books, Gilmore 301.

Gordon, Mr. Was examined on the trial against Mr. Hackett for libel on Mr. Strangman; he admitted having subscribed money towards the prosecution, Walshe 10939–10943.

Gordon, Stephen. Registered as a freeman of Clonmel in right of servitude, Labarte 6678–6682.

Gorman, William. Bagwell-street, Clonmel; registered in 1832; valued at 5*l.*, Higgins 2833, 2834, Smith 3471, 3472, Graham 4985–5003, Walshe 9652——His premises were thatched, Higgins 3048——They were not thatched, Walshe 9663, 9664——Registered out of a house and forge; premises have since been purchased for the Bank of Ireland; rent paid by him, and condition of the property, Graham 5001–5003, 5010–5029, Walshe 9633–9660.

Grace-especial Freemen, Dublin. Freemen being passed by grace especial in one of the junior corporations, it founded a claim of right to admission in the corporation above, Archer 15078–15082——The corporation of the city of Dublin may appoint any person they please as freeman by grace especial, Archer 16033–16043, 16084–16118——Admission by grace especial was never considered as a right, but as a matter of favour: In the corporation of barbers and surgeons, Clinton 17495, 17496—In the smiths, Lambert 16641, 16642——No admission by grace especial since the Reform Bill: In the corporation of bakers, Card 15949–15951—In the barbers and surgeons, Clinton 17311, 17490–17494—In the tanners and weavers, Irwin 17873, 17874——Great many persons admitted to the guild of smiths by grace especial previous to the Reform Bill, Lambert 16566, 16567——Proposition made for the admission of a batch of freemen by grace especial was negatived by the aldermen of the city of Dublin, Archer 16132–16144, Allen 16176——Previous to the Reform Bill those persons who passed the minor guilds in right of marriage passed the corporation at large by grace especial, Archer 18874——Members admitted to the guild valuation reduced; appeals were for excessive valuation, 9946–9956——Case of Mr. Pedder; excessive valuation; refusal to furnish him with copy of valuation, and proceedings of the commissioners; reason for refusal, 9957–10110——Has filled up notices for claimants to register, 10114–10116——No doubt that Mr. Pedder required a copy of the valuation, &c., for the purpose of forwarding the views of the conservative; he acted as assessor at the last election, and voted for Mr. Bagwell, 10120–10134——No difficulty in rate-payers obtaining information regarding the valuation-books, or the minutes, 10141, 10142.

[Sixth Examination.]—Instances where valuation has been increased in consequence of improvements made since 1828, 10283–10289——Instances in which the valuation made in 1828 has been reduced, on the ground that when made it was too high, 10292–10301.

[Seventh Examination.]—Applied to be registered, but rejected by Mr. Guthrie; grounds on which witness claimed, 10596–10601——Appeal of Skully against the valuation of 1831, 10603–10637——Reasons assigned by Slattery for appealing against the commissioners' valuation, 10638–10646——Case of Mr. Howas, 10647–10649——In making the valuation, the commissioners did not take the value as a rent and the value placed on their books as synonymous; great many instances in which houses valued under their real value, 10650–10666——If new valuation made, all houses will be higher rated, 10669–10679——No registry of persons holding houses of 5*l.* value has been made since 1834; commissioners are authorized to issue tickets to persons entitled to vote; such tickets have been issued, 10683–10701——Date of last registry to which the commissioners have given their sanction, 10702–10715.

[Eighth Examination.]—Evidence respecting the alterations that have been made in the valuation of certain houses in the commissioners' books, 11088–11161——Six Protestants and three Quakers elected as commissioners in 1831; there are no Protestants members of the Board at present, 11196–11204——Amount of rates paid by Mr. Malcomson, and amount levied on the borough, 11208, 11209.

[Ninth Examination.]—House occupied by Barrett is not included in the valuation of 1834, 12315–12321.

[Tenth Examination.]—Explanation of witness's evidence relative to the refusal to furnish Mr. Pedder with a copy of the commissioners' valuation-book and minutes, 14281–14283.

Keily, Mr. P. J. Applied to be registered, but rejected by Mr. Guthrie; grounds on which witness claimed to register, Keily 10596–10601.

Keily, Richard. Was admitted to the freedom of Clonmel, although not a resident, Labarte 6138.

Keily, Thomas. Inhabited a small thatched cabin at a rent of 2*l.* 15*s* 5*d.*, and was registered, Higgins 2761–2769. 3048——No person would give more than 3*l.* a year for it, Smith 3206–3222.

Keily Thomas. Of Gravel-walk, Clonmel; premises occupied by him not worth 10*l.* a year, Walshe 8915*–8917, Butler 11285–11287. 12547——He was brought over to give evidence before the Committee of last session, Walshe 8925, 8926——Received 20*l.* for his vote at the Clonmel election in 1833, Walshe 9180——Voted for Mr. Bagwell, and received 10*l.*, Walshe 8925.

Keily, William, Clonmel. Was admitted to the register; the barrister said the claimant was the best judge of the value of his own house, Smith 3186–3205.

L.

Labarte, Mr. Edward. (Analysis of his Evidence.)—A solicitor in Clonmel; has been town-clerk since 1819, and assisted his father in that office before, 5468–5473——There are about 150 freemen in Clonmel, 5474–5478——Witness was concerned in the registry in 1832, and in the election petition in 1833, 5479–5482——After the first day of the registry, witnesses were not produced by Mr. Bagwell's party, because the registering barrister did not attach sufficient weight to their testimony, 5483–5498——He received the evidence that was offered, but considered that claimants who stated their houses to be worth 10*l.* to them, were better judges of value than strangers; they would rather pay more than the exact value than be subject to frequent removals, 5499–5533——The petition against the return of Mr. Ronayne was unsuccessful; it was abandoned after a consultation, 5534–5539.

Many persons have been admitted to the register who occupy houses of less annual value than 10*l.*; if there were an annual revision of the list, as in England, the difficulty experienced before the Committee would not have arisen, 5540–5546——The objections taken at the registry on the part of Mr. Bagwell related to under-value, and the voting of more than one person out of the same house, 5547–5560——Mr. Hobson and Mr. Howley gave satisfaction as registering barristers; the former registered the occupier of a cellar in Main-street, 5561–5568——The value of a cellar under Mr. Hackett's house, 5569, 5570.

The general value of cellars in Clonmel is less than 10*l.*, 5571–5574——Witness does not consider rent and value as synonymous; he considers a man entitled to vote who pays 7*l.* rent, 5572–5590——A landlord will lower the rent for a solvent tenant; a compromise is generally effected between them as to rent, the tenant retaining an interest beyond the rent, 5591–5618——Examination relative to a house of witness's, which he lets for 70*l.* a year to a grocer, and whether it is worth more than that sum in consequence of the business, 5619–5677.

[Second Examination.]—By the corporation books no entry appears of any freeman having been admitted in Clonmel by right of marriage previous to the Reform Act; the causes causes of admission are not specified, 5678-6030——The latest specification is in 1748, 6031-6050——Mr. Bagwell was admitted by right of birth in 1832; his residence is within two miles of the borough, 6051-6109——Samuel Ryall was admitted by right of servitude; Richard Moore as the eldest son of a freeman, 6110-6127——Joseph Going was not registered as being the second son of a freeman, 6128-6134——Names of non-resident freemen in Clonmel, 6135-6158.

[Third Examination.]—By the charter of James I. the corporation of Clonmel was to be composed of the inhabitants, 6183-6219——Examination respecting Mr. Chaytor's evidence before the Corporation Commissioners on the subject of administering oaths to freemen, 6220-6268——On the case of James Thomson, whose claim to the freedom was rejected on the ground of non-residence, 6268, 6269——On apprenticeship to freemen, 6269-6277——The charter does not recognise the right of the son of an honorary freeman; Mr. William Bridges was admitted by that right; it does not appear whether there were any honorary freemen before the Reform Act, 6278-6318——Names of persons refused their freedom, 6319-6332——John Farrell is the only Roman-catholic who has been admitted; since 1748 all who have been admitted freemen have been relatives or dependents of Mr. Bagwell, 6333-6354——Mr. David Malcomson was rejected when claiming by right of marriage, but admitted in 1801 by especial favour, 6355-6363.

While witness's father was town-clerk, the stamp duty was paid on the admission of freemen; from 1819 to 1832 none was paid, 6364-6452. 6779-6782——Freemen were sworn at the time of their admission, 6453-6473——Persons have been admitted by right of servitude who had never been indentured; cases of Messrs. Malcomson, Messrs. Going, Hughes and Jones, 6474-6550—— Richard Labarte was indentured, 6551-6563——Cases of Messrs. E. Power, A. Harrison, S. Riall, R. Strangman, J. Shaw, R. Sparrow, J. Chaytor, W. Davis, W. Edmondson, Joshua Grabb, S. Gordon, F. G. Howell, C. Achison and J. Burke, 6564-6714. 6774-6778——Of Rev. R. Bell, R. Howell, W. Quinn and T. Jackson, 6715-6747——Witness believes that the son of an honorary freeman has a right to vote, 6748-6757——Cases of Hill Harvey and S. C. Moore, 6758-6773.

[Fourth Examination.]—Right in which the Messrs. Riall were admitted freemen, 6784-6815——Questions respecting the residence of certain freemen, viz., Abraham Grabb, Thomas Taylor and Rev. L. Carey, 6816-6849——Twenty-six freemen who were rejected at the registry were admitted on appeal by Mr. Baron Foster, because they had exercised the rights of freemen since 1812, 6850-6882——The residences of Messrs. Barclay, Clibborn, W. Quin, R. Carey, J. Smith, S. Moore, J. Farrell, J. Bagwell, W. Harvey and J. Chaytor, whether within the limits of the borough, 6883-6981——Of Messrs. Moore Labarte, W. Perry and T. Ryan, 6982-6995——Mr. R. Moore was admitted by special favour, 7019-7036——Evidence respecting the registration of freemen by Mr. Guthrie, Mr. Hobson and Mr. Howley, 6996-7090.

The certificate of admission to the corporation was considered sufficient evidence for the admission of freemen to the register, 7091-7101. 7128-7131——Examination relative to certain parts of the Report of the Corporation Commissioners, 7102-7127——There are no means by which the validity of the claims of a freeman can be investigated but by a Committee of the House of Commons, 7132-7134——Before the Reform Act the corporation admitted as many freemen as they pleased, without any qualification, 7135-7137.

Labarte, Moore. He has removed to Dublin; he had not removed before he registered as a freeman of Clonmel, Labarte 6984, 6985.

Lambert, William Jordan. (Analysis of his Evidence.)—Clerk to the guild of smiths, Dublin, 16507-16509——Produces transaction books and book of enrolment of the corporation, 16510-16521——Crafts belonging more especially to the guild, 16529, 16530——Mode of admitting persons to the freedom of the guild, 16535——Opinion that the guild would not admit a person in right of marriage to the daughter of a freeman coming in by grace especial, 16541-16563.

[Second Examination.]—Great number admitted by grace especial previous to the Reform Bill, 16566, 16567——Form of certificate of admission, 16586, 16587——Not necessary that the election should be unanimous, 16588——Ballot on the admission of freemen taken whenever it is required, 16589-16594. 16631-16637——Further evidence respecting the mode of admitting freemen, 16599-16606. 16611-16630——Admission by grace especial never considered as a right, but merely as a matter of favour, 16639-16642——Fees charged on admission, 16643-16647——Witness is accountable to the stamp-office for every freeman sworn; the guild of smiths do not swear a freeman till he has passed the city at large, 16648-16653——No freeman of the guild can exercise any of the rights belonging to it, before he belongs to the general corporation, 16654-16657——Examination respecting the oath taken by freemen as to enrolment of their apprentices, &c.; date of the institution of the guild of smiths; freeman's oath not of so old a date as the charter, 16663-16677. 16725.

No instance in which parties have been admitted to the freedom who have not been bound by indenture; it is usual to bring the indentures to the council of the house, 16678-16693——Persons have been admitted whose indentures have not been enrolled, 16699-16727. 16733-16739——Nature of the inquiry in the case of service made by the council of the house, 16702-16707——Practice in Dublin to take apprentices some time previous to the execution of the indentures, and allow the time, 16708-16711——Oath relative to enrolment of apprentices very indefinite, 16740-16778.

Further examination respecting the nature and meaning of the freeman's oath; manner in which it is observed, 16779-16823——Crafts belonging to the guild of smiths, 16829-16831——Examination respecting mandamus applied for in the cases of Messrs. Adcocks and Henderson, 16835-16845——Oath excluding Roman-catholics from apprenticeship continues to be administered; difference of opinion in the guild respecting its continuance, 16846-16851——Evidence respecting the existence of the Protestant Registration Committee, 16852-16867——Admission to the freedom by marriage was granted out of compliment previous to the Reform Bill, since then, as a right, 16868.

[Third Examination.]—Pecuniary loss sustained by witness in consequence of being summoned before the Committee, 17560-17563——Evidence respecting the decision of the Court of King's Bench, in the case of Adcocks, as to the right of a party to compel by mandamus a corporation to admit them by birth or service, 17564-17581.

[Fourth Examination.]—Several persons have been admitted freemen by maternal and paternal right, 17754-17770——Former clerk very irregular in his entries, 17756——Grounds on which the petition of Dowling was rejected, 17771-17774. 17776-17782——No persons admitted who profess the Roman-catholic religion; the oath only has reference to taking apprentices, 17783-17798——Rules and bye-laws of the corporation of smiths published in 1817, did not pass the hall in the form in which they are printed; proceedings of the corporation in respect thereof, 17799-17804.

[Fifth Examination.]—Examination respecting the proceedings taken by the corporation of smiths against their late master; circumstances which caused those proceedings, and manner they were disposed of, 18691-18747.

[Sixth Examination.]—Entries in the admission book of the guild of smiths relative to the enrolment of females as members of the corporation, and examination thereon, 19005-19018——No entry of females having been sworn in members, 19019——Extract from the charter of Edward I., authorizing the admission of females to the corporation, 19020-19025——Report of the judgment given by Chief Baron Joy on the point reserved in the appeals of Carolin and Hyde, 19026, p. 208-210.

Quinan, who had left the house out of which he had registered, and returned to it before the election, and voted, 4231–4247. 4257, 4258.

The house of Patrick Callaghan was erased from the police books, on appeal, as being of less value than 5*l.*; he voted for Mr. Ronayne, 4259–4269——Witness was examined before the Election Committee of 1833, 4270——The rent and value of Edward Mackin's and Richard O'Meagher's houses; when no fine is paid, rent and value may be considered as synonymous, 4271–4309——The landlord, Mr. Morgan Jones, is not likely to let houses at less than their value; he is now letting them in single rooms, and thus receives the retail value; but he has increased risk and greater expense in repairs, 4310–4322——Although the general valuation of the town is above the real value, yet several houses were valued at less than their actual value; examination as to Joshua Moore's house, 4323–4339——As to the houses of Thomas Everard and William Hurley, 4340–4347——When persons complained that their houses were too high, they were induced not to appeal by the persuasion that their contribution would not be increased, so long as the valuation was relative, 4348, 4349.

The value of houses for business has increased since 1828, 4350–4361——John Sawyer said he paid 10*l.* a year for his house, which he thought was too much, in which opinion witness and Mr. Higgins concurred, 4362–4381——No complaints were made of Mr. Hobson's registry; Thomas Holmes and Walter Bowles were admitted by him, whose houses were not worth 10*l.* a year, 4382–4399——Mr. Howley also gave satisfaction; he registered Richard Tobin, who occupies a cellar, for which he pays between 8*l.* and 9*l.* rent, 4400–4410——A landlord would prefer letting a house to a solvent and respectable tenant at a lower rent, than to one of indifferent character at a higher rent, 4411–4422——Witness conceives about 50 votes to have been registered on account of houses not of the yearly value of 10*l.* a year; there may be a greater number, the rent of which did not amount to 10*l.*, because fines and leases may have disturbed the proportion between rent and value, 4423–4434.

Number and names of houses included in the 50 which are not worth 10*l.* a year, into which witness has been for the special purpose of valuation, 4435–4524——Others witness did not enter, but estimated the value by knowing the particulars of adjoining houses, 4525–4528——Examination relative to the value of houses out of which Thomas Mackie, Gerard Russel, Michael Skeffington, Michael Tobin and John Kean, were registered, 4529–4559——Lodgers and weekly tenants have been registered; the case of William Meagher, 4560–4579——Patrick Welch and William Pollard registered out of one house worth 16*l.* a year, 4580–4601——Dennis Slattery stated that he had a room only, for which he paid no rent; he was registered and voted, 4602–4606. 4622–4630——William Purcell and John Garven registered out of one house, 4607–4621. 4631–4635——Patrick Tunpey, a lodger, paying 9*s.* a month, was registered, and voted for Mr. Ronayne, 4636–4647.

Edward and John Durney occupied one house, having only one entrance; they were both registered, 4648–4650——The case of John Hayes, 4651–4655——The applotments appear in the rate-books, which are not in the custody of witness, 4657–4672——The county cess is laid on in the town of Clonmel by applotters appointed by the vestry, who generally follow the former applotments, making such alterations only as appear necessary from altered value; some houses which have not been changed in value are applotted at the same rate as they were fifteen or twenty years ago, 4673–4689.

Lennard, Michael. Of Michael-street, Belfast; paid 9*l.* 9*s.* rent, but swore his house was worth 10*l.*; evidence was produced to prove the house to be of less value, but Mr. Fogarty said, that as the sum paid was within a few shillings of 10*l.*, he was bound to admit the claimant, Bates 1982–2006.

Lestrange, Mr. Admitted to the freedom of the barbers and surgeons' corporation in April or July 1836; received the money for admission from Mr. Collison, Clinton 17419–17422.

LODGERS:

1. In Belfast.
2. In Clonmel.

1. In Belfast:

Mr. Mayne rejected the claims of such persons as let off portions of their houses to lodgers, for the purpose of trying the general question on appeal, Bates 1557——Baron Pennefather declared the opinion of the judges to be, that the letting a portion of the house to lodgers, where the part retained in the actual occupation of the proprietor is of the annual value of 10*l.*, does not deprive the householder of his right to vote; this decision has left uncertain the claims of those, the reserved portion of whose houses are of less value than 10*l.*, Bates 1559——The admission of persons to the register who let lodgings, will enable several persons to club together to take a house worth 10*l.* a year, who may thus extend the franchise beyond the intentions of the legislature by leaving one to assume the character of landlord, Bates 1594, 1595——This was injurious to the conservative party in Belfast, Bates 1653. 1701–1714——Since this reported decision of the judges, Mr. Fogarty has admitted persons to register, the reserved portion of whose houses are of less annual value than 10*l.*, not considering any opinion to have been expressed by the judges unfavourable to his construction of the case, Bates 1560–1563——This reported judgment was afterwards stated by Mr. Justice Crampton to have been incorrect, and much difference of opinion still exists amongst the judges upon the lodger point, Bates 1563–1603.

Maxcey, William. Lower Johnson-street, Clonmel; pays 10*l.* or 11*l.* for his premises; valued in the commissioners' books at 8*l.*, Walshe 9919–9921.

May, John. May's-lane, Belfast; not valued at all in the police-books, but registered, having sworn his house to be worth 10*l.* a year, Gilmore 325–329.

Mayne, Joseph Sinclair. Was admitted to the freedom of the guild of weavers in right of birth, Irwin 17980.

Mayne, William, Esq. (Analysis of his Evidence.)—Was assistant barrister and chairman for the county of Antrim; in October 1835 he was removed to Mayo, and succeeded by Mr. Fogarty, 884–895——In registering the votes at Belfast he considered the rent, the police valuation, and other circumstances where necessary, 902–912——The valuation was an unsafe criterion, as it was under the real value, and frequently incorrect; the rent paid was not conclusive of value, as the tenant might be paying too much or too little, 913–921——There were some appeals from his decisions upon the right of householders to vote out of a house let in part to lodgers; he did not admit persons to register when there was no opposition to their claims, if their answers were unsatisfactory, 922–953.

It would be very desirable to have appeals against the admission of votes to the register; had this been allowable, he would have placed those on the register, whom he was obliged to reject in order to have the question settled on appeal, 954–957——It would be advisable to substitute some other tribunal for registering votes in Ireland, as the present means subject the assistant barristers to suspicions of partiality; there should be an annual registry, 959–971——Doubts exist as to the word "qualification" in the Irish Reform Act, which should be understood as the market value of property, 972–974.

O'Brien, John, and Jacob Bardon. Registered out of one house, worth 5*l.* a year, Higgins 2826–2831, Smith 3892–3903.

O'Brien, Mr. His premises are not worth 10*l.*; rejected by Mr. Guthrie at the time of registration, Walshe 8918.

O'Brien, Thomas. Bagwell-street; pays about 12*l.* a year; valued at 8*l.*, Walshe 9915–9918.

O'Bryan, Thomas. House occupied by him is worth 50*l.* a year; he pays 42*l.* for it, Hackett 13517–13520.

O'Connell, Hugh. His petition for admission to the freedom of the guild of merchants of Dublin was disallowed, Allen 16254.

O'Connell, Thomas. Improvements made by him since 1828 has caused an increased valuation to be put on his premises, Keily 11101.

O'Connor, Peter. He pays 10*l.* rent; is valued at 9*l.* by the valuators appointed under 9 Geo. IV., Walshe 9925–9928. 10148, 10149.

O'Connor, Thomas. Of Main-street; description of the cellar occupied by him; he voted for Mr. Ronayne on both occasions; it is worth about 8*l.*, Graham 4840–4846, Walshe 9592–9594.

O'Donel, Patrick. Writs served upon him and his daughter for arrears of rent due to Mr. Bagwell, in consequence of the manner in which he voted, Walshe 9146–9151.

O'Dwyer, John, Esq. (Analysis of his Evidence.)—Acted as deputy-assistant barrister in 1832 at Lisburn and Belfast, 1–5——Number of voters registered at Belfast, and number of claims rejected, 6–13——The objections raised were, mistakes in the names of claimants, incorrect description of residence, and mistakes as to residence altogether, 14–16——The qualification of claimants was established by the oath of the claimant, the rent paid, the police valuation, and the evidence of valuators employed by each party; sometimes witness examined the premises personally, 17–29——The rent was not evidence per se of the value in the case of weekly tenants, 30–38——Witness's construction of the Reform Act as to "actual occupation" of houses during the progress of the building, and warehouses not used for trade, 42–58.

Clerks or warehousemen living in houses rent-free, as part of their salaries, were rejected; their masters paid the rates and taxes, 59–62——It would not have been a reason for rejecting a vote that the rates of the house were paid by somebody else, 63–89——Schoolmasters, having a house and salary, were admitted, 89——A master would have been entitled to vote by the occupation of his servant, 90–92——Joint occupants were not admitted to register, 93——Witness was summoned while in England, and is not prepared with any papers, 113–117——Was assessor at two elections for Belfast; in one, in 1835, he rejected a voter, named Clare, having an informal certificate, given by himself, and a defective affidavit, sworn before him when he was acting as registering barrister; he had had determined to hear the case re-argued the following day, when in the meanwhile the contest was given up, 121–166.

Has since been removed from the situation of counsel of the Crown on the circuit, in consequence, he understands, of that decision, 167–182——The point had not been argued before him as registering barrister, he had signed the certificate ministerially; the matter was argued before him as assessor, and he had not finally given his decision when the contest was abandoned, 183–199——The absence of an appeal, in cases of improper admissions to the register, is favourable to the creation of fictitious votes, 202–205. 212–215——The qualification ought not to be diminished; but some fixed standard for ascertaining value should be invariably applied, 206–210. 216–218——It would be desirable to separate the functions of registering barrister from those of the assistant barrister; suspicion of political bias diminishes the respect paid to the administration of justice at quarter sessions, 219–221.

[Second Examination.]—Where the police valuation was low, the claimants were disqualified primâ facie, until subsequent evidence could be produced to establish real value, 366–377——Formerly there were four prosecuting counsel, who held briefs in all Crown causes; now two only have briefs on some occasions, 378–397——Witness was dismissed while Mr. O'Loughlen was attorney-general, having been eight years on the circuit as supernumerary and regular counsel; he knows of no other cause than that already assigned for his dismissal, 398–424.

[Third Examination.]—The number of briefs witness usually held on his circuit previous to his appointment as Crown prosecutor; his appointment has occasioned the loss of all his civil practice on the circuit, which has operated injuriously upon his business in Dublin, 725–748.

O'Dwyer, Mr. His conduct met with approbation from both the political parties at Belfast, and he was twice selected by the returning officer as assessor, with the consent of both parties, Bates 1967–1970.——See also Belfast Election. Occupation, III. 1.

O'Flanagan, John. White's-lane; a lodger paying 14*d.* a week; was registered by Mr. Guthrie, Higgins 2809–2816, Smith 3878–3891——Swore he would not leave his premises for 10*l.*, and was admitted, Walshe 8957–8960——Only a lodger; part occupied by him not worth 10*l.*, Butler 11300, Lonergan 12550.

O'Meagher, Richard. Rent of house occupied by him; voted for Mr. Bagwell, Legge 4271–4291——Premises occupied by him have been taken by the landlord; they are worth 10*l.* a year, Walshe 9478–9492.

O'Neil, Cornelius. Dublin-street, Clonmel; description of the cellar occupied by him; it is worth about 8*l.*, Graham 4847–4852. 5218–5285——His cellar does not appear in the commissioners' books, Walshe 8167–8169——Rent paid by his widow, Walshe 9435–9457——He voted at the first election, Graham 4852——No doubt, if the cellar occupied by Widow O'Neil was to let, that 10*l.* could be obtained for it, Butler 11466–11472.

O'Neil, Patrick. Commissioner under 9 Geo. IV.; he is a Catholic, and a dealer in spirits, Walshe 8549. 8614–8616. 8624, 8625.

Occupation:

I. Generally.
II. By the Lord Chief Baron.
III. By the Revising Barristers.
1. In Belfast.
2. In Dublin.

I. Generally.

Construction of the clause in the Reform Act relative to occupation, O'Dwyer 42–90–92, Bates 1063–1066. 1071–1105. 1179–1197, Whiteside 2563, 2564——Should be defined by a declaratory law, Whiteside 2653–2657——The admission of persons to the register who have not had actual occupation for six months is favourable to the creation of fictitious votes, Bates 1150–1160——It is easier to establish legal possession by a false oath than actual occupation, Bates 1329–1371.

II. By the Lord Chief Baron:

In the case of John Hannay, the Lord Chief Baron decided that a house could only be actually occupied by the claimant using it as a dwelling-house; if any member of the claimant's household had resided in the house for the necessary time, it would be sufficient; but that the possession of the house, and the employment of workmen in it, was not such "possession and actual occupation" as the law requires, Bates 1910, Whiteside 2567–2572——Bearing of this decision upon Mr. Fogarty's principle, Bates 2302–2315——Number of voters admitted to the register in Belfast on grounds which, on a subsequent appeal to the Lord Chief Baron, were decided to be insufficient, Bates 1911–1942.

OCCUPATION—continued.

III. By the Revising Barristers.

1. In Belfast:

Mr. O'Dwyer considered that the occupation of a new house was not established by the possession of builders and carpenters, but required that it should have been inhabited for six months, O'Dwyer 42——The occupation by servants would entitle the master to register, O'Dwyer 90–92, Bates 1179–1197.

Messrs. O'Dwyer, Curry and Mayne required actual occupation for six months, either by residing therein or carrying on business, Bates 1063–1066, Whiteside 2563.

Mr. Fogarty considered legal possession as occupation, provided the party had occupied any portion of that time previous to the registry, Bates 1071–1105, Whiteside 2564——He considered possession and occupation to be nearly the same; the distinction was not argued until his time, Whiteside 2573–2585.

2. In Dublin:

Principle on which witness decides the question of occupation, on the claims of householders of Dublin to register, Dobbs 18748–18760.

Permissive Occupancy. In 1832 the registering barrister at Belfast (Mr. O'Dwyer) decided that clerks, warehousemen and managers of mercantile concerns, who receive a salary and a house free from rent and taxes from their employers, are not to be considered tenants, and cannot be distinguished in law from gatekeepers or gardeners who are allowed to live in a cottage as part of the remuneration of their services; a different principle was subsequently introduced by Mr. Fogarty, but since the decision of the twelve Judges upon

Qualification:

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

Qualification:

Belfast.—The qualification of claimants to register was established, first, by the oath of the claimant himself; 2dly, by the rent paid; 3dly, by the police valuation; and 4thly, by the evidence of valuators employed by each party; in some cases the registering barrister examined the premises personally, O'Dwyer 17–29——The present qualification ought not to be diminished, O'Dwyer 206–210. 216–218——Doubts exist as to the word "qualification" in the Irish Reform Act, which should be understood as the market value of property, Mayne 972–974——Opinion that the qualification of electors in Belfast has been reduced below 10*l.* by the decisions of Mr. Fogarty, Bates 2238.

Clonmel.—Qualification required by the Reform Act, as to value, is, that the property should be worth 10*l.* to any person previous to their being entitled to register, Walshe 7899–7901.

Dublin.—It is sufficient to entitle a person to register, if the qualification is complete at the time he appears to register, Dobbs, 18682–18684.

REGISTRATION:

I. Generally.

II. Of Freemen:
1. In Clonmel.
2. In Dublin.

III. Of Householders:
1. In Clonmel.
2. In Dublin.

IV. Necessity for an Annual Revision of the Register.

V. Papers laid before the Committee.

I. Generally:

The manual or direction for the registry as prepared by the Reform Association is used by both parties; it is a very useful publication, Martin 14316–14320. 14334–14343——Persons are frequently brought forward by the liberal party for registration; they are very closely examined, Martin 14393–14397——Great exertions used since the Reform Bill in procuring persons to register; by whom made, Archer 14987–14991. 17737. Clinton 17425–17429——Both parties have been more particular in their attention to the registration latterly, Dobbs 18637–18641——Very few claimants for registration in 1833 or 1834 in Dublin, Dobbs 18478–18480——Number of persons registered in 1835 and 1836, Dobbs 18642, 18643. 18655.

II. Of Freemen:

1. In Clonmel:

No objection when witness claimed to register as a freeman of Clonmel; one was rejected because he had served seven years without indentures, Smith 3691–3715——Great number of freemen refused to be registered as freemen by Mr. Guthrie who were admitted on appeal, Labarte 6850–6859——The certificate of admission to the corporation was considered sufficient evidence for the admission of freemen to the register, Labarte 7091–7101, Hackett 13462–13464——The production of the cocket of a freeman has always (with one exception) been deemed conclusive evidence of the right to register, Hackett 13959–13968. 13462–13464.

2. In Dublin:

Series of questions put to freemen previous to registration; objections made thereto; by whom they were prepared, Martin 14309–14315——Examinations respecting questions proposed to freemen previous to registration, Martin 14482. 14488, 14489. 14525, Seton 18262–18303. 18366–18372, Dobbs 18481–18500——The registering barrister refused to allow certain questions to be put to freemen; two persons rejected in order to obtain the decision of the Chief Baron on the point; they were both admitted subsequently; the barrister considers himself bound by that decision, and acts accordingly, Seton 18251–18312. 18814–18816——Evidence respecting the arrangement made as to taking the opinion of the court on the registration of freemen upon production of their certificates only, Seton 18373–18400. 18421–18471——The documents called for in cases of objections made by the liberal party to the registration of freemen were always produced previous to the decision of the Chief Baron; nature of those called for, Seton 18315–18331——Examination as to the number of freemen registered in 1835 previous to the decision of the Lord Chief Baron; the same questions were not put to old as to freemen admitted since the Reform Bill, Seton 18344–18372——No opposition made to the registration of freemen in Dublin till after the general election of 1834 and 1835, Dobbs 18478–18480.

Nature of the objection made to the registration of freemen, that subsequent to the Reform Bill all the freemen of Dublin were honorary, and as such not entitled to register; witness overruled this objection, and ground thereof, Dobbs 18481–18501——The right of old freemen to register was never disputed by the liberal party; only those who were admitted as honorary freemen, Seton 19071, 19072——Report of the judgment given by Chief Baron Joy on the point reserved in the appeal from the decision of registering barrister respecting the right of Messrs. Carolin and Hyde to be admitted to the freemen's register in Dublin, Lambert 19026, p. 208–210——On production of the certificate of admission no objection can be made to the registration of a freeman, Martin 14485–14487, Archer 15168–15170. 16058–16073, Seton 18304–18309——Witness has admitted to the register persons who were sworn in freemen after they had served their notice; would not allow a party who had been admitted and sworn in pending his notice to register, Dobbs 18685–18690.

REGISTRATION—continued.

III. Of Householders:

1. In Clonmel:

At the first registration in 1832, Mr. Guthrie was the registering barrister, Higgins 2689–2704——Registry court attended for two days; attendance withdrawn afterwards, because Mr. Guthrie preferred the oaths of the claimants, with regard to the value of their houses, to the testimony of valuators, Higgins 2705–2719, Smith 3802–3812. 3827–3850, Labarte 5483–5498, Glissan 7698–7712, Walshe 9672–9707. 9784–9791——At the registration in 1832 persons were admitted to register who stated they did not pay more than 1 s. 6 d. per week, Graham 4699–4706——No matter what rent is paid, the liberals are opposed every registry, Walshe 9836–9867——Claimants have been registered out of cellars not worth 10 l. a year by Mr. Howley and Mr. Hobson, Graham 4699–4706. 4747–4752, Walshe 9466–9477. 10517–10527——Cases of persons who were rejected by the barrister in consequence of evidence being produced that the premises out of which they claimed were not of the value stated, Walshe 9736–9777——No registry of persons holding houses of 5 l. value has been made since 1834 in Clonmel, Keily 10683–10701.

Many claimants were rejected by Mr. Guthrie for insufficiency of value, Glissan 7138–7147, Loncrgan 12702–12705——Objections taken at the registry on the part of Mr. Bagwell related to undervalue, and the voting of more than one person out of the same house, Labarte 5547–5560——More persons would have been rejected had the conservative party paid greater attention to the registration, Walshe 9772–9775. 9781–9784——Objections made by the liberals to parties as to non-value were supported by witnesses; liberal party made fewer objections than the conservatives, Walshe 9792–9836——Many persons were examined in opposition to claimants; after several cases had been inquired into, they declined to give evidence, Glissan 7722——No witnesses have been examined at the two last registry sessions, Glissan 7728–7741——Many persons have been registered who were not included in the valuation as being under 5 l.; when valuation made the valuators inquired the rent, and examined the inside of the houses when necessary, Higgins 2946–2954——Three persons registered out of a house in Bagwell-street, the person who owned the shop, another who lodged in the house, and a third who lived in the cellar, Higgins 2817–2825, Graham 4896–4910.

2. In Dublin:

Householders underwent a very long and strict examination as to their qualification, &c. previous to being allowed to register, Seton 18332–18335——Appeals have been made and argued against the registration of householders, some have been successful, and in others the parties never appeared, Seton 18403–18406. 18411–18420——There are objections in cases of 20 l. householders that require examination as much as in any other cases, Dobbs 18651–18654——Length of time persons applying to register were under examination, Martin 14512, 14513. 14526–14533——Evidence in contradiction of Mr. Martin as to the time occupied in investigating each case, Dobbs 18656–18659.

IV. Necessity for an Annual Revision of the Register:

Registration should be annual; at present a person remains on the register for eight years, and the returning officer cannot refuse to take his vote, if he has left the premises; also the value of the same premises may have decreased, Bates 2336——Should be annual, and the whole register should remain open for revision, Whiteside 2645–2647——Advantage to be derived from an annual revision of the list of voters in Clonmel, Labarte 5346——Beneficial change would be caused from an annual registration and revision instead of the present; quarterly registration tends to keep up an excitement among the constituency, Dobbs 18762–18767.

V. Papers laid before the Committee:

Return of the number of voters registered in each county in Ireland since 1st October 1832, distinguishing them into classes of 50 l. freeholders, 20 l. leaseholders, 20 l. freeholders. 10 l. leaseholders and 10 l. freeholders, distinguishing the date of the registry of each, App. i. p. 39——Return of the number of voters registered in each county of a city or town in Ireland since the passing of the Irish Reform Act, distinguishing the voters into classes of freeholders, rentcharges, leaseholders, householders and freemen, with the date of their registration respectively, App. i. p. 40–44——Return of the several persons registered in the several boroughs in Ireland sending Members to Parliament, who have subscribed their affidavits for registry as marksmen, App. i. p. 45–56.

Return of the number of notices of applications at each registering sessions since the passing of the Irish Reform Act, to register voters in each county, city and town in Ireland, together with the number of such claimants admitted, rejected or withdrawn, distinguishing the same into classes, and in cases of rejection the number of decisions of the assistant or registering barristers appealed against, the grounds of appeal and the judgment thereon, App. i. p. 127–158——Return of the number and names of freemen registered as voters in the city of Dublin since the passing of the Reform Act for Ireland, with the date of the registry of each voter, and the date of the first day of the registry sessions

Registry Court, Dublin. The registry court in Dublin, at the time of registration, is a perfect bear-garden at times, Martin 14438–14440——Further examination thereon, Martin 14584–14589. 14601–14612——It is not a correct description of witness's court, "that it is very frequently a bear-garden," Dobbs 18788–18792——Number of sessions held for the purposes of registration in Dublin; length of time they occupy, Dobbs 18476–18480. 18642–18675——Some little confusion occurs occasionally in witness's court from two or three persons speaking at the same time, Dobbs 18558, 18559.

See also Collision, Mr. Counsel at Registry Courts. Glengall, Earl. Hyndman, Mr. Mulcahy, Counsellor. Peers. Perjury. Also the Analysis of the Evidence of the following witnesses: Martin, Dobbs and Seton.

Religion. There is no hostile feeling in Clonmel between Catholics and Protestants about religion, Walshe 8514–8518. 8522, 8523——Very little religious feeling in Clonmel among either party till the election of 1832, Hackett 14270–14272——Doubtful whether the aldermen of Dublin would reject a person on account of his religion; the common council would, Archer 14834–14856.

RENT AND VALUE:

1. In Belfast.
2. In Clonmel.

1. In Belfast:

The rent paid was the best guide in ascertaining the value of a house for the purpose of registry, but was not conclusive of value, because the tenant might be paying too much or too little, Mayne 902–921——The rent paid by weekly tenants was not evidence per se of the value of houses in Belfast, O'Dwyer 30–38——The rent is seldom ascertained in valuating a house, and when known, is not a standard of value, if the house be held under a lease, for it may be either improving or decreasing in value, Thompson 856–871——Parties were admitted to register where the rent was under 10*l.* if a fine had been paid, if any subsequent improvements had been made, or if the house was held under an old lease and the value of the houses in the neighbourhood had improved, O'Dwyer 27——Rent is the best criterion of value where houses are held by tenants at will, Bates 2397, 2398.

2. In Clonmel:

Opinion that rent is the criterion of value; it is paid for the accommodation afforded, Legge 4110–4190——It is not exactly a criterion of value in Clonmel, Butler 11380——Rent and value may be considered synonymous, except where improvements have been made, Higgins 2937–2943——Where no fine is paid, Legge 4271–4309——Does not consider rent and value as synonymous, Labarte 5572–5590, Walshe 8344, Lonergan 13061——Rent is high in Clonmel, and houses are generally let at their full value, Higgins 2894–2912——Witness does not agree in this opinion, Walshe 8340–8382——House-rent has not altered much since 1829 in Clonmel, Walshe 7944–7955.

Not the general practice in Clonmel for persons to pay more rent than the premises are worth, Walshe 9404–9407——Tenants are not very fond of saying they pay a higher rent than they do, for fear their landlords should raise it to what they say they pay, Lonergan 12580–

Smith, Mr. William. (Anaylysis of his Evidence.)—A corn merchant at Clonmel, 3168–3170——Was a valuator in 1828 under 9 Geo. IV., and valued the houses at their utmost value; whenever he and the other valuators were in doubt they entered the premises, 3171–3174——They took into account the situation, and the advantages for any particular business; the rent was sometimes ascertained, 3175–3181——There were 20 or 30 appeals, in all of which the valuation was reduced, 3182–3185——Witnesses attended the registration in 1832, and gave evidence against the claim of William Keily, who was, however, admitted, as the barrister said the claimant was the best judge of the value of his own house, 3186–3205——The house of Thomas Keily, a voter, is not worth more than 3*l.* a year, 3206–3222——Nicholas Lynch's house is worth 10*s.* a year more, 3223–3238.

The rent and value of the houses of James Gleeson, Timothy Carew, Richard Butler, James Fitzgerald, John Hall and Martin Morony, 3239–3274——Of William Davis, Martin Callaghan, Thomas Walsh, Bartholomew Fennessy, John Collins and William Burke, 3275–3308——Of James Wholohan, Thomas Boyd and Patrick Hickey; the two latter would be worth 10*l.* a year if the letting of lodgings were taken into account, 3309–3345——Of John Ryan, John Everard, Patrick Burke and Timothy Dooley, 3346–3365.

[Second Examination.]—William Russell's house described; it is worth 8*l.* a year in the market, but he swore it was worth 10*l.* to him; he has since stated that he would not have sworn that its real value was 10*l.*, 3366–3410——Many persons were admitted because they swore that their houses were worth 10*l.* a year on account of their particular trade, 3410–3414——Patrick Roach and Patrick Toole both registered out of one 10*l.* house, 3422–3430. 3573–3579——Rent and value of Patrick Burke's house, 3431–3439——John and Edward Durney registered out of one house worth 14*l.* a year, 3440–3455. 3580.

The conservative counsel and agents were present to cross-examine the claimants, and to produce witnesses, 3456–3458——A butcher came forward to register out of a stall in the back shambles, but his case was not pressed, and other butchers who were about to apply desisted, 3459–3466——The value and rent of the houses of Thomas Shehy, William Gorman and Stephen Mara, 3467–3480——Witness has made three valuations, viz. the official one in 1828, a second in 1832 for the registration, and the last recently for the purpose of the present examination, 3481–3511——Others took memoranda in 1832 as well as witness, amongst others were Mr. Higgins, Mr. Tinsley, Mr. George Graham and Mr. James Shee, 3512–3534——Mr. Shee, though a Roman-catholic, voted for Mr. Bagwell, who holds the fee of the whole town, 3535–3547.

All the gentlemen mentioned as being engaged in the valuation in 1832, were supporters of Mr. Bagwell, 3548–3550——Although Mr. Bagwell is the head landlord of the whole town, and is a patron of the corporation, he was defeated by a large majority, 3551–3556——Thomas Atkyns had a house worth 10*l.* a year, but was ejected for nonpayment of rent: Thomas Ryan took possession, and Atkyns rented two rooms of him and voted, 3567–3572——Witness was admitted a freeman by right of marriage in 1833; about 40 were admitted at the same time, 3582–3589——For the five years preceding the Reform Act no freemen were created; since that time 83 have been admitted by birth, servitude, marriage or grace especial, 3590–3601——Of these only one was a Roman-catholic, John Farrell, 3602–3605.

Witness does not know whether any freemen were admitted in right of marriage before the Reform Act, 3613–3617——Mr. Chater was elected mayor for several successive years, 3618–3623——Witness applied for his freedom to give his son a vote, 3624–3632——Only three were admitted by special favour, but these cannot vote as freemen, 3633–3653——The only charge when witness was admitted was the stamp duty of one guinea, 3654–3665——The barrister refused to register several freemen; they all appealed to the judge at the next assizes, who admitted them, 3673–3676——No freeman was admitted previous to the last election, who was not in the interest of Mr. Bagwell; Mr. Stephen Lonergan is the only one since that time, 3677–3690——No objection was taken when witness claimed to register as a freeman; one was rejected because he had served seven years without indentures, 3691–3715——Discrepancies between certain returns of Clonmel freemen, 3716–3720.

Witness was one of Mr. Bagwell's committee, and instructed his counsel, Mr. Welch, at the registration, who did not produce so many witnesses as witness desired, 3721–3769——He did not expect that further evidence would have changed the decisions of the barrister, but he thought it necessary that it should be produced in case of petition, 3770–3801——It was useless to give evidence, as the barrister adopted, as a criterion of value, the oath of the claimant, 3802–3812——Evidence given by witness before the Election Committee in 1833, 3813–3826——The oath of the claimant established the value of his house to him, the evidence in opposition related only to the intrinsic value, 3827–3850——There should be a compulsory process to oblige witnesses to attend; no one will give evidence voluntarily, 3851. 3859–3862——About 60 votes are on the register which witness conceives to be of less value than 10*l.* a year, 3852–3859. 3863–3877——James O'Flanagan, a lodger, paying 1*s.* 2*d.* a week, registered, 3878–3891——Jacob Bardin paying paying 10*s.* a week, and O'Brien, another lodger, registered out of the same house, 3892–3903.

Case of Thomas Mackie, a lodger, 3904–3910——Formal objections were made to each of these cases on the ground that they were lodgers, 3911–3933——John Meaher and Michael Lacy were also lodgers; with the exception of Meaher, all these lodgers voted for Mr. Ronayne, 3934–3947——A house in Bagwell-street described, out of which three persons registered, 3948–3967——Dennis Slattery, a lodger, paid no rent, but was registered, 3968–3978——There were riots at the election between Bagwell and Ronayne, 3979–3981——Explanation of the circumstances under which witness fired a pistol out of his window during that election, 3982–3986.

having no right to enter houses, judge from the outside, but in some instances are admitted, 782–813——Witness, from his experience as a builder, can judge of the cost of erecting a house from an outward examination, and he estimates its value at eight per cent. per annum; there is a general scale of interior fittings in houses of a certain class which renders an inspection of the inside scarcely necessary, 814–855——The rent is seldom ascertained, and when known, is not a standard of value, if the house be held under a lease, for it may be either improving or decreasing in value, 856–871——It is not likely that a house valued at 5*l.* or 6*l.* can be worth 10*l.*; but improvements may have raised the value to that extent, which the valuators could not view, 877–883.

Thomson, James. Was refused admittance to the freedom of Clonmel in right of birth, in consequence of being a non-resident, Labarte 6269–6277.

I. Principles on which the Registering Barristers estimated the Value of Property to Persons claiming to Register.

1. In Belfast:

Mr. O'Dwyer estimated the value of houses in Belfast to be that which they would bring in the market; which he ascertained by the rent and police valuation, and by other evidence when necessary. This principle was stated by Lord Stanley in a letter to the Right Hon. G. R. Dawson, to have been intended by the Government who framed the Reform Act, Bates 1943-1954——When the rent and police valuation were low, he put the onus of proving the value upon the claimant, Bates 1955-1959——If the rent was 10*l.* and the police valuation 8*l.*, the onus of proving disqualification was thrown upon the parties opposing, Bates 1962-1965——The same principle was adopted by Mr. Curry and Mr. Mayne, and no appeals were made from their decisions, Bates 1971-1973——Mr. Fogarty acted upon a different principle, and took the oath of the claimant as primâ facie evidence of value until the contrary was proved in all cases, whether the rent paid by him was more or less than 10*l.*: cases of Arthur Lavery, William Bloomfield, Michael Lennard and Joseph Hurtley, Bates 1943-2031. 1975——He stated that as both parties were prepared to oppose the claimants, they would be prepared with necessary evidence to disprove value, Bates 1976-1980.

Mr. O'Dwyer, Mr. Curry and Mr. Mayne adopted the real as the criterion of value; and when this was only 8*l.* or 9*l.* and the police-tax was in proportion, they required evidence of a clear and strong character to prove the value: Billington's case, Whiteside 2460-2463——As 10*l.* rent was primâ facie evidence of a right to register, less than that sum was a primâ facie disqualification, and a fine must have been paid on improvements made to qualify the claimant, Whiteside 2463-2471——In later cases, where the rent and police-tax are very low, Mr. Fogarty required that the applicant should produce witnesses to their opinion of the value of the house, in addition to the evidence of the applicant himself; the cases of Francis Campbell and Owen M'Cann, Bates 2168-2184. 2191-2206. 2257——He considered the value of a tenement to be what it is worth to the tenant for the particular business he carries on, Bates 2191-2195——Opinion that the landlord takes into account the value to a person in a particular business in affixing the rent, Bates 2196-2206——Mr. Fogarty has applied his principle impartially to both parties in Belfast, but the conservatives have objected to it, Bates 2258, 2259. 2271. Whiteside, 2538-2545.

Persons are unwilling to appear as witnesses to disprove the value of houses which claimants to register state to be of the necessary value, and paid valuators are therefore employed for the purpose, Bates 2028-2031——Mr. Fogarty, in the case of Arthur Hamill, added the police-tax to the rent, and took both together in his estimate of value; opinions as to the propriety of adopting this principle, Bates 2032-2160, Whiteside 2595-2613——There is no distinction between the assessed taxes in England and the local taxes of Belfast in adding to the value of a house; they are both criterions of value only, Whiteside 2614-2624——An appeal is allowed upon the point of value in qualifications to a trial by jury, but the assistant barrister has no power, in the first instance, to summon a jury, O'Dwyer, 212, 213——At the first registry sessions Mr. Fogarty admitted claimants whose rent was less than 10*l.* without corroborating evidence; he held that the claimant's oath was evidence which must be contradicted by the opposing party, Whiteside

VALUATION:—I. Principles on which the Registering Barristers estimated the Value of Property to Persons claiming to Register—continued.

1. In Belfast—continued.

Whiteside 2507–2515. 2524——The police valuation was not conclusive proof of value; some claimants were admitted to register who were valued at less than 8*l.*, because additions had been made in the back premises, which the valuators had not discovered, O'Dwyer, 23–28.

When the police valuation was low, the claimants to register were disqualified primâ facie, until subsequent evidence could be produced to establish real value, O'Dwyer 366–377——Every barrister has registered houses valued at less than 10*l.* in the police-books; some persons were registered who were not rated, as being considered under 5*l.* by the valuators, Gilmore 430–438. 440, 441. 502–513——When houses were valued at less than 7*l.* or 8*l.* in the police-books, evidence of value was required in addition to the oath of the claimant, Gilmore 474–484——Additional evidence was in every case required to establish a claim to register in Belfast, where the police valuation was much under 10*l.*, although neither party had an objection to the person seeking to register, Gilmore 557–559——The police valuation was an unsafe criterion of value for the purposes of registry, as it was under the real value and frequently incorrect, Mayne 913–921.

2. In Clonmel:

The valuation was taken on the full improved value of the premises and has continued in force since 1828, except as to houses which have been changed, and new houses built, Higgins 2670–2681. 3097–3099, Smith 3171–3174——The revising barrister in 1832 preferred the evidence of the claimant as to the value of his house in all cases; he did not object to receive contrary evidence, but he gave a preference to the claimant, Higgins 2714–2718, Glissan 7148–7152. 7158–7163——Neither the valuation of 1828 nor the amount of rent paid by the claimant for their premises were deemed by any of the registering barristers in Clonmel as the criterion of the value of the house, &c. Walshe 10525——Houses valued at their utmost value by witness; valuators took into account the situation and the advantages of any particular business; the rent was sometimes ascertained, Smith 3175–3181——Opinion that the highest rent houses would let for in the market is their value, without reference to the business intended to be carried on, Graham 5313–5342——Intrinsic value may be increased by the advantage of situation, Graham 5390——Principle on which witness proceeds in setting a value on houses, according to what it ought to bring in the market, Lonergan 13074–13094.

Premises being under value was the principal ground of objection to persons claiming to register, Labarte 5547——The facts on which claimants made out the value of their houses to be 10*l.* to them were elicited on cross-examination, Higgins 3052–3059——The oath of the claimant established the value of the house to him, the evidence in opposition related only to the intrinsic value, Smith 3827–3850——Many persons were admitted, because they swore that their houses were worth 10*l.* on account of their particu- trades, Smith 3410–3414——Many persons admitted to register who occupy houses of less value than 10*l.*, Labarte 5540–5566, Butler 12498——Three valuations made by witness; in 1828 the official one, in 1832 for the registration, and the last recently for the purpose of the present examination, Smith 3481–3511——The valuation books were never consulted by any party (for election purposes) as a criterion of value, Walshe 10273–10276.

3. In Dublin:

With respect to householders in Dublin, witness considered the payment of the rent as primâ facie evidence of the value, Dobbs 18586–18589——Did not admit as part of the value any imaginative value which the party in possession might attach to the particular premises, Dobbs 18590–18593——Further evidence thereon, Dobbs 18602–18621——There has been no appeal from witness's decision respecting the mode of ascertaining the value of houses, Dobbs 18600——The fair test of value is, what a bonâ fide solvent tenant would be willing to give for the premises, and not the use made of the premises as rendering them more or less productive, Dehany 17054–17058. 17081 17089——The value placed on houses for the purposes of registration is the true value; that for the purpose of excise is an undervalue, Dehany 17026–17029. 17036——Common practice for parties applying for spirit licences, to represent their premises of less value than they really are, Dehany 17123, 17124*——Situation of the house must be considered as one ingredient of its value; the facilities for trade another, Dobbs, 18605–18607——The fact of letting lodgings is not a criterion of value, Dobbs 18609–18618.

II. Local Valuation:

1. In Belfast:

Four valuators are appointed annually by the police committee, one of whom is generally an architect, who are allowed 50*l.* Irish between them for valuing the town, Gilmore 242–250——Names of valuators for this year, Gilmore 425, 426——The town valuators valuators were not examined at the registry sessions in each disputed case, as to value, but each party had special valuators for the purpose, Gilmore 453–469——The practice of having party valuators is less prevalent now, Gilmore 485–492——All the four valuators must agree before the value of any house is entered in the blotter, Thompson 754–769——The valuators have no right to enter houses, and therefore judge from the outside; they are sometimes admitted, and raise the valuation; if the parties complain, the commissioners order the premises to be re-valued; the bonâ fide value is ascertained, if possible, but there is a leaning in favour of the inhabitants, Thompson 770–813——There is a general scale of fitting up in houses of a certain class, which renders an inspection of the inside scarcely necessary; the cost of erecting a house may be known by an outward view, and the value is estimated at eight per cent. per annum, Thompson 814–855.

Valuators do not examine the back premises, Gilmore 285——The houses in Belfast are classed for the purpose of valuation; nature of this classification, Gilmore 251–266——An appeal may be made from the valuation to the police commissioners; there are generally about seventy or eighty appeals out of six thousand one hundred houses valuated, Gilmore 267–269. 273–285——The police valuation of some houses in Belfast has remained the same, although improved, Gilmore 514–542.——Houses are built in Belfast without any reference to the taxes which will be payable; in case of an unequal tax upon houses of the same description, the rent would be affected, but not the intrinsic value of the houses, Whiteside 2627–2644——In 10 Geo. IV., c. 8, the criterion of value is that which a solvent and respectable tenant would pay, Whiteside 2501, 2502——This should be laid down as the standard of value for the purpose of the elective franchise, Whiteside 2647——It is not likely that a house valued at 5*l.* or 6*l.* can be worth 10*l.*; but improvements which the valuators may not have been able to discover may have raised the value to that extent, Thompson 877–883.

2. In Clonmel:

Persons employed in the valuation of 1832 were supporters of Mr. Bagwell, Smith 3548–3550——When valuation made, valuators inquired the rent and examined the houses when necessary, Higgins 2946–2954, Smith 3171–3181——Valuators are not changed every three years; commissioners have the power, but they do not exercise it, Lonergan 12881–12888——Those employed under 9 Geo. IV. were not conversant with the value of houses, Lonergan 12684–12690——Those of 1828 did not value correctly, Lonergan 12889–12891. 12956–12964——Examination relative to the instructions given to them in 1831 and 1834 by the commissioners, Lonergan 12838–12902——The valuation of 1828 afforded a general test of value in 1832, except where alterations had been made, Higgins 3119–3123——That made in 1828 was a very low valuation; nearly all the houses were undervalued, Butler 12238, 12239, Hackett 14201–14205. 14216, 14217——In making the valuation, the commissioners did not take the value as a rent and the value placed on their books as synonymous; great many instances in which houses are valued under their real value, Keily 10650–10666.

Improvements may have been made since the valuation; the general value of houses of the same description remains unchanged, Higgins 2955–2964——There has been no general valuation of the town of Clonmel since 1828; a partial valuation took place in 1831 and 1834, Keily 7223–7228——Those of 1831 and 1834 comprise all the houses that have been built since 1828, and those that have been altered by improvements, Keily 7549–7552——Present valuation is rather under the true value of the houses, Butler 12139——Evidence respecting the manner in which the new valuation was made in 1834; description of property that was re-valued, Lonergan 12848–12879——Extent of the alteration made by the commissioners in 1831 and 1834 in the first value put upon the houses under 9 Geo. IV., Keily 9933–9945. 11088–11161, Lonergan 12848–12879——Cases in which it has been reduced, on the ground that, when made, it was too high, Keily 10292–10301——Cases in which increased valuations have been made, in consequence of the improvements made on the property, Walshe 10238–10248. 10257–10267. 10269, 10270, Keily 10283–10289, Butler 12172–12178. 12214–12314, Lonergan 12737–12746——Although the general valuation of the town is above the real value, yet several houses were valued at less than their actual value, Legge 4323–4329.

No steps have been taken by the present commissioners to increase the valuation of those houses which are undervalued in their books, and cause assigned, Walshe 10249–10255. 10268——The expense deterred the commissioners from having a re-valuation of Clonmel in 1833, Walshe 8648–8653, Butler 12141. 12223, 12224——If a new valuation is made, all houses will be higher rated, Keily 10669–10679——Examination on the list delivered in by Mr. Keily of the valuation of certain houses in Clonmel, as appears from the valuators' books of 1828, Walshe 9871–9932. 10148–10233——The commissioners' book of valuation is very inaccurate, Walshe 8442–8458——It cannot be much more inaccurate, Walshe 10234–10237——Intention of the rate-payers to have the town re-valued next July, Walshe 8452–8454——Difference in the valuation of certain premises, and the rent paid, Walshe 9535–9549——Inaccuracy of the valuation demonstrated by the

the fact, that the rents paid are, in many instances, higher than the valuation, Lonergan 12610–12632——Evidence on the undervalue at which certain houses are rated in the commissioners' books, Lonergan 12824–12837. 12927–12955. 13029. 13044——The commissioners' valuation of Clonmel was exposed to public view for some days when it was first made, Walshe 8189.

III. Valuation Commissioners:

The present commissioners are in an inferior class with respect to property than the first commissioners under the Act, and profess different politics; they have ordered no revaluation, Higgins 2682–2688, Walshe 8584–8587. 8660——Commissioners of 1828 were gentlemen of all parties elected by the rate-payers, Legge 4033–4056——Names of some of the present commissioners, Higgins 3038–3046——Appointment of valuation commissioners under 9 Geo. IV.; by whom appointed; number of Protestants and Roman-catholics, and reason assigned for their not acting together, Walshe 8459–8569. 8752–8800——Names of the valuation commissioners, and their religion, Walshe 8535–8558——Protestants proposed as commissioners refused to act, Walshe 8568, 8569. 8686–8690——Present commissioners attend more sedulously to the discharge of their duties than those elected in 1828, Walshe 8674–8677. 8679——With the exception of one or two, they voted for Mr. Ronayne, Walshe 8681. 8683. 8685——Six Protestants and three Quakers elected as commissioners in 1831; there are no Protestants members of the Board at the present, Keily 11196–11204——Qualification necessary to have a vote for, Walshe 8778, 8779——Names of persons (Protestants) who refused to act as commissioners at the second election, under 9 Geo. IV., Walshe 10716–10723. 10984–11000. 11041–11045.

White, Mr. William. Refused to act as a valuation commissioner for Clonmel, Walshe 8480.

Whiteside, James. (Analysis of his Evidence.)—Has practised as counsel for the conservative party in Belfast at the registry courts, 2454–2459——Mr. O'Dwyer, Mr. Curry and Mr. Mayne adopted the rent as the criterion of value, and when this was only 8 l. or 9 l., and the police tax was in proportion, they required evidence of a clear and strong character to prove the value; Billington's case, 2460–2463——As 10 l. rent was primâ facie evidence of a right to register, less than that sum was a primâ facie disqualification, and a fine must have been paid or improvements made to qualify the claimant, 2463–2471——Their decisions gave satisfaction to both parties; they established a bonâ fide 10 l. constituency: there were no appeals; had appeals been allowed in cases of improper admissions, witness would have advised appeals from decisions of Mr. Fogarty, 2472–2479.

The case of Francis Campbell illustrative of Mr. Fogarty's principle in ascertaining value; he had been rejected by Mr. Fogarty in the preceding session to that in which he admitted him, 2480–2484——This man ought to have been left to his remedy by appeal instead of being admitted to the register, 2485–2494——The expense of an appeal is borne by the parties, but the applicant loses his time, 2495, 2496——He has no power to compel the attendance of witnesses either at the sessions or assizes, but in one case the witnesses are on the spot, and in the other at a distance, 2497–2499——If persons are allowed to apply at successive sessions, and have their cases re-heard, the power of appeal is useless, 2500——In the 10 Geo. IV. c. 8, the criterion of value is that which a solvent and respectable tenant would pay, 2501, 2502——On the rejection of Campbell's claim there was no corroborating evidence of value; on his admission there was, 2503–2506.

At the first registry sessions Mr. Fogarty admitted claimants whose rent was less than 10 l. without corroborating evidence; he held that the claimant's oath was evidence which must be contradicted by the opposing party, 2507–2515, 2524——The correctness of the report of Arthur Lavery's case, as published in the Guardian by Mr. Bates, confirmed, 2516–2523——In Campbell's case evidence was not produced in opposition to his claim until Mr. Fogarty had stated that if none were given, he would admit him, 2529–2531——When the rent and taxes show that the houe is not worth 10 l. a year the claim should be rejected, except under special circumstances, 2532–2535——Witness heard of some cases of personification in the case of Mr. M'Cance for Belfast, 2536, 2537——Mr. Fogarty's principle was applied to both parties with impartiality, 2538–2545.

Evidence relative to the oath under 10 Geo. IV. c. 8, 2546–2551——Mr. Fogarty did not refuse to reject claimants who were willing to stand rejected in order to try the question of value, but he did refuse to do so with respect to the lodger point, which is still undecided by the judges, but upon which Mr. Fogarty himself had no doubts, 2553–2562——Occupation was determined by Mr. O'Dwyer, Mr. Curry and Mr. Mayne to be the residence, either of the claimant, his family or servants, for six months, 2563——Mr. Fogarty held that possession, and the payment of rent for six months, and actual occupation any time previous to the registry, was sufficient, 2564——Several votes were admitted upon this principle which, in the case of James Green Bell, the Chief Baron has decided to be wrong, 2565, 2566——At the last Dundalk assizes the Chief Baron held that actual occupation requires the residence of the family or domestic servants, 2567–2572.

Mr. Fogarty considered possession and occupation to be nearly the same; the distinction was not argued until his time, because his predecessors dated the period of occupation from the day on which the claimant first slept in the house, 2573–2585——The question of permissive occupancy is now decided by the judges, 2589–2592——In the case of weekly tenants the payment of 10 l. a year rent is not a criterion of value, as was decided in the poor-law cause of Rex v. The Inhabitants of Hellinglee in England, 2592–2594——In Arthur Hamill's case Mr. Fogarty added the police-tax to the rent in estimating the value of his house; this principle appears to witness to be improper, 2595–2613——There is no distinction between the assessed taxes paid in England, and the local taxes of Belfast, in adding to the value of a house; they are both criterions of value only, 2614–2624——Witness's attention called to the cases of Rex v. St. Paul Deptford, and Rex v. Framlingham, 2625.

Houses are built without any reference to the taxes which will be payable; in case of an unequal tax upon houses of the same description, the rent would be affected, but not the intrinsic value of the houses, 2627–2644——Suggestions for the amendment of the Reform Act; the registration should be annual, and the whole register should be open for revision, 2645–2647——The standard of value should be laid down according to the 10 Geo. IV., c. 8, what a solvent and respectable tenant would pay, 2647——The assessor at contested elections should be empowered to put questions to the voters, 2648——In boroughs the poll should be terminated in two days, 2649, 2650——The registering barristers are becoming acquainted with the decisions of their brethren, and no change is necessary, except the establishment of appeals in cases of improper admissions, 2652——"Occupation" should be defined by a declaratory law, 2653–2657——The assistant barristers should be transferred from one county to another, 2658, 2659.

WITNESSES:

1. Attending Registry Courts.
2. Witnesses attending Committee on Fictitious Votes, Ireland.

1. Attending Registry Courts:

It would be an improvement upon the Reform Act to give the power of summoning witnesses to the registry, and would be a means of checking the admission of fictitious votes, Bates 2019, 2020——It is necessary, because parties will not voluntarily come forward to give evidence if they can avoid it, Bates 2376——There should be a compulsory process to oblige witnesses to attend; no one will give evidence voluntarily, Smith 3851. 3859–3862——It would be an advantage if the revising barrister had the power to compel the attendance of witnesses; has found no inconvenience from not having that power, Dobbs 18776–18784——Great readiness on both sides in getting persons to give evidence before the revising barrister, Dobbs 18785–18788.
